

I AM THOROUGHLY IN ACCORD

with the movement to limit the working hours of train men and other railway employees, to eight hours a day. Eight hours a day at hard, exacting work, demanding close attention, is all that should be required or expected as a regular day's work. * * * This is especially true of the train men whose work is of such a peculiarly responsible and important character. The eight hour day should be adopted generally.—Hon. Frank M. Byrne, Governor of South Dakota.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION IN REGULAR SESSION

Junction Park Selected as Place to Hold Annual Labor Day Celebration.

OFFICERS INSTALLED; REPORTS RECEIVED

A regular meeting of the Central Labor Union was held on Monday evening, in the rooms of the organization, in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton, a considerable amount of business being transacted and the recently elected officers installed.

Chairman Kross of the committee appointed to select a place for the holding of the annual Labor Day celebration, reported on the matter and, upon vote of those present, Junction Park was chosen, and the celebration will accordingly be held at this popular resort. A lengthy discussion took place before the place was finally selected, as other resorts were also under consideration.

Reports of the Auditors and Trustees were received and ordered filed, and communications from the Philadelphia Typographical Union, which organization requested that the Secretary advise them relative to meeting dates of the Central Body, as well as the time and place of meeting, and from the Liberty League, were read and will be attended to by Secretary Kross.

J. D. McKenna filed a supplemental report in relation to the Pennsylvania State Federation Convention at Beaver Falls, it being shown that with a number of donations received, the committee came out about even.

Ludwig Weissbart, of Pittsburgh, organizer of the Bakers' Union, was seated as a fraternal delegate and made a brief and convincing address.

The following officers, elected to serve during the ensuing term, were installed:

President, L. A. McDanel; vice president, J. D. McKenna; secretary, R. F. Kross; treasurer, W. H. Byers; sergeant at arms, H. Thum; trustee, H. Grimshaw; executive committee, Charles Huff, W. H. Byers, J. D. McKenna, Ralph Douglas, W. H. Moffett. All delegates present reported a most satisfactory state of affairs insofar as work was concerned, with the one exception of a decided scarcity of labor. It is apparently impossible for manufacturers to secure additional help.

CARPENTERS' LOCAL 1033 HOLDS MEETING

Takes in Several New Members and Transacts Routine Business.
Strike Settled.

At a meeting of Carpenters' Local No. 1033, held at Monaca Tuesday evening, three new members were initiated; O. D. Buffington, who has been an apprentice, and H. D. Hunter, of Beaver, and Harry B. Buckwalter, of Woodlawn. George Rodon, of Local 323, East Liverpool, was taken in on a clearance card. The resignation of S. S. Bowser as recording secretary, was received and accepted, C. W. Reed being elected to the vacancy. J. A. Kronk was elected a delegate to the General Convention, to be held in Fort Worth, Texas, in September. O. F. Gault was elected alternate.

The strike at the plant of the Colons Manufacturing Company was settled Tuesday, a compromise having been effected between the men and the company, the former returning to work.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Members of the Horse Nail Workers' Local met in regular session on Monday evening, in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton. There was a good attendance present and many matters of routine character were disposed of. A report of trade conditions was very encouraging, all members reporting business as exceptionally good. The only complaint received at this meeting was that a dearth of labor existed, which, it seems, is a general condition at the present time.

UNION MEN INVITED

All union men in Beaver valley are extended a cordial invitation to attend the ceremonies incidental to the laying of the cornerstone of the new Baptist Church, at Rochester, which will be held on Sunday afternoon, July 23rd, at three o'clock. H. C. Gleiss, secretary of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association, will be the principal speaker, and an interesting program has been arranged.

LABOR DAY PROGRAM AT JUNCTION PARK

Central Labor Union Selects Location and Committee Will Prepare Program.

Monday, September 4th, will be a great day for Union Labor in Beaver Valley. Labor Day will be celebrated by the members of unions throughout the valley gathering at Junction Park, and the committee on arrangements, consisting of R. F. Kross, J. D. McKenna, O. Molter, Charles Huff and W. H. Byers, is busily engaged in preparing a program which will meet with the approval of the many persons who are sure to attend.

Manager Shetterly has been exceedingly accommodating relative to attractions for the big day, and stands ready to do everything in his power to make the day a big success. He is at present negotiating with several carnival companies of the better class, and will have one of them for the day.

As soon as the committee on arrangements concludes its work on the program, it will be published in full in The Labor News.

ORGANIZER IN VALLEY

M. H. Nolan, vice president of the Bricklayers and Masons' International Union of America, is in the valley, and in company with Business Agent S. S. Bowser, is making an effort to unionize the work on the plant of the Asbestos Protected Metal Co., at Ambirdge, which company is employing non-union carpenters in the erection of a large plant addition. An effort will also be made to unionize the workers employed by Wallace & Carley in construction work at Woodlawn, non-union labor being used exclusively by them in their work locally, at the present time. Several other non-union jobs in the valley will be looked over and the probabilities are that several of them will "come clean" before very long.

PRAISES VALLEY INDUSTRY

William O'Lander, of Chicago, head stockman for the M. Born Tailoring Company, was a guest Wednesday of Manager C. C. Shetterly, of Junction Park. Mr. O'Lander stated to a Labor News representative that he was greatly impressed by the evidence of industrial activity shown throughout the towns in the valley and declared that although his work took him over many states, that he never saw business so good as it was in the valley. Incidentally, he took occasion to pay a compliment to the Traction Company for their up-to-date service, and to Manager Shetterly for his able handling of Junction Park.

NOVEL BASEBALL GAME

The Rochester baseball team will meet the famous ladies' team on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Rochester grounds. This game will prove a novelty to local fans, and will also be interesting from the standpoint of skillful playing, as the female team is a first-class one, and has a record of numerous victories gained over regular teams.

The Olive Stove Works, Rochester, resumed operations Monday, following a week's vacation, all employees returning to work.

"Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

(By George A. Howe)

This question is answered by the action of Lodge No. 323 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Freedom Lodge No. 323, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen probably does more for its members than any other organization in the United States. A Relief Committee is maintained, it consists of the President, Vice President and Treasurer. When a brother is ill, injured or overtaken by misfortune, the Relief Committee immediately calls upon him and ascertains his wants and extends the necessary relief until the next meeting of the Lodge, when their action is reported with their recommendations for further financial assistance, and never in the history of the Lodge have they criticised the action or refused the recommendations of the Relief Committee. The Lodge has no stipulated amount as relief, they give just what is needed, be it large or small. I recall one member who received $400 in just four weeks. Many who were paid at the rate of sixty dollars per week for a period of two or more weeks each. There is absolutely no limit to their benevolence.

The Lodge looks after visiting members of other Lodges of the Brotherhood. When a visiting member comes to Freedom to look for a position, he is taken care of at the hotel, and his expenses paid by the Lodge. The fraternal spirit cannot be exceeded.

The expenses of the Lodge for a month are about $75, which include officers' salaries, hall rent, postage and stationery. To pay this the Lodge receives from its members, 50c two months out of three, and the third month, 25c. Its financial standing is good, having $500 on a savings deposit at the First National Bank, Freedom, $500 on savings deposit at the First National Bank, Rochester, and does its checking account through the Peoples National Bank, Rochester.

When one who has kept a close watch on the many things done in the years past, and then looks at the good financial standing of the Lodge, he knows that it is good management and nothing else. The officers of Lodge No. 323, each and every one of them, is the best that could possibly be selected. When you point to a good officer of a fraternal order or labor organization, don't forget to commend the members whose judgment put him there. There are many good men to fill offices, but, unless there are a number of other good men in the organization who can recognize the ability of the best, and elect them, the job is wanting. Therefore, we, the members of 323, recognize the ability of our officers, and feel that our officers appreciate the true support that is our constant endeavor to give them. That is the real secret that has made it possible for 323 to do what it has done, and still be in good financial condition.

LOCAL BRANCH NO. 85 STREET CARMEN MEET

The regular meeting of Beaver Valley Branch, of Local 85, Street and Electric Railway employees, was held in Bank Hall, New Brighton, on Wednesday evening. The early meeting was held at 7:30 and the late meeting at 1:30 Thursday morning.

The early meeting was presided over by President W. H. Briggs, the attendance being fair, but there was ample room for many more. Routine business was disposed of and adjournment taken on account of the heat.

Before the meeting was called to order President Briggs was taken to task for being 15 minutes late, but he explained matters by stating that he was at home looking for a collar button. (Continued on Page Four).

MONACA BATHING BEACH

That the Monaca Aquatic Club bathing beach, at Monaca, is a great attraction to hundreds of bathers, as well as spectators, will be discovered by anybody who cares to pay a visit to the beach between the hours of 6:30 and 9 o'clock any evening. The observer will find the end of the big bridge lined with spectators and see hundreds of bathers disporting themselves in the water below. The Aquatic Club has erected a new bath house, which, while not large, is amply sufficient to care for the bathers; life guards are on the job, ready for work should the occasion demand; F. M. Hays is the officer on the grounds and sees that no profane language or vulgarity is permitted, and the Aquatic Club committee, W. W. Folland, George Lay and Oliver Kanich, have general supervision.

LODGE 323, B. OF R. T. HOLDS SPECIAL MEETING

MOLDERS IN SESSION

A regular meeting of International Molders' Union No. 219, was held on Monday evening, in Rochester, an interesting session resulting. George Klingelhoefer was reported off the sick list and business in both shops was reported good. Harry Anderson was placed on the disability list, suffering from a scalded foot.

The outlook for the success of the Pittsburgh strike was reported to be brighter, while the membership of Local 46 are putting up a grand fight for the eight-hour day, with excellent prospects of being successful.

BEAVER FALLS MAN FITTINGLY HONORED

Adam Kraus, Veteran Glassworker and Member of No. 38, Presented With Watch.

Adam Kraus, of Beaver Falls, veteran glass worker and member of Local Union No. 38, American Flint Glass Workers' Union, was honored during the recent annual convention of glass workers, held at Tiffin, O., by being presented, on behalf of the local union, with a gold watch and chain.

The presentation speech being made by President Thomas W. Rowe. Mr. Kraus for 24 years has been employed in the Co-operative Glass Company's plant at Beaver Falls, coming here from Pittsburgh. The fact that Mr. Kraus is 72 years of age and was the oldest delegate at the Tiffin convention, was the cause of his being so signally honored. He is also a veteran of the Civil War, having been a member of Company A, 105th Pennsylvania Infantry. His war record shows that he took part in the famous battles of Bull Run and Gettysburg, and that he enlisted upon two different occasions. The first time he felt the call of his country was when he was under age, and upon the refusal of his parents to allow him to enlist, he proceeded to run away, succeeded in getting into the company. After a brief service his parents discovered his whereabouts and he was discharged and taken home. A few years later, after reaching the proper age limit he again enlisted and served with conspicuous gallantry. He is a member of the Beaver Falls G. A. R. Post, and despite his years, is on the job at the glass works every day.

EX-PRES. T. W. ROWE PAID A HIGH TRIBUTE

President Thomas W. Rowe, executive head of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, and a former Rochester boy, was paid a high tribute at the fortieth annual convention of the A. F. G. W. U., held at Tiffin, Ohio, the week of July 3rd. George Dougherty, general superintendent of the United States Glass Co.'s plant, at Tiffin, O., delivered the complimentary remarks relative to Mr. Rowe's character, and stated that he was much impressed by the general fairness of the policy of the organization.

Replying to the remarks, Mr. Rowe stated that his first commission as a Flint delegate was from Tiffin to the Baltimore convention in 1890, and that the convention was in the nature of a home-coming to him. Regarding the announcement of his retirement as president of the Flints, Mr. Rowe stated that his decision was final, and that he would, under no circumstances, be a candidate for the office. "It is not a question of a higher salary with me," said Mr. Rowe, "and no inducement along that line will cause me to alter my decision to retire."

Andy Keyser and Frank Manyon, of Beaver Falls, members of Local Union No. 38 A. F. G. W. U., returned Sunday from a trip to Tiffin, Ohio, where they attended the big convention of glass workers in that city.

Called for the Purpose of Taking Action on Discharge of Two Members.

CASE NOW IN HANDS OF GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE

It has been generally understood among railroad employees that the member of any labor organization who took an active part in trying to better their working conditions was sure to meet with discrimination at the hands of the officials in charge.

It is understood that the meeting of Lodge No. 323, held on Tuesday evening, was called specially for the purpose of taking action on the discharge of two of its active members, and the rank injustice meted out to two other men, who were disciplined to the extent of 30 days for the same alleged offense.

From all indications the officials who handed down this decision have paved the way for a great victory in the eight hour and time and one-half demand of the four Brotherhoods, because men who have stayed with the company in the event of a strike, will now surely strike without any question, after seeing the treatment received by these men, whose record have never been questioned.

General Chairman C. R. Carlton of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh, was present at the meeting and told of almost similar cases on the Richmond Division, and gave his opinion. He would comply with the law of the organization, that the Brotherhood in general would support these four brothers to the limit, which statement was received with great applause. The case is now in the hands of the grievance committee, and it is the intention of the membership to see that it goes the limit.

TOWNSEND STRIKERS ISSUE A STATEMENT

Say That Their Union Has Committee to Deal With Company and Advise Members.

At a regular meeting of the members of Federal Union No. 14994, A. F. of L., held at the headquarters of the organization in the Kramer Block, New Brighton, on Thursday, July 13th, it was decided, in view of the fact that the Townsend Company are alleged to be sending our letters to members of the union requesting them to return to work, to make a statement on behalf of the organization, as follows:

"We, the members of Local 14994, A. F. of L., wish to advise all members of the Local to the effect that their Local has a Committee to transact business on behalf of the members and that if the Townsend Company desires to meet members of the Local to clear up, what the Company terms is a 'misunderstanding,' that said Company should meet with the Committee in question and not endeavor to arrange matters with the individuals.

"Insofar as a 'misunderstanding' is concerned, as the Company alleges, we do not know of any 'misunderstanding' on the part of members of our organization. Signed,
A. D. THOMPSON,
T. A. BENNETT,
R. H. FINCH, Committee.
GEORGE SEIBOLD, Pres.

The following officers have been installed, and will serve during the ensuing term:
President, George Seibold; vice president, William Carey; secretary-treasurer, Mark Ford; recording secretary, R. H. Finch; conductor, S. H. Barton; guard, J. D. Javens.

On Thursday evening, July 27th, at eight o'clock, there will be a meeting of the local in the Kramer Block, New Brighton, which all members are earnestly requested to attend, as there is a big surprise in store for members, according to officials of the Local.

In order to remodel one of the furnaces, the plant of the Co-operative Flint Glass Company, at Beaver Falls, will close down on the 29th of July for a period of three weeks.

INCOME TAX FRAUDS DEplete U. S. TREASURY

Over $300,000,000 of Country's Revenues Stolen Last Year Through Fraud.

FORMER DIRECTOR U. S.
COMMISSION EXPOSES IT

The following article, relative to income tax frauds and evasions, written by Basil M. Manley, former director of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, should prove of interest to the members of every Union in the Beaver Valley, and it is to be hoped that the suggestions made by Mr. Manley in regard to the Unions adopting resolutions on the same, and writing to United States Senators in this district, urging them to support an amendment to the income tax law, providing for complete publicity of the income tax returns, will be carried out:

Three hundred million dollars of your country's revenues were stolen last year through income tax frauds and evasions, involving thousands of wealthy citizens and thousands of the most profitable American corporations.

The published evidence shows in one case alone—that of L. V. Harkness, one of the Standard Oil magnates—evasions involving in taxes and penalties more than one million dollars. The evidence shows that the Rockefeller foundation is a device created by John D. Rockefeller to escape taxation on more than five million dollars of his annual income.

You have a direct interest in stopping these frauds, not only as a matter of justice in the equal enforcement of the laws, but also because if these millions are not collected from the tax thieves, the people—you—will have to pay additional taxes at the rate of fifteen dollars for every American family!

All of these uncontroverted facts, which were uncovered in an investigation made by me for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, have been before Congress for more than two months.

McAdoo has admitted that the tax evasions are enormous and cannot be prevented under existing conditions. But up to the present time Congress has taken no steps to end these frauds because there has been no concerted demand on the part of the public.

The only way that these enormous frauds can be stopped is by publishing the income tax returns, for which the law now provides complete secrecy. When the returns are published the tax thieves can be identified and punished. The rich tax thieves are fighting to keep the returns secret. They fear publicity more than they fear courts or jails.

The income tax is now being amended by the Senate. In order that it may be amended right, I ask every reader of this paper to do two things: First: Write a letter to one or both of the U. S. Senators who represent your state, urging them to support an amendment of the income tax law, providing for complete publicity of the income tax returns. Do this now.

Second: At the next meeting of your union, secure the passage of the following resolution:

"Whereas, it has been proved that the U. S. Treasury is being defrauded of millions of dollars through income tax frauds and evasions. Therefore; be it

"Resolved, that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be urged to support an amendment of the income tax law, providing for complete publicity of the income tax returns, so that the tax thieves may be exposed and the frauds stopped. And be it further

"Resolved, that the Secretary send a copy of this resolution to each Senator and the Representative from this district."

7. Shall the bonded indebtedness of the Borough be increased for funding the floating indebtedness in the sum of Four Thousand Dollars ($4,000)?

Section 5. There being no newspapers published in said Borough of Monaca, the Secretary of the Town Council is hereby directed to give notice of the holding of said election during at least thirty days, by weekly advertisements in the Daily Times and the Beaver Valley Labor News, two newspapers having a general circulation in said borough, and by at least twenty (20) printed hand bills posted in the most public places in said Borough of Monaca, which said notices shall contain the purposes for which the indebtedness is to be increased, a statement of the amount of the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property in said borough, which is $1,595,622.00, of the amount of the existing debt, which is $69,040.00, consisting of a bonded debt in the sum of $65,000.00, and a floating debt in the sum of $4,000.00, and the amount and percentage of the proposed increase of indebtedness, which is Forty-one Thousand Dollars ($41,000), increase, and 2.63% plus of the assessed valuation.

MERKLE-WILEYBROOM COMPANY IS UNFAIR

The Merkle-Wiley Broom Company, of Paris, Ill., have joined the ranks of union hating concerns and are discharging their employees for belonging to the Broom and Whisk Makers Union.

This firm, who manufacture the "Bluejay" brand of brooms, have always paid the very lowest wages, and when the men joined the union immediately started to discharge them.

W. R. Boyer, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Broom and Whisk Makers' Union, states that this company is paying most of its employees the miserable sum of $10 a week, less than half of what the Broom Makers receive in union factories.

It will be well for every unionist to remember this brand of brooms and not allow one of them in his home.

The railroads says: They cannot expand, which can be taken to mean that the employees must put up the money for expansion just as they must make do on unproductive improvements.

BEAVER VALLEY EAGLE LODGES TO PICNIC

Wednesday, August 2nd, will be a big day for the Eagles of Beaver Valley, that being the date upon which lodges, representing seven towns, will combine and enjoy the day with a big picnic at Junction Park. Numerous attractions will be provided for the entertainment of the crowd, which is sure to attend; a ball game, field sports, basket picnic, dancing, etc., will provide enough amusement to fill the day profitably and satisfactorily. A complete program will be published next week, the committee on arrangements being engaged in making out the same.

BEAVER VALLEY LABOR NEWS COMPANY

Entered as second-class matter October 8, 1915, at the post office at Beaver, Pennsylvania, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Has Served Them Well.

It's fine for a man to live so that when he dies people will eulogize him. Praises tend to comfort his relatives, and sometimes serve as a sort of eye opener to them, too, as to a number of admirable characteristics in the dear departed which they had totally failed to notice.

But it is infinitely finer for a man to have such nice things said of him while he is still alive. And like all the finer things of life, it is more rarely done.

This is why one cannot help envying "Tommy" Rowe.

The announcement that Mr. Rowe had irrevocably made up his mind not to be a candidate for re-election to the presidency of the A. F. G. W. U. first caused a sort of stunned consternation. Then came an outburst of protest, and a perfect flood of splendid tributes to Mr. Rowe as a man and as an official.

Here, for instance, is in part what Vice President Jos. M. Gillooly has to say of his departure. "No one, who has ever been honored with the position of president of this organization, was ever held in such high esteem by his fellow workers as was "Tommy" Rowe, as he was familiarly called. * * * Possessed of a pleasing personality, he made many friends. He believed in truth and honesty. He despised deceit and hypocrisy and was ever ready to defend and insist that justice be rendered where justice was due. * * * He was an able official and fearless in carrying out the duties of his office. He played no favorites. * * * His path has not been strewn with roses, but he overcame the thorns. With the departure of President Rowe the American Flint Glass Workers' Union loses the services of its most distinguished member, and one whose executive ability has been recognized far beyond the confines of our organization."

That is what one man says. But the best of it is, every one declares it is the truth, and that the praise is wholly deserved.

Public Opinion Swings to Trainmen.

The publicity campaign of misrepresentation carried on by the railroad managers, in which they grossly misrepresented the eight-hour movement, so-called of the railroad men, has failed of its purpose inasmuch as the sentiment of the public has swung very decidedly toward the men's side of the controversy.

The line of propaganda sent out by the managers, tending to represent the demands of the men as a ridiculously exorbitant demand for a flat eight-hour day has failed. The Railroad Companies have been played to a finish at their own game of publicity by an organized and energetic propaganda campaign carried on by the trainmen and their friends.

The public is beginning to realize that it is not any upheaval which will disorganize their methods of operation. shorten their divisions and generally disarrange their line of operation that the railroads fear. What they do fear is that the enormous, slow and dangerous tonnage trains of the present day will be cut down to reasonable limits.

When applied to road service the eight-hour movement simply means this and nothing else; that the men shall be paid on a 12 1/2 miles an hour basis instead of a 10 miles an hour basis, as at present. This means that the Railroad Companies must move their freight trains at an average speed of 12 1/2 miles an hour, or 25 per cent faster than at present, or pay overtime. In order to make it doubly sure that they do maintain this speed, the men have asked for a differential in pay on overtime, a concession granted to almost all skilled crafts and hitherto denied to them.

In all common sense it will be seen that this is not primarily a move for more money, but for shorter time on the road, and while it is true that the men will gain not in money, but in better living conditions, the greatest gainer will be the shipper, whom the Railroad Companies have endeavored to mislead into opposing this movement.

STREET CAR MEN MEET

ton. However, Mr. Briggs' attention was called to the fact that he was wearing a sport shirt in which there was no place for said collar button. In the face of this damaging evidence "came across" and admitted that he had been negligent in regard to getting there on time.

The shark stories from the Atlantic coast have nothing on the street railway men of Beaver Valley, as they have been engaged in catching sharks for a number of years; although not the man-eating variety, but nevertheless quite bothersome. Motormen and conductors can catch a shark almost any day. All that is required is to fail to reach the Junction five minutes before his run leaves the barn. Failure to report on time means you have caught a shark that will occupy you all day to land; should you fail to report on Saturday or Sunday, then you will have caught a "whale of a shark" that will take you three days to dispose of. As a matter of fact employees of the Beaver Valley Traction Co. have been catching sharks for so many years, that they never think of mentioning the fact. In the operation the men use several kinds of bait, the most successful sort being to turn the alarm clock off, turn over and go to sleep. When you awaken you have a shark on your line that will take you one to three days to get off the hook.

Motorman James Boak caught a shark last week with the class of that above mentioned, and he swears it will never fail to land the shark.

Howard Blattner, of Rochester, an employee of the Olive Stove Works, spent his vacation at Atlantic City.

The International Labor Press of America held its yearly convention at Cincinnati, May 9 and 10, and discussed ways and means of increasing its influence. Trade unions should realize that they have a press of their own and give it their active support.

On January 1, 1915, only 7,000 members of the International Association of Machinists were working the eight-hour day; on January 1, 1916, no less than 60,000 machinists were working eight hours. Another instance of the value of organization.

Program for Next Week

MONDAY, JULY 24th

Rolfe Photoplays Inc., presents the famous star Lionel Barrymore in "DORIAN'S DIVORCE," presenting five acts of intense and gripping interest.

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, JULY 25-26.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, JULY 27-28

William Fox presents the incomparable Theda Bara in "THE SERPENT," an exciting story of a Russian peasant girl. There are many tense and exciting scenes in this picture that hold the audience in suspense.

SATURDAY, JULY 29.

Jesse L. Lasky presents the charming grand opera star, Geraldine Farrar, in a photo-dramatization of the story of a Spanish peasant girl—"Maria Rosa." The best of the three productions of this artist.

At the Majestic

"Dorian's Divorce"

"Dorian's Divorce," a Metro wonderplay in five gripping acts, will be shown at the Majestic Theatre, on Monday, July 24th. Lionel Barrymore, one of the most finished actors on either the stage or screen, and Grace Valentine, the charming and gifted dramatic artist, are starred in this production, which was produced for the Metro program by the Rolfe Photoplays, Inc.

"The Unwritten Law"

"The Unwritten Law" which comes to the Majestic on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 25 and 26, is a seven-part photodrama adapted from Edwin Milton Royle's stage success. The story is wholesome and big, and develops through breathless suspense to one of the most thrilling climaxes ever attained in motion picture art. An advance synopsis of it here is inadvisable and would detract from one's later pleasure in seeing it, since much of the interest of the development of the plot on the screen hangs on a thread of mystery and surprise that is spun out, with clever producing touches, to the very end of the story.

If it were necessary to pick one outstanding feature from the many elements of greatness that this production embodies, it would undoubtedly be the emotional power of Beatriz Michelena's acting. Her impersonation of Kate Wilson is her greatest achievement since forsaking opera for the screen. Every critic who has reviewed the film has declared her work a marvel in both power and finish.

"The Serpent"

A score of photoplay actors and several spectators were injured during the making of the William Fox photodrama "The Serpent," in New Jersey. The play deals with Russian life and includes several battle scenes.

In order to make the engagements between the Russians and Germans as realistic as possible, Director R. A. Walsh employed two military experts to supervise the maneuvers. A large plot of ground was mined and the mines were to be exploded just after a detachment of retreating soldiers had passed over them.

Because of a mistaken signal the man operating the electrical connections opened the switch too soon. In the premature explosion which followed actors, guns, swords and munition wagons were hurled several feet into the air. Theda Bara, star of "The Serpent," who was watching the battle scenes, fainted. Ambulances from Fort Lee and surrounding places removed thirteen actors and supernumeraries, whose injuries ranged from lacerations to broken bones. This thrilling attraction will be shown at the Majestic Thursday and Friday, July 27-28.

"Maria Rosa"

Geraldine Farrar, the noted grand opera prima donna and motion picture star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, will appear at the Majestic Saturday, July 29, in "Maria Rosa," said by those who have seen it, to be the best of the three photoplays she made for the Lasky Company, the others being "Carmen" and "Temptation." Wallace Reid appears in the leading masculine role. These are facts of exceptional interest in connection with Miss Farrar in "Maria Rosa," as it was during the making of this photoplay that she met and fell in love with Mr. Lou Tellegen, whom she recently married. Three years ago when Mr. Lou Tellegen came to the United States to make his debut on the American stage as an English speaking actor, he chose as his first play, "Maria Rosa." Previously the young actor had appeared for two seasons in American tours as leading man with Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.

At the Colonial

"The Phantom"

"The Phantom," the new Triangle feature in which Frank Keenan stars with Enid Markey, is to be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, July 24-25. It is described as one of the best detective stories written since the famous "Raffles" series. The "Phantom" is the sobriquet of Farrell, the most elusive "gentleman thief" known. Operating in conjunction with his valet, Crabbe, a rascal of much inferior cleverness, he has escaped detection for years. Inspector Blaisdell of the Central Office, calls to notify Farrell that it might be well for him to move on to another city. Farrell readily promises to leave town, and the merry chase he leads the officers rounds out a story of absorbing interest.

"Her Maternal Right"

Kitty Gordon, in private life Lady H. H. Beresford, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Wednesday, July 26, when the World Film production, "Her Maternal Right," will be the feature on the screen. In this picture Kitty Gordon wears three gowns that are the latest innovations of the modiste's art, but although her gowns are wonderful, her performance, from an artistic and dramatic standpoint, even excels her magnificent clothes.

"Passers By"

The feature on the program of the Colonial Theatre, Thursday, July 27,

Steam Railroad Fares

Have been increased TWICE during the past FIVE
locality

Compare our FIVE cent fare to the passenger rate charged on parallel steam lines.

With but hourly service Interurban Car line fares throughout the County are from two to four times those charged on our lines.

We are doing everything in our power to properly serve the traveling public, at a cost to us of from 20 per cent. to 100 per cent. more than ever before, yet your fares have not been increased up to this time.

Could you, would you, under like conditions, follow a method of this kind in the management of your own business affairs?

Our Cars are Operated

Upon a Ten-Minute Schedule in Beaver Falls, New Brighton, Rochester, Bridgewater and Beaver. Elsewhere in the Beaver Valley a Twenty-Minute Service is Maintained.

Although the majority of them have received from 10 to 20 per cent. increase in THEIR wages during the past year alone, passengers still pay but a five cent fare from Vanport to Conway, a distance of 8.7 miles, or the same rate from Junction Park to Mo-rado, a distance of 6 miles, or any other fare section, and less than half fare has been charged through the holders of Labor Tickets, and a correspondingly low rate to purchasers of School Tickets. Cut rate tickets have been sold, good on all lines at any time.

Now, with the increased wages paid our employes, the rapid advance in the cost of materials, and the greater expenditure necessary for maintenance, it would be folly to attempt to continue operation under the old rate longer.

ALL we ask is a fair consideration of our plans and a SQUARE DEAL for the future.

After Spending Months

In consideration of the street car situation, because of the increased wages paid our employes under the new wage schedule, and the great advance in the cost of materials and maintenance, the Management of this Company is forced to take steps to make an adjustment to meet the difficulty.

It is intended by the Beaver Valley Traction Company and the Pittsburgh & Beaver Street Railway Company to make a change in its Passenger Tariff in regard to CUT RATES and SPECIAL TICKETS, and discontinue the sale of LABOR and SCHOOL TICKETS.

While the sale of CUT RATE
Tickets in Books of 100 Tickets for $4.50 will be discontinued, this Company will continue to sell tickets in strips at a reduced rate.

Patrons, particularly those who have been purchasers of the books above mentioned, are kindly asked to fully consider the steps which made this action an absolute necessity. The plan of increasing the regular fare, or doing away with the transfer privilege at certain points, was given up, with the decision to take such action as would effect the lesser number of people.

ELITE THEATRE, MIDLAND.

"A Butterfly on the Wheel"

Peggy Admaston and her husband are wealthy and should be happy, but Admaston neglects his beautiful young wife for the cares of business. The social season throws Peggy much in the society of Collingwood. Admaston surprises Collingwood and Peggy in a compromising situation in a room at a country inn. He sues for divorce and there is every assurance that he will win his case. On the night before the case is to go to the jury Lady Atwill confesses that her secret love for Admaston tempted her to urge Collingwood on to compromise Peggy, and that it was she who arranged their meeting at the inn. This famous play will be seen at the Elite Theatre, Midland, Saturday, July 22.

"Sold for Marriage"

Let this go on record: for once an author is fully satisfied with his play after it has been produced. The reference is to William E. Ewing, author of "Sold for Marriage," which the Triangle-Fine Arts Studio presents with Lillian Gish as the star, and which comes to the Elite Theatre on Monday, July 24.

"Gold and the Woman"

One of the biggest scenes in the William Fox production, "Gold and the Woman," starring Theda Bara, which appears at the Elite Theatre, on Tuesday, July 25th, is that in which an entire Indian camp is blown up. In the plot of "Gold and the Woman," Dugara, chief of an Indian tribe, is robbed of a land grant through the trickery of Dougald Chandos, an early English settler. Fifty-six Indians were used in the making of the picture. All but three went through the explosion scene uninjured.

"The Stepping Stone"

Frank Keenan and Mary Boland are featured in this attraction, which is booked at the Elite for Wednesday, July 26. The play is based on an original story from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan, of the Ince staff. It is said to be unique in that the plot, which concerns the "eternal triangle," is so skillfully handled that the interest always is at a high pitch. The story is based upon the efforts of a

BURGULARS ARE ACTIVE

The home of Mr. Murphy, proprietor of the Midland Dairy, Railroad Lane, was entered Monday night, after the family had retired, and $8.00 which Mr. Murphy had in his pockets when he went to bed was missing when he arose in the morning. Nothing else was missing and the mystery is how the marauders succeeded in getting into the house, as the doors were all locked and the windows fastened. It is the impression that a band of gypsies, which is camping near Midland, is responsible for the robbery, as several houses in Toyland have been entered and ransacked recently. I. M. Reed, Ohio street, lost a valuable gold watch recently, thieves entering his home. A determined effort is being made by the officials to run down the parties guilty of committing these depredations.

Birthday Party

A number of the friends of Miss Frances Elizabeth Tucker, celebrated her sixteenth birthday anniversary at her home, Ohio street, Midland, Wednesday evening, from 8:30 to 11. The color scheme was pink and white, with paper and lanterns; pink and white roses, with ferns, decorated the porch and tables. The favors were pink carnations and ferns, tied with white ribbon. The guest list included the Misses Lucile Monday, Margaret and Eleanor McGeehan, Vera Gamble, Lillian Du Chene, Irene Dublin and Mrs. J. J. Conner, and Miss Loretta Quinn of Smiths Ferry.

"The Gay Lord Waring"

Those whose love sensations with their moving picture entertainment will have their fill in the Bluebird to be exhibited at the Elite theatre, on Thursday, July 27, under the title of "The Gay Lord Waring." J. Warren Kerrigan plays the role of a spendthrift scion of English nobility, who goes through a series of wild adventures in his ceaseless efforts to obtain money to gratify his penchant for high living.

"What Love Can Do"

The story of "What Love Can Do," the Red Feather production which comes to the Elite Theatre on Friday, July 28th, contains some of the best examples of strike and labor disturbance scenes yet thrown on the screen. The story is built about a newspaper woman who is working for a man who owns a great newspaper property. He also owns large holdings in an old producing region, and Lil Magill, the woman, is placed in an anomalous position, being deeply in love with this man, while entirely out of sympathy with his methods of extracting the last ounce of effort for the least money from his employees.

of the great railway lines of the country, should receive ample compensation for good, faithful work and ought not to be required to devote such a number of hours to the work as would impair their efficiency or in any way impair their physical fitness or the efficiency of the service to be given to the public by railway companies."—HON. G. W. CLARKE, Governor of Iowa. The eight-hour day is the standard for American workers. Everyone should co-operate.

EIGHT-HOUR WORK DAY SUCCESS ON MANY LINES

Trainmen Refute Magnate's Assertion by Citing Hours of Eighteen Roads.

ALL OPERATING UNDER EIGHT-HOUR SCHEDULE

The general strike vote of the four great brotherhoods of railroad workers will soon be completed and the 600 chairmen of general adjustment committees of all railroads in the United States will go to New York for the count. The officers of the brotherhoods will go also and perhaps may participate in a conference with the National Conference Committee of the railroads of the United States, that may avert the general strike.

In the meantime, the railroad magnates and the workers are engaged in a gigantic publicity battle in their efforts to win the public to their side. The magnates have one of the most costly publicity bureaus ever organized by Big Business to warp the minds of the people of the nation. From the headquarters of the National Conference Committee, in the Grand Central Terminal Building, big advertisements are placed in all the large capitalist newspapers of the country. These advertisements, filled with false statements and warped, garbled statements, the railroad magnates hope will arouse the customers of the railroads against the four brotherhoods.

Trainmen Busy Too.
But the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen are not asleep at the switch. They have a Publicity Bureau in Cleveland that is teaching the public something about the hardships they endure. They have issued thousands of leaflets, each bearing a short story about the railroad workers' sufferings without the eight-hour day that is now demanded by the organized men.

One leaflet is headed "Long Hours Cause Death" and carries at the top a reproduction of a United Press dispatch about Roy Washburn, 36, an engineer on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad who shot and killed himself May 31, when mentally unbalanced because of overwork. During May his regular time and over-

A RELIABLE FIRM

The attention of readers of The Labor News is called to the advertisement in another part of today's issue, of John A. Butler & Son, of Rochester and Beaver Falls. The discount sale advertised is a semi-annual one, this particular sort of sale being inaugurated by the senior member of the firm many years ago, and it has become an institution in the valley's mercantile life. Mr. Butler has been in business in the Beaver valley for the past 32 years, and the firm name has become a synonym for honesty and fair dealing. The discounts advertised are bonafide, the values are absolutely honest, and the occasion of the present sale promises to be as successful, or more so, than any previous sale put on by the house.

COMPLAINT REGISTERED

A meeting of the Carpenters' District Council was held in the Kramer block, New Brighton, on Tuesday evening. A general complaint was made on all work being done by the R. D. Hunter Co., general contractors, of Beaver, and Business Agent Bowser was instructed to enforce the rules of the organization relative to the employment of non-union labor. The question of the proposition that the Beaver Valley Traction Company was to do away with laboring men's tickets at reduced rates was taken up and discussed at length.

Subscribe for The Labor News.

BIG CONTRACT LET

Wallace & Carley, of Sharon, have been awarded a contract for the erection of fifty houses, to be located at Woodlawn, by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. This contracting firm employs non-union labor.

PAINTERS HOLD MEETING

The regular meeting of Painters' Local No. 530 was held on Wednesday evening, at the rooms in the Kramer building, New Brighton. One new member, Samuel Wertzel, was received into the organization and routine business occupied the attention of those present during the short time which the meeting was in session, the heat being so excessive that the boys were anxious to get away.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL IN SESSION

Considerable Business Transacted and New Delegates Were Seated.
Help Secured.

At the regular meeting of the Building Trades Council, held Thursday evening in the rooms in the Kramer Block, New Brighton, J.A. Kronk, of Monaca, member of Local 1033, U. B. of C. & J. of A., was elected and installed as secretary to serve during the ensuing term. Several new delegates were seated, among them being three from the Plasterers' Local. The report submitted by Business Agent S. S. Bowser was accepted and a number of matters were turned over to him upon which he will act.

The matter of the case of J. F. Crichton, Midland plumber, was taken up and the Business Agent was instructed to see Mr. Crichton and to straighten things out.

George Bascvskas, of Woodlawn, contracting carpenter, who has been working non-union carpenters, has signed the wage scale and will hereafter employ union men on all his work. There has been considerable talk in this particular case in the past and the fact that the matter is now adjusted is a great source of satisfaction to union men throughout the valley.

That mechanics were exceedingly scarce in all lines, was the general report brought to the meeting by the delegates, and while the "S. O. S." call is out 24 hours a day for men in all crafts in the building line, there are few responses.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO BUILDING CRAFTS

Plans are now in progress for the erection of a three-story brick apartment building to contain two store-rooms and four apartments, and to cost $10,000, to be located in Ambridge. Owner, George McKalakopoulos; architect, R. H. Hill, Ambridge.

The contract for the erection of a two-story apartment building, costing $6,000, to be located on Valley road, Ambridge, has been let by the prospective owners, Efthimios & Gambessos, of Pittsburgh, to Swasey Miller, of Leetsdale.

J. P. Slezak, of Ambridge, has been awarded the general contract for $5,000 residence, two-story and basement, to be located on Maplewood avenue, Ambridge, and owned by J. Calhoun, of Ambridge. R. H. Hill, of Ambridge, is the architect.

The general contract for the erection of a $2,500 addition to be used as a bowling alley by the Monaca Turnverein, has been let to George H. Lias, Monaca.

J. J. Randolph, Emsworth contractor, has been awarded the general contract for the erection of a $5,000 two-story brick residence owned by R. E. Kradie, of Pittsburgh, and to be located in Emsworth. The plumbing contract was let to John Randolph, of Emsworth.

Committee Arranging For "Get-Together," Meeting

The Labor News is in receipt of the following interesting letter from A. V. Craig, treasurer of McKees Rocks Lodge No. 321, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen:

McKees Rocks, Pa., July 23, '16.
Editor Labor News.

Dear Sir:—
The "Get-Together" Committee, which held so many successful meetings in Pittsburgh, Pa., during the last year, has not given up the work that was started, but on account of the hot weather that we have been having, did not believe that it would be policy to hold any meeting at this time.

August 15th the committee will meet at the Monongahela House, in Pittsburgh, to arrange to hold another meeting. A plan has been adopted to carry these meetings on without any expense to the lodges. To make it a success only requires that a member from each lodge take hold of it, and to those that will attend on August 15, the proposition will be explained to them by Brother R. W. Bees, who originated the idea.

Much good was done by holding these meetings, and there is much more that can be done in continuing to hold meetings of this nature. Plans can be suggested and carried out for any purpose that will benefit the members of all the organizations that affiliate with us, not alone relative to securing better working conditions, but in other matters that are of great interest to us. Anything that will help to better living conditions will benefit us as much as working conditions.

Many members are inquiring when the meeting is to be held. A date will be set on August 15th, and all will be notified when and where we will hold it. Good speakers will be secured. The committee will probably take up

Plant of the H. C. Fry Glass Co., North Rochester

Most Commendable Action.

"I'll say that's the sort of firm to work for," was the remark made on Thursday by one of the factory department employees of the H. C. Fry Glass Company, North Rochester, to the Labor News reporter, said remark being inspired by the fact that the speaker, together with the vast number of other employees, had received a check on Wednesday for the regular two weeks' pay, despite the fact that the factory employees in both plants had been idle for the past two weeks on account of a shut-down.

Every employee in the two departments of both plants, the Beaver Valley Glass Company and the H. C. Fry Glass Company, received a check in full for the two weeks they were idle. The employees in all other departments were given one week's extra pay in addition to their regular wages for the one week that they had worked.

That the 500 employees of these plants thoroughly appreciate this act on the part of the management goes without saying. It is indeed a most commendable action and one which not only will lead to better understanding between employer and employee, but sets an example which other plants in the valley would do well to emulate. There would be less friction between capital and labor if the average employers would be as fair with their men as are the two plants mentioned.

A. F. OF L. WILL SUPPORT R. R. MEN IF STRIKE COMES

AT JUNCTION PARK.

The annual picnic of Duff's College is being held today at Junction Park, a dance being enjoyed in the evening. On Saturday the United Presbyterian churches of the valley will hold forth at the Park, a fine program having been arranged.

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED

There will be a called meeting of Local Union No. 1033, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, in Bank Hall, Monaca, on Monday evening, July 21st, for the purpose of electing a delegate to attend the General Convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America to be held in Texas. A full attendance of members is desired.

C. E. FAULKNER, PRES. McKEES ROCKS LODGE

Brief Sketch and Likeness of Popular Order Railroad Trainmen Official Is Presented Today.

The Labor News presents today a likeness of C. E. Faulkner, President of McKees Rocks Lodge No. 321, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

President Faulkner, or "Dad," as he is best known, is one of the most likable men that you would care to meet. He is now serving his second term as president of this Lodge. He was born in Eilerslie, Md., about 34 years ago, coming to Pennsylvania 15 years ago, and locating in McKees Rocks. He was employed on the P. & L. E. railroad for over 13 years and has been employed at the Schoen Steel Wheel Co. for nearly two years. Being one of the younger members of the lodge, he has always been progressive in his policies, and has ever been an aggressive fighter for what is right. His experience along this line has been varied, serving on the Grievance Committee and always ready for anything that demanded someone to take hold of it.

His services as President of the Lodge has been the best that the organization could have expected, and while he is not a "spoiler," the members have confidence in him and the result has been that the best of order has prevailed since he first took the chair. The member who would become unruly is firmly reminded that the laws and rules of the order must be obeyed. The lodge has been in some tight places since he assumed the presidency, on account of so much sickness among the members, but he has never faltered or lost hope, just kept plugging away, holding the members to the laws, and never yet has his opinion or advice been ignored, for the men realize that he is fair and honest, wishing only to deal justice to all. That he has been and is yet a credit to the Lodge and Order, no one can deny. It is such as he that has helped to make our Order what it is today, and it is the hope of all that he will continue to be a pillar in the Order in the future, as he has in the past.

BIG REDUCTION SALE

Jackson's big clothing and gent's furnishing goods store of New Brighton, is enjoying one of the biggest price reduction sales in its history, the same starting on Thursday of this week. Substantial reductions have been made in all departments and a perusal of their big ad. in another part of today's Labor News will prove profitable to our readers. The stock is complete and the opportunity offered to secure seasonable goods at a big reduction in price should appeal to the buying public.

President Gompers Says It Is Only Just That Men Win Eight-Hour Fight.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY THE BROTHERHOODS

The following news item relative to the present fight which the four brotherhoods of railway men are making in their effort to secure an eight-hour workday and time and one-half for overtime, is taken from the Cleveland Leader of Wednesday, July 26th.

Coincident with the issuance of this statement one came from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, that if the eight-hour day issue results in a strike, such a move will have the backing of the American Federation of Labor. Gompers said it was only just that railroad men receive the eight hour day because railroad earnings warrant it. The transportation brotherhoods "come back" at the railroad officials in a statement issued here yesterday in answer to the assertion of the railroads that railroad men, who are demanding an eight-hour day now are among the best paid men in any industry.

"Train crews are paid less than any other organized trade," the statement says. "The figures given out by the railroads are deceptive in that they do not show that the employees must work twelve to twenty hours a day in order to earn the sums given out by the railroads in their statements published this morning."

"The prevailing wages for locomotive engineers is 48 1/2 cents an hour, brakemen 26 1/2 cents, whereas bricklayers and plasterers are paid 75 cents an hour, and are working an eight-hour day. Surely the hazardous nature of their work entitles railroad men to at least an equal wage with other trades."

"The last annual report of the interstate commerce commission shows that a trainman is killed on an average every four hours and forty minutes and a man crippled every three and a half minutes. And this does not tell the entire story, because, if a man does not die from his injuries within twenty-four hours, he is not reported to the commission as having been killed, and unless the injury disables him within three days, he is not counted as injured."

"Of every one hundred men who start as firemen, only 17 ever become engineers, and of every one hundred who become engineers, only six become passenger engineers. The average length of service is eleven and a half years."

"Train service employees are picked men in every sense. The physical examination required of them is more severe than that required for enlistment in the army or navy, and physical examinations are repeated every two or three years."

"Although the United States government prohibits continuous employment of a train employee more than sixteen hours, it is worthy of note that in 1915 78,940 violations were reported by the railroads themselves."

CARPENTERS, 246, MEET

A regular meeting of Local No. 246, Carpenters and Joiners, was held in the Martzoff Hall, New Brighton, on Tuesday evening. Two new members were received into the order, W. E. Fake, of Harrisburg, by transfer; and Henry Balser, of Beaver Falls. Chas. Casner, of Beaver Falls, was reported still on the sick list, and an order was issued granting him two weeks' sick benefits. No report on the condition of Frank Conrad was presented.

The treasurer's report was read and showed a deficit, caused by the number of sick benefits paid recently. A motion was made to ask the Central Labor Union to take some action relative to discontinuance of labor tickets and reduced fares to workers, by the Beaver Valley Traction Company.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, August 9th, a full attendance being desirable.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY FOUR BROTHERHOODS

Explains Why Proposition to Arbitrate Requires Act of Congress.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE
ACT NOT APPLICABLE

Cleveland, Ohio, July 27, 1916.—The following statement was issued today by the Transportation Brotherhoods: The proposition of the railroads to refer the demands of the railway brotherhoods of an eight-hour day to the Interstate Commerce Commission is nothing but a proposition to gain time for the railroads and to waste time for the men. The Interstate Commerce Commission is not at present, equipped to undertake this task. In order to undertake it the Interstate Commerce Commission Act would have to be radically amended by Congress. Such an amendment would require at least a month for passage, and upon its passage several months would be required before the Commission could actually begin the work thus imposed upon it.

Whatever may be the desirability of empowering the Interstate Commerce Commission to handle wage disputes, this is not the time to do it. The Commission is overburdened with duties. A bill has been pending before Congress, urgently advocated by the railroads themselves, calling for an increase in the membership of the Commission, in order to enable it to handle cases already on its docket.

A resolution now pending in the House, after having been passed by the Senate, calling for an investigation by a joint committee of Congress into the need for railroad legislation, particularly into the need for legislation affecting the Interstate Commerce Commission. This resolution was introduced at the request of the railroads and for the express purpose of heading off any railroad legislation till a comprehensive survey of the entire situation should have been made. Representatives of the railroads have urged this resolution for these reasons.

Yet now the railroads, forgetting these arguments, and frightened at the prospect of being forced to yield to the brotherhoods, are demanding hasty and ill-considered legislation, the first effect of which would be to give them an advantage in their dispute with their employees.

The Commission only has authority over rates, etc., on interstate traffic and has no control over matters that are wholly within a state.

If authority is conferred on the Interstate Commerce Commission by Congress, to fix or exercise any control over wages, it would only apply to employees whose runs are from one state to another.

Inasmuch as the bulk of trainmen, work wholly within a state, it would result in the worst middle possible. A few employees having their wages fixed by the U. S. and the rest of them standing just where they are now.

The claim made by the railroads that as the Interstate Commerce Commission has authority over freight rates, it should also have authority over rates of pay, is a clever and seemingly plausible argument, put forward to secure public sympathy.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has always taken cognizance of wages or labor costs in passing upon freight rates. One of the leading arguments of the railroads in making application for authority to advance their freight rates has been that outlays for employees have increased and as a consequence that they should be permitted to charge more for their services.

Elaborate statistical exhibits have in all general rate cases been presented by the railroads to the Commission which set forth in great detail how many more dollars are paid out in wages and salaries now as compared with former years. As a consequence, the Interstate Commerce Commission has always passed on the question of the relation of wages to freight and passenger rates, and to total operating costs.

HELP COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Money Needed to Carry on Work Help Those Who Are Helping the Workers.

ORGANIZED LABOR HAS APPROVED ITS WORK

The following is a copy of a letter being sent out by the United States Committee on Industrial Relations to all local and central bodies:

To All Local Unions of Every Craft and Calling in the United States—Greeting:

The Committee on Industrial Relations is willing and eager to continue its service with labor. Organized labor has approved it and it has proved itself to be necessary. But it cannot go on without money. The workers have been liberal in their support up to this time, but they must continue if the committee is to be a continuing body.

Except for a small staff the committee's services are freely contributed. The only motive of its members is to serve the cause of industrial justice. This committee was organized by Frank P. Walsh, the head of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, who directs it now and will continue to do so. Its business is to carry on the work which he and the labor men of the commission did as a public body. Labor can keep it going if it will.

A statement of some of the things accomplished by the committee is enclosed herewith. The numerous other daily activities of the committee cannot even be indicated in a brief letter.

The committee plans vigorous continuance of its work. In addition to its news letters and reports furnished to all the labor press of the country and to all other news agencies, the committee will have the services of its chairman, Mr. Walsh, in the making of frequent speeches covering all sections of the country. Such services will be contributed without charge of any sort.

In order to do these things the committee must have the financial support of such organizations as yours. The committee repeats that it has no interest in this except mutual interest with you in serving labor and advancing the cause of economic and political liberty. If you believe that the committee is performing a service that is useful and necessary, your support is solicited. If you have already contributed to the committee you will pardon our sending this additional appeal, although your additional generosity, if that is possible, will be greatly appreciated.

The treasurer of this committee is Mr. John B. Lennon, who for more than a quarter of a century has been and still is the treasurer of the American Federation of Labor. Please make your checks or money orders payable to him and address your letters to 832 Southern Building, Washington, D. C.

We are faithfully yours,
COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS.

RAILROAD SHOPMEN WIN THEIR STRIKE

On July 27, about 1,000 employees of the Erie, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Company won a three-day strike and secured a 15 per cent wage increase, the eighth year day and recognition of their union, which is affiliated to the American Federation of Labor.

These workers discovered that when they tied up the shops and yards that the management abandoned its policy of simply acknowledging receipt of their demands.

MILLS MORE DEADLY THAN ACTUAL WAR

Harrisburg, Pa., July 27.—Commissioner of Labor Jackson says that if every man of the regular army along the Mexican border, receives a wound in battle, the aggregate number of wounded would not equal the roster of those wounded in the mills of Pennsylvania during the first 152 days of this year.

It is shown that during the period from January 1 to June 1, 1916, 954 workers were killed and 100,287 injured, and on an average 191 workers were killed every month of the year, and an average of 20,248 were injured each month.

FRITZ KREISLER PREDICTS BRIGHT FUTURE FOR VIOLINIST WHO PLAYS HERE

DONALD McBEATH.

DONALD McBEATH, the young Australian violinist, who will be heard here on the seventh day of the Chautauqua, may be classed as one of the most gifted and popular of the younger school of instrumentalists. He has only recently completed his third season as chief assisting artist with John McCormack, world renowned tenor, and is a prime favorite with McCormack audiences everywhere.

Fritz Kreisler, who is generally regarded as the greatest living violinist, has taken a keen interest in Mr. McBeath because he recognizes the unusual talents of the young Australian. Mr. Kreisler has been coaching him during the past year and predicts for McBeath, who is barely in his twenties, a very bright future.

MEMBER OF BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TO BE HEARD HERE

ARTHUR FIEDLER.

ARTHUR FIEDLER, pianist with Mme. Dora de Philippe, who appears here on the seventh day of the Chautauqua, was born in Boston and is the son of Emanuel Fiedler, first violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, of whom he received his early musical education. Later he studied in Berlin and has done extensive concert work as soloist and in ensemble all over Germany, Sweden and Denmark. Mr. Fiedler was a special protégé of Princess Henkel von Donnersmark, Princess Wittelsbach and the Countess of Wartensleben and has played a great deal with and for the German nobility. During the present war he played in many military hospitals for the wounded soldiers, but later left Germany to become a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Versatile Quartet to Be Heard Fourth Day of the Chautauqua

WOLVERINE MALE QUARTET.

THE Wolverine Male Quartet which will be heard here on the fourth day of the Chautauqua is probably one of the most versatile organizations on the Chautauqua platform. All four of these young men have made music a serious study, and two of the number have won signal success as teachers. Every member of the company is a capable instrumentalist, and two are excellent pianists. Each has a voice of remarkable quality and power, and each is also an impersonator of distinct ability and considerable professional experience. The result of such a combination of talent, as would naturally be supposed, is an organization of real worth and phenomenal versatility.

The selections of the Wolverines have plenty of musical worth and are rendered with the vim and dash of red blooded young men who delight in giving an entertainment that really entertains. Their program includes, in addition to the vocal and instrumental numbers, readings, impersonations and comic sketches of widest variety.

Creator of English Role of "Madame Butterfly" to Be Heard at Chautauqua

MME. DORA DE PHILIPPE.

ANOTHER noted prima donna has entered Chautauqua work! This time it is Mme. Dora de Philippe, creator of the title role of Madame Butterfly in English, and no better tribute could be paid to the high quality of the Chautauqua program than this announcement.

Mme. de Philippe has been heard in "Madame Butterfly" more than 300 times and is one of the foremost opera singers in this country. In addition to "Madame Butterfly," she also created the leading role in "The Secret of Suzanna" in Canada. She will be heard in a grand concert recital on the seventh night of the Chautauqua, accompanied by two equally famous artists, Donald McBeath, Australian violinist, who for three years has accompanied John McCormack, world famous tenor, on his tour, and Arthur Fiedler, pianist and member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY BENEFITS ALL.

"The men who work eight hours a day have a purpose. What aim has the twelve-hour worker? To work—that is all. He work, eats and sleeps, and has no other thought or purpose; he has not the time. He does not go to theatres, nor even a movie; he has not the time. He does not read; he needs his spare time to recuperate for his next twelve-hour stretch. He has no knowledge even of how his children fare. The man, however, who works eight hours has the time. Of course, it may be true that some men abuse this leisure time, but what does that prove? Lord Macaulay once said that 'the remedy for the abuse of newly acquired freedom was more freedom and this will, if followed, also correct the apparent abuse of the shorter work day. I might say, and with truth, that the shorter workday spells temperance, for it is the long hour man that requires stimulants and eventually becomes intemperate, and he cannot be blamed for doing this.'"

President Gompers then went up into the statistics of the Cigar makers' union to prove that the shorter workday had increased the average life of the members fifteen years.

In speaking of the eight-hour day and what it did for the employer, President Gompers stated that he had visited one of the largest industrial plants in this country, and one that was not favorable to unions, and the representative told him that when they reduced the hours of their workers from ten to nine, there was a 20 per cent increase of product, and the product was increased 60 per cent when the men were reduced to eight hours, thus proving that the eight-hour day was profitable to the employer, the employee and the country.—From speech at Youngstown, Ohio.

Preparedness, the best way to make an impression on an individual or a large body of persons is to impress on their minds the fact that you are prepared to meet them in battle at any time or place. This cannot be accomplished by any idle talk or show, but, you must be able to make good what you say; never forget that the employers are watching us, know our every movement and are aware if we are trying to spring a bluff on them; build your local unions on a solid basis, and above all, see that your treasury has enough money at all times to protect your needs.

Mr. Non-Unionist, do you ever think seriously of your industrial conditions, your wages and the hours you have to toil? If you have, you can come to no other decision than to join the craft or trade union of your class; join now and stand shoulder to shoulder with your fellow-craftsmen in their fight for fair-living wages and reasonable hours of work. You need us! and we need you.

Brotherhoods Complete Balloting

New York, July 26.—The time allowed for the vote of the brotherhoods of railroad engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen in the east on the question of calling a strike for shorter hours and better pay expired today. The official count of the vote will begin August 1, and will continue until August 5. Officers of the four brotherhoods will assemble here during the remaining days of the week.

Ballots in big bundles arrived today at brotherhood headquarters here. Brotherhood officials predicted that the vote of all the organizations would be overwhelmingly in favor of authorizing their conference committee to call a strike if the railroad companies refused to grant an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime.

"REGULAR" BALL GAME

What will undoubtedly be the most largely attended and exciting ball game played in the valley this season will be the one Saturday afternoon between Rochester and Beaver Falls, at the Rochester park. Both teams are primed for the occasion and considerable money has already been posted. The game is one of a series to determine the championship of the county, and will be hard-fought.

SENATOR F. P. WALSH FAVORS 8 HOUR DAY

Says Demand for It Is Not Subject for Arbitration Because It Is Incontestably Right.

The following extract from a speech made recently by U. S. Senator Frank P. Walsh, Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Relations, shows what this distinguished gentleman thinks of the eight-hour work day:

"I hold that the eight-hour day is so incontestably right that the demand for it is not a subject for arbitration. It should be taken as a matter of inalienable right through the economic power of the workers. Not only should no man be compelled to work more than eight hours a day, but no man should be permitted to work more than eight hours a day, except with the consent of his fellow workers and under conditions which they impose by their collective bargaining power to see that the one man does not invade and imperil the rights of his fellows. I hold further that the right of the workers to collective bargaining and the right of every worker to be protected by his fellow workers from arbitrary discharge are also the inalienable rights of modern industry and they also are not subjects of arbitration."

PIANIST TO BE HEARD AT THE CHAUTAUQUA IS ALSO A COMPOSER

CHARLES HARDING. CHARLES HARDING, accompanist with Dunbar's Solree Singers, is not only a pianist of note, but is also a gifted composer. The varied and artistic program of the Solree Singers to be given on the opening day of the Chautauqua will include several pleasing numbers by this talented musician, as well as vocal selections, readings, sketches and impersonations by other members of this able company.

EIGHT-HOUR WORK DAY

time made forty-five working days at the throttle.

"Railroad officials would call this man an 'aristocrat of the labor world' and cite the fact that he received good pay, but they would neglect to mention the long hours he worked to enable him to earn a fair wage," declares the Transportation Brotherhoods' Publicity Bureau.

"Train crews are now compelled to work from twelve to twenty hours continuously and they are asking that their workday be made shorter and their working conditions be bettered. They receive a less wage per hour than most any other trade."

Wages Per Hour Low.

The bureau declares that the only intelligent basis on which to discuss wages is to show how much a man receives per hour for his work. It shows the prevailing wages received per hour by freight crews as compared to other trades, as follows: Locomotive engineers, 48 1/2c; Bricklayers, plasterers, etc., 75c; Locomotive firemen, 31c; Carpenters, painters, etc., 70c; Freight conductors, 40c; Laborers in tunnels, wells, etc., 57 1/2c; Freight brakemen, 26 1/2c; Excavating laborers, 40c.

"In order to get even a fair living wage, train employes must work 12 to 20 hours every day in the year," the bureau declares.

The railroad magnates make a terrific howl in the capitalist press about the enormous cost of the 8-hour day demanded by the men, yet make no mention of the fact that the eight-hour day has been established on the fighting union men in western and southwestern territory. The railroads in western territory with the eight-hour day are:

El Paso & Southwestern; Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio; Texas & New Orleans; Morgan's Louisiana & Texas Railroad and Steamship Co.; Louisiana Western; Houston & Texas Central; Houston, East & West Texas; Houston & Shoreport.

The railroads in southeastern territory with the eight-hour day are:

Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad; Atlantic Coast Line Railroad; Central of Georgia Railroad; Charleston & Western Carolina Railroad; Florida & East Coast Railroad; Georgia Railroad; Louisville & Nashville Railroad; Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway; Norfolk Southern Railroad; Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

These roads, with one or two exceptions, are solvent and paying dividends despite the fact that the roads are saturated with water poured in by the stock manipulators of Wall Street. The eight-hour roads in southeastern territory are 57 per cent of the lines in that part of the country. The western roads with the eight-hour day are only 3 per cent.

But there will be 100 per cent eight-hour day before the year is up, according to the prediction of the officers of the four brotherhoods. The men have been jobbed in many arbitration proceedings and have lost in conciliation and mediation. At this time they are going in the fight to win.

"Eight-hour day or general strike," is the ultimatum being prepared by the 400,000 men in the four brotherhoods.

While the vote progresses the employers will make every effort to break the strike that may develop. The Pennsylvania, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Erie and many other roads are seeking to mobilize the unorganized workers against the brotherhood men. The D. L. & W. openly appeals to unorganized men to sign a list as potential strikebreakers. They are promised the jobs that they will take in the event of a strike.

"GET-TOGETHER" MEETING

some other questions that are confronting the laboring man today, and have speakers to discuss those questions. There are many things that can be made better for the man who labors for a living, and we hope that these problems will be taken up by the lodges and a remedy sought for them; at least that is the hope of many of us. It is the aim of all union men to help each other, and we, as union men, must do our share. What question will be given consideration is not known at this time. There are many of them—better compensation laws, sanitary conditions, better housing conditions, and better school laws are needed.

If all the lodges of the Railroad Orders will come and help, many of these laws that are needed badly can be secured, but it will take work, not of one man or one order, but of all. Every one must give his support in the way of money and personal assistance; if something has to be done and you are requested to do it, dig in. That is the only way it can be done.

All members are requested to notice the change of meeting place. As there is a strike on at the Colonial Annex Hotel we had to secure other quarters in which to hold our meetings. Let all get into this game and render what assistance we can, so that we will be able to hold as many and as large meetings this coming season, not only for our members,

At the Majestic

"The Masked Rider"
"The Masked Rider," a sensational five-part Metro-Quinty production, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison leading, will be the attraction at the Majestic theatre, Monday, July 31. This wonderplay is brimful of thrills, especially in the big scenes staged in the mountains of North Carolina. There are many exciting moments in this part of the story, which deals with the moonshiners of that section. The outlaws are brought to justice through the daring exploits of "The Masked Rider," played by Mr. Lockwood, who poses as a mountain parson until he gathers his evidence against them. Before they are corralled the fighting parson is obliged to display his prowess in one of the most remarkable encounters ever shown upon the screen.

The central characters in the fight are Mr. Lockwood and Lester Cuneo, who plays the villain in the role of "Squid Archer," the leader of the moonshiners. Miss Allison is seen in the delightful role of a beautiful mountain girl, whom the fighting parson wins in the end.

"Alien Souls"
Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor, will be seen at the Majestic Tuesday, August 1st, in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "Alien Souls," a thrilling photodrama written especially for him by Hector Turnbull, the author of "The God of the Plague." It is a Paramount production.

In "Alien Souls," Hayakawa is seen as a young man of Japanese descent and is shown in a series of scenes in which he is brought to a point where he is faced with a choice between his race and his love. He is shown in a series of scenes in which he is brought to a point where he is faced with a choice between his race and his love.

How this beautiful young Japanese girl falls into the clutches of a money-hungry American, how she is finally brought to a point where she is faced with a choice between her race and her love, is the story of "Alien Souls."

"That Sort"
Wanda Howard, the great emotional actress, will be seen at the Majestic Wednesday, August 2nd, in the "That Sort," a play dealing with a fortune.

Equitable Film Corporation presents Bruce McRae and Gerda Homes in "THE CHAIN INVISIBLE." A photoplay that is teeming with heart interest.

"Caprice of the Mountains"
The feature play, "Caprice of the Mountains," will be shown at the Majestic Thursday and Friday, August 3rd and 4th, in a five-part photodrama.

On the road are meeting a gay automobile party, among whom is Jack Richmond, Harry Hilliard, grandson of a venerable artist who lives near Caprice's home.

Jack gives the girl a bundle and asks her to deliver it to his grandfather with a message. Mr. Edmonds tells Caprice a fairy story which opens her eyes to the beauties of the mountains around her own home and induces her to return to her father's house.

Jack goes to his grandfather's mountain home for a hunting trip. Tim, the coarse mountaineer, tries to force his attentions upon Caprice, aided and abetted by her stepmother. Parental pressure is brought to bear and Caprice is about to be forced into a marriage with Tim. In the meantime she has met Jack, whom she considers a "fairy prince." The night of the wedding arrives and Caprice again runs away from home. Jack fell in love with her and they eventually marry. But Caprice, unaccustomed to the ways of society, causes Jack great embarrassment and he resumes the fast life he led before meeting her. He gradually goes to ruin. Caprice leaves him and returns to her old home in the mountains. Jack again renounces his life of dissipation, turns over a new leaf, rejoins his young wife in the mountains and is introduced to his son and heir.

At the Colonial

"The Deserter"
Charles Ray is the star of "The Deserter," Triangle feature which will be seen at the Colonial theatre, Monday and Tuesday, July 31-August 1.

The story deals with stirring events at a frontier army post in 1869. Ray has the role of Lieutenant Parker, who has lost his heart to Barbara Taylor, daughter of the colonel in charge of the post. But Barbara's affections have been won by Captain Turner, and when the handsome young lieutenant asks her for her hand, she has to say no.

Barbara does promise the disconsolate Parker that she will give him the first waltz at the approaching Halloween ball. But when the time comes, the first waltz finds her whirling about the floor with her intended. The young lieutenant has a nasty temper, and it becomes inflamed forthwith with anger and jealousy. He leaves the ball in a rage and goes to a dive on the outskirts of the post, where he tries to drown his sorrows in bad whiskey and worse company.

The gamblers at the resort try to cheat him at cards, and a fight starts. The place is full of soldiers, who come to aid the young officer, and a general melee follows, which becomes so violent that a detachment is sent from the post. Turner leaves the ball to command them, and is amazed to find Parker in the middle of the mixup. His rebuke inflames the boy still further, and he strikes his superior officer. His arrest follows.

Facing court martial he escapes and flees into the desert; he is found by settlers; later they are attacked by Indians and he, in recompense for their kindness, escapes, returns to the fort and brings succor to them, finally lying from wounds received.

"Sudden Riches"
How he had the millions, spent them recklessly, suffered terribly, supported a Broadway show, estranged himself from his wife, she from him, and how, when again, only on the very verge of the brink, their little daughter was taken sick, bringing both parents to their bedside, told in "Sudden Riches," at the Colonial Theatre, on Wednesday, August 2.

Losing the fortune that having the child has brought Robert to his senses, and he returns to his wife, who has regained all her love, makes life worth while. In the end, the boy has his fortune and the couple, tenderly and solemnly, in the face of their supporters.

"The Chain Invisible"
James Van der Zant, a north woodsman, gets his leg lamed and leaves for New York. At the station he sees Anne Dalton and falls in love with her. The Daltons and Sir Taine sail on a cruise and Walsworth goes on the same steamer. At an opportunity he tells Anne of his love, and she tells him she has accepted Taine. In his anguish Walsworth is obsessed by the idea of suicide. He goes on a desert island and he elicits her. He then goes to the island, love and hate is ably and told in "The Chain Invisible," at the Colonial Theatre, Thursday, August 3.

"Flirting With Fate"
The merest hint of a story in "Flirting With Fate," the Triangle release which is to be shown at the Colonial, Friday and Saturday, August 4-5, stamps it as the finest Douglas Fairbanks picture thus far. In his picture Fairbanks plays Aug Kinsley, a young man who is short on funds. He falls in love with Gladys Rockwell, but when it comes to a sunny disposition, a typical child of the mountains, who loves all nature—except the Bassetts.

Aside from the exceptionally clever and appealing work which Miss Kinsley does in this thrilling story, the production has many points of exceptional interest. It is a story of just the right kind for the time. Miss Kinsley, Director Frederick Thompson and a company of 45 players went to the wildest mountain district of that state where they spent six weeks in a land that has never before been photographed on the screen.

After wanting to commit suicide when he learns what mischief he has done, but when he is told to commit suicide by running gas in the quarter-in-the-slot meter runs out. He enters the saloon to get change for a quarter, and then meets Automatic Joe. He tries to shoot him, but when he is shot, he is taken to his home. The latter part of the story is just as interesting as the foregoing.

"What Happened at 22"
The story of "What Happened at 22" is a story of love, romance and mystery. It is a story of a young man who is short on funds. He falls in love with Gladys Rockwell, but when it comes to a sunny disposition, a typical child of the mountains, who loves all nature—except the Bassetts.

will present "The Come-Back" at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Wednesday, Aug. 2.

"The Come-Back" is a strong story of how a dissipated young man, just out of college, sees the error of his way, and goes to the northern Maine woods, where he becomes a real man and redeems himself. There is an interesting and delightful story running through the feature, and a wealth of beautiful photography.

"The Misleading Lady"

Henry B. Walthal, the modern cave-man, in the five-act photoplay, "The Misleading Lady," will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday Aug. 3. The part of Cruden is a difficult one. As the play develops, he changes slowly from the conventional man, very thoughtful, slightly moody and extremely distrustful of women, into a polished brute. Walthal is the poet of the screen, and the portrayal of poetic emotions, the aims, elemental things, passion, idealized love, sacrifice, ambition of the highest type.

"The Crippled Hand"

In the beautiful Bluebird photoplay, "The Crippled Hand," to be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, on August 4, Robert Leonard plays the handsome part of Ella Hall is the drummer and in telling the story the beauties of time are glorified with the world and gripping sequences. Kinsey Rockwell plays the cripple; Gladys Rockwell is the adventuress, and there are scores of people employed in presenting this brilliant blend of poetic idealism and gripping melodrama.

"The Vagabond"

The noted Charlie Chaplin appears in this, the latest of his many plays. Chaplin is so well known that space will not be taken to say much about "The Vagabond," more than that it ranks in humorous situations with his previous efforts, and is a "scream" from start to finish. Additional films will be shown on the date of the Chaplin comedy, August 5th. Tom Moore and Anna Nilsson appearing in "A Lost Paradise," a beautiful heart interest production; and Helen Gibson, the popular comedienne, will appear in a thrilling photoplay entitled "The Spiked Switch."

Humorous Author and Lecturer To Be Heard at the Chautauqua

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS.

ONE of the most popular lecturers of the present day as well as a noted humorous writer and editor is John Kendrick Bangs, who will be heard here on the seventh afternoon of the Chautauqua. He has been in turn editor of Literature, Harper's Weekly and the Metropolitan Magazine and was at one time managing editor of Life. His humorous writings include more than fifty volumes of prose and verse. "More Salubrity," the title of Mr. Bangs' lecture at the Chautauqua, is a continuation of his notable platform effort "Salubrity's I Have Met," which is a lively running talk about more or less famous men and women met by the lecturer in the course of his career. "More Salubrity" is as delightfully humorous as his former masterpiece and introduces new characters and new incidents.

Noted Mexican Leader to Be Here Fourth Day of the Chautauqua

EMETERIO DE LA GARZA.

EMETERIO DE LA GARZA, who will speak on "What's Wrong With Mexico" on the fourth afternoon of the Chautauqua, is himself one of Mexico's leading citizens and has had a vital part in the recent political affairs of that republic. For twelve years he was a member of the Chamber of Deputies and was connected with the governments of Diaz, De la Barra, Madero and Huerta so long as they stood for national constitutional principles. When they departed from these he preferred political freedom in the United States to the hampered diplomatic posts offered to him. Consequently he is in a position today to tell the truth about Mexico and to suggest a truly practical method for pacifying the turbulent and anarchistic republic and for solving once and for all the "Mexican problem."

Rookery of Million Penguins—the Most Comic Of All Birds—to Be Seen at the Chautauqua

HERE is a rookery of penguins, the comic Arctic birds which, because of their queer waddling, are said to be the originators of the Charlie Chaplin walk. The penguin is more humorous than the monkey, and motion pictures portraying the antics of this laughable bird will be shown at the Chautauqua. Mr. Douglas Mawson, who took the pictures, found and photographed a rookery of a million penguins in his bold dash to the heart of the Antarctic. Glimpses of many other interesting forms of animal life in the polar regions—some of them never before seen by man—will be included in the famous Mawson pictures.

RAILWAY CO. ENDEAVORS TO SECURE PLEDGES

Pennsylvania Company Asks Its Men to Sign Agreement to Work If Strike Comes.

AGREEMENT IS SIMPLY ANTI-STRIKE BALLOT

All valley employees of the Pennsylvania lines received and were asked to sign the following appeal, issued by F. J. Kron, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Lines west of Pittsburgh, the same being a pledge that in case of a strike that the signer will volunteer his services to assist the company. It will be noted that the men are not asked to fill any particular position, but agree to accept such position as the officials may designate in case of a strike:

To All Employees:

As noted in the General Manager's statement of June 20, 1916, representatives of the train service organizations are now taking a strike vote on the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh. If the vote is in favor of a strike, it will place in the hands of the Chief Executives and General Chairmen of the four organizations the authority to again refuse arbitration and to call out on strike all men in the train and engine service.

The laws of the country require that the railroads must continue to operate in the interests of the public, and, as the organizations have already refused to arbitrate and may again refuse if the vote is in favor of a strike, the management calls the attention of all faithful employees to the fact that the necessity may arise to meet such an emergency.

If this strike occurs our Company will require engineers, firemen, conductors, road and yard brakemen and others.

If you feel and believe with the management that the traffic of the country must move regardless of any wage controversy and are willing to volunteer your services to assist the Company in performing its duty to the public and to the stockholders, will you please fill out and sign the blank attached below and send it to your immediate superior officer.

F. J. KRON, Superintendent.

The following letter, signed by the General Chairmen of the Brotherhoods of the Pennsylvania Lines west of Pittsburgh, has been received by the four local Brotherhoods, and convincingly explains just what the railroads are endeavoring to do relative to securing signers to the above mentioned agreement:

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17, 1916.
To All Local Chairmen, Divisions and Lodges, B. of L. E., B. of L. F. and E., O. R. C. and B. of R. T., Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh.

Sirs and Brothers: We are advised that the Superintendents of some of the Divisions of the Pennsylvania Lines West are calling their train service employees into their offices and requesting them to sign, what we would term, an anti-strike ballot. We are further advised that in some instances the men who refuse to sign are being threatened with dismissal, and that various other coercive methods are being resorted to. This is nothing more or less than an effort to make "scabs."

ABLE VIOLINIST TO PLAY ON SECOND DAY OF THE CHAUTAUQUA

SAMUEL DIAMONDE, violinist with the Tschalkowsky String Quartet, is a musician of merit and a soloist of unusual ability. With every other member of this brilliant company, he is fully capable of rendering excellent support to Leon Weltman, leader, who is director of one of the large conservatories of music just out of Boston and is widely known as an orchestra conductor both in this and other countries. The Tschalkowsky String Quartet will be heard here on the second day of the Chautauqua.

out of us before our strike ballots have even been counted.

The laws of our organizations provide the means for securing a strike vote, and our methods have been recognized by the Committee of Managers representing the Railroads.

Before we commenced voting the employees, the General Manager put out a letter requesting each employee to vote. From the recent action of the Company, which calls forth this circular letter, it is apparent that the officers are convinced that the strike vote has carried, but that they are far from satisfied with the apparent verdict, and that they are determined not only to discredit yourselves, but to discredit the position which will be taken for you by your representatives when they meet in New York in August.

We would advise that all members and others whom we represent refrain from signing anything conveying an impression of sentiment other than our own legal strike ballot.

In conclusion, we desire to emphasize that the letter of July 12, 1916, which is being put out by the Company, addressed "To All Employees," is an anti-strike ballot, and is being placed before you, ostensibly for the purpose of getting you to remain loyal to the company, while in reality, it is for the purpose getting you to declare yourself a "scab."

R. R. STRIKE VOTE IS FINALLY COMPLETED

The Four Brotherhoods Finish Taking of Strike Vote on Wednesday, July 26th.

St. Louis, July 26—The strike vote of the four train service brotherhoods completed tonight at midnight, resulted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, if necessary.

Coincidental advices from all sections of the country justify the forecast that from between 96 and 98 per cent of the brotherhoods' membership has voted in favor of a nation-wide strike, affecting practically every railroad in the United States and approximately 450,000 employees.

In the St. Louis district the percentage will probably exceed this estimate. On reliable authority it is estimated that Frisco employees have been practically unanimous in the casting of the strike ballot. Ninety-nine per cent of the men are said to have voted for the "walkout."

The vote on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas is said to have fallen a little short of that on the Frisco, the percentage in favor of a strike being estimated at 98. The strike percentage on the Missouri Pacific was estimated tonight at approximately 97.

The ballots cast in the St. Louis district will be taken to New York unopened. They will be delivered to the brotherhood headquarters. It is expected that tabulation will be commenced within the next few days.

It is planned to have the counting finished August 6, and a monster mass meeting of the four brotherhoods has been called for the Amsterdam Opera House in New York that night. The result of the vote will then be announced.

It is reported on good authority that the strike vote taken in Conway Yards and vicinity was almost unanimous, and that practically 100 per cent of the members voted in favor of the walkout, if such a course is found to be necessary.

R. R. MEN WILL STRIKE*Early Vote Now Counted Shows
Walkout Is Apparently Inevitable.*AFFECTS 225 RAILROADS;
FINAL COUNT BY AUG. 7

New York, August 2.—When 200,000 of the 400,000 ballots cast by members of four brotherhoods who are voting on the question of calling a general strike on 225 roads had been counted, at noon today, it was announced that "a preponderant number of the men are in favor of a strike."

The ballots counted today are mainly votes of the Eastern and Southern members of the "Big Four" railway brotherhoods. The Western and Southwestern chairmen will arrive in a few days with the ballots from their respective communities. It is expected that the lowest number of votes cast in favor of the strike will come from the Eastern members of the railway unions. However, no matter what the number of votes cast against the strike by the Eastern men, there is practically no doubt that the majority of them favor the strike, it was asserted.

Southern Vote Heavy.
Thus far the largest number of votes in favor of the strike have been cast by members from the South. One southerner who is in touch with the vote counting, predicted today the vote from his section would run approximately as follows: Engineers, 90 per cent; conductors, 85 per cent; firemen, 92 per cent; and brakemen, 94 per cent.

An official of the Southeastern Association of Trainmen, who is in close touch with the situation, declared today that 99 1/2 per cent of the members of the four orders of railway workers of the south favor the strike. It had been expected that the counting of the vote would be complete by August 7, but at the rate the count is being made, it ought to be completed before that, unless there should be some unexpected delay.

Expect Unanimous Vote.
A committee of 50 men continued the counting of the strike vote. Timothy Shea, who is in charge of the counting, said he believed the vote would be almost unanimous to quit work if the railway officials persisted in their refusal to grant the demands of the men for an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime.

The counters expect to finish today the counting of the vote in the Eastern territory. They will then take up the Western vote. When the final result is known a mass meeting will be held to explain the controversy to the 600 chairmen of the adjustment committees of the four brotherhoods of railway workers, who have brought the ballots here to be counted.

A meeting of the national conference committee of the railways will be held here next Tuesday to make another attempt to settle the differences between the railroads and the men.

President Watching Developments.
Officials of the federal government including President Wilson, are closely watching developments in the controversy between 225 railways and their 400,000 employees, and are preparing to offer every possible aid in effecting an agreement and avoiding a strike.

The President forwarded to the Labor Department an appeal he had received from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, through Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of the chamber's committee on railroads, declaring a strike is inevitable, "unless some strong measures of intervention are speedily introduced," and urging an inquiry. Acting Secretary of Labor Post said he was in close touch with the situation, but had not decided whether action by the department would be necessary.

Mediation Panel Active.
The Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation, which is authorized by law to attempt to avert strikes on railroads, also is keeping watch of developments. They say that nothing can be done at present.

Mr. Wheeler said he had recently attended a meeting of representatives of the employers and employees in New York, and that as a result his conviction was deepened that no satisfactory settlement was possible.

BASEBALL GAME.

The newly organized baseball team of Wellsville, played its first game of the season with Midland, Saturday, Midland winning by a score of 4-1. Allison, pitching for Midland, was effective at all stages of the game, and Garvey pitched good ball for Wellsville. The game was witnessed by a large crowd, many being present from Wellsville.

Tells 1,000 Trainmen at Bellefontaine,
Ohio, That They Are Entitled To Shorter Hours.

Bellefontaine, O.—Declaring that the tendency of the present age is eight hours for work, eight hours for recreation and eight hours for rest, Governor Frank B. Willis clearly and vigorously expressed himself in sympathy with the movement of the railroad men to secure eight-hour work days and time and a half for overtime, in an address before more than a thousand people in Rutan Park. The meeting was arranged by the train service brotherhoods. Local ministers, citizens and several brotherhood representatives spoke.

"In the very air," said Governor Willis, "is the sentiment demanding recognition of men as men. It is not possible for the men in any branch of the railroad service to do his best work and give the public the service to which it is entitled, if he has to work from twelve to sixteen hours per day. The public has an interest in this great problem. As one of the public, I don't care to travel on a train where the operatives work sixteen hours."

"Eight hours' work, eight hours' recreation, eight hours' rest are natural divisions of the twenty-four. I think that these boys are entitled to such division. I am here because I want to express as clearly and vigorously as I may my sympathy with and interest in this great movement."

POLICE OFFICERS WILL CELEBRATE

The third mid-summer outing of the Beaver Valley Police Officers' Protective and Beneficial Association will take place at Junction Park, Wednesday, Aug. 9, afternoon and evening. A fine program of sports has been arranged and the automobile upon which numbers have been sold for several weeks past, will be raffled off at 5 o'clock. At the Dreamland theatre, the Columbia Stock Company, on this occasion, will present "Officer 999."

RAILROAD SHOPMEN WIN.

Du Bois, Pa.—About 1,000 employees of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railway car shops have won a three days' strike, and secured 15 per cent wage increases, the eight-hour day and recognition of their union. They are affiliated to the American Federation of Labor.

These workers discovered that when they tied up the shops and yards that the management abandoned its policy of simply acknowledging receipt of their demands.

With his big toe on the right foot badly mangled as the result of being caught beneath a heavy piece of metal at the plant of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Co., in Midland, Thomas Burns, aged 46, of East Liverpool, was removed to the East Liverpool hospital for treatment.

"High" Wages?

According to the current rate of wages received by train service employees on the Pennsylvania Lines west of Pittsburgh, employed in the through freight service, engineers, conductors, firemen and brakemen would receive the following amounts for one week's work, provided the men worked eight hours a day, six days a week, as do bricklayers, carpenters, hod carriers, plasterers, printers, or any other craft:

Engineers	$23.52
Firemen	15.84
Conductors	19.20
Brakemen	12.96

RATE OF WAGES PER HOUR

Engineer	49 cents
Firemen	33 cents
Brakemen	27 cents
Conductor	40 cents

In the statements relative to wages paid this class of employees, sent out by the Pennsylvania Co., the weekly wage is based on excessive hours of work. The question is—why should train service men work from six to eight hours longer each day than do men in other branches of industry to earn a living wage? Certainly their work is more hazardous.

On Wednesday—Big Crowd Was Present.

Members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles throughout the valley were congratulating themselves Thursday morning over the fact that their first annual and union picnic, held at Junction Park on Wednesday afternoon and evening, was an unqualified success. There was an attendance of over 2,000, and the time was spent in dancing, roller skating and other park amusements, watching the athletic sports, taking in the big show at the Dreamland theatre in the evening, and enjoying a basket dinner in the spacious grove at five o'clock.

Six valley lodges, Freedom, No. 1429; Aliquippa, No. 1708; Rochester, No. 1226; New Brighton, No. 1342; Beaver Falls, No. 749, and Monaca, No. 1412, were represented at the picnic, each lodge appointing a committee of ten members, the sixty men acting as a general committee in charge of the program for the day. The committee in charge of the occasion consisted of William A. Hanshaw, David Whitehouse and Homer Kountz and to these gentlemen, together with Manager Charles Shetterly of Junction Park, is due, in a great measure, the fact that the day was a huge success.

It will not be out of place, right here, to mention the fact that the manner in which Manager Charles C. Shetterly handled the publicity end of this particular picnic had a great deal to do with the great success which was attained. Since taking hold of Junction Park, Manager Shetterly has displayed rare aptitude in handling the multitudinous details connected with the successful handling of the park, the result being that the park is rapidly becoming more popular.

The dance in the evening was attended by one of the largest crowds of the season, there being 200 couples on the floor. The spacious pavilion was beautifully decorated, music was furnished by Elmer's orchestra. The prize waits contest, held at 10 o'clock, proved to be an interesting feature and brought out a large number of couples, all of whom were graceful dancers, the prizes being won by Simon Shaffer of Monaca, and Mrs. Howe, of Rochester, who won first honors; and by W. M. Eberhardt and Mrs. Henrietta Krent, of Monaca. The judges consisted of (Continued on Page Four).

Fort Worth, Texas, National

Monaca Local No. 1033, Carpenters and Joiners held two meetings the first of the present week. On Monday evening a specially called meeting was held for the purpose of selecting a delegate to attend the national convention at Fort Worth, Texas, but after a thorough discussion of the proposition it was decided not to be represented at the convention this year, consequently a motion to not participate was passed.

The regular meeting was held on Tuesday evening. Clearance cards were deposited by John W. Miles, L. U. 893, Wellburg, W. Va.; William O. Dible, L. U. 1136, Donora, Pa.; William Clemensen, L. U. 405, Wellsville, Ohio; James F. Hamilton, L. U. 328, East Liverpool, Ohio; F. Donald Silverthorn, L. U. 435, Chester, W. Va.; J. P. Silverthorn, L. U. 435, Chester, W. Va.; W. J. Woodruff, L. The committee on by-laws tendered a report, which was passed on first reading.

DEATH OF GEORGE BIRD

George A. Bird, of Rochester, a freight conductor on the Pennsylvania Lines, died at his home early Thursday morning, death being due to heart trouble and Bright's disease. The deceased was 34 years of age, and was a member of the Order of Railway Conductors, and of the First M. E. church of Rochester. A widow, three children, several brothers and sisters and the parents of the deceased survive. The funeral services will be held from the First M. E. church at Rochester, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. R. C. Wolf officiating. Interment will be in Irvin's cemetery.

NICKLE-PLATE AND

Telegraphers on Tdo Roads, East and Increases.

Just as the committee of fifty, representing the four transportation brotherhoods, began counting the recent strike vote of their 400,000 members in New York Monday, came the announcement that telegraphers on the New York Central and Nickel Plate railroads had won their fight for increased pay.

The telegraphers' award was made by Chairman Harry Daugherty, of the arbitration board. It grants double pay on Sundays and seven days' vacation each year to men who work nine or more hours daily, and who have been two years in the service. Ten days' vacation is granted those who have been three years with the road. The request of the telegraphers that they be relieved of the care of crossing gates, switch lamps and gasoline and steam pumps was denied by the board.

William J. Fripp, member of the board representing the railroad, filed an opinion dissenting from the grant of overpay for Sunday work on the New York Central Lines west of Buffalo, and on the Nickel Plate. He said it meant that the two roads would be paying much more than their competitors. The men asked for an increase of 15 per cent on lines west and 13 per cent on lines east of Buffalo, but F. J. Manion, vice president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, who was one of the arbiters, expressed satisfaction with the award.

TRAIN CREW'S JOB EXTRA HAZARDOUS

Who pays for the depreciation in human life, the result of railway operation?

When a car or locomotive is smashed up, a fund has been provided for its renewal, but when in the same wreck, an engineer, fireman, conductor or brakeman has been crushed out of all semblance to his former self, the other employees of these classes whose time has not yet come, dig down into their pockets and pay for this human railroad wreckage.

The common law doctrine of "assumed risk" has been forced on railroad employees as a part of their compensation. To use a Western expression, they have been educated to expect "to die with their boots on." In no other industry is the occupational hazard so great as in the making up and transportation of railway trains. The railroad industry, however, reflects no recognition of this hazard in the wages of its employees.

The records of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers show that it has paid out to its members for deaths and disabilities, the sum of $18,109,167.75. More than 30% of all deaths and disabilities of members of this organization are caused by railroad accidents.

During the year 1915, the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were compelled to contribute the great sum of $2,270,279.92—to the widows and orphans of its members who were killed during that one year and on account of injuries and disabilities incurred.

VALLEY UNIONS LAX IN SUPPORT OF STRIKERS

A special called meeting of Federal Union No. 14994, which organization is composed of former employees of the Townsend Company, at Fallston, now out on strike, was held in the rooms of the union in the Kramer Block, New Brighton, on Saturday evening, July 29th. The meeting was called for the purpose of allowing R. T. Townsend, of the Townsend Company, who had previously requested that he be permitted to appear before the union to explain the company's attitude in the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs.

The meeting was called to order by President Seibold, a discussion taking place prior to the admission of Mr. Townsend, relative to just what sort of a proposition the union would make, provided the former was in the mood to offer terms of settlement. It was decided to ask for a straight ten per cent increase in wages, the recognition of the union, and a demand that the Townsend Company remove some of the employees who are at present working in the plant.

Mr. Townsend was then admitted to the room and upon being granted the privilege of the floor, stated that he really did not know what the trouble was about, as he supposed the strike was off, and that he was very much surprised to ascertain that his company is still considered to be unfair. The speaker further stated that he did not believe in the organization of workmen, as it was doubtful if organization was of any benefit to the men. He believed, so he said, that if both sides would work together, something would be gained. The company has, according to Mr. Townsend, furnished a large club room, called the Townsend Employees' Club, of which every employee was a member, and that the Club had the Union beat in every way, insofar as protection to its members was concerned. The club has a lunch room, a bath and other conveniences too numerous to mention, according to Mr. Townsend, who did not state what the dues were to club members, but stated that he would like to see the members get together, call the strike off, come back to work and become members of the Townsend Employees' Club.

The proposition was then gone into from the side of the Union, but owing to the fact that Mr. Townsend would not listen to the proposals made by the speakers, a secret vote was taken by the members to determine whether or not the proposition made by Mr. Townsend would be accepted. The proposition was rejected.

Mr. Townsend stated, before leaving the meeting, that he was very sorry that the members would not accept his proposition to return to work, and the meeting was adjourned to Thursday, August 10.

At the conclusion of the meeting several members of the Federal Union called the attention of the Labor News representative to the lack of support which other unions throughout the valley are giving the Townsend strikers in their present fight. As an example, it was stated that the carpenters, employed at the Townsend works, who came out when the members of the Federal Labor Union struck, had returned to work; that bricklayers and electricians are working at the plant and that some of the machinists who left the plant at the time the first strike-breakers were put to work at the plant, and who claim to be union men, have returned to work. The members further stated that in their opinion this was all wrong, several of them saying that they were union men and always had been, but that they felt that the stand which members of other unions in the valley were taking in this fight would do a great deal of damage to the cause of unionism throughout the valley, as well as in general. The general opinion seemed to be that so many of the valley unions permit their members to work at the Townsend plant, that the Federal Labor Union members are going to fight until they win.

STATE INVESTIGATING COMPENSATION ACT

Will Determine Whether Payments Are Being Made to Every Injured Worker.

EMPLOYERS ARE MOSTLY COMPLYING WITH LAW

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 3.—A state-wide investigation to ascertain whether compensation payments are being made to every injured worker, entitled to receive such payments, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, is being conducted under direction of Commissioner John Price Jackson, of the Department of Labor and Industry.

Although hundreds of individual cases have been found where injured workers should be receiving compensation, the investigation has disclosed that, with few exceptions, employers are endeavoring to comply with the provisions of the Compensation Act. In most instances, lack of knowledge of the provisions of the law has been responsible for delayed payments.

Delays in reporting accidents, to the Department of Labor and Industry, have been discovered and letters have been sent from the Labor Department, to every employer, large or small, known to have held up an accident report. In this circular letter, the Act of Assembly of June 19, 1913, is cited which provides that unless accident reports are made, the employer is liable to a penalty of $100, following prosecution.

Paul N. Furman, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the Labor Department, has compared reports of accidents, with the records of agreements for compensation, filed in the Compensation Bureau, to determine where compensation is not being paid to employees who have sustained injuries and suffered disability for a greater period than two weeks. This comparison has disclosed where an employer or insurance company is not making the payments required by law.

In every case, where it appears that compensation payments should be made, Commissioner Jackson has directed Lew R. Palmer, Chief of the Bureau of Inspection, to send an inspector to the home of the injured employee to learn whether the worker is entitled to compensation, whether he is receiving it and, if not, the possibilities of the labor movement—an understanding that can be utilized for practical purposes during the whole year.

It is, therefore, urged that every central body in the country plan for a distinctively labor celebration on the coming Labor Day. There ought to be a parade that will direct the attention of the whole town to the cause of Labor, which is the cause of humanity, and in addition a general gathering of the workers of the community to listen to labor addresses.

The labor movement has made tremendous progress during the past year. On this coming Labor Day we ought to make known the story of that progress to the whole nation, and plan for greater constructive work during the next year. There are no limitations to the work of the labor movement, no limitations to its power to bring betterment into the lives of the workers of this country or to establish mutually helpful relations with the workers of all other countries.

The labor movement of the United States has reason to be proud of its achievements, and to be gratified at the work that has been done for humanity and civilization during the past year. Let us express this progress in an adequate way on September 4.—Samuel Gompers, in American Federationist.

There is so much misrepresentation and hypocrisy being circulated that one should go to the fount of knowledge and learn the true facts, such as are enumerated in the panel on the first page of this issue. ## PENNSYLVANIA TO HAVE A MODERN EXPOSITION

Biggest and Best Fair Is Promised For Erie This Fall—Elaborate Building Equipment.

Northwestern Pennsylvania, Western New York and Eastern Ohio are showing a very lively interest in the first Erie Exposition which is scheduled to be held during the week of September 18-23. The exposition is to be of a scope sufficient to classify it with the bigger state fairs of the country and it is conservatively estimated that the daily attendance with anything like favorable weather will probably approximate from 25,000 to 40,000 persons.

The Erie Exposition is sponsored by the Erie Board of Commerce. It is capitalized at $100,000 and its stock was disposed of by popular subscription, thus making it a public institution organized with no thought of private or personal gain, but only to fill a long felt want in this vicinity. Its primary purpose will be to encourage the breeding of stock, to furnish an agricultural display of educational value to the farmer and a horticultural exhibition of helpful interest to the fruit grower. A further purpose will be the encouragement of better cooking, better baking, better needlework, etc., etc., on the part of the housewife.

Though the first spade of earth was turned on the exposition site only two months ago, the big exposition is rapidly taking form. The main exposition building, a tremendous great structure, is rapidly nearing completion. Work on a half dozen smaller buildings is also being rushed along. A number of live stock buildings are now complete. The race track, a model half-mile course which it is believed is destined to become the fastest course of its kind in the country, will be entirely completed within a week or ten days. A fine big grand stand, capable of comfortably seating three thousand persons, is under way and a half dozen speed bars are rapidly nearing completion.

This hundred thousand dollar exposition is going to house a million dollars worth of exhibits. The finest cattle, horses, sheep, swine and chickens raised in this country, and

RANCHING

Cattle and Horse Ranching in Western Canada—Steers Brought 10 Cents a Pound on the Seattle Market.

That big money is made by the large cattle rancher in Western Canada, and also by the small farmer as well, is shown by the undisputed facts presented from time to time. A rancher, near Gleichen, Alberta, who commenced in a small way nine years ago, recently disposed of 1,243 cattle at a total of $101,304.50, and this was only his surplus stock for the present season.

A December shipment of 217 head of ranch steers brought the owner an average of over $80 per head. They were taken straight from the range without any grain feeding and were in excellent condition to be sold for the Christmas trade. Another shipment of 100 head, averaging $70 each, was made to Seattle. The highest price paid on the Seattle market was for an Albertan steer, which weighed 1,700 lbs., and brought the fancy price of 10c per lb., or $170.

Six carloads of live stock from ranches 65 miles from Pincher, Alberta, shipped to Spokane, excited keen competition there on account of their exceptional quality. The price realized was $10,028. American dealers say they must look to Canada for beef supplies.

A livestock firm, which has shipped over 2,000 head of beef cattle to the American farmer since the middle of November, reports a splendid reception of Alberta stock in the United States.

A carload of choice Alberta steers were sold early in January for shipment to the British Columbia coast at $6.70 per 100 lbs. and, later on, a lot from Carstairs brought $6.30—the highest price paid since the spring of 1915. Shipments from Calgary livestock yards during 1915 were: Horses, 8,675; cattle, 30,577; hogs, 144,515; sheep, 12,410. A course in agriculture and livestock demonstration which has been conducted by the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture here was well attended, showing the interest taken by city residents in agricultural progress.

John Young, of Sidney, Minn., gives his experiences in sheep-raising as follows, as quoted in a local paper:

"I bought a bunch of fifty ewes, which cost me $262.50. With this little flock I demonstrated just what can be done in the sheep business. This fall I sold fifty fat lambs at $6.50 per head, $325, and 18 of the best ewe lambs, which I kept, I value at $8.00 per head, $144. The wool sold at an average of $2.07 per head $100.50. Happy Union of Voile and Organdie.

Transparent organdie, daintily embroidered, and striped or flower-sprinkled voiles are evidently made for one another. Aided by hemstitching, designers have joined them and no one would ever wish to put them asunder. The result of this happy union is numerous, whimsical, and altogether adorable little afternoon and party frocks with much captivating charm. One of them makes its appearance, and every feminine beholder runs straight a-shopping to acquire such a frock for herself.

Designers vie with one another in making alluring models, and have shown how much can be done with these simple materials. One of the prettiest is made of white voile having scattered over it. The skirt is made of three wide bands of voile set together with bands of transparent organdie with a dainty embroidered edge. The embroidered edge overlaps the voile, and the plain edge is finished with narrow val lace. A band of the embroidered organdie finishes the bottom of the skirt.

The lady waist is cut with short kimono sleeves. These are lengthened by puffs of organdie extending to the wrist. This is gathered into a cuff of the embroidered organdie finished with val lace. The bodice is made over a net foundation and finished with a deep collar of the embroidered organdie. The giraffe is of lavender velvet ribbon. The undergarment is of plain net, who was a founding adopted by a character part of the story, the Rev. Joseph Lorimore, taken by Stephen Grattan. In the part of Samuel Summers is found the talented English actor, Fuller Mellish.

dents of a personal nature and men in freight train service are now determined to have a shorter work day and to have their working conditions approximate as far as possible, that which obtains in other trades.

Railroad officials claim that if the demands of the train crews are granted, it will mean an enormous increase in wages paid and that the cost of any increase will fall upon the public.

If the officials really believe this, why their strenuous opposition? Does the history of railroading show any instance of any great anxiety on the part of the railroads to protect the public? The officials also make statements that the cost will come out of the pockets of the stockholders and in the next breath they claim that the cost will fall upon the farmer and shipper. The employees claim that the truth of the matter is, that there will be little or no increase in cost by granting an eight-hour day and in proof of this claim, they cite the fact that sworn statements of the railroads in the recent Federal arbitration case in Chicago, show that 78% of through and irregular freight trains now make the basic division of 100 miles in less than eight hours, which would leave only 22% of trains whose speed would have to be accelerated in order to avoid the payment of overtime.

They were rich, and the daughter was taking lessons on coyness and social small talk.

"A penny for your thoughts," she archly remarked to an abstracted visitor and then felt, from the look of horror that overspread her parent's face, she must have been guilty of a false step.

"Why didn't you offer him a sovereign?" was the mother's criticism after the visitor's departure. "We've got money, and you must not be afraid to let folks know it."—London Sketch.

PLAN YOUR HOUSE WISELY

Your Own Interests and the Interests of the City Alike Demand Care in Building.

One factor often overlooked in fixing the value of a house is the mistakes in judgment that often occur in planning and locating it.

"You have often heard the remark, 'There stands a $5,000 house on a $3,000 street.'"

Meaning that while the house pointed out cost $5,000 to build, the other houses on the street average only $3,000.

Such mistakes in judgment in building would be less frequent if two ideas were kept in mind by more people when building.

Real estate men have found that, as a general rule, a ratio of about three to one should exist between the value of a single family dwelling and the value of the land it occupies.

Also, houses should be made to harmonize with other buildings in the block. Keep these two facts in mind when buying.

Then—fine houses are sometimes built near undesirable surroundings, such as noisy factories, livery stables and the like—which are sure to lessen the value of the house.

Under mistakes in planning comes the "freak" house, built to suit some man's personal whim. Such a house may be very costly and yet not at all salable.

The cost of unusual or unduly ornate fixtures and decorations is generally disregarded in fixing the value of a building.

These things must all be considered in fixing the value of a house—in connection with the cost to replace, depreciation and obsolescence, if any.

The City Parks association has for a good many years now performed a most useful function for Philadelphia. It has managed to combine and concentrate the efforts of a large number of civic organizations upon a certain definite line of endeavor. This was originally, as its name indicates, the creation of a comprehensive park system—the enlargement of existing parks, the creation of new ones.

INDIANS IN HIGH POSITION

Members of Parker Family Have Proved Themselves Capable in Places of Responsibility.

Foremost among the "red bloods" are the Parkers—father and son. They come of a line of distinguished ancestors, of the Seneca tribe of the Iroquois stock. Frederick E. Parker, the father, is a nephew of Gen. Eli Parker, Grant's military secretary and the co-worker of Lewis H. Morgan. He is a man of fine presence and attainments. A resident of White Plains, N. Y., he has been a potent factor for clean government and social reform in his community. Mr. Parker holds the responsible position of statesman in the department of revenue of the New York Central railroad, having charge of all offices, including more than a thousand agents, between Chicago and New York.

The son, Arthur C. Parker, a brilliant young archeologist, since his appointment to the New York State museum, has practically created a new archeological museum. He is a writer of note, editor general of the American Indian Magazine, a member of the American Ethnological and Sociological societies, the 1916 medalist of Chicago university for Indian research and one of the ten American archeologists appointed to the Pan-American Scientific congress.—Christian Herald.

1915, paid out from their meager earnings, on account of members killed and disabled in service, the sum of $2,421,568.17.

Members of the Order of Railway Conductors put up $1,761,417.49 for the relief of their human wreckage in 1915.

The extra hazardous nature of the employe on a freight train, makes absurd any comparison of wages received, with railway clerks, section hands and other employes.

Considering the fact that train employes are the most skilled of all the railroad wage earners and that they must pay out such enormous sums as above on account of "human wreckage," they are entitled to a work day sufficiently short to enable them to perform their arduous duties with a rested body and brain.

Freight train crews should at least receive as much as is paid in other trades, so that they could better afford to meet the losses occasioned by deaths and injuries to their members.

It is certain that a reduction in the hours of labor with proper rest and recuperation will better fortify the human mind and body against acci-

John Henry On Tipping

SAY! did you ever make up your mind not to do any more tipping? And have you noticed how quickly you're forced to take the make-up off?

In a Big Town nowadays tipping is as necessary as a traffic cop. Only by the aid of one or both can you make any progress or get anywhere.

And the battle cry in each case is "Hands up!"

It's so in this country today that before a thoughtful man cushion-carous through the merry-go-round doors of a swell hotel he has to leave his pocket-book on the sidewalk if he doesn't want to lose it.

On the other side, across the Big Pond, if a hotel employee does you a little favor and you slip him tuppence ha'penny or a pennie he will smile back at you and be much obliged for five minutes.

But in this country if you tip anybody with a couple of pennies the chances are you'll wake up in the nearest hospital and find a kind-hearted but not very pictorial nurse leaning over you and whispering "Keep calm, now, keep cool and calm!" The doctor says you will recover everything except your watch if he can find a small piece of the medulla oblongata which was removed from the northeastern part of your brain when the bell-boy soaked you with the ice-pitcher!

It takes a brave man to save his money these days.

Hep Hardy is one of those reckless tip-tossers. He thinks that all silver money should have a smooth surface, thereby making it easier to slip a coin to a waiter.

He is what the laurajans would call a pepper box of prodigality.

Hep hands out backsheesh like an absent-minded farmer sowing grain.

Hep's trail through a Big Town looks as though the cashier of a five and ten cent store was walking to the bank and had a hole in the canvas bag.

When Hep starts out to pound a public road with his rowdy-cart all the waiters in every hash-foundry within sound of his siren fall flat on their faces and yell, "Hallelujah! pay-day!"

Peaches and I dined with Hep at the Saint Astorville Hotel night before last. Hep likes to dine there because the waiters are French and when he tries to say "Good evening!" in their native tongue he insults them so bitterly he has to sprinkle the room with tip-money in order to square himself.

Hep loves to squeeze into a French cafe, grab a French menu card, and in a confidential tone give an order like this to the French waiter: "Avec le beaucoup pomme de terre. Donnez moi de l'eau chaude; je vais me raser. Avec get a move on you!"

In a French hour and a half the French waiter hurries back with a culinary melodrama wherein each swallow is a thrill and every new

One of Effendi Bey's lieutenants made up to look like Ivan the Terrible, rode up to our table to inquire if a waiter had taken our order. Hep told him no, but Ivan couldn't believe it. Ivan was firm in his disbelief until Hep gave him money, then he saw the light and went joyously away from there.

Presently a waiter arrived who in some other incarnation must have been a pirate on the Spanish Main.

He had a chin which was divided against itself, and a forehead which was retreating hurriedly on the fourth speed.

One look at Captain Kidd and I knew that Hep's desire to die poor but popular would be realized.

All the time the Captain was taking our order he was sizing us up and hoping in Portuguese that Hep's slight wasn't good so he could shoo-change him.

Finally the deadly Rover of the Seas decided to give us our food first and make us walk the plank afterwards. Then he bore away, sou' by sou'east, for the kitchen where he dropped anchor and sharpened his boarding irons.

In the meantime, while we awaited the return of the Pirate King, our friend Hep was busy tipping.

Every time he took a cigarette from his case four eager waiters would dash forward with lighted matches and Hep, desiring to show no partiality, would slip a coin to each of the Mexican guerrillas.

One shark of a waiter swam around in the ofing and every time Hep's serviette dropped from his knees to the floor the shark would retrieve it and as he came to the surface with the serviette in his teeth Hep would pat his head and reward him cheerfully.

It was one continuous orgy of tipping until finally we left the Prunes Palace with Captain Kidd gloating over the pieces of eight which Hep had given him and singing to himself, "Oh, ho—a bottle of rum on a dead man's chest!"

Hep insisted upon taking us home in a taxi so that he could tip the starter and the chauffeur.

We stopped in the drug store at our home corner to mail some letters and even there Hep found a weighing machine and tipped the scales.

There are ginks like Hep in every Big Town, going through the night like a cyclone through the sub-treasury, scattering pocket money right and left like so much chaff simply because they want to be looked upon as High Class Sports.

And it's hard to follow their act. It's rough sledding for the Sensible Lads who are willing to pay for services rendered but balk at the myriad of outstretched paws which line the Pathways of Enjoyment.

I was talking to Miff Patterson about it. Miff invented a machine for removing sunburn from pickles and made a fortune.

He has it yet, all except two cents he paid for a postage stamp which stuck to his pocketbook some nine years ago. But he has the pocketbook and he still can look at the stamp and consider it an asset.

Miff is such a stingy loosener he looks at you with one eye so as not to waste the other.

The boys call him "Putty" because he's the next thing to a pain.

If you ask him what time it is he takes off four minutes as his commission for telling you.

"Tipping!" said Miff; "what do you mean tipping?"

"To give a bit of coin to a waiter or those who do you a service," I explained.

"Oh!" said Miff. "I've heard about it, but I don't do it. I don't know any waiter well enough to give him money to take home to his wife. She might meet me afterwards and thank me for it and my wife might hear about it—that's risky work."

"But you can't get good service in the restaurants or hotels unless you do a bit of tipping. How do you manage it?" I inquired.

"Easy," Miff answered. "I never go to the same hotel twice. I begin at the head of the list and go to them all. By the time I get around to the first one again all the old waiters have grown rich and have gone back to Bulgaria, so I'm safe—that's my system."

Maybe Hep is right, and maybe Miff is right. For my part I believe in moderation, betwixt and between.

What do you think?

It is easier to criticize the best thing superbly than to do the smallest thing indifferently.

BEST IN NECKWEAR

LATEST ACCESSORIES UPON WHICH COSTUME DEPENDS.

Collar and Face for Which It Is Chosen Must Be Harmonious for Perfect Effect—Two Dainty Neckwear Suggestions.

Skill in selecting accessories is often the major asset of a woman who ranks as the best-dressed individual in her own set.

Gloves, shoes, hat and neck dressing must be thought out carefully and the question of furs is one that comes up for consideration. The summer fur vogue is stronger than it was a year ago, when it first received general American recognition.

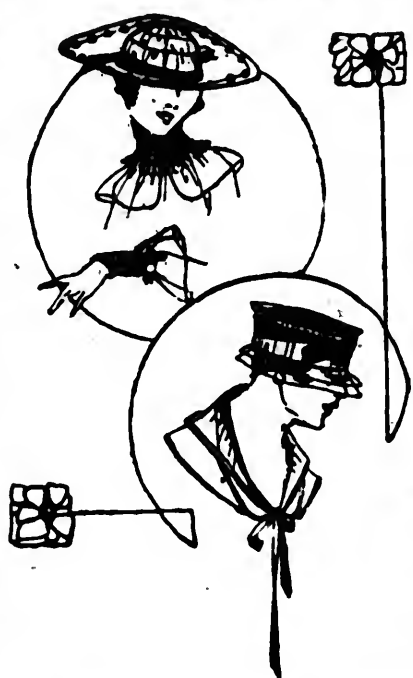

Last year natural animal scarfs pretty well dominated the summer fur showing; but this season innumerable smart novelties are displayed. Stole scarfs lined with thin satin or chiffon, little three-cornered wraps of flat fur, collarettes and all sorts of clever little capes are shown.

In regard to summer neckwear, it must be noted that many periods contribute, and a collar taken from the era of Henry II, Byron, Oliver Cromwell or Victoria may be equally smart, provided the collar and the face for which it is chosen as a framing blend harmoniously. Cape and fichu effects are extremely good and sailor, cavalier and Eton shapes are also favored. Some tailored collars of pique or linen have organdie cape collar, capes of net, batiste, etc., are thought highly of and are worn with frocks of silk, velvet and other sheer summer fabrics. Cromwell collars or organdie daintily embroidered are youthful and smart.

Fichu collars show best when made of some very soft, thin fabric, such as georgette crepe, crepe de chine, mousseline de sole or chiffon, and collars suggesting the Henry II period are made of thin material and are boned to keep them erect and in shape.

The question of collars and many other accessories of dress is limited only by the inclination of the individual to set brain and fingers to work on the development of novelties, for actual cost enters in a very small degree into the matter. Odds and ends of lace or other leftover dress trimming or fabrics may with excellent results be pressed into service.

Dainty Accessories That May Be Made at Home.

Two suggestions are offered in the sketch shown herewith. The upper picture gives a collar and cuff set, employing black satin and white organdie, with small white pearl buttons as the finishing touch, and the lower sketch shows a simple round collar of rose-colored georgette crepe, caught with a bow of French blue velvet ribbon.

The question of veils is also an important one when selecting the summer accessories of dress. Many net and lace veils as well as the more serviceable chiffon ones, are fashionable, and there is a considerable color range to choose from. The wise woman will try the effect of the different colors on her own complexion before choosing.

Bright Silver and Tulle.

What in the world did fashion do before someone thought of silver ribbon and tissue for gaslight wear? An enchanting dance frock just completed is made of white tulle and silver ribbons—nothing else, if one excepts a simple foundation slip of silver tissue which gleams delicately through the floating skirt of tulle. There are in fact three skirts of tulle, and on the second one is a wide silver ribbon, set at the knee. The grille is of similar silver ribbon run across the chiffon underbodices, below the drapery of tulle. At the front of the skirt, about eight inches below the waistline, is set a tab of silver ribbon fastened to the tulle with rosettes of narrower silver ribbon, and from the grille depend four tabs of ribbon likewise trimmed with silvery rosettes.

To Press a Plaited Skirt.

When pressing a plaited skirt, after you have laid the skirt on the ironing board fold the plaits evenly and pin them to the ironing board at the bottom. Hold the waistband firmly with the left hand, and iron from the bottom toward the top. Hold the plait tightly as you iron it.

CHARMING EVENING GOWN

A very dainty and charming evening gown is this one of white tulle. Its simplicity adds a tone of richness and "quality" to it which ornamentation would fail to do. The skirt falls in simple lines in the front but is draped just a trifle in the back. The waist is extremely decollete with a semi-blouse effect.

SHE HAD THE BARGAIN BUG

Mrs. Winniger Knew Just Exactly Where and How to Get What Father Wanted.

Mrs. Gangway Winniger, the bargain fiend, who had married G. Winniger because it was such a reasonable way of getting a big house in the city, answered a ring at her electric doorbell, installed only last week at a special bargain rate.

"Why, father?" exclaimed Mrs. Winniger. "When did you leave Doopsburg?"

"I took the 11:00 to town," replied Constable Wings of Doopsburg. "I been lectured sheriff, and the Morning Buzz wants my picture. I want a swell picture took by the swellst photographer in town. Sompin' that want make me look natural."

"O, father, I tell you!" cried his daughter. "Go around to any one of the Beezer-Wiggles grocery stores and buy three pounds of tea, and they'll give you an order to have your picture taken, free!"

"But don't I tell you I want the swellst?"

"Well, Abe Smith has opened up a little photograph studio, and this week he's giving pictures away for nothing providing you buy the frame from him. The frame only costs $18.40, and just think—"

"But, consarn it, datter—"

"I know, father. I know where there's a perfectly elegant second-hand portrait in oils, all finished, for only $8.94. I can get the man to paint in a bald spot and paint out the side whiskers and it will look just like you."

And Constable Wings clasped a hand to his dizzy brow.—Detroit Free Press.

Pa's Opinion.

"Pa," asked little Sammy Twobble, "what is a misnomer?"

For Grease Spots.

Balls made of fuller's earth and vinegar are good to keep on hand for removing grease spots from clothing and household material. Make a stiff paste of the fuller's earth and vinegar. Roll it into balls, and dry them. When a spot is to be removed dampen it and grate one of the balls over it. Leave this until it is dry, brush off the powder, and wash the mark with tepid water.

"Nests" of Fish.

Two nests of the African lung fish described by Sir F. J. Jackson, were in a patch of coarse grass and were of circular form, about three feet across and 18 inches deep. A singular outer ring, five inches wide and an inch above water-level, seemed to have been built up with mud brought up in the fishes' mouths, and beaten down with their flat, slim tails.

Worth While Quotation.

Hep doesn't know it, but while he's spilling that Schenectady French all over the tablecloth the waiter is getting a stone bruise on his palate from holding back his Parisian laughter.

Hep would wrinkle his map with anger if he heard me, but I've been present when he has blurted out some of his French idioms with the puffed accent, and it's a scream, I notify you!

On one memorable occasion he ordered lamb chops and a baked potato. "Out, di'vinal!" and brought him a bowl of vegetable soup and the morning paper.

Then Murad Pasha, clutching his share of the plunder, with many bows and obeisances, faded out of our lives and Giovanni Handandfetel, the omnibus, began to splash water into our glasses.

Hep got rid of Giovanni by staking him to enough money to enable his little brother Angelo to get through college, and thereafter for a period of ten or fifteen minutes Hep was permitted to breathe quietly through his nose, and his pocketbook enjoyed a much needed rest.

Soon, however, another coughing fit came on and his struggles for breath were pitiful.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES DO NOT ASK WAGE INCREASE

Ask for Adoption of Plan Which Will Decrease Income of Many Employees.

DO NOT WANT TO WORK FROM 12 TO 18 HOURS

The railway managers are flooding the country with publicity regarding the "increase in wages" that is being demanded by the members of the four railway brotherhoods who are engaged in actual handling of trains. It seems the railroad managers cannot make an honest presentation of this issue any more than they can of the rate question, the question of their valuation, or their inside financing.

The railway employees are not asking for an advance of wages. In fact they are asking for the adoption of a plan that will decrease the income of many of them. They are asking for an eight-hour day, instead of being compelled to stay out on the road from 12 to 16 hours.

Their argument in favor of this change is reasonable. They say that passenger trainmen and fast freight trainmen would not be materially affected by such a rule, as few of them are now on the road more than eight hours. The men who would be affected are the trainmen who handle "dead" freight trains. These men are on the road usually the limit permitted by the federal laws—16 hours—and often longer than that before they get back to their homes. Their expenses on the road must come out of their own wages.

The greatest evil, however, is the physical and mental effect upon men working that length of time. It needs no argument to prove that after eight or 10 hours' continuous strain, one's physical and mental activities get sluggish. It is during these periods, say trainmen, that wrecks most frequently occur; and then the railroad managements blame it on to the "carelessness" of the railroad employees.

Even the traveler in the Pullman gets tired after a 10-mile ride during the day. But the man in the engine cab must keep fresh; he must keep his mental activities keen for he must see every signal, keep in mind every order, and when he enters a railroad yard must know just what every one of all the way from 50 to 300 switch, signal and block lights mean, and if they are as they should be to guarantee him a clear track. Yet eye fatigue is one of the first symptoms and results of long hours of work, and mental dullness comes a close second. "Safety first" for the traveling public demands that men on railroads be not overworked.

There is yet another side—one which affects the commercial side of railroading. Why are some freight trains handled with such speed that men who handle them are not on their runs over eight hours, while other freight trains hauled with the same class of motive power and over the same right-of-way, are 14 to 20 hours clearing one division? Why is a carload of fruit from 60 to 72 hours coming from New Orleans to Sioux City, while a carload of other freight is three to four weeks?

Trainmen say the railroads so overload "dead" freight trains that they cannot make their time. This is done in order to increase the railroad's profit. This is why the trainmen who handle these trains must "lay out" on sidings and at way stations, and be on their run 14 to 16 hours.

Trainmen also offer the hint to the shipper that if the eight hour law goes into effect, it will solve the freight car famine to a great extent. Railroads will then speed up their freight schedule, in order to avoid overtime wages, and freight cars will be rushed to their destination and unloaded instead of ding-donging along on the road for weeks.—Sioux City, Iowa, Tribune.

A MODEL RESTAURANT

The attention of readers of The Labor News is called to the advertisement of the May Restaurant, located in the Lincoln Hotel building, Rochester, which appears in another part of today's issue. This restaurant was opened up on June 27, by Harry May, who formerly conducted the May restaurant on New York avenue. The new restaurant is by far the most modern in the Beaver Valley. The cooking is excellent and the service beyond criticism.

Harry May, the proprietor, was a member of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union for 18 years, having held his card steadily all of that time. During that time he worked for the Rochester Tumbler Co., the H. C. Fry Glass Co., the Syndicate Glass Co., of Morgantown, W. Va., and the Coropolis Consolidated Lamp Co.

Owing to the fact that it is almost impossible to get help in the restaurant, Mr. May has been compelled to curtail the amount of home cooking done, but within a short time he expects to have all cooking on the home order and to have the best service obtainable.

AUSTRIAN HELD ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Upon information filed by Frank Nickovich, an Austrian of Midland, Brozaro Zeno, another foreigner, was placed under arrest by Constable David Hayvise, Monday evening. Zeno is being held in the town jail pending a hearing before Justice McNeill, on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

According to officials, Nickovich was riding a bicycle down Midland avenue, about five o'clock, Monday evening, when Zeno opened fire upon him with a revolver, firing two shots. The bicycle rider fell from his wheel and Zeno thinking he had shot the man turned and fled. Several bystanders who witnessed the affair, gave chase, and with the aid of the Midland officers, caught the gun totter several blocks away. He had thrown the gun away, but in his clothing was found a large dagger.

No direct motive for the act can be ascertained by the officials.

WM. DEWEY KILLED

While unloading ice from a refrigerator car in the railroad freight yards at Midland, William Dewey, aged 42 years, a laborer in the employ of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Co. was fatally injured about 11 o'clock, Saturday morning, when he fell beneath the wheels of a C. & P. freight train. The unfortunate victim was picked up and rushed to the East Liverpool hospital, but he died before they reached the State line. Dewey, it is claimed, was standing on the ground outside the refrigerator car, and failed to notice the approach of the freight train. He stepped directly in the path of the passing locomotive, his head being crushed, one arm severed and his right leg fractured.

The deceased moved to Midland about one year ago. He is survived by a blind widow and several children. Funeral services were held at his home, Fourth street, Monday, and interment was in Beaver cemetery.

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE LABOR NEWS DENIED ADMISSION TO CONWAY YARDS

P. R. R. OFFICIALS GIVE LABOR NEWS BIG BOOST

General Yardmaster Dugan Refuses to Allow Distribution of the Labor News in Conway Yards, Saturday.

It is generally conceded that the actions of the local "Art" officials at Conway Yards gave the Beaver Valley Labor News the greatest boost of the season last Saturday, when Acting Yardmaster John Dugan, evicted George A. Howe from the yard, because he was distributing copies of The Labor News among the employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

On Saturday afternoon, August 5th, Mr. Howe, with two hundred copies of The Labor News, arrived at Conway Yards with the intention of distributing the papers and getting new subscribers. He was met by acting General Yardmaster John Dugan, who said: "George, we can't stand for your bringing those papers in the yard." "Why, what is the objection?" asked Mr. Howe. "Because it is a labor paper," answered Mr. Dugan; whereupon Mr. Howe said: "Well, if that is the case, I won't go any further," and retired from the yard.

We are satisfied that Mr. Dugan was only acting under instructions, and, therefore, hold no malice against him. Really, we hold no malice towards anybody, for the action of the "Art" official who gave out the instructions to stop The Labor News from coming into the yard did more good for the paper than his narrow chance of a doubt that The Labor News is a workingman's paper, and, therefore, deserves his support.

Some people cannot see, or else they have an ambition to do something that the world knows they have not the ability to accomplish. Just imagine a man who rose to the position of an "Art" official of a railroad, thinking that he could stop his employees from reading a particular paper. His ignorance was the cause of us adding 20 new subscribers to the list of the fast-growing Labor News, and the chances look good for ten times that amount by next pay day.

Here is the secret. After being evicted Howe brought the papers back to Rochester to await the evening relief train, where the new subscribers were enrolled for a year's subscription, and each pledged himself to get as many more subscribers as possible, after hearing that the company had objected to the paper being brought into the yard. It there a mind so dense that it cannot see that each and every paper that was objected to went right to the spot where it was intended to go, except with a greater force?

Joseph Nannah, the local news dealer of Freedom, goes through the yard each day in the week with other papers, and there never was any objections to him, and he has been doing it for years, and what is the answer? The answer is that The Labor News is looking after the workers' interest and that is the objection the Company has to your reading it. Now it is up to the Brotherhoods to do their part in assisting the paper, and the best way on earth to help it is, if you are not already a subscriber, subscribe at once. If you are a subscriber, assist in getting others, it only costs one dollar a year and it worth every cent of that amount.

The Labor News is your paper. Why not give it the support that it is justly entitled to for what it has done and what is left to be done? Don't forget that there will be some important legislative matters at this coming session, and the best way to prepare for such things is to build up a strong press.

The subscription list to The Labor News is growing rapidly, and it is our intention to put the list close to 2000 by Labor Day. We can do it with a little assistance from you. Will you give it?

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL CONVENES

Considerable Routine Business Transacted and Favorable Reports From Delegates Are Received.

A meeting of the Building Trades Council was held on Thursday evening in the rooms of the organization in the Kramer Block, New Brighton. The attendance was good and a number of matters were taken up. Conditions in Ambridge, Woodlawn and Midland were discussed at length and the work of Wallace & Carley, Sharon contractors, on the Woodlawn School was discussed. A resolution was adopted, and action was ordered taken through the International bodies.

Delegates to the Council brought encouraging reports of the condition of business in their respective crafts, all trades reported to be booming.

A new by-laws committee, consisting of A. T. Jones, W. H. Dithridge and Elmer Shipman, was appointed, the former committee being discharged for failure to act.

An audit of the books was requested by Financial Secretary Dithridge, the trustees being ordered to make the same.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION MET MONDAY NIGHT

Transact Routine Business and Listen to Reports of Delegates as to General Conditions.

A regular meeting of the Central Labor Union was held on Monday evening in the Eagles' Hall, New Brighton. There was a large attendance and various matters were discussed. The matter of the complaint of the members of Federal Union No. 14994, composed of former employees of the Townsend Company, who stated at their last meeting that their Union was not receiving the support to which it was entitled from the other Unions in the valley, in their fight to secure an advance in wages at the plant, was taken up and discussed at length.

Mark Ford, secretary of the Federal Union, was seated as a delegate, and the committee on a program for Labor Day arranged to get together on Thursday evening and fix up details connected with the celebration at Junction Park, September 4th.

CONWAY YARDMASTERS MEET

The yardmasters of Conway held a secret session this morning in the local yard office, which was brought to an abrupt close when a freight train was wrecked on No. 2 track just east of the Junction Park. While the nature of the meeting was not learned, it is generally understood that there was nothing of any great importance transpiring, as meetings of this kind have been held for a number of years, and no improvements have been made.

NEW BILLET MILL

Within the next sixty days the new 28-inch billet mill at the plant of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company, at Midland, will be in operation. Work on the construction of the new department is being rushed as rapidly as possible. The entire plant is now being operated at capacity.

Remain Loyal to Your Organization

The action of the Switchmen's Union of North America in accepting arbitration the day before the crisis of the four great Railroad Brotherhoods was reached, forced the "Big Four" to follow another line of procedure.

In accepting mediation, the "Big Four" in no way weakened its chances for an eight hour day. In mediating their differences, it only goes to show the good intentions of the Brotherhoods to try to reach a settlement without putting the public to any inconvenience.

Through mediation, the eight hour day and time and one-half for overtime may be granted, but in the event that a settlement cannot be reached, then the "Big Four" is still in a position to strike. This may be the way to let the managers' commission down easy, because Garretson, Stone, Carter and Lee have the very stamp of determination on their forehead which spells success, and The Labor News is satisfied that they mean business.

Remain loyal to your organization. Refrain from passing judgment until it is time to condemn. Remember, it is your company's hands you are playing into when you cast one word of condemnation against your officers.

The Labor News has been with you all through your fight, because we know your demands are just and reasonable; it is our intention to remain loyal to the finish, and we know it is your duty to do the same. When the smoke clears away, the EIGHT HOUR DAY WITH TIME AND ONE-HALF FOR OVERTIME will stand out to all railroad men, clear and clean.

If you are a company man, knock while the knocking's good. If you are a Brotherhood man, boost, and your loyalty will be greatly appreciated. Don't forget that every dog can growl. Grin and bear with us for a few days, and if there is just cause for complaint when a settlement is reached, again The Labor News will be with you. Remember, Letter."

DETAILS OF LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Committee Met Thursday Evening and Plans for Big Celebration Are Now Under Way

The committee on details of the big Labor Day celebration to be held at Junction Park, September 4th, is rapidly perfecting plans for what the members anticipate will be the biggest celebration ever held in the Beaver Valley by any organization. The committee, consisting of Messrs. R. F. Kross, McKenna, Molter, Byers and Huff, met at the former's home in Beaver Falls Thursday evening and outlined a program of events for the entertainment of those who are certain to attend in case the weather is propitious. This program, which appears below, will be added to in the near future. Scores of business firms throughout the valley have signified their willingness to donate prizes to be awarded the victors in the various contests, a full list of the prizes and names of the donors appearing in a later issue of The Labor News. There will be band music all day; Manager Shetterly has arranged for some feature attractions in the line of now shows; good speakers will be heard and the day promises to be unusually enjoyable from every standpoint.

The amusement program, with several additions to be made later, is as follows:

TROUBLE AT MONACA

The men working in the melting shop at the Colonial Steel Co., Colona, are having trouble. It is said these men are worked from 12 to 14 hours a day, at very low wages, and when they asked for an increase in pay and were refused, they walked out. The difference has not been settled.

Large crowds attended the performance of "Officer 999," put on at the Dreamland Theatre by the Columbia Stock Company, the show giving complete satisfaction. The dance in the evening was an unusually pleasant occasion, being largely attended.

FEDERAL UNION NO. 14994 IN SESSION

Decides to Hold Out Until Victory Is Won in Townsend Company Strike.

The question of the settlement of the Townsend strike was taken up at a regular meeting of Federal Union No. 14994, held Thursday evening in the rooms of the organization in the Kramer block, New Brighton. Some of the members present advocated the proposition that as a number of men those who would not return until the strike was settled to return to work. A majority of the members, however, vetoed this idea, stating that they were ready to go back to the plant at such a time as the Townsend Company would make an offer which they considered just and reasonable. When that time comes, if it does come, the majority are ready to guarantee Mr. Townsend a quick settlement of the matter. Up to the present time, it was stated, the company had not offered anything in addition to the first offer made, which, the strikers claim, is not acceptable.

Business Agent S. S. Bowser, of the Building Trades Council, was present and gave the men some good advice along the lines of what to do and how to do it in the affair, telling the men he would not advise settling the strike until such a time as the Townsend Company made an offer which might prove acceptable. Officers of the Federal Union stated to The Labor News representative that they desired to thank Mr. Bowser for his kindness in appearing before the men and for the good advice offered, and also to express to the unions generally throughout the valley their appreciation of the aid they have tendered the Federal Labor Union in their fight to gain a victory in the present strike. The officers further stated that the members proposed to stick until they have won.

Huge Strike of 400,000 Employees Covering 225 Railroads Is Temporarily Averted.

MEDIATORS ARE NOW HEARING THE CASE

The threatened strike of the 400,000 railway employees of the United States has been seemingly averted, temporarily at least, when the railroad brotherhoods accepted a proffer of the United States board of mediation and conciliation to mediate their differences with the railroads.

If the board fails to adjust the controversy between the railroads and their employees, President Wilson will be asked to use his personal influence to avert a general strike.

This statement was made today by a representative of the railroad managers who have been negotiating with the men since June 1, for a peaceful settlement.

The appeal to the president would be the last resort and would be taken only to save the nation from the trade paralysis that would follow a strike of the magnitude planned by the railroad men.

Mediators Start Late Wednesday night efforts of the federal mediators to bring the contending factions together were well under way. Six hours after the railroad managers had served notice on the men that they would not withdraw their demand for a settlement.

What was discussed at the conference could not be divulged by any of those attending it, under mediation rules, but it was understood that the railroad representatives outlined their position in full and indicated how far they were willing to go in meeting the demands of the men.

The railroad managers, in presenting their case to the mediators, were assisted by three experts on rates and wages, J. W. Higgins, former secretary of the Association of Western Railroads; G. G. Walber, secretary of the bureau of information of the eastern railroads, and Charles P. Neill, manager of the bureau of information of the southeastern railroads. Thursday it was announced by G. W. D. Hanger, a member of the board, the mediators would hear the railroad employees' side of the case. Then the board will hold alternate conferences with the opposing forces, Mr. Hanger said.

When a basis for an understanding has been reached the railroads and men will be separately asked if they desire to place their case in the hands of the board for final adjudication. If the answer is in the affirmative, the contending forces will have to abide by the decision of the board.

Upon information filed by Frank Nickovich, an Austrian of Midland, Brozaro Zeno, another foreigner, was placed under arrest by Constable David Hayvice, Monday evening. Zeno is being held in the town jail pending a hearing before Justice McNeill, on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

According to officials, Nickovich was riding a bicycle down Midland avenue, about five o'clock, Monday evening, when Zeno opened fire upon him with a revolver, firing two shots. The bicycle rider fell from his wheel and Zeno thinking he had shot the man turned and fled. Several bystanders who witnessed the affair, gave chase, and with the aid of the Midland officers, caught the gun toter several blocks away. He had thrown the gun away, but in his clothing was found a large dagger.

No direct motive for the act can be ascertained by the officials.

The unfortunate victim was picked up and rushed to the East Liverpool hospital, but he died before they reached the State line. Dewey, it is claimed, was standing on the ground outside the refrigerator car, and failed to notice the approach of the freight train. He stepped directly in the path of the passing locomotive, his head being crushed, one arm severed and his right leg fractured.

The deceased moved to Midland about one year ago. He is survived by a blind widow and several children. Funeral services were held at his home, Fourth street, Monday, and interment was in Beaver cemetery.

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE LABOR NEWS DENIED ADMISSION TO CONWAY YARDS

P. R. R. OFFICIALS GIVE LABOR NEWS BIG BOOST

General Yardmaster Dugan Refuses to Allow Distribution of the Labor News in Conway Yards, Saturday.

It is generally conceded that the actions of the local "Art" officials at Conway Yards gave the Beaver Valley Labor News the greatest boost of the season last Saturday, when Acting Yardmaster John Dugan, evicted George A. Howe from the yard, because he was distributing copies of The Labor News among the employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

On Saturday afternoon, August 5th, Mr. Howe, with two hundred copies of The Labor News, arrived at Conway Yards with the intention of distributing the papers and getting new subscribers. He was met by acting General Yardmaster John Dugan, who said: "George, we can't stand for your bringing those papers in the yard." "Why, what is the objection?" asked Mr. Howe. "Because it is a labor paper," answered Mr. Dugan; whereupon Mr. Howe said: "Well, if that is the case, I won't go any further," and retired from the yard.

We are satisfied that Mr. Dugan was only acting under instructions, and, therefore, hold no malice against him. Really, we hold no malice towards anybody, for the action of the "Art" official who gave out the instructions to stop The Labor News from coming into the yard did more good for the paper than his narrow chance of a doubt that The Labor News is a workingman's paper, and, therefore, deserves his support.

Some people cannot see, or else they have an ambition to do something that the world knows they have not the ability to accomplish. Just imagine a man who rose to the position of an "Art" official of a railroad, thinking that he could stop his employes from reading a particular paper. His ignorance was the cause of us adding 20 new subscribers to the list of the fast-growing Labor News, and the chances look good for ten times that amount by next pay day.

Here is the secret. After being evicted Howe brought the papers back to Rochester to await the evening relief train, where the new subscribers were enrolled for a year's subscription, and each pledged himself to get as many more subscribers as possible, after hearing that the company had objected to the paper being brought into the yard. It there a mind so dense that it cannot see that each and every paper that was objected to went right to the spot where it was intended to go, except, with a greater force?

Joseph Nannah, the local news dealer of Freedom, goes through the yard each day in the week with other papers, and there never was any objections to him, and he has been doing it for years, and what is the answer? The answer is that The Labor News is looking after the workers' interest, and that is the objection the Company has to your reading it. Now it is up to the Brotherhoods to do their part in assisting the paper, and the best way on earth to help it is, if you are not already a subscriber, subscribe at once. If you are a subscriber, assist in getting others, it only costs one dollar a year and it worth every cent of that amount.

The Labor News is your paper. Why not give it the support that it is justly entitled to for what it has done and what is left to be done? Don't forget that there will be some important legislative matters at this coming session, and the best way to prepare for such things is to build up a strong press.

The subscription list to The Labor News is growing rapidly, and it is our intention to put the list close to 2000 by Labor Day. We can do it with a little assistance from you. Will you give it?

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL CONVENES

Considerable Routine Business Transacted and Favorable Reports From Delegates Are Received.

A meeting of the Building Trades Council was held on Thursday evening in the rooms of the organization in the Kramer Block, New Brighton. The attendance was good and a number of matters were taken up. Conditions in Ambridge, Woodlawn and Midland were discussed at length and the work of Wallace & Carley, Sharon contractors, on the Woodlawn School discussion, and action was ordered taken through the International bodies. Delegates to the Council brought encouraging reports of the condition of business in their respective crafts, all trades reported to be booming.

A new by-laws committee, consisting of A. T. Jones, W. H. Dithridge and Elmer Shipman, was appointed, the former committee being discharged for failure to act.

An audit of the books was requested by Financial Secretary Dithridge, the trustees being ordered to make the same.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION MET MONDAY NIGHT

Transact Routine Business and Listen to Reports of Delegates as to General Conditions.

A regular meeting of the Central Labor Union was held on Monday evening in the Eagles' Hall, New Brighton. There was a large attendance and various matters were discussed. The matter of the complaint of the members of Federal Union No. 14994, composed of former employes of the Townsend Company, who stated at their last meeting that their Union was not receiving the support to which it was entitled from the other Unions in the valley, in their fight to secure an advance in wages at the plant, was taken up and discussed at length.

Mark Ford, secretary of the Federal Union, was seated as a delegate, and the committee on a program for Labor Day arranged to get together on Thursday evening and fix up details connected with the celebration at Junction Park, September 4th.

CONWAY YARDMASTERS MEET

The yardmasters of Conway held a secret session this morning in the local yard office, which was brought to an abrupt close when a freight train was wrecked on No. 2 track just east of the Junction Park. While the nature of the meeting was not learned, it is generally understood that there was nothing of any great importance transpiring, as meetings of this kind have been held for a number of years, and no improvements have been made.

NEW BILLET MILL

Within the next sixty days the new 28-inch billet mill at the plant of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company, at Midland, will be in operation. Work on the construction of the new department is being rushed as rapidly as possible. The entire plant is now being operated at capacity.

Remain Loyal to Your Organization

The action of the Switchmen's Union of North America in accepting arbitration the day before the crisis of the four great Railroad Brotherhoods was reached, forced the "Big Four" to follow another line of procedure.

In accepting mediation, the "Big Four" in no way weakened its chances for an eight hour day. In mediating their differences, it only goes to show the good intentions of the Brotherhoods to try to reach a settlement without putting the public to any inconvenience.

Through mediation, the eight hour day and time and one-half for overtime may be granted, but in the event that a settlement cannot be reached, then the "Big Four" is still in a position to strike. This may be the way to let the managers' commission down easy, because Garretson, Stone, Carter and Lee have the very stamp of determination on their forehead which spells success, and The Labor News is satisfied that they mean business.

Remain loyal to your organization. Refrain from passing judgment until it is time to condemn. Remember, it is your company's hands you are playing into when you cast one word of condemnation against your officers.

The Labor News has been with you all through your fight, because we know your demands are just and reasonable; it is our intention to remain loyal to the finish, and we know it is your duty to do the same. When the smoke clears away, the EIGHT HOUR DAY WITH TIME AND ONE-HALF FOR OVERTIME will stand out to all railroad men, clear and clean.

If you are a company man, knock while the knocking's good. If you are a Brotherhood man, boost, and your loyalty will be greatly appreciated. Don't forget that every dog can growl. Grin and bear with us for a few days, and if there is just cause for complaint when a settlement is reached, again The Labor News will be with you. "Remember."

DETAILS OF LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Committee Met Thursday Evening and Plans for Big Celebration Are Now Under Way

The committee on details of the big Labor Day celebration to be held at Junction Park, September 4th, is rapidly perfecting plans for what the members anticipate will be the biggest celebration ever held in the Beaver Valley by any organization. The committee, consisting of Messrs. R. F. Kross, McKenna, Molter, Byers and Huff, met at the former's home in Beaver Falls Thursday evening and outlined a program of events for the entertainment of those who are certain to attend in case the weather is propitious. This program, which appears below, will be added to in the near future. Scores of business firms throughout the valley have signified their willingness to donate prizes to be awarded the victors in the various contests, a full list of the prizes and names of the donors appearing in a later issue of The Labor News. There will be band music all day; Manager Shetterly has arranged for some feature attractions in the line of new shows; good speakers will be heard and the day promises to be unusually enjoyable from every standpoint.

FEDERAL UNION NO. 14994 IN SESSION

Decides to Hold Out Until Victory Is Won in Townsend Company Strike.

The question of the settlement of the Townsend strike was taken up at a regular meeting of Federal Union No. 14994, held Thursday evening in the rooms of the organization in the Kramer Block, New Brighton. Some of the members present advocated the proposition that as a number of men better to call the same on and allow those who would not return until the strike was settled to return to work.

A majority of the members, however, vetoed this idea, stating that they were ready to go back to the plant at such a time as the Townsend Company would make an offer which they considered just and reasonable. When that time comes, if it does come, the majority are ready to guarantee Mr. Townsend a quick settlement of the matter. Up to the present time, it was stated, the company had not offered anything in addition to the first offer made, which, the strikers claim, is not acceptable.

Business Agent S. S. Bowser, of the Building Trades Council, was present and gave the men some good advice along the lines of what to do and how to do it in the affair, telling the men he would not advise settling the strike until such a time as the Townsend Company made an offer which might prove acceptable. Officers of the Federal Union stated to The Labor News representative that they desired to thank Mr. Bowser for his kindness in appearing before the men and for the good advice offered, and also to express to the unions generally throughout the valley their appreciation of the aid they have rendered the Federal Labor Union in their fight to gain a victory in the present strike. The officers further stated that the members proposed to stick until they have won.

Huge Strike of 400,000 Employees Covering 225 Railroads Is Temporarily Averted.

MEDIATORS ARE NOW HEARING THE CASE

The threatened strike of the 400,000 railway employees of the United States has been seemingly averted, temporarily at least, when the railroad brotherhoods accepted a proffer of the United States board of mediation and conciliation to mediate their differences with the railroads.

If the board fails to adjust the controversy between the railroads and their employes, President Wilson will be asked to use his personal influence to avert a general strike.

This statement was made today by a representative of the railroad managers who have been negotiating with the men since June 1, for a peaceful settlement.

The appeal to the president would be the last resort and would be taken only to save the nation from the trade paralysis that would follow a strike of the magnitude planned by the railroad men.

Mediators Start Work

Late Wednesday night efforts of the federal mediators to bring the contending factions together were well under way. Six hours after the railroad managers had served notice on the men that they would not withdraw their demand for a general strike, the managers were closeted in secret session.

What was discussed at the conference could not be divulged by any of those attending it, under mediation rules, but it was understood that the railroad representatives outlined their position in full and indicated how far they were willing to go in meeting the demands of the men.

The railroad managers, in presenting their case to the mediators, were assisted by three experts on rates and wages, J. W. Higgins, former secretary of the Association of Western Railroads; G. G. Walber, secretary of the bureau of information of the eastern railways, and Charles P. Neill, manager of the bureau of information of the southeastern railways. Thursday it was announced by G. W. D. Hanger, a member of the board, the mediators would hear the railroad employees' side of the case. Then the board will hold alternate conferences with the opposing forces, Mr. Hanger said.

When a basis for an understanding has been reached the railroads and men will be separately asked if they desire to place their case in the hands of the board for final adjudication. If the answer is in the affirmative, the contending forces will have to abide by the decision of the board.

Section 6. The Secretary of the Town Council and all other municipal officers are authorized and directed to do all other acts and things which may be necessary for the lawful holding of said election as provided by law.

Items Concerning Affairs of the McKees Rocks Local That Will Interest You.

Ed. Reed, clerk in the general yard office, left last week on his vacation. He will proceed to bask in the sunshine alone the Great Lakes.

David Irwin, a popular employee of the shops, left Monday on his vacation. He will be absent two weeks or more. We "know" Dave will have a good time.

Conductor James Farrell, who has been confined to the South Side hospital suffering from rheumatism, is able to leave that institution, but is still confined to his home.

The P. & L. E. is having trouble getting enough men in all departments. Probably a little more money and a few improved conditions would help some. It would not be surprising to see the clerks organize here before long.

Conductors P. W. Duffy and C. V. Cooney, who have been in the South Side Hospital, suffering from crushed feet, are improving. Duffy has so far recovered to be removed to his home, and Cooney expects to be able to leave the institution shortly.

Members of the B. of R. T. are forming a social club here, for the purpose of holding dances during the coming season. This club's doings will be separate from the lodge's affairs of this kind, being handled by members of the lodge only.

Brothers, don't forget the big get-together meeting at the Monongahela House, Pittsburgh, August 15th. We want to see you there. Let's get acquainted at this time. After you have digested the news in this paper, hand it to your neighbor and solicit his personal and subscription.

Joseph H. Lockhart, a member of Lodge 321, B. of R. T., died at the Ohio Valley Hospital, Wednesday, August 2nd, from the effects of injuries received some time ago. It was supposed that he had recovered and he had returned to work; but five weeks ago he was again taken ill, his death resulting. Brother Lockhart was well liked among his fellow workmen, and they in turn extend their heartfelt sympathies to the widow and children in their bereavement.

The members of the Brotherhoods in this town are incensed at the action of one of the local papers for refusing to publish an article which was submitted to print by the Brotherhood. The article was a statement of the railroad company. Already several items that would have benefited the paper financially have been taken elsewhere, and several have stopped their subscriptions, while still others declare that when their present subscription runs out it will stay out. If the railroad company's good will is desired more than that of the people of the town, it is time for those people to let the paper alone. Help those that help us.

Thanks, Brother Railroaders, for the bunch of subscriptions received this week. May we look for more?—Mgr.

MAMMOTH EXHIBIT IS PROMISED AT ERIE

Tremendous interest is being taken in all this great section of Pennsylvania and throughout Eastern Ohio and Western New York in the forthcoming Erie Exposition to be held during the week of Sept. 18-23. Erie is reached by the New York Central Lines, the Nickel Plate, Bessemer, Erie & Pittsburgh and the Philadelphia & Erie branch of the Pennsylvania Lines, to say nothing of its being the radiating point for a number of important trolley feeders, and inasmuch as all have promised especially reduced fares for Exposition Week, a most welcome invasion of thousands of visitors is looked for.

Space is being taken up with a rapidly far exceeding even the most sanguine expectations. The exposition grounds include eighty-five acres but already it is apparent that every foot is going to be utilized by exhibits in permanent exposition buildings or under canvass, by race track, grand stand, speed barns, stock pens, shows and concessions of all kinds. It now seems certain that there will be overflow exhibits in all classes, this being particularly true of the agricultural, horticultural and stock raising. There is also to be a most amazing display of agricultural implements, labor-saving machinery for farm and home, gas engines, automobiles, etc.

The Erie Exposition is to be a night as well as a day show. Everything will be open and in full bloom in the evenings just as in daytime besides which there will be a wonderful fireworks display costing $1,000 a night, depicting "The War of the Nations," and night flights by DeLloyd Thompson, the famous aviator, whose machine will be illuminated against the dark canopy of the heavens. All shows and concessions will also be in full operation and the brilliant illumination of the grounds will probably lend an even greater glamour to the night than the day shows.

Erie is going to extend an official as well as civic welcome to all visitors during Exposition Week and the Exposition Officials and Board of Commerce, sponsor for the big show, will provide every possible convenience, comfort and pleasure. Turn your steps Erie Exposition-ward during the week of Sept. 18-23.—adv.

"Magnet Bill."

He doesn't look like a very important part of a big automobile organization, this stooped, grizzled man, but the president of a great motor car company says that "Magnet Bill" saves his salary a dozen times over every day he works. Rain or shine, summer or winter, "Magnet Bill" may be seen walking slowly about the automobile plant, his eyes on the ground. "Magnet Bill" gets his nickname from the fact that his tools consist solely of one tin bucket and a big steel magnet, strapped to the end of a shovel handle. It is his duty to save automobile tires by removing from the roadway every nail and bit of metal that might cause a puncture. Thousands of cars are run over the roadway to the testing place and it is figured that without the precaution taken by "Magnet Bill" the cost for cut and punctured tires would be $20,000 every year.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

"Say, young feller," said Broncho Bob, "have you got a gun on you?" "No, sir," replied the man with the brand-new cowboy uniform. "I was told that it was better to be unarmed, so as to avoid any impression that I was seeking a quarrel."

"Well, that's a big disappointment. I needed a brand-new gun and thought you'd be bringing along at least a pair of 'em. Don't you let anything like this occur again."

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart*John Henry On Vanity

SAY! have you ever noticed that the bug called Vanity can cook up more trouble for human beings than any germ that ever built its nest in a brain cell?

It's a subtle little disease, this fever we call Vanity. No man ever knows he has it but he can always recognize the symptoms in his neighbor.

Sometimes it breaks out in diamond rings on the fingers; sometimes it takes the form of ragtime clothing accompanied by rainbow neckties, and sometimes it drives a man into politics who should remain at his post as the chauffeur of a garbage wagon.

And then again there are occasions when it never shows in a man until after he is dead and his will reads, "I give and bequeath the sum of thirty thousand dollars for the purposes of scattering my ashes from the highest peak of the Himalaya mountains."

Help Hardy has it for keeps. Around at the club the other night I saw him drink seven Scotch highballs because somebody swelled him all up by telling him he never showed the effects of liquor.

Then he had to lean against the buildings all the way home.

Even friend wife isn't proof against the Vanity microbe.

Not long ago some fresh friend told her that she was getting stout and Peaches promptly fell for every obesity cure known to modern science.

During her calmer moments Peaches has the general appearance of a Fletcherizing canary bird, but when some amiable idiot told her that day by day she was growing to look more and more like a public building she uttered a few shrill screams and started after that obesity proposition with a tomahawk.

I tried to flag her and talk her out of it, but she waved me back and said she wasn't going through this world chaperoning a double chin.

So Peaches started in to put the sabots to the fatty tissues, and for a week our erstwhile peaceful home became two reels in the Movies entitled "A Rough Night at Sea."

When I reached home on the eve of the Battle of Embospoint I found Peaches strolling around the campus made up to look like a lady scarecrow. Her face was concealed behind a muslin mask, there was a feverish glitter in her eyes and in both hands she clutched a book which proclaimed itself "The Road to Beauty; or, How to Get Thin Without Calling in the Coroner."

As I breezed through the furnace with a cheery "Good evening, Lassie!" she turned her acetylene lamps on me and burned me to a standstill.

Then she threw both herself and the book on our nearly-Persian rug and began to roll around the room. Seek-river and going hard when a strap broke, whereupon Peaches went overboard with a splash that upset most of the furniture in the room and knocked her manicure set down behind the bureau.

One of the cars went up in the air and landed on the bridge of my nose, because my face happened to be in the way when the car came down.

When loving hands finally untangled Peaches from the chain drive of a rocking chair, she found that, with the help of the rowing machine, she had lost nearly two pounds—mostly off the end of her elbow.

A day or two later Mrs. Fitzenstaatz, who tips the beam at 243, flopped in like an amiable seal and told Peaches that her system of physical torture was all wrong. Once more I hotfooted it for the shopping district and returned with one of those rubber contrivances which you carefully fasten to the wall, and then take hold of the handles and try to pull it off again.

Bright and early the next glad morning Peaches grabbed the handles and was getting away from her fat little self at the rate of an ounce an hour when one of the rubber strings suddenly quit the job and then something kicked Peaches just where a good singer gets her coloratura.

When Peaches fell wounded on the field of battle she decided hurriedly that something must fall with her so she selected our new talking machine, and there was such a crash that our new cook thought the end of the world had arrived and she ran screaming in the direction of Paterson, N. J.

I had to pour a pitcher of ice water over Peaches' facial expression before she came to, and then she found that all she had lost by the new process was her breath and $24 worth of records.

She was sitting on a Caruso, with her left foot embedded in a Tetraville while fragments of a Victor Herbert medley nestled coyly in her hair.

Mrs. Gadfrey dropped in next day about lunch time and told Peaches that the only real way to reduce the flesh is to take a long walk; so Peaches picked out a long walk and took it.

After she was gone about six hours, and it was getting dark she called me up on the long distance and broke the news to me that she had walked some fifteen miles, and that she had been terribly extravagant and had used up all the walk that was in her, and would I please be so kind as to send a taxi and not leave her to perish in a strange land among the savage tribes in the Bronx.

When Peaches reached home that night she found that all the flesh she had lost was her pocketbook containing ten dollars, and I was set back ten dollars for cab hire, making a total re-ing new worlds to conquer, she rolled out into the dining room, bumped into the sideboard, and exit, rolling into hall with glass crash.

"What's the idea?" I gasped, when friend wife rolled back into my life again and dropped anchor in a Morris chair.

"Reducing," she answered in the still, small voice of a Marathon runner at the end of the ninety-fourth mile. Then she rushed out and weighed herself and came back with the glad tidings that she'd lost six and one-quarter ounces.

"Eat one of our new cook's breakfast rolls and get it back permanently," I suggested, and Peaches didn't speak to me for twenty minutes.

The next morning Aunt Louise Mifendale, who weighs 278 in her war paint, floated in and told Peaches that she had picked out the wrong kind of exercise, and presently I was chased off downtown for a rowing machine, a set of Indian clubs and sixty cents worth of dumbbells.

That evening Peaches jumped merrily aboard the rowing machine and bore away to the northeast, with a strong ebb tide on the port bow.

She was about four miles up the duction of four pounds—English money.

A few days later while I was down town Mrs. Carruthers dropped in, also at lunch time, and carefully explained to friend wife that the only way to beat back an attack of avoirdupois is to take electric baths.

An hour later Peaches gathered up the family plate and exchanged it for an electric blanket, which she had sent home immediately.

It was cold that night so I wasn't at all surprised to see what I supposed was a Mackinaw coat spread over the bed.

I figured on reaching Dreamland by the fast express but, heavens! how warm it began to get.

"The janitor is sure annoying the radiators with a lot of steam tonight," I said, feverishly, but all I got was a sharp "Shush!" from the other half of the sketch.

A half hour passed and one by one my features trickled away from my face. The temperature jumped up to 211 in the dark.

"For the friendship of Mike," I pleaded, "can't we throw this asbestos quilt on the floor and come out of the fiery furnace?"

"Don't move!" snapped Peaches;

"don't move!" For another half hour I strolled with Dante through his favorite boiler room. I felt something sharp and peculiar on my back. It was one of my shoulder blades peeping out to see what the matter was. The temperature had started to display itself in four figures when I gasped, "What is this thing that's over us—a plumber's blow-pipe?"

"Shush!" whispered Peaches. "It's an electric blanket—we're reducing!" Shrieking the battery of Freedom I pushed the volcano off the bed and jumped to my feet.

Peaches also jumped to her feet and with one of them stepped on an ohm or something, whereupon she let a blood-curdling yell out of her that could be heard in Winnipeg.

Then she put her other foot down and landed on a volt or an ampere or something equally exciting and became short-circuited.

She was the best little short-circuit that ever fused a fuse.

For two minutes that room looked like a thunderstorm with Peaches playing all the elements.

When I finally got the current turned off and all the live wires out of her hair Peaches collapsed on the sofa, screaming! "Take it away! Take it away! Now I know what a hard life the third rail must lead!"

Sometimes It Takes the Form of Rag-Time Clothing.

I think the electric blanket has cured friend wife.

At any rate all the exercising do-funnys have been presented to the janitor's children, and Peaches has promised to be kind to a double chin if Nature alights her one.

Old King Solomon had the right idea when he said to his typewriter, "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity!"

If a surgeon could remove our Vanity as easily as he removes an appendix there'd be a lot more money in the savings bank.

What do you think?

HOW ONE MAN GOT HIS START

Couldn't Go In for a Literary Career, So Went Into Hardware Business.

"I got my start in life," said a wealthy retired hardware dealer, "in a singular manner."

"You might not think it, I having passed the major portion of my life in selling nails, padlocks, stoves and shovels, but in my early youth my great ambition was to be a writer, an author. I had no doubt whatever that that was what I was cut out for, and certainly I worked at it good and hard, but none of the publishers to whom I sent my things seemed to agree with me. As fast as I sent the things in to them they would send them back."

"But that didn't worry me. I knew that sooner or later they would come to like what I wrote and buy it. What got my goat was the expense. I was a very ready writer and I wrote long pieces. The stamps I had to use to send these pieces out and get them back cost me a lot of money."

"When I realized how much I was paying out for stamps I said to myself: 'Humph! I'll save up that money for five years and then I'll go to writing again.' And for the next five years I did put aside regularly the amount that I would otherwise have spent for stamps and you would be surprised if I should tell you how much it amounted to. But at the end of that time I did not again take up writing."

"Just at that time the senior partner of the hardware store in our town died and his heirs drew out all his interest in the firm. There was a chance for a man with a little capital to get into a good business. I had the capital, by accumulated stamp money, and I bought that interest in the hardware store."

"From that time on I was always too busy to write, but my great success in the hardware business you can clearly trace to my original ambition for authorship."

The Devil's Own.

The Inns of Court Officers' Training corps is proud of its traditional name, the Devil's Own, a title which links it with the patriots of the four inns, who formed a volunteer corps in the time of the Napoleonic wars. It was George III who bestowed the title on the corps. He was reviewing bands of volunteers and, as one particularly smart body of men passed before him, asked who they were. "Lawyers," was the reply. "The Devil's Own, the Devil's Own," said the old king, who had a habit of repeating his phrases. And the lawyers, who had a sense of humor, adopted the title. It glows—London Chronicle.

These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the BLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrup," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. Capolo was riding in a wagon along Moyamensing avenue, and was buried beneath a wreck of ten crates of eggs when the vehicle was struck by a trolley car, John Downey, an egg and poultry dealer of Chester, driver of the wagon, failed to see the approach of the car and drove across the tracks directly in its path.—Philadelphia Record.

Natives of Solomon Island Take Advantage of War to Gather Trophies.

At first sight there does not seem to be a very close connection between the war in Europe and head hunting in the Solomon Islands. Nevertheless, the one arises from the other.

Previous to the outbreak of the war, according to a Vancouver World's Sydney (N.S.W.) correspondent, British, and occasionally German warships patrolled the islands and endeavored to keep down cannibalism among the natives, who are largely of Papuan or Malaysian stock. However, the requirements for the transport of troops led to the recall of the British warships—and the happy head hunter has been free to follow his own devious course.

In one raid made by a mountain tribe upon a small village near the coast no less than 26 heads were secured. No punishment followed because the whites were unable to organize in time. As a consequence the raids are growing more dangerous, and although as yet, no Europeans have been attacked, planners have constantly to keep on their guard.

Equity.

British courts of equity are those of the lord chancellor, the vice-chancellor and master of the rolls, their office being to correct the operation of the literal text of the law, supplying its defects by the reasonable construction not admissible in a court of law.

With this issue, The Labor News starts on the second year of its existence. The first number was issued Friday, August 13th, 1915. The announcement made in that issue, setting forth the hopes and aims of the publishers, contained this statement:

"Beginning on a modest scale, we expect soon to be able to improve the paper in many respects and to produce a publication that not only every union man, but the professional and business man, as well, will be glad to have on his reading table. We shall at all times uphold the standard and highest ideals of the great cause we represent."

That The Labor News publishers have made good their expectations is a fact which our readers will substantiate. The going has not been easy, the road has been rough at times, but the principal point is that the paper has made good, not only from a standpoint of being a first-class labor paper, but from an advertising and subscription standpoint as well.

For months after the paper started, but little advertising was secured, and mighty few subscriptions were recorded. The publishers took the viewpoint that the way to get subscribers was to get local news of interest for them to read, and that the way to get advertising was to secure a substantial number of subscriptions. As a result of following out this policy, The Labor News, today, has a large and growing circulation and, a glance at the advertising pages each week reveals the fact that it is being loyally supported by the business men of the valley.

Credit for what measure of success The Labor News has enjoyed is due, not only to the men who are getting out the paper, but to the members of the various unions throughout the valley, who have worked and are working to help in every way possible to assist the management of the paper to secure subscriptions and advertising. Hundreds of subscriptions have come into the office in the past few months through the hands of union men, who believed that The Labor News was doing a good work and was worthy of their support.

The motto of The Labor News is "A Square Deal for Everybody." This policy has been faithfully adhered to—the employer receiving credit where credit was due, just as cheerfully as would an employe or body of employes.

The Labor News today stands higher in the estimation of its many readers, of the business man, of the employer of labor, and of the press generally, than at any previous time in its existence. To increase this appreciation of the work of The Labor News is the aim of the management of the paper, and that the coming year will show even greater improvement in every department than has the past year, is the promise of the men who are engaged in issuing it.

EIGHT REEL FEATURE COMING TO MAJESTIC

Manager Goldberg, of the Majestic Theatre, Rochester, announces a feature attraction for the dates of Tuesday and Wednesday, August 29-30, at which time he will offer the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature in eight reels, "God's Country and the Woman," a wonderful drama of the great northwest. The scenes were photographed in the deep snows of the Great Bear Valley in the San Bernardino Mountains of Southern California.

William Duncan, George Holt and Nell Shipman are the principals who enact the drama of a girl whose mother is overcome by a villain and gives birth to a child in the absence of her husband. The daughter comes to the front to assume responsibility for the motherhood. To preserve her own honor the girl, just before her father's return, writes him that she is going to the North woods to meet her "husband." The ruse works well, for a young man drifting down stream on a homeward journey from the wilds, beaches his canoe near the girl's forest shelter, and falls in love with her. She prevails upon him to pose as her husband, and they go back home together to protect the good name of the mother. A marriage ceremony is performed, but they live apart until finally the baby dies and the villain, who all the while is trying to get possession of the girl, is devoured by a pack of sledge dogs, and after a sensational battle in which the arch-conspirator and his fellow outlaws in "Devil's Nest" are vanquished and the girl, who has been made captive, is freed by her sweetheart. Thereafter, in the glow of the burning rendezvous the hero takes the girl to his heart as wife in fact, as well as name.

R. R. MEN ACCEPT MEDIATION

The United States board of mediation and conciliation has held its first conference with the representatives of the four railroad brotherhoods of employes in an effort to prevent, through mediation, a country-wide strike to enforce their demands.

Nothing was officially disclosed as to the success the mediators met, but it was learned on good authority that the brotherhoods had shown no disposition to modify their demands.

"The status is unchanged," was the only comment which A. B. Garretson, head of the conductors, was willing to make after the conference.

"We have only scratched the surface," said G. W. W. Hanger, one of mediation board. "The situation may be cleared up within 24 hours and then negotiations may continue for a week."

The mediators arranged for a second conference with the railroad managers and will meet the brotherhoods' representatives again today.

The mediators had their first conference with the national conference committee of railway managers Wednesday. Wm. L. Chambers, one of the mediators, said afterward that the railroad managers told the mediation board how far they would go in an attempt to avoid a strike, and that the managers made their side of the argument plain.

The mediators announced that no statement would be forthcoming from them until they either have succeeded or failed.

It is understood that the labor leaders pin their hopes of settling the dispute upon mediation rather than arbitration, now that the managers have failed to agree with them. They are opposed to arbitration.

W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen, said:

"Arbitration is a gambling game, even when the dice are not loaded. Railway employes have lost faith in the justice of arbitration boards. They believe arbitration is as fickle as chance. If there is arbitration of this eight-hour demand and every effort is made to appoint neutrals entirely free from prejudice, it is but tossing pennies to decide the question. Why has none suggested that the matter be settled by 'pulling straws' and relieve everybody of the bother."

SATURDAY, AUG. 19—Jesse L. Lasky presents Blanche Sweet in "THE THOUSAND DOLLAR HUSBAND," an interesting drama by James Young.

At the Majestic

"The Flower of No Man's Land"

Violet Dana, the youngest of screen stars, will make her debut at the Majestic, Monday, August 14th, in "The Flower of No Man's Land," a five-part Metro-Columbia wonderplay.

The story is an exceptionally strong one, and deals with the tiny daughter of a miner, who is raised by a faithful old Indian, after her father is murdered and robbed by a Mexican half-breed. She grows up into a beautiful flower of the plains, when an opera singer, who meets with an accident near her home, comes into her life. They are married, but he proves unworthy of her and faithless, and eventually she returns to the land where she has found that honor and truth are not only found in books.

"Saints and Sinners"

Miss Peggy Hyland, the beautiful and talented little English actress, whose recent arrival in America to appear exclusively on the screen under the management of the Famous Players Film Co., has created considerable newspaper comment, makes her debut to the American public in a thrilling picturization of Henry Arthur Jones' noted dramatic success, "Saints and Sinners." This current release on the Paramount Program will be shown at the Majestic, Tuesday, August 15th.

"The Innocent Lie"

"The Innocent Lie," by Louis Zeller, was taken on the picturesque island of Bermuda, by the Famous Players Film Co. The exterior scenes are unsurprisingly beautiful and with the spacious interior settings, make an elaborate background for this appealing drama, which appears at the Majestic, Wednesday, August 16th.

Miss Valentine Grant, who has won distinction in several previous photodramas, appears as Nora O'Brien, a poor Irish lass, who has unnumberable troubles.

"The Beast"

How a little eastern girl was taken prisoner by a rough man from the west, was nursed by him back to health and happiness, and then released to go back to her parents, is told in William Fox's latest screen play, "The Beast," which comes to the Majestic, Thursday and Friday, August 17-19. Anna Luther and George Walsh are the stars in this new picture.

"The Thousand Dollar Husband"

The artful devices of the fake fortune tellers and palmists are cleverly exposed in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Thousand Dollar Husband," in which Blanche Sweet, the distinguished photodramatic favorite, will be seen at the Majestic on Saturday, August 19th. As the Swedish maid of all work in a college boarding house, she suddenly becomes wealthy and is entangled in the toils of a band of palmists who attempt to bleed her of her newly acquired fortune. How she purchases a husband to save him from ruin, and how he frees her from the snares of the crooks goes to make up a story gripping in its situations and unusual in its themes.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Weakness of Man"

The greater love of man is the theme of this new Holbrook Blinn World Film feature, which will be shown at Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Monday, August 14. Although not wholly a happy ending motion picture, it is nevertheless a very gripping and moral play. "The Weakness of Man," as it is called, stands out as a distinct Blinn achievement in comparison to other films. It is in five parts.

"The Way of the World"

The next Red Feather feature which comes to the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, Aug. 15, is entitled "The Way of the World," in five reels. The story is by Clyde Fitch. "The Way of the World" was produced by Mr. Lloyd Carleton, and the cast he chose includes Hobart Bosworth, Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnston, Gretchen Lederer, Jack Curtis, C. Norman Hammond, Adele Farrington and Herbert Barrington.

"A Million a Minute"

"A Million a Minute," the sensational five part Metro wonderplay, featuring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, will be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Aug. 16.

Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne are surrounded by a strong cast in this production, which includes Robert Cummings, Helen Dunbar, William Bailey, and others of note.

"Tangled Fates"

The great suspense story makes to protect her sister's good name even though it may cause her to be banished from the home and hearth cherished so much by one, always makes an interesting film drama. But in the hands of Alice Brady, who plays the role of the sacrificing sister, the pastoral drama is more than a mere photoplay. It is at once a romantic, artistic and dramatic interpretation of a dramatic role charmingly and gracefully portrayed in all its moments of happiness and sorrow. This picture will be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday, August 17th.

"Elusive Isabel"

Florence Lawrence returns to the screen in "Elusive Isabel," the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Friday, Aug. 19th. This will be an extremely sensational production, filled with excitement and thrills. The story discloses an intrigue among foreign diplomats to violate the neutrality of the United States. But in their plans they failed to reckon with just one Yankee—and he beats them all at their own game.

At the Colonial

Mollie King, the attractive young star of the World Film Corporation, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, August 16th, in "The Captive God," which will be the feature shown. The story is both interesting and pathetic. George, an engineer, receives large contracts for railroad building in the west. His wife, Mildred, fond of society, hesitates to go with him, and remains at home, he going alone. One day while alone, dreaming of the folks he left in the east, little Zell, born and bred in the wilderness, appears before him. He had never before seen the wonders of modern machinery and with her grandfather are daily visitors to the work.

One day, while returning home, the engineer fell down and injured himself, and a few days later, George and his crew burying him.

After the death of her grandfather, Zell sought the company of George more and more, until the latter could hardly restrain his passionate love for her, which was growing with days which made Mildred's absence such a strain upon him. Months later, strange things are happening in the little mountain hut and also in the beautiful home in the city. Zell, the little mother of the hills, is now a real little mother and George is bending over her looking at their newborn babe with true love and happiness. In the city, Mildred has met Morgan, a flirtatious society man, who is pressing her to bring divorce proceedings against George.

They both leave to gather evidence against him, but after leaving the hotel in the little village preparatory to taking a long journey in a coach to the place where George was directing his crew, the coach overturned, killing both occupants and the driver, leaving George free to marry the little mother of the hills and give a name to their babe.

Co-Operative Creameries Show Tremendous Increase in Butter Production.

The Dairy Commissioner, at first annual convention of Saskatchewan Dairywomen's association, reviewed progress of 1915 which shows a great increase in the butter production of the co-operative creameries amounting to 1,500,000 lbs. He also said the improvement in quality is shown by the preference accorded Saskatchewan butter in outside markets. Shipments out of the province for the year totaled 52 carloads.

According to bulletin just issued by the Manitoba department of agriculture, the dairy industry had a very successful year in 1915. There was an increase of over 1,000,000 lbs. of creamery butter produced, as against the previous year, about 290,000 lbs. increase in dairy butter and over 25,000 lbs. increase in the cheese output. The increase of the total value of milk and milk products was over $127,000. The production of dairy butter for Manitoba during the year was 4,150,441 lbs. and it brought an average price of 23 1/2 per lb. of creamery butter 5,830,937 lbs. were produced which commanded 23 1/2 per lb. on the average; cheese production was 729,725 lbs. which sold at an average price of 15 1/2—the total value of these three products is given as $2,500,000. In addition to which the milk produced is valued at $25,000 and the cream at $158,827, the average price of the milk being reckoned at 2 1/2 per lb. and of sweet cream at 32c per lb. butter-fat. In connection with the dairy industry it is interesting to note that almost the most important fodder crop now is corn, of which the 1915 production amounted to 190,133 tons. The biggest cultivated fodder crop is timothy which for last season produced 193,357 tons and the next most popular crop was bromine grass with 45,815 tons; of alfalfa and clover there were produced some 38,000 tons. The number of cattle in the province is given as 631,005, which is an increase of 130,000 over the previous year.

The fact that the Red Deer, Alberta, cheese factory is handling four times as much milk this season as last winter shows the growing improvement in the dairy industry. On Feb. 14, it was announced the factory had just shipped two tons of cheese for Calgary market.

Cardston, Alberta, creamery in 1915 paid its patrons a rate of 27 1/2c per lb. for butter fat and had a profit remaining over all expenses of $5,584. The creamery during season distributed among farmers $61,117 and manufactured 268,000 lbs. butter and 13,000 lbs. cheese. Average price realized for butter was 28 1/2c.

The development of the dairy industry of Northern Alberta is well indicated by the growth of a prominent dairy business here, which in 1915 produced 2,325,000 lbs. butter, an increase of 400,000 lbs. over the previous year. This product has found a market in all parts of Canada and this year will enter the export trade. Advertisement.

Frog Catchers Busy.

It seems that the home side of the frog-catching industry is looking up because there are disadvantages to people hunting for frogs on parts of France that are battlefields. A handful of men, whose fathers were in the business before them, work frog catching in Kippeling forest with Seven Dials as base, and it is one of the most highly specialized industries in London. With frog catching, small catching is allied; the frogs go to some restaurants and to the anatomical laboratories of the hospitals, and the snails are chiefly bought as cleaners of suburban domestic aquariums. The snail that is eaten in Soho comes from the vine yards of France.—London Chronicle.

VOTE FOR STRIKE NEARLY UNANIMOUS

Four Railroad Brotherhoods All Over Country Declare for a Walkout.

GOVERNMENT IS WORRIED

Interruption of Railway Traffic for Even One Day Would Demoralize Business—Federal Mediation Board to Await Developments.

The "strike vote" of the four train service brotherhoods resulted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike.

Coincidental advices from all sections of the country justify the forecast that from between 96 and 98 per cent of the brotherhoods' membership voted in favor of a nation-wide strike affecting practically every railroad in the United States and approximately 450,000 employees.

In the St. Louis district the percentage will probably exceed this estimate. On reliable authority it is estimated that Frisco employees have been practically unanimous in the casting of the strike ballot. Ninety-nine per cent of the men are said to have voted for the "walk out."

The vote on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas is said to have fallen a little short of that on the Frisco, the percentage in favor of a strike being estimated at 98. The strike percentage on the Missouri Pacific was estimated at approximately 97.

Neither brotherhood nor railway officials would discuss the matter for publication. Leaders of the employees, however, predicted that the tabulation of the vote to be made in New York would show that from 93 to 98 per cent of the men had voted for the strike. Railways officials admitted that their best information indicated that the percentage would be "some where in the nineties."

Worry is becoming manifest in government circles over the possibility of serious railway difficulties in the near future.

Washington has been made aware that the interruption of railway traffic for a single day would totally demoralize for the time being all business in the country and might be of grave embarrassment to the government.

Inability to move troop trains in case of grave emergency is only one of the possible results. The economic paralysis to all lines of business is sufficient to cause alarm, without considering an additional Mexican war bogey.

The government is aware of the dangers ahead, but is unable to do anything about it.

The ultimatum of the brotherhoods will be presented to the employers. If it is denied, the situation reaches a point where the government can for the first time make its legal appearance.

The board of mediation and conciliation created three years ago, may proffer its services "in any case where an interruption of traffic is imminent and fraught with serious detriment to the public interest."

After the impasse has been reached procedure requires that the board wait until each side has an opportunity to request the board's assistance as a mediator. If no such request comes the board is authorized to proffer its services. The first step is with mediation and conciliation. If this fails the employers and employees are asked to submit their differences to arbitration.

A recent famine for greater St. Louis was threatened when employees at the big packing plants in East St. Louis went out on strike. Representatives of the strikers maintained that 4,300 workmen signed as members of a newly organized union at the meeting and that all employees will strike, including butchers, meat cutters, helpers, women, and foreign laborers, unless the union is recognized. The union also asks for an "eight hour day."

Official notice was received at Sharon, Pa., of a further advance in the wages of tonnage men employed by the American Sheet and Tin Plate company. The company advanced wages in February and again in May. The latest increase will amount to about 8 per cent, making a total increase for the year 19 per cent.

For the first time men to work on the new prison at Joliet, Ill., are being selected from the rank and file of the inmates. The supply of "honor" men is exhausted and 100 additional workers are needed for harvesting of the crop on the "honor farm" and the constructing of the new prison.

URGES $840 MINIMUM WAGE

New York City Bureau of Standards Recommends This for All Municipal Employees.

The New York city bureau of standards recommends a minimum wage standard of $840 per year for all municipal employees. This is $70 a month, or $18 and a fraction a week. The bureau says that any city employee who has a wife and at least three children to support cannot keep body and soul together unless he receives wages totalling this amount. The biggest items are 20 per cent for housing, $380 for food and $104 for clothing.

George L. Tirrell, director of the bureau, which is one of the working bodies of the board of estimate, makes this announcement to the parent body and explains how he arrived at his figure. During an investigation covering a year, in the course of which he was assisted by the bureau of municipal research, Tirrell says he consulted the work of experts here and in Europe and obtained family budgets prepared by employees of the city.

According to a report by the bureau of labor statistics, the average rate of wages paid in the principal trades in 47 of the leading American cities was higher on May 1, 1915, than in the previous year. The following increases in weekly rates of pay between May 1914, and May 1915, are noted: Bakers, 1 per cent; beer bottlers, 3 per cent; carpenters, 1 per cent; hodcarriers, 1 per cent; inside wiremen, 1 per cent; plumbers and gasfitters, 1 per cent; shute and tile roofers, 4 per cent; stenographers, 2 per cent; painters (hardwood finishers), 4 per cent; electricians, (battery men and builders), 3 per cent; electrotypers (finishers and molders), 2 per cent; compositors (book and job), 1 per cent. In rates of wages per hour, 47 trades showed an increase, 41 no change, and for none was the rate lower.

All persons engaged in hazardous employment by the state, any county, town, or village, in New York, must be insured by it under the amended workmen's compensation law in the same manner as private employers are now compelled to do. In an opinion by Egbert E. Woodbury, attorney general, it is held that by Chapter 622, laws of 1910, the compensation law is so broadened as to make it cover the employees engaged in dangerous occupations. Heretofore the policy pursued by the state and its various municipalities did not call for such insurance. This policy was grounded on the belief that since the state and its municipalities were not engaged in business for pecuniary gain, their employees did not come within the provisions of the compensation law.

The Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America was ordered, as a result of a unanimous decision of the justices of the appellate division of the New York supreme court, to reinstate Meyer Solomon, discharged from the local union four years ago, and to pay him $875 damages.

FOR SEASIDE WEAR

PARISIAN DESIGN THAT IS BEAUTIFUL IN EFFECT.

Of Ivory White Jersey Cloth, With Embroideries of Soft White Silk—Coat Will Be a Favorite for the Winter.

My sketch shows one of Redfern's new models for seaside wear, writes Idalia de Villiers, Paris correspondent of the Boston Globe. In this case a beautiful quality of Ivory white Jersey cloth was used and the embroideries were worked entirely in soft white silks. The smart coat, which molded the figure, was finished off with a large white linen collar and cuffs to match.

This was a really exquisite suit. In the best of taste, in accordance with the traditions of the Maison Redfern and very new in outline. These shaped coats will be much worn all through the winter. They are light, without being too tight, and the basque is given a distinct flare at the hem. Redfern is making coats of this order in fine serge and in pale-hued linens, and always with the greatest success.

Redfern, like all our other really good tailors, is making a number of plaid skirts—accordion plaids, box plaids, kilted plaids. Indeed, the plaid skirt is now an established favorite. It will certainly play a leading role in the world of dress all through the winter.

The Parisiennes are asking for white costumes, and white costumes only. Very brilliant colors are being shown by all the leading dressmakers and tailors, but these are for the foreign markets. The really exclusive Parisiennes wear only black, navy blue, white or gray.

And this is easily understood. France is in mourning for her brave sons. Someone is missing in almost every home. How then can one expect the Parisiennes to appear in gay colors?

But even for the foreign markets an immense number of white costumes are being made this year. Among these white Jersey cloth, white linen and Ivory white crepe de chine take the lead.

Large black taffeta hats are taking the position which was held by black velvet picture hats last autumn. Taffeta hats look specially well when worn with a neat linen costume—and it is certainly true that taffeta is more suitable than velvet for the hot days of August. But this latter fact has nothing to do with the popularity of the taffeta hat.

Women of fashion have long ago thrust aside the idea of wearing summer things in summer and winter things in winter. Never I think were expensive furs more in evidence than at this moment—at midsummer. Ermine, sable, chinchilla and skunk—all these furs are now worn in the guise of long straight ties, or cape collars of considerable size. White fox is another favorite summer fur.

CROCHET RUGS ARE PRETTY

Just the Amount of Material That Is Required to Make a 30 by 40-Inch Oval.

The pretty oval braided Japanese rug seen everywhere now suggested to an ingenious girl the idea of using up the odds and ends of rugs in the house and crocheting them together instead of braiding them. While it may not appeal to one as a summer fancy work, still it's a good time to get one's strips together in balls and plan for long winter evenings.

To make a rug 30 by 40 inches oval requires 34 yards of material 36 inches wide. It is much prettier to choose two different colors, white and another solid color or 17 yards of white and the rest divided among two or three harmonizing shades. It must, however, always be remembered that in rug designing, like bouquet making or quilt patching, certain rules are inflexible. There must be a distinct touch of dark, black or very dark blue or brown. Yellow and green set off all other colors and the prettiest rugs are divided equally between white and another color or group of colors.

To make a white and blue-striped rug, for example, tear 17-yard strips of white cheesecloth and blue calico into one-inch widths.

Begin with a chain eight inches long, crocheted with a heavy wooden crochet needle costing 10 cents or one of amber which costs 15 cents. Turn and put in eight stitches at the end. Repeat at the other end after crocheting back the eight inches of chain. Add eight stitches at the ends with every other row and this will form the oval. When the first piece of 17 yards of white is consumed, begin with the blue strip and alternate the two colors until all the strips are finished. This produces a graduated stripe rug.

A girl who has three brothers and a great many brothers' friends has made a rug of neckties, cut into inch strips and sewn together in harmonizing combinations. This rug is very beautiful and, being of silk, is quite valuable. The really loveliest and most durable ones of all are made of woolen materials, but if one buys outright for them it makes it more expensive and it takes a good while to accumulate just the right colors here and there.

Cutaway coats are coming in to a limited extent.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ill, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

MAKE BIG GUNS ABSOLUTE

Western Inventor Devises an Aerial Torpedo That Gives Promise of Effectiveness.

What may eventually prove to be a highly effective war implement, and, if so, possibly render present heavy artillery obsolete for long range operations, is a self-controlled aerial torpedo that has lately been developed in Colorado. It is described in the August number of Popular Mechanics Magazine. In a general way, the instrument attempts to accomplish over land what the United States navy's new wireless torpedo does at sea. Its principle and method of operation, of course, are entirely different. As is to be inferred, it consists of a small aircraft—much like an ordinary bi-plane—carrying a large, high-explosive torpedo which it is designed to drop at any predetermined spot within a certain radius. The projectile, which is about twelve feet in length, forms the body of the machine and is divided into two compartments. The propeller is mounted at the front end of it, while the shaft extends through the entire torpedo to the rear compartment where an 18-horsepower motor is housed. The speed and course of the machine are regulated by means of a gyroscopic mechanism, while a timing device of some sort releases the engine containing missile at the proper instant for it to strike its target.

Imitation Pearls. Clever imitation pearls have been made by filling thin glass bulbs with a solution of fish scale mace. Another method is to coat the inside of the glass bulbs with a 10 per cent gelatin solution which is allowed to become only partially dry before a small amount of sodium phosphate is added, then the drying process is continued slowly. The imitations look much like genuine pearls, but they can be detected by noting the place where the bulbs have been sealed.

FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Some time ago a consideration of our economic conditions and tendencies, of the position of women in gainful occupations, of the nature and course of the demand, led me to the conclusion that the granting of suffrage to women is inevitable. Opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. If women are to have the vote, as I believe they are, it seems to me entirely clear that in the interest of the public life of this country the contest should be ended promptly. I favor the vote for women.

ALLEGED VETERINARIAN ARRESTED—"BEATS IT"

A. H. Stevenson Arrested for Failing To Register With the State Board.

On Monday, August 7th, an officer of the State Board of Veterinary Examiners came to Midland for the purpose of investigating the illegal practice of veterinary doctors. Shortly afterward a warrant was sworn out before Justice of the Peace Charles McNeill against H. A. Stevenson. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable E. E. Etter, who immediately placed Mr. Stevenson under arrest.

When Constable Etter placed Stevenson under arrest, the supposed veterinarian asked Mr. Etter to allow him to put away the horse that he was cleaning at the time. The request was granted, and when Mr. Etter, after waiting several minutes, went into the stable to see what was keeping him so long, discovered that he had "beat it." He was last seen headed for the State line.

Stevenson came to Midland about one and one-half years ago and went to work as a barber for Mike Conkle, in the meantime letting himself be known as a veterinarian. After about six months with Conkle, he rented a house in Midland avenue and hung out his shingle. He had built up quite a practice among the farmers and stock breeders of the community; he possessed the ability, but apparently had failed to register with the State Board.

CRUCIBLE STEEL CO. TO HAVE MODERN HOSPITAL

Will Be Erected on Grounds of Plant. Made Necessary by Number of Accidents.

Because of the number of accidents in the plant of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company plant, plans have been prepared for the construction of a new hospital building on the grounds. A temporary structure has been in use for some time, but the proposed new hospital will be equipped with all surgical appliances and a trained surgeon will be on duty. Persons seriously injured in the mill are taken either to the City Hospital at East Liverpool, or the Rochester General Hospital at Rochester, but because of the length of time required to make the trip to these institutions, more complete aid will be rendered at the plant.

QUESTION OF R. R. STRIKE STILL UNSETTLED

POSSIBILITY MEN WILL ACCEPT WILSON'S PLAN

Both Men and Managers to Cast Vote on Propositions
Today.*TRENUOUS EFFORTS ARE MADE TO AVERT STRIKE

Washington, Aug. 18.—It is rumored here on what is said to be good authority, that a majority of the 640 chairmen, representing the "Big Four" brotherhoods, are in favor of accepting the plan of strike settlement proposed to them by President Wilson, in the east room of the White House Thursday afternoon. The chairmen met Thursday evening in the Bijou Theatre and discussed the question informally, finally adjourning until 9 o'clock this (Friday) morning, at which time a vote will be taken. At last night's meeting it is understood only a minority of extremists held out for preservation of the original "all or nothing" position.

The railroad managers admit that they will concede the principle of an eight hour day.

The big fight is to come over the overtime question, but the general feeling tonight is that this will be ultimately settled according to the President's plan and that there will be no strike.

It was authoritatively stated last night that the program submitted to the labor leaders by the President, provided:

That both sides shall accept the eight-hour day on the present basis of pay.

That the collateral question shall be submitted to a commission to be authorized by Congress.

At the White House it was stated that until the union leaders had voted on the suggestion and the railway executives had passed upon it, the White House could not discuss the existing situation.

While the union leaders were in session last night, the railway presidents called to Washington by President Wilson, were arriving by every train. They will meet the President this afternoon. The President will then have the decision of the brotherhoods.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, when asked last night if the executives would sustain the committee of managers, replied that he assumed they would. He added that they had reached no decision, however, on questions that might come before them.

The executives went into conference with the managers immediately after their arrival in Washington. It was intimated that a statement may be issued later outlining the position of the railroads.

To Summon Financiers.

It was stated tonight by a person close to the White House, that if the unions agree to this plan and the railroad presidents finally hold out, President Wilson will call representatives of the railroad stockholders and big banking interests to Washington and deal directly with them.

The temper of the railroad managers last night was clearly indicated by one of the most prominent of them. He said:

So far as the eight-hour principle is concerned there is little opposition to it. The chief problem arises in the details described as collateral questions. Without these details being simultaneously put on a payment basis the railway managers, while agreeing in principle, could continue to oppose the eight-hour day plan until it was accomplished by such binding agreements as would be reasonably fair to all."

In other words, the railway managers are not also willing to concede the time and a half for overtime, demanded by the men as an arbitrary measure. There was no indication last night as to how they regard the proposal to submit the overtime question to Federal committee investigation, but belief prevails that they will concede this point also before permitting a strike to be called.

Brotherhood to Accept.
There is little doubt at the White House that the brotherhood will eventually accept the President's plan. It was learned tonight from a source in close touch with the White House end of the situation that the President is confident of his ability to bring the railroads into line if the men accept his proposals.

He realizes that traffic managers are intensely opposed to his scheme for settling the time and a half controversy, but he has faith that the threat to call the banking interests in to the area will force the presidents to agree to his proposals.

As indicating the President's feeling, it was learned last night that he demanded to know of the railroad managers if their agreements with him would be binding. They evidently sent him word that their agreements would be binding.

There is a well-defined feeling among those close to the President, that his conferences with the railroad presidents will result in a definite settlement of the dispute.

The brotherhood chairmen marched four abreast to the White House yesterday and were received by the President in the east room at 2:50 p. m. Previously they had met at the Bijou Theatre and selected spokesmen.

The President plunged immediately into his program to avert a strike and urged the unions to accept a means to that end. He declared that the attitude of the first committee of the brotherhoods was nothing less than "incipient anarchy." He was glad, he said, to find this committee more conciliatory.

The spokesmen for the men insisted that the workmen did not wish to strike and would only tolerate a walk-out as a final and extreme means. On the other hand, the spokesman said, the railway employees did not propose at any cost to forego the fruits of victory previously obtained by organized labor.

Men Make Concessions

It is understood the men authorized the President to tell the presidents of the railroads that the employees had made real concessions and ask them to repudiate the stand of their managers and agree to the eight-hour working day as a basis of settlement in the present negotiations.

Will President Wilson be Successful?

Can President Wilson effect a satisfactory settlement in the demands of the four great railroad brotherhoods for a shorter workday, with time and one-half for overtime?

The Labor News is of the opinion that he can. We believe that the officers of the "Big Four" think that he can make a settlement, and they are giving him every opportunity to do so. He has expressed himself as in favor of the eight-hour principle, believing that a majority of the people of the United States were of the same opinion.

It is admirable to note the loyal manner in which the membership of the four railroad brotherhoods have conducted themselves since the eight-hour demand was drawn up almost a year ago. They have not only held their place, but have gone along assisting where possible, strengthening their organizations by securing every man eligible to join the organization that represents his particular line of service.

At the last regular meeting of the Trainmen's Lodge at Freedom, action was taken to show their representative (one of the 640 mentioned in the daily papers) that they stand behind their vote. The following telegram was sent:

"C. R. Carlton, General Chairman,
Pennsylvania Lines West,
Broadway Central Hotel, New York, N. Y.

"Freedom Lodge met and approved your actions in the eight-hour situation.

"We are ready to give up our jobs to get it.

"We bitterly oppose arbitration.

Signed by the Secretary."

This is proof conclusive that cold feet don't begin at home.

The Labor News thinks that an honest effort is being made by the officers of the brotherhoods to accomplish the eight-hour demand with time and one-half for overtime without resorting to a strike.

CARPENTERS LOCAL 1033 IN SESSION

Hold Interesting Meeting at Monaca
On Wednesday Evening—New Members Taken In.

Many matters of importance were taken up at a regular meeting of Local Union No. 1033, U. B. of C. & J. of A., held in the Bank Hall, Monaca, on Wednesday evening. Two members were taken into the organization on clearance cards. They are J. S. Bowser, from Local No. 578, St. Louis, Mo., and Harvey H. Shiveley, from Local No. 287, Harrisburg. Four candidates were also received on initiation, as follows: O. C. McNutt, Daniel Lambert, Anson McDonald, Hugh H. Chambers.

Sick benefits were drawn for the following amounts: James McCally, $10.00; A. J. Freeborn, $20.00.

George Cornell, of Beaver, was elected vice president.

The by-laws committee was present and the new by-laws passed on second reading.

A special meeting will be called for the evening of Tuesday, August 29, for the third and final reading of the by-laws.

MANAGER SHETTERLY GIVES AN EXPLANATION

Manager C. C. Shetterly, of Junction Park, desires to make a statement relative to an occurrence at the dancing hall on Wednesday evening, at which time the Ladies of the Maccabees were holding forth. Manager Shetterly having leased the pavilion had no control over the admission charged. A number of his regular lady patrons were charged admission, which is not the practice on occasions when the pavilion is not leased, and Mr. Shetterly desires to inform his regular patrons that he was helpless in the matter, as the hall was leased.

BIDS RECEIVED

Beaver School Board again received bids Tuesday night for the erection of the proposed new school building. The bids were tabulated and the contract awarded at a meeting to be held this evening.

LABOR DAY DETAILS BEING PERFECTED

Indications Point to Successful Celebration at Junction Park on September 4th.

The committee on arrangements for the big Labor Day celebration at Junction Park is hard at work perfecting details for the affair and according to members of the same the celebration this year promises to surpass any previous occasion of the kind ever held in the valley. Manager Shetterly of the park, is arranging for a big free special attraction and with the program of field events, which is being enlarged daily, the band music and dancing, to say nothing of the numerous concessions and the big picnic, promise to make the day one long to be remembered by the union workers of the valley and their many friends who will attend.

Merchants in the valley have been, as has always been the case, exceedingly liberal in the matter of donating prizes for the many athletic events, and the indications are that the several events will be well filled with entrants. The complete program of the day's doings will be published in The Labor News.

BEAVER VALLEY CONCERNS NOW BUYING FALL GOODS

Miss E. B. Dewhurst, New Brighton milliner, is in New York this week purchasing her fall stock and incidentally taking in the pleasures at Atlantic City.

Maurice Levy, of Levy Bros., New Brighton and Beaver Falls merchants, is in New York on a purchasing trip, and will devote several days to laying in a stock of fall goods.

Miss Rebecca Schwartz, Rochester milliner, will leave for New York the first of the week, on her fall purchasing trip. She will be absent several weeks.

CONTRACT LET.

The County Commissioners have let the contract for the erection of a sewage disposal plant at the new county home to Patton & Rossa, Aliquippa, for $2,130.

TRACTION EMPLOYEES TO HOLD PICNIC-FIELD DAY

LADIES OF THE MACCABEES
HOLD THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC

The Ladies of the Maccabees in the Beaver Valley held a union picnic at Junction Park Wednesday afternoon and evening, there being a large attendance. A fancy drill was held during the afternoon, and 25 new members were initiated, the Beaver Falls degree team putting on the work. The dance in the evening was a pleasant affair.

PITTSBURGH MEETING MOST SUCCESSFUL

"Get-Together" Affair of R. R. Brotherhoods Productive of Much Good.
Was Well Attended

The "Get-Together" meeting of the four railway brotherhoods, of the Pittsburgh district, held at the Monongahela House, Pittsburgh, on Tuesday evening, August 15th, was largely attended and resulted in much good from several standpoints. Matters of interest to members were discussed and the meeting was a most successful one.

Another meeting is being planned for Tuesday, September 12th, upon which occasion matters of importance to the men will be taken up, and a full attendance of delegates is requested.

Among those present at Tuesday's meeting were George Stewart, 329, B. of L. F. & E.; J. O. Rumberger, 842, B. of R. T.; C. P. Wilson, 219, B. of L. F. & E.; R. W. Boes, 52, O. R. T.; T. H. Alexander, 52, O. R. T.; A. V. Craig, 321, B. of R. T.; J. L. Freeman, 255, B. of L. F. & E.; J. S. Brindle, 235, B. of L. F. & E.; Charles Brown, 433, O. R. T., and representatives of the Beaver Valley Labor News.

"SAFETY FIRST" IS SLOGAN B. V. T. CO.

Accidents on the System Are Being Greatly Reduced by Persistent Campaign.

Superintendent W. H. Boyce, of the Beaver Valley Traction Co., is the recipient of numerous pleasant criticisms of his "Safety First" campaign, which has been in existence on the lines of the company for several years. Each car carries cards announcing the desirability of cooperating with the company in its campaign to lessen the number of accidents, some of said cards being of an exceedingly original character. For instance, one reads: "It may be safe for your wife to go to the country, but it is not safe for her to get off the car backwards." Other cards are equally original. If car riders would only follow the advice given by the cards, the danger of accidents will be reduced to a minimum, and it is up to the car patrons to cooperate with Mr. Boyce in the good work.

DISTRICT COUNCIL CARPENTERS MEET

A regular meeting of the Carpenters' District Council of Beaver Valley was held Monday evening at the rooms in of the organization in the Kramer building, New Brighton. Many matters of importance were disposed of and routine business of the council transacted.

Business Agent S. S. Bowser reported on several different jobs and there was considerable discussion of ways and means to cope with different matters pertaining to the craft in the valley.

The Council has placed Fred Marquart, of Rochester, on the unfair list, as he is said to be employing non-union labor on his work.

Tuesday, August 28th, is Date, and Junction Park Is the Place

MANY INTERESTING EVENTS ARE PLANNED

The fourth annual outing of the employees of the Beaver Valley Traction Company will be held at Junction Park on Tuesday, August 29th, the same taking the form of a field meet and picnic. An elaborate program has been arranged and there will be dancing in the evening. The big noise of the day will be the ball game between teams representing the conductors and motormen, and the shop and power house men. The members of both teams are indulging in secret practice and the contest bids fair to be vastly exciting and entertaining. O. R. Ward is the manager of the conductors' and motormen's team, while C. Marshall is honored with the management of the shop and power house representatives. The following officers, to be in charge of the day's festivities, have been elected: President, J. D. McKenna; vice president, T. B. White; secretary, A. Webster; treasurer, C. Marshall. The dance will be under the supervision of William Broumbeck and A. Price. D. McDade has been appointed captain of the conductors' and motormen's relay team, and Mr. Walker will head the shop and power house sprinters. H. E. Pfeiffer will be field marshal. An unusually nice list of prizes will be offered for the events, which are as follows:

One mile race, relay race, 240-yard dash, 120-yard dash, high jump, broad jump, ball throwing, blue rock shoot, baseball game.

The traction employees extend a cordial invitation to everybody in the valley to be present upon this occasion, guaranteeing them a good time. Dancing will be enjoyed from 8 to 12 o'clock in the evening, gentlemen being admitted for the sum of fifty cents, ladies free.

VALLEY MERCHANTS ARE IMPOSED UPON

Outside Solicitors for Various Labor Papers Victimize Local Dealers.

Merchants and manufacturing concerns in the Beaver Valley have been the victims of one of the most brazen and fraudulent methods ever conceived to rob business men. For weeks past they have been hounded by advertising solicitors, claiming to be representatives of organized labor and to represent the interests of the people. A few days ago a solicitor, carrying credentials from R. J. McGrath, President of the Iron City Trades Council, called on Cashier Robert Campbell, of the Monaca National Bank, and after stating that he wanted an advertisement for the Labor Day official souvenir booklet for the Labor Day celebration of the Iron City Trades Council at Pittsburgh, informed Mr. Campbell that the Beaver Valley unions were to hold no celebration this year, and that no special Labor Day edition would be issued by The Labor News. Fortunately, Mr. Campbell knew differently and the solicitor, after begging "for at least $5," went on his way. Needless to say, he did not get the money.

Joseph Campbell, cashier of the People's National Bank at Rochester, had the same experience, and Charles D. Fischer, manager of the Kay Tailoring Company, at Beaver Falls, was "stung" for an advertising contract on Wednesday from another Pittsburgh concern, who represented themselves through the solicitor, to be connected with local unions.

B. Mulheim & Son, of Bridgewater, had a like experience, the smooth-talking solicitor getting away with $5 of their money.

Other cases are on record where Beaver Valley merchants have been

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

SAYS STRIKERS ARE JUSTIFIED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—State Commissioner of Labor and Industry John Price Jackson, has reiterated his former statement that motormen and conductors of this city were justified in issuing that an arbitration award be reopened, and which resulted in the present strike, which has been waged for several months.

The strikers originally demanded wage increases, and the matter was referred to an arbitration board. Mr. Jackson served as chairman. The board's award was based on a sliding scale. The employees' representative protested against this decision, which ignored the purpose for which the board was created. Later Mr. Jackson accepted this viewpoint and reversed his decision, which the company refused to accept.

MUNITIONS WORKERS WIN.

Scranton, Pa.—After a week's strike 800 puddlers, carpenters and laborers employed at the Scranton Bolt and Nut Works, have increased wages. Puddlers' rates are raised $1 a ton; laborers, 50 cents a ton, and carpenters 10 per cent over their old scale. The company is making war munitions.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry On Getting Grip

SAY! did you ever put on the goggles and go riding with an attack of the grip?

It has all other forms of amusement hushed to a lullaby—take it from Uncle Hank.

As a Bad Boy the grip has every other disease slapped to a sobbing standstill.

It's dollars to pretzels that the grip germ is the brainiest little bug that was ever chased by a doctor.

I was sitting quietly at home reading Masterlinck on Auction Bridge when suddenly I began to sneeze like a Russian regiment answering Toll call.

Friend wife was deep in the mysteries of Ibsen's latest achievement, "The Rise and Fall of the Hobbie Skirt," but she politely acknowledged my first sneeze with the customary "Gesundheit!"

Then she trailed along bravely with her response for ten or fifteen minutes, but it was no use—I had more sneezes in my system than there are "Gesundheits!" in the entire German nation, including principalities, possessions across the sea, and the Musical Union.

"John," she ventured after a time, "you are getting a cold!"

"I'm not getting it," I sniffed; "I have it now."

What a mean, contemptible little creature a grip germ must be. Absolutely without any of the finer instincts it sneaks into people's systems disguised as an ordinary cold. It isn't on the level like appendicitis or inflammatory rheumatism, both of which are brave and fearless and will walk right up to you and kick you on the shins, big as you are.

Nobody ever knows just what make-up the grip germ will put on to break into the human system, but once they get a foothold in the epiglottis nothing can remove them except inward applications of dynamite.

The grip germ hates the idea of race suicide.

I discovered shortly after I had sneezed myself into a condition of pale blue profanity that a newly-married couple of grip germs had taken a notion to build a nest somewhere on the outskirts of my solar plexus, and two hours later they had about 233

"Right again," I whispered. "Do the joints feel sore and pinched like a poolroom?" he said.

"Right!" "Does your tongue feel rare and high priced like a porterhouse steak at a summer resort?"

"Exactly!" "Do you feel a spasmodic fluttering in the concertina?"

"Yes!" "Have you a sort of nervous hesitation in your hunger and does everything you eat taste like an impossible sandwich made by a ghostly baker from disappearing bread and phantom ham?"

"Keno!" "Does your nerve center tinkle-tinkle like a breakfast bell in a kitchenless boarding house?"

"Right again!" "Have you a feeling that the germs have attacked your Adam's apple and that there won't be any core?"

"Yes!" "When you look at the wall paper does your brain do a sort of loop-the-loop and cause you to meld 100 aces or double pinochle?"

"Yes, and 80 kings, too!" "Do you feel a slight palpitiation of the membrane of the colorado madura and is there a confused murmur in your brain like the sound of a hard-working gas meter?"

"You've got me sized good and plenty, Doc!"

"Do you have insomnia, nightmare, loss of appetite, chills and fever and concealed respiration in the carolina perfecto?"

"That's the idea, Doc!"

"When you lie on your right side do you have an impulse to turn over on your left side, and when you turn over on your left side do you feel an impulse to jump out of bed and throw stones at a policeman?"

"There isn't anything you can mention, Doc, that I haven't got."

"Ah!" said the doctor; "then that settles it."

"Tell me the truth," I groaned. "What is it—bubonic plague?"

"You have something worse—you have the grip," Doctor Leiser whispered gently. "You see I tried hard to mention some symptom which you didn't have, but you had them and what mused, he groped across the darkened room and solemnly shook hands with me.

Then he sat in a chair by the bedside and began to sing soft lullabies to a hold-over.

Presently he reached out his arm and made all the gestures that go with the act of hitting a bell to summon a waiter.

Receiving no answer to his throaty appeal, he arose and said: "This is a heluva club—rottenest service in this club—s'limit, that's what it is s'limit!" Then he hiccupped his weary way out of the room and I haven't seen him since.

An hour later Uncle Louis Miffendale had looked me over and concluded I had galloping asthma, compressed tonsillitis, chillblains, croup and incipient measles. He insisted that I take three grains of quinine, two grains of asperine, rub the back of my neck with benzine, soak my ankles in kerosene, then a little phenacetine, and a hot whisky toddy every half hour before meals.

If I found it hard to take the toddy he volunteered to run in every half hour and help me.

Then his wife, Aunt Jessica, blew in with a deduction she called catnip tea. She brought it all the way from the Bronx in a thermos bottle so I had to drink it or lose a perfectly respectable old aunt.

It tasted like a linoleum cocktail—wecow!

During the rest of the day every friend and relative I have in the world rushed in, suggested a sure cure and then rushed out again.

Peaches tried them all on me and I felt like the inside of a medicine chest.

To make matters worse, I drank some dogberry cordial and it chased the catnip tea all over my concourse. Then Peaches, being a student of natural history, insisted that I take some boarhound, I suppose to bite the dogberry, but it didn't.

Blood will tell, so the boarhound joined forces with the dogberry and chased the catnip up my family tree.

Suffering antiseptics! everybody with a different remedy, from snake poison to soothing syrup—but it cured the grip.

Now all I have to do is to cure the medicine.

"That Stamped Return Envelope. "Among the many letters I receive from charitable enterprises asking me to contribute," said a man who gives occasionally. "I get now and then one that contains a return addressed envelope with a stamp on it."

"This must be an expensive way of sending out circulars, but I am inclined to think it pays. At any rate I know how it impresses one."

"I should not feel warranted in using that stamp for my own personal purposes, and of course it would be wasteful to throw it away; and then it seems to me a businesslike method of proceeding, thus to make it very easy for the person addressed to reply. Further, I rather admire the sporting spirit of an institution that is willing to risk a two-cent stamp on the chance of getting something more in return."

"So when I get one of those appeals containing an addressed and stamped return envelope I usually put into it and forward a small contribution."

Brass Band Cures Cataplexy. An extraordinary instance of the curative power of music is recorded in newspapers recently arrived from Italy. In a Naples hospital lay a certain Francesco Messina who had arrived from New York in a condition of coma. He had been asleep for seven months and nothing the doctors could do would arouse him.

The Countess Cell, visiting the hospital, suggested that a brass band be engaged to play expressly for the sleeper. The doctors laughed at her, but she got the band, brought it to the hospital, stationed it under the window of the ward in which Messina was sleeping and made it play its loudest and liveliest pieces. After an hour of drumming and trumpeting, Messina suddenly sat up, wide awake. He was cured and was at once discharged. This is the third time he has had such a cataplectic attack, the first having been precipitated by his sweetheart jilting him.

Remedies for "Chiggers." If a bath in hot water, or in water containing salt or strong soap, is taken within a few hours after exposure in shrubbery and weeds infested with "chiggers," or "red bugs," no ill effects will be experienced. After a long exposure, however, a bath has practically no effect, and direct remedies are necessary.

After irritation has set in, and small red spots appear, the application of a moderately strong solution of ammonia to the affected parts is recommended by the department of agriculture's entomologists. A supersaturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, or common cooking soda or saleratus, will afford relief. Liberal applications should be made until the irritation subsides. If the suffering is severe a dilute tincture of iodine or collodion should be lightly applied.

Went Pretty Far Back. There is not a large collection of anecdotes about Charles E. Hughes. One of them dates back to the time when he was governor of New York and was making one of his "appeals to the people." It indicates that he is apt at repartee.

Lewis Stuyvesant Chamber had been saying in one of his drives that Mr. Hughes was a "modern Oliver Cromwell." Mr. Hughes was speaking in an upstate city on the following day when a man in the crowd shouted: "How about Oliver Cromwell?"

"That reminds me," the governor benched, "of the man who was asked by the waiter what kind of soup he would have."

"What kind have you?" the diner replied.

"Oxtail," said the waiter.

"Isn't that going pretty far back for soup?"

The Too-Good.

Rev. J. H. Jovett, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, once said at a dinner:

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story

of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter millions bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.

Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

Write for illustrated pamphlet, reduced railroad rates and other information to Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, Canada.

children attending the public school of my medusa oblongata; and every time school would let out for recess I would go up in the air and hit the ceiling with my Lima.

Before daylight came all these grip children had graduated from school and after tearing down the schoolhouse the whole bunch had married and had large families of their own, and all hands were out paddling their canoes on my alimentary canal.

By nine o'clock that morning there must have been eighty-five million grip germs armed with self-loading revolvers all trying to shoot their initials over the walls of my interior department.

It was fierce!

When Doctor Leiser arrived on the scene I was carrying enough concealed weapons to start something in Mexico.

The good old pill pusher threw his saws behind the sofa, put his dip net on the mantelpiece, and took a fall out of my pulse.

"Ah!" he said, after he had noted that my tongue looked like a currycomb.

"The same to you, Doc," I said.

"Ah!" he said, looking hard at the wall.

"Say, Doc!" I whispered; "there's no use to cut off my leg, because the germs will hide in my elbow."

"Do you feel shooting pains in the cerebellum near the apex of the cosmopolitan?" inquired the doctor.

"Surest thing you know," I said.

"Have you a buzzing in the ears, and a confused sound like distant laughter in the panatella?" he asked.

"It's a cinch, Doc," I said.

"Do you feel a roaring in the cornucopia with a ticking sensation in the diaphragm?" he asked.

the grip is the only disease in the world which makes a specialty of having every symptom known to medical jurisprudence."

Then the doctor got busy with the pencil gag and left me enough prescriptions to keep the druggist in pocket money throughout the winter.

Then my friends and relatives began to drop in and annoy me with suggestions.

"Pop," Barclay sat by my bedside and after I had barked for him two or three times he decided I had inflammation of the lungs and was insistent that I tie a rubber band around my chest and rub myself with gasoline.

I told Pop I had no desire to become a human automobile, so he got mad and went home. But before he got mad he drank six bottles of beer and before he went home he invited himself back to dinner.

Then Hep Hardy dropped in and ten minutes later he had me making signs for an undertaker.

Hep comes to the bedside of the afflicted in the same restless manner that a buzzsaw associates with a log of pine.

He insisted upon taking my pulse and listening to my heart beats, but when he attempted to turn my eyelids back to see if I had a touch of the glanders every germ in my body rose in rebellion and together we chased Hep out of the room.

The next calamity was Teddy Pearson, who had an apartment on the floor above us. Teddy had spent the previous night at a Tango party and ever since daylight he had been beating home to windward. ### THE LABOR MARKET

Some one who attended the meeting of the Steel Founders' Society recently, and who afterwards expressed his views for publication, was much exercised over the conditions which exist in the steel trade. He was particularly concerned because, as he put it, the "bottom had dropped out of the labor market." The smile might have been more appropriate had he said that the roof had gone off the labor market. We do not know to what level wages may yet advance, but it seems certain that they are nearer the top than they are to the bottom. That is something which worries some people very much, yet who among those who are worrying remember a period of prosperity which was not accompanied by a raise in wages?

A raise in wages in a period of active business means that labor is sharing in the advantages of that activity. Were it possible so to order human affairs that all the benefits of a period of trade activity went to capital instead of being divided with labor, no surer road to disaster could be found. The last thing that any sane man would wish would be a condition which would make the rich richer and the poor poorer. What is really to be desired is the gradual improvement of all the people.

Wealth in the sense in which that word is popularly used will always be the exception. Prosperity is not a thing similarly restricted; it may well extend to all who are willing to work for a share of it, and today it does extend to practically all such. In other words, labor is in demand, and wages are high. The longer that condition lasts the better.

ARBITRATION A GAME OF CHANCE

Can you call to mind a single instance in which workers at and trade have secured the eight-hour day through arbitration?

The mine workers were forced to inconvenience the public for many months by a great strike before they secured the eight-hour day. Of course, now the public is glad that they were inconvenienced, for it was their sacrifice that thus helped to make this a better country to live in.

The printers, bricklayers, carpenters, and all the rest of them secured an eight-hour day through long and repeated strikes, but who of you now regrets your inconvenience? All mothers of liberty and human rights have suffered labor pains.

If the railroad may judge of the future by experiences of the past, they perhaps feel safe in submitting the present eight-hour question to an arbitration board. The railroad have already secured the cooperation of all Chambers of Commerce and other employers' associations in their proposal that railway employees be now forced to submit their eight hour proposition to arbitration.

In the last Western arbitration locomotive hostlers, who have always been required to work 12 hours every day in the year, asked for a ten-hour day and the arbitration board decided that they should continue to work 12 hours. But, in fairness to the board, it should be said that it was not believed by anyone that hostlers could support their families in decency on 25 cents per hour unless they did work 12 hours per day.

After having refused to reduce the 12-hour day to a 10-hour day, it would be radical to expect another arbitration board to reduce these same hostlers to an eight-hour day. What courts are ever radical?

Aside from this, railway employes have lost faith in the justice of arbitration boards. They believe arbitration justice is as fickle as chance.

The railroad threatened strike, which would tie up the transportation system of the whole country, is still in an acute stage, and before the President who declares, as the mouthpiece of the country, there must not be any strike. No agreement has been reached, but that the strike will not occur seems sure.

VALLEY MERCHANTS ARE IMPOSED UPON

victimised for various amounts by the same class of solicitors.

As a matter of fact, the souvenir program, for which McGrath stands as sponsor, is not for the benefit of the Iron City Trades Council any more than the Council has sold the right to the schemers connected with the program, to use the Council's name in their solicitations of advertisements. Most of the revenue goes to a man named Abernathy, a professional program promoter, and the solicitors who are associated with him.

While the publishers of The Labor News appreciate the fact that such misrepresentations greatly injure the work of solicitors sent out on a legitimate campaign to secure advertising for the Labor Day edition of their paper, the fact that Beaver Valley merchants and manufacturers are robbed in this cold-blooded manner, more than offsets the pecuniary loss the paper may suffer. The Labor News makes this suggestion to merchants and manufacturers in this valley, who have been or may be approached by these out-of-town solicitors who represent themselves to be connected with Beaver Valley unions—the next time one of these men approaches you, ask him to show his credentials properly signed by the secretary of the Central Labor Union of the Beaver Valley. If he can do this, then the man approached is certain that if he goes into the thing that he will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that his money is for the benefit of the union men of the valley and that he is likely to get some return on his investment.

The business men in this valley have long been imposed upon by this class of advertising men, and, if it is their desire to assist the union men who live and work in the valley and to realize, in case they are merchants, some return on their investments, they will do well to insist upon the proper credentials from solicitors.

BUILDING CRAFTS

Mecklen Bros., the Rochester contractors, have the contract for assembling Monaca's new portable school house, the only one in this section of the country. The building was purchased from the Merahon & Morley Co., of Saginaw, Mich., a cost of $1404. The only additional cost will be for putting it together and furnishings.

The building is double constructed, 19x70 feet, and 10 feet high. The exterior is of California red wood, and the interior, including the floor is of yellow pine. The building will contain two rooms, with a capacity for accommodating from 80 to 85 pupils. Grades 3 and 6, formerly in the high school building, will occupy it.

FILM MASTERPIECE TO BE SHOWN AT THE MAJESTIC

"God's Country and the Woman," is a special Vitaphone Blue Ribbon feature that is bound to take its place among the greatest motion pictures yet produced, and will be shown at the Majestic, Rochester, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 29-30. Shows each day at 1 and 3 and 7 and 9.

William Duncan, George Holt and Nell Shipman are the principles who enact the drama of a girl whose mother is overpowered by a villain and gives birth to a child in the absence of her husband. The daughter assumes the responsibility for the motherhood. To preserve her own honor, the girl, just before her father returns writes him that she is going to the North woods to meet her "husband." The ruse works well, for a young man drifting down stream on a homeward journey from the wilds, beaches his canoe near the girl's forest shelter; and falls in love with her.

She prevails upon him to pose as her husband, and they go back home together to protect the good name of the mother. A marriage ceremony is performed but they live separate, until finally the baby dies, the father becomes acquainted with facts, and the hero takes the girl to his heart as his wife in fact as well as in name.

SCAFFOLD COLLAPSES AND TWO MEN ARE INJURED

A. L. Mengel, of New Sewickley township, a former Freedom butcher, and A. J. Croft, carpenter, of Pittsburgh, were seriously injured Tuesday, shortly before noon, while engaged in razing a slaughter house belonging to the former and located on Dutchman's run, a short distance from the Freedom borough line. Both men were working on a scaffold, 12 feet in height, the same breaking and precipitating the men to the ground. Mengel sustained a sprained left wrist, three teeth knocked out, a bad cut under the chin, and several minor bruises. Croft was seriously injured in the small of his back and suffered a bad sprain of the right ankle. The injuries are not thought to be of a permanent character.

PRICE OF HAIRCUTS RECEIVES BIG BOOST

Boss Barbers Jump the Price From 25c to 35c To Take Effect September 1st.

"Rip Van Winkle" will be the middle name of many a resident of Beaver Valley after September first. And all on account of the fact that the prices for hair cuts have been shot upward. The boosting process was put on at a meeting of the Boss Barbers of the valley, at New Brighton, on Monday night, the result of the meeting being that the cost of hair cutting has jumped ten cents.

The regular haircut, which cost 25 cents heretofore, will be boosted after September 1st to 35 cents. Hair-cutting on Saturday will cost 40 cents. Pompadour haircuts will cost 40 cents.

Beard trimming, which has heretofore been 10 cents and up, will, after the first of September, be 15 cents and up.

At the meeting of Local No. 280, Journeymen Barbers' International Union, in New Brighton, Monday night, August 21, the new schedule of prices will come up for endorsement. The price for a shave, 15 cents, will remain the same.

Shorter hours were proposed, but this was voted down.

Program for Next Week

MONDAY, AUG. 21—Popular Plays and Players presents Mme. Petrova in "THE ETERNAL QUESTION," a Metro Wonderplay of supreme power in five acts.

TUESDAY, AUG. 22—Jesse L. Lasky presents the versatile and charming Fannie Ward in "A GUTTER MAGDALENE," a throbbing story with a theme portraying a woman's triumph and redemption.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 23—Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton present the Vitaphone Blue Ribbon Feature "THE DARING OF DIANA," in five parts.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, AUG. 24-25—William Fox presents Theda Bara in "UNDER TWO FLAGS," a masterly picturization of Ouida's internationally famous drama.

SATURDAY, AUG. 26—Daniel Frohman presents Mr. Frank Losee in "THE EVIL THEREOF," a powerful military drama by Channing Pollock and Renold Wolf.

At the Majestic

"The Eternal Question."

Mme. Petrova is called upon in "The Eternal Question" not only to wear some of the elaborate and beautiful costumes such as always adorn her, but also to appear in the picturesque garb of an Italian girl with a hand-organ. This will be a surprise for those who have always seen Mme. Petrova's classic beauty against the background of silks and jewels.

The play, which will be seen at the Majestic, Monday, Aug. 21, teems with exciting incidents, in which a race between an ocean liner and an aeroplane figures, in a thrilling denouement. The scenes vary from the humble home of the organ-grinder to a ducal palace, with Bianca (Mme. Petrova) necessary to all the action.

"A Gutter Magdalene."

The Salvation Army of Los Angeles is richer by many hundreds of dollars from the taking of the Jesse L. Lasky production of "A Gutter Magdalene," which will be seen at the Majestic Tuesday, Aug. 22, with Fannie Ward in the title role.

In this picture Miss Ward is seen as a private in this army of salvation. When the Commander of the local barracks was approached for permission to use the members of his band and the interior of the barracks for motion picture purposes, the request met with a refusal, but when he learned that the story dealt with the silent work of this army of heroes, he readily consented. After using the barracks for several days, the Lasky Company sent them a substantial check as a token of appreciation. It is a Paramount Program release.

"The Daring of Diana."

Trapped in a cellar—fighting her way through a very hell—matching her cleverness and loyalty against the unscrupulous cunning of the political "ring," Diana Pearson, a young reporter on the New York Daily Argus, makes a sensational escape, "scoops" the story and brings the band of conspirators and their leaders to earth.

Packed full of throb and thrill, jammed with courage, devotion and sacrifice, "The Daring of Diana," which will be seen at the Majestic, Wednesday, Aug. 23, has a pulse-quickenng appeal.

Though she lived through every torture and fought clean and hard, her loyalty to the paper and its young chief made it a work of love.

"Under Two Flags."

"Under Two Flags," which William Fox has made into a film triumph with Theda Bara in the leading role, is a story of French army life in Algeria.

The story concerns Bertie Cecil, heir of the English Viscount Royalieu, who has shouldered the consequences of his brother's crime, and gone to Algeria. In the French camp where he enlists under an assumed name, is a girl, Cigarette falls in love with Bertie. Chateauroux, the colonel, hates Bertie, and sends him on a mission where he is almost certain to meet death. Cigarette heading a relief troop, aids him and receives the Cross of the Legion of Honor. Lady Venetia comes to the camp and recognizes Bertie and begs him to return, but he refuses and she falls sobbing on a couch. Chateauroux hears her and rushes into the tent. He insults Bertie, who beats him up. In the court-martial, Bertie is condemned to die. Cigarette, on the strength of her Legion of Honor Cross, gets a reprieve from the marshal. She rushes in just as the firing squad fires, and receives the bullets intended for her lover. Bertie realizing that the poor girl is dying, rushes forward and holds her head in his lap. Her eyes close. Without a struggle, and with the name of her native land on her lips, she died in the arms of the man she loved.

"The Evil Thereof."

The relentless pursuit of the almighty dolla. has at last been picturized in true and hold colors by the Famous Players Co. "The Evil Thereof," which has this great human hunger for gold as its central theme.

Owing to the importance of the incidents involved in the interpretation of this gripping story, written for the screen by the noted dramatic authors, Channing Pollock and Renold Wolf, the Famous Players have selected a cast of well known players, including Frank Losee.

This great production, which is so striking in its fidelity to life that its realism will startle, will be seen at the Majestic, Saturday, August 27.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"Sally in Our Alley"

Muriel Ostriche, one of the truly youngest stars in filmdom, will be the attraction at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Monday, Aug. 21, when she will be featured in a World photoplay, "Sally in Our Alley," with Carlyle Blackwell, the Prince of Popularity. This is a play in which both stars have excellent opportunities to show their mettle, and, needless to state, they take every advantage offered them to show why they are at the top of the ladder of motion picture favorites. Both their work and the play itself will be a matter of great admiration.

"The Little Church Around the Corner."

World Film Corporation presents the five-part photoplay "The Little Church Around the Corner," at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, Aug. 22, in which Emelie Polini makes her first appearance in motion pictures.

The story of "The Little Church Around the Corner" is intensely dramatic and touching. A girl marries a man who is a morphomaniac. Her rejected lover takes advantage of the fact to ruin the husband; persecute the wife; and endeavor to obtain possession of the child who is heiress to some money. Husband and wife are shut up in an asylum; but they escape. The husband is cured of the morphine habit; the couple are reunited, and they render their thanks at "The Little Church Around the Corner," where they were married. The villain is defeated and the child and her money are saved.

"The Spell of the Yukon"

Edmund Breese is said to have the best part of his long and interesting career in "The Spell of the Yukon," the new five-act Metro production, which will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Aug. 23.

In "The Spell of the Yukon," Mr. Breese has a number of highly dramatic incidents, which were exceedingly dangerous to life and limb, that is, they might be for someone else, but he believes in preparedness, at least in regard to picture taking. He plans out each smallest detail of his apparently hair's-breadth escapes, until he has it all worked out to a nicety, with the minimum possibility of mishance. Then, fearless and happy, he tells the cameraman to "grind away."

"The Feast of Life"

In answer to the many inquiries which have been received from the patrons of the Colonial theatre, the management announces that it has arranged for the showing of a Clara Kimball Young picture in Thursday, Aug. 24, when "The Feast of Life," with Paul Capellani and Doris Kenyon, will be seen with Miss Young in the World Film feature.

"A Son of the Immortals"

The attraction for the Colonial on Friday, Aug. 25th, is J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Son of the Immortals," a Bluebird photoplay of sensational bent, replete with thrills and excitement. The plot conveys the action of a Yankee suddenly elevated to rule over a kingdom, and the manner in which he breaks down conventions and casts traditions to the wind stirs up the politicians and leads to many sensational episodes. The final outcome is a triumph for the American spirit, and the King gets away with his problems in a manner to stir the enthusiasm of American audiences. Kerrigan has never been entrusted with a role in moving pictures that is as well suited to his dashing style of procedure.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Gowns of Transparent Organdie.

Organdies that look as if they were woven on the looms of the fairies have been appearing among the sheer white gowns for midsummer. These fabrics are as gauzy as the wings of a dragonfly and about as crisp. But they support fine embroidery and have been made in edgings and doublings of unequalled delicacy.

Evening and afternoon frocks have been made of transparent organdies, often in combination with voile or net. They are to be worn over slips of tulle for the best effects. The finer lingerie laces are used with them and, for the handsomest frocks, princess, renaissance and other handmade varieties are used. Organdie makes the prettiest platings also and many narrow-plaited ruffles help out in the embellishment of airy frocks.

It is difficult to reproduce such unsubstantial and gauzy materials in a picture, although they make a lovely background for fine embroideries. From the illustration only a faint impression can be gathered of the handsome frock of embroidered organdie and lace which shows such clever adaptation of style to fabric. It is made with a full, gathered skirt having a wide panel of lace let in at each side. The front and back are heavily hand embroidered.

The bodice is simple, opening in a V at the front and back of the neck. A small collar, covered with platings, makes a beautiful finish. A drapery of lace at each side forms caps over the top of the sleeves, and the embroidered pattern on the skirt is repeated in smaller size on the bodice and girdle. The frock is in one piece.

MID-SEASON DRESS

DESIGN SUITABLE FOR SUMMER OR EARLY FALL.

Possibility of Economy in Expenditure of Money Now in View of the Advantageous Situation the Market Affords.

Bargains in summer fabrics are so plentiful just now that many women do not consider it extravagant to add a new frock or two to her summer dresses, even though mere desire, not a need, inspires the purchase. The home dressmaker never had greater encouragement to try out her own ideas in style design than during the present season, because such infinite variety obtains in cut and color or fabric combination that it is difficult for anyone with the slightest knack at sewing or with artistic ideas to go very far wrong.

Printed and plain white voile are suggested as suitable for the little frock shown in the sketch, although plain and dotted handkerchief linen, checked gingham and plain color chambray, etc., might be used as effectively.

The double tunic is suggestive of a style line that is to be given considerable prominence in the first showing of fall frocks. Advance bulletins and advance models carry out an illusion of brevity in length and breadth of skirts, while they are in reality longer and narrower than those generally favored at present, and the long tunic aids very materially in this illusion, the underskirt being reasonably close reefed and modestly long, while the upper skirt or tunic is given a decided flare. The hosiery display of the past season or two will not be looked on with favor in the fall, as practically all frocks brush lower than the shoe tops.

The little frock in the sketch is, however, distinctly a summer model, and excellent for tub fabrics. The back of the bodice has a deep round yoke, coming below the shoulders, of white voile, and the back of the skirt is exactly like the front, paneled in white and printed voile. The dress fastens in the center front.

To make this gown, three yards of plain fabric 36 inches wide and seven and a half yards of figured material the same width will be required. The bottom skirt measures four yards wide. A bright ribbon is used for the girdle.

The generous use of ribbon as a trimming or finishing touch on summer frocks is a notable feature, and it strengthens the quaint and picturesque tendency of the season's apparel.

Ribbons will be used rather freely on the next season's evening frocks. Colored silk or bead embroideries are favorite trimming touches for modish utility gown of serge or gaberdine. The tendency to favor a lower waist line is more and more emphasized as the early fall models seek the light of day.—Washington Star.

Oldcloth Revers.

Black rubber raincoats are being trimmed with collars and cuffs and front facing of blue and white tile pattern oldcloth.

BUTTONS USED IN MANY WAYS

Pronounced Feature of the Season's Styles is a Thing That Has to Be Recognized.

Buttons are not at all left in the lurch because of the amount of handwork used. In fact, they serve to accentuate the special feature of the waist, coat or suit they adorn. Buttons increase the importance of pockets, belt and capes and give themselves a chance to assume extraordinary shapes and sizes.

Because of the vogue for dark suits with white hats, shoes or garters, white ivory buttons are allowed. Sometimes they are ringed with black or a fashionable color, sometimes they have a pearl center, but all of them are light in weight, and that accounts for at least part of their popularity. They are also made on dark taffeta dresses.

Those used on coats and suits are more conservative, mushrooms and saucer shapes being the most popular. Balls, squares and cubes are also employed, as well as acorns. Pearl buttons come in all sizes and shapes, from the large ball buttons, appropriate for novelty suits, and the flat styles for separate skirts, to the tiny ones for shirtwaists. Heavy colored materials make use of ribbed buttons.

Checked suits may be thanked for the plain and checked button, as well as the black and white effects in combinations with white rims. Among the new colors shown is a French gray button to match the shade now so popular in dresses. A ring of black is often used to enhance its beauty.

SLAVERY IN EARLY DAYS

African Slave Trade Was Once Openly Tolerated by the British Government.

Slavery existed in nearly all of the English colonies from an early period until shortly before or soon after the Revolutionary war, and the African slave trade was openly tolerated by the British government. In 1756 there were 22,000 African slaves in the colonies, scattered from New England to Georgia. It was not prohibited in Massachusetts until 1780, nor in Vermont until 1777. The United States census of 1810 showed 310 slaves in Connecticut, 10,831 in New Jersey, 15,017 in New York, 795 in Pennsylvania, and 103 in Rhode Island. Slavery was gradually abolished in the northern states, but in 1820 there were still 97 slaves in Connecticut, 7,537 in New Jersey, 10,098 in New York, 211 in Pennsylvania, and 48 in Rhode Island. The census of 1850 showed the disappearance of slavery in all the northern states except New Jersey, which still had a surviving remnant of 236.

NINE SOLDIERS CAPTURE 113

Frenchmen Trick the Defenders of a German Field Fort on the Somme.

One of the most striking episodes of the great Somme offensive was the recent taking of the field fort at Blanches and its garrison of 113 men by 9 French soldiers.

All attempts to storm the position had been checked by murderous machine-gun fire until a French officer discovered a vulnerable point. Selecting a second lieutenant, two sergeants, a corporal and four men, he led them on hands and knees through the long grass to the spot where he knew there was a breach in the defenses. Then three of the French officers abruptly leaped into the work, shouting in stentorian tones, "Forward with the bayonet!" and throwing bombs which exploded in the dugout.

The Germans, believing a large force was with the Frenchmen, had no time to get their weapons and surrendered. But now the three French captors began to feel nervous, as they saw no reason why the Germans should not fall upon them and exterminate them. They were saved by the six comrades, who came rushing in just at this moment. Again fooled, the entire German garrison was marched to the French rear, escorted by the nine "polius," who had not lost a man.

The Stoker in Battle.

In the modern battleship, as is well known, the stoker, like the oarsman of ancient Roman galley, has his work all below deck. The seafight rages above him, and he can rarely if ever see a battle. One of the stories connected with the battle of Jutland illustrates the stolid character of the British stokers. A chance was given two of these during the fight to come from below. They were on the War-spite, which was heavily engaged. One of them was telling a domestic story to the other as they went up to the deck. At the hottest moment of the fight their grimy heads appeared at the top of the hatch round which splinters of shell were crashing. Above the hellish din the impressive voice of the story-telling stoker was heard, as calm as though at a "pub" over a mug of ale, saying, "I always thought 'e ort to 'ave married 'er."

Auctioneers are men who cry because they have to make an honest living.

If a man's business runs down the sheriff comes along and winds it up.

LIVE STOCK SHOW IS BEYOND COMPARE

A hundred thousand dollar site housing a million dollars' worth of exhibits of one kind and another, live stock shows and concessions, that is to be the materialization of the next five weeks as embodied in the Erie Exposition. It seems a huge, a positively stupendous task, but the site itself is not more than three weeks distant from absolute completion and the work of placing all of the exhibits, setting up all of the shows, concessions, etc., will be really but a matter of days, rather than of weeks.

When the gates of the Exposition are thrown open on Sept. 18, it will be upon the greatest exhibition of its kind in Pennsylvania, and one of the very greatest in the country. Only such mammoth exhibitions as the New York State Fair at Syracuse, the Illinois State Fair at Springfield, and the Minnesota State Fair at St. Paul, will be able to vie with it. Every department of the exhibition is going to be filled to overflowing and the live stock show to be held in connection will be especially extensive. Whole herds of cattle have already been entered though the lists will not be closed for five weeks to come and from every section of the country, from all of the greatest stock raising sections, have come inquiries which may safely be accepted as the forerunner of entries.

The Erie Exposition has already established itself as the sensation of the show world. There are to be a score of big free circus acts which will be staged on the grounds without cost to the visitor save the admission at the gate. There will also be DeLloyd Thompson, the world famous aviator, for day and night flights, and each night there will be the expenditure of $1,000 worth of fireworks in a sublime pyrotechnical demonstration of "The War of the Nations." Any one of these features is alone worth the price of admission and the big showmen of the country have been quick to realize the wonderful drawing power of such a galaxy of mammoth attractions and they are striving to bring their own big drawing cards here.

Not one single foot of the entire eighty-five acres occupied by the Exposition is going to remain unoccupied when the gates are thrown open on Sept. 18, and special low rates on rail and trolley assure crowds.

CHAS. M. SCHWAB EULOGIZES LABOR

At a dinner held recently in his honor in Philadelphia, Chas. M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Company, is quoted as paying the following eulogy to labor:

"There is nothing that really figures but labor. Materials—analyze material. You will find that material means nothing but labor. Freight and supplies? Analyze them. They mean nothing basically, but labor—just so much labor.

"In other words, from the first magic touch to the last, which turns everything to gold, it is all labor.

"It is labor which produces everything, all the riches, all the splendor, all the wealth.

"Nothing has any value until turned over by the hand of labor.

"Everything is begun by the hand of labor, and is finished by the hand of labor.

"Labor has produced all the wealth of the world."

Section 4. That the Borough Engineer is hereby authorized and directed to make the necessary plans and specifications, and estimates for said grading, curbing and paving; and the two-thirds of the costs thereof to be assessed against the real estate bounding or abutting on said Midland Avenue, shall be estimated and collected under and according to the provisions of the said Act of Assembly approved May 14th, 1915, entitled: "Providing a system of government for boroughs, and revising, amending, and consolidating the law relating to boroughs." ### ORDINANCE NO. 111

An Ordinance authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the Borough of Midland in the sum of Seventeen Thousand Dollars ($17,000.00) for the purpose of paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving Midland Avenue, in said Borough of Midland, from First Street, the present terminus of the paving thereon, westwardly a distance of approximately one thousand five hundred feet, and for paying the cost of constructing an extension to the present sanitary sewer on Midland Avenue, from the present terminus of the same, westwardly a distance of approximately five hundred feet, and the construction of a sanitary sewer on Railroad Lane from Third Street to Fourth Street, and the construction of a storm sewer along Fourth Street from Railroad Lane to a point beyond Ohio Avenue, and for paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving such other public streets, or parts thereof, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be graded, curbed, and paved, and for paying the cost of constructing such other sewers, sanitary or surface, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be constructed, under prescribed legal proceedings, and providing for the issue and sale of coupon bonds to that amount and the levy of an annual tax for the payment of same.

Whereas, the corporate authorities of the Borough of Midland, by Ordinance No. 107, passed by the Town Council the 19th day of June, 1916, and approved by the Burgess the 20th day of June, 1916, and duly recorded in Ordinance Book of said Borough, signified their desire to increase the indebtedness of said Borough in the sum of Seventeen Thousand Dollars ($17,000.00), for the purpose of paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving Midland Avenue in said Borough of Midland, from First Street, the present terminus of the paving thereon, westwardly a distance of approximately one thousand five hundred feet, and for paying the cost of constructing an extension to the present sanitary sewer on Midland Avenue from the present terminus of the same, westwardly a distance of approximately five hundred feet, and the construction of a sanitary sewer on Railroad Lane from Third Street to Fourth Street, and the construction of a storm sewer along Fourth Street from Railroad Lane to a point beyond Ohio Avenue, and for paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving such other public streets, or parts thereof, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be graded, curbed, and paved, and for paying the cost of constructing such other sewers, sanitary or surface, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be constructed, under prescribed legal proceedings, and authorized and directed the holding of a public election on Tuesday, the 25th day of July, A. D. 1916, for the purpose of obtaining the assent of the electors of the said Borough to said increase of the indebtedness.

And, whereas, properly and timely notice having been given, said election was conducted and held in every respect as required by law, and duly certified returns thereof together with a certified copy of said ordinance and proper proofs of said election and advertisements were made and filed as required by law to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Beaver County, as will fully appear by reference to the proceedings in said Court at No. 12, June Term, 1916.

And, whereas, by the returns of said election it appears that a majority of the electors voted in favor of said increase of indebtedness;

And, whereas, the Clerk of said Court made a record of the same and furnished a certified copy thereof under seal, showing the result of said election, to the corporate authorities of said Borough, and the same has been placed of record on the minutes thereof as required by law.

Now, therefore, be it ordained and enacted by the Town Council of the Borough of Midland, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by authority of the same:

Section 1. That the indebtedness of the Borough of Midland be and is hereby increased in the sum of Seventeen Thousand Dollars ($17,000.00) and that to secure said indebtedness there shall be issued seventeen coupon bonds of the said Borough numbered from one to seventeen, dated August 1, 1916, each in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to bearer, or if registered to the registered holder thereof, bearing interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August in each and every year, with both principal and interest payable in lawful money of the United States of America, and free from any and all taxes that may be levied thereon in the hands of any person under any present or future law or laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Section 2. That the form of said bonds and coupons shall be as follows:

BOND
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
BOROUGH OF MIDLAND
No. ...., Series 1. $1,000.00

Know all men by these presents, That the Borough of Midland, a municipal corporation of the County of Beaver and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, is indebted to the bearer, or if registered, to the registered holder hereof, in the sum of One Thousand Dollars in lawful money of the United States of America, which sum the said Borough of Midland promises to pay to the holder hereof, or if registered, to the registered holder hereof, at the Midland Savings and Trust Company, Midland, Pennsylvania, on the first day of August, 19... with interest thereon at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August, in each and every year from the date hereof, upon the surrender and delivery of the annexed coupons as they severally mature and become payable, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied hereon, pursuant to any present or future laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, all of which taxes the Borough of Midland hereby assumes and agrees to pay; and for the true and faithful payment of the principal of this bond, and the semi-annual installments of interest hereon, and the taxes as aforesaid, the faith, honor, credit and property of the Borough of Midland are hereby pledged.

This bond may be registered, as to the principal, in the owner's name upon the books of the said Borough of Midland, said registry also being noted on the bond, after which no transfer shall be valid unless made by the registered owner, and similarly noted on the bond, but the same may be discharged from registry by being transferred to bearer, after which, transferability by delivery shall be restored, but may again from time to time, be registered or transferred to bearer as before; such registrations, however, shall not affect the negotiability of the coupons by mere delivery.

This bond is one of a series of seventeen (17) coupon bonds, each in the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) numbered from one to seventeen inclusive, and all of like date, tenor and effect, and is issued for the purpose of providing a fund for paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving Midland Avenue, in said Borough of Midland, from First Street, the present terminus of the paving thereon, westwardly a distance of approximately one thousand five hundred feet, and for paying the cost of constructing an extension to the present sanitary sewer on Midland Avenue, from the present terminus of the same, westwardly a distance of approximately five hundred feet, and the construction of a sanitary sewer on Railroad Lane from Third Street to Fourth Street, and the construction of a storm sewer along Fourth Street from Railroad Lane to a point beyond Ohio Avenue, and for paying the Borough's portion of the cost of grading, curbing, and paving such other public streets, or parts thereof, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be graded, curbed, and paved, and for paying the cost of constructing such other sewers, sanitary or surface, as may be required by the Borough authorities to be constructed, under prescribed legal proceedings, and pursuant to an ordinance of the Borough of Midland, duly ordained and enacted into a law in Council assembled, the nineteenth day of June, 1916, examined and approved the twentieth day of June, 1916, by the Burgess; and pursuant to the assent of the electors of said Borough, duly given at a public election held on the 25th day of July, 1916, according to law; and pursuant to the authority conferred by an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved the 20th day of April, 1874, P. L. 65, entitled, "An Act to regulate the manner of increasing the indebtedness of municipalities, to provide for the redemption of the same, and to impose penalties for the illegal increase thereof," the amendments thereto and the supplements thereto.

It is hereby certified that all things required to be done, precedent to or in the issuing of this bond, have happened and been done and performed, as required by law, and that the total indebtedness of the said Borough of Midland, including this issue of bonds, is not in excess of any statutory or constitutional limit of indebtedness, and that the annual tax has been levied sufficient for the liquidation of all interest, assessments and taxes here-in agreed upon to be paid, and the payment of the principal at maturity in accordance with this bond, and the Acts of Assembly in such cases made and provided.

In testimony whereof, we, the President and Secretary of Council, and Burgess of the Borough of Midland, County of Beaver, and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, being duly authorized to execute this obligation on its behalf do hereunto set our hands and cause the corporate seal of the Borough to be hereunto affixed this first day of August, A. ## How Altoona R. R. Employees Are Treated Altoona railroad employees have been very faithful to the railroad company. Have they been accorded the proper treatment? And have they received the proper share due them?

For years back the Railroad Company has inaugurated suspensions in this city, throwing thousands of their employees out of work and to shift for themselves as best they could. When, however, the Railroad Company was threatened with a strike elsewhere, they immediately found work in the local shops very plentiful so that everyone had work day and night; but when the same employees wanted to organize to better their own conditions they were threatened and held at bay with the strong arm and the power of the club which the Railroad Company is able to wield. Thousands of the faithful men who stood by the Railroad Company when they needed them and were sent to places of danger (which orders were willingly obeyed) were then at the least suspicion against them that they tried to organize, thrown out of positions. A list of all names of those who dared attend any meetings was kept at headquarters and many a good citizen of Altoona had to leave his home and birthplace and seek a livelihood amongst strangers and most of these we hear only the very best reports from.

Today the Railroad Company is asking these same men in the shops to stand by them and against their fellow workmen. At the same time the majority of these men are not able to make their full week's wages due them, notwithstanding the fact that all the big cities have enjoyed the greatest prosperity ever known and Altoona is made to suffer for the Railroad Company. If the men go on a strike, as they intend to, and stick to their demands and principles, the United States government would of necessity be compelled to take over the railroad—and then Altoona would enjoy seeing the shops working on an eight-hour basis and every man would get his just share due him.

The Altoona shops would be running full time the same as the navy yards, government printing offices, postoffice department and all other government enterprises. There would be no suspensions, blacklists and coercion. The government would take the general managers and superintendents and instead of paying them big salaries on account of their unusual executive abilities (which they now use to juggle the affairs so as to please the public) would pay them just as well or better for the betterment of the service of the service.

We have 17,397 individual accounts on our books, people living between Cresson and Huntingdon, and most of them are in the employ of the Railroad Company, and it is from the complaints we hear that we have formed our conclusions, and it is for this reason that we hope the men in the shops will stand by their fellow workmen that they may get their rights, and that Altoona should enjoy the prosperity, same as the other cities, where the big railroad contracts are sent to.—Altoona Tribune, Aug. 15.

OLIVER AND PENROSE VOTE FOR CHILD LABOR

Both Senators Vote Against Child Labor Bill—Constituents Are Thoroughly Disgusted.

Washington, D. C.—The senate has passed the bill to prevent interstate commerce in products of child labor. The vote was 52 to 12. The measure, already passed by the house, was brought to a vote in the senate upon the insistence of President Wilson, after the Democratic senate caucus once had decided to defer its consideration until next December.

Senators who voted against the bill were: Bankhead, Alabama; Brayan and Fletcher, Florida; Hardwick and Smith, Georgia; Overman and Simmons, North Carolina; Smith and Tillman, South Carolina; Williams, Mississippi; (Democrats) and Oliver and Penrose, Pennsylvania, (Republicans).

The bill, as passed, would promote interstate commerce in the product of any mine or quarry in which children under 16 years of age have been employed; or in the product of any mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment in which children under 14 have been employed more than eight hours a day, more than six days a week, before 6 o'clock in the morning, or later than 7 o'clock in the evening.

It would take effect one year after enactment.

Of the 46 votes cast against the bill in the house, 38 were cast by Congressmen representing "dry" states. The discussion on the bill revealed that more than 600,000 child workers between the ages of 10 and 13 years are employed in states that have endorsed Prohibition. While the professional Prohibitionist is extending the hand of "friendship" to labor, Prohibition states are harboring the Child Labor traffic; a traffic that ruins not only the boy, but the little girl as well, and jeopardizes the only thing that stands between the worker and starvation—his job.

WOMAN EXPERT IN HOME EFFICIENCY FOR STEPHENS BILL

MRS. CHRISTINE FREDERICK SAYS IT WILL AID CONSUMERS.

INSURES STANDARD QUALITY

Consumers in Small Towns and Rural Communities Are Victims of Discrimination by Big Store Methods, Which Encourage Substitution of Unidentified Goods at High Figures.

Mrs. Christine Frederick, household efficiency expert and consulting household editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, the New York Evening Sun, Successful Farming, and various other publications, recently appeared before the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives in Washington in support of the Stephens-Ashurst bill. This measure, according to its title, is designed "To protect the public against dishonest advertising and false pretenses in merchandising."

The bill will legalize standard, uniform prices and prevent price cutting of trade marked goods by big city stores for the purpose of giving the false impression that all their other articles are proportionately low. Price cutting is merely bait to lure customers so that articles of inferior merit may be substituted at high prices.

"I appear before the committee purely in the interest of the consumer," said Mrs. Frederick, "and I do not care about the rights or wrongs of retailers or manufacturers except as they affect the consumer. There is great need that the woman consumer, who spends most of the family income for articles used in the home, should be able to buy with the least extravagance, the least inefficiency and the least waste. I believe that a uniform price on an identified article is one of the chief means by which this most desired end can be attained."

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Splendid Program Arranged for Central Body's Celebration at Junction Park.

BIG FREE ATTRACTIONS AND FINE SPORT EVENTS

Final plans for the biggest Labor Day celebration in the history of the Beaver Valley are practically completed by the committee in charge. Messrs. R. F. Kross, J. D. McKenna, O. J. Molter, W. T. Byers and Chas. Huff, and if the weather man behaves there will be a big crowd of union men and their families and friends at Junction Park on Monday, Sept. 25th. There will be all sorts of fun for both the old and the young. Superintendent W. H. Boyce, of the Beaver Valley Traction Company, has kindly donated a pig to the committee, said pig, after being liberally anointed with numerous coats of grease, will be let loose in the big enclosure inside the track, and will go to the person who proves to be the best runner and possesses the ability to hold onto a greased porker after he grabs him. Owing to the recent advance in the price of pork, it is needless to say that several hundred men and boys will engage in the pursuit, incidentally furnishing a lot of fun for the on-lookers.

Manager Chas. Shetterly has secured a big free attraction in the person of Captain L. D. Blondell, champion swimmer of the world, who will give an interesting exhibition of his wonderful skill in the water, and in the evening there will be a big water carnival, featuring by the blowing up of the American sailing ship, "Will-o'-the-Wisps."

will be present, will be excited over the scramble of 5,000 marbles, which will take place on the race track. The marbles will be thrown into the center of the crowd and the scramble will start. Included in the 5,000 marbles will be 500 glass "aggies," which will tend to make competition all the more keen.

Complete programs, which are official and are the only ones to be distributed, will be included in the Labor Day edition of the Labor News, which will be distributed to all in attendance at the celebration. The following is a partial list of the sport events, the prizes to be announced in The Labor News of next week:

- 100-yard dash for men, open to all.
- 100-yard dash for boys, between the ages of 12 and 16 years.
- 100-yard dash for girls, between the ages of 12 and 16 years.
- Watermelon eating contest.
- One-half mile race, open to all.
- 50-yard dash, open to women.
- Three-legged race for men, open to all.
- Ladies' baseball throwing contest.
- Shoestring race for boys.
- Ladies' nail driving contest.

FEDERAL LABOR UNION MET THURSDAY NIGHT

Federal Union No. 14994 met in regular session Thursday evening in their rooms, Kramer Building, New Brighton. There was a good turnout of members and considerable routine business disposed of.

Federal union wishes to extend the thanks of its membership to the merchants and business men of the valley for the support they are giving them in their fight to win recognition of the Townsend Company, Fallston. The officers claim that if the Townsend Company will meet their committee and offer any reasonable plan of settlement, a conclusion of the trouble can be speedily arrived at. But under present conditions they cannot and will not return to work at the plant.

MEETING OF CENTRAL LABOR UNION MONDAY

General Agent of Danbury Hatters Appeals for Aid—Labor Day Committees Appointed

A meeting of the Central Labor Union was held on Monday evening at the headquarters of the organization in New Brighton. There was a good attendance, all delegates reporting good business conditions; all members being employed. The committee in the Labor Day celebration details reported favorable progress, and the following additional committees, to serve at Junction Park on the day of the celebration, were appointed:

Dance hall, H. Grimshaw; carousell, R. Douglass; Dreamland Theatre, Mark Ford; roller skating rink, C. M. Reed.

Secretary Kross reported that no answer had been received from Typographical Union No. 7, relative to the standing of D. J. Berry.

Thomas W. McNally, general agent of the United Hatters of North America, was present and spoke of the recent verdict against his organization, wherein the Danbury Hatters were awarded the sum of $252,000 by order of the U. S. Supreme Court.

The San Francisco Convention voted to allow all members of organized labor to devote one hour's wages to assist in paying the sum mentioned.

Mr. McNally stated that the unions have been liberal at the first call, but since that had not been making very encouraging returns and asked that the brother hatters be given consideration and support.

If the Danbury hatters are compelled to stand the payment of the quarter-million dollar verdict, it means that all of them will lose their homes and lifetime savings, and it is up to fellow-craftsmen to donate at least one hour's wages and help lift the oppressive load.

PRES. WILSON'S OFFER; WHAT RAILROADS WANT

FLAGRANT VIOLATIONS OF CHILD LABOR LAWS

"Most appalling, indeed, is the utter disregard for the laws relating to child labor, compulsory education and the 54-hour law for women," asserts George H. Hamilton, of Columbus, O., chief inspector of workshops and factories, in his annual report. He says that in three months it was found necessary to institute 115 prosecutions for violations of these laws. Seventy-two per cent of the fines in the cases prosecuted were suspended or remitted. The report refers rather slightly to uplift and other voluntary societies which are "most annoying to the department."

Objections to Points Involved Results in Postponement of Final Decision.

GRANT EIGHT-HOUR DAY; BROTHERHOOD HOPES HIGH

Following are the salient points points that have been brought out so far in the railroad controversy:

The Railroad Presidents Promise

1—The flat eight-hour day with pro-rata pay for overtime. The agreement to be a signed contract for one year between the railroads and the four brotherhoods represented.

2—The eight-hour day become effective immediately, dating preferably from October 1.

The President Promises

The President promises as an indemnity against undue loss from the concession of the eight-hour day:

1—To use his influence, personal and official, to obtain for the railroads an increase of freight rates.

2—That the principle of arbitration should be maintained and conserved; that the demand of the brotherhoods for time and a half for overtime and the contingent demands of the railroads affecting special wage schedules should be arbitrated.

3—The enactment of a compulsory investigation law, similar in general outline to the Canadian industrial inspectors act. This legislation to be obtained before Jan. 1, 1917.

4—The enlargement of the interstate commerce commission from seven to nine members, an increase which would be considered highly favorable to the railroads.

WALLACE & CARLEY PUT ON UNFAIR LIST

Beaver County Building Trades Council met Thursday evening in regular session at their hall, Kramer Building, New Brighton, Pa. A number of matters pertaining to routine business of the council was taken up and disposed of.

The unfair attitude of Wallace & Carley, of Woodbury, which has been the cause of considerable comment in labor circles of the valley, was then taken up and the first placed on the unfair list by the Council.

MAKES STATEMENT

The following letter is self-explanatory, and is published with the consent of all parties interested:

New Brighton, Pa., Aug. 22, 1916. Mr. Wm. T. Byers.

Dear Sir:—A few days ago I was asked by one of the crew of a car of the Beaver Valley Traction Company if the News had any complaint to make regarding the way the motor men and conductors of the line transport our "bag" envelopes. There was some reason no doubt, for the question, but I could not get into any really serious matter. The answer was that the News has no complaint to make.

For several years the conductors of the traction company have kindly taken care of our envelopes coming from all sections of the county to our office at Eleventh street and Third avenue, New Brighton. Sometimes as many as ten large envelopes are delivered to my mail box on the corner, in a single day, and it is seldom, very seldom, that there is any delay in our receiving them. The men are always courteous, have a pleasant word, and have never to my knowledge grumbled over the additional duty of receiving and delivering the letters. It has often occurred to the News that without the permission of Supt. W. H. Boyce, to have our copy so transported, and without the invaluable services of the crews, we would be in a sorry plight for the prompt receipt of our valley copy. It is with pleasure that the News goes on record in this letter as being without cause for a "kick," but that on the contrary feels under obligation to the employees of the traction company, as well as Supt. Boyce. Our entire experience with the traction company employees has been marked with courtesy on their part which the News, we assure you, appreciates to the fullest extent.

HOPE THAT OUR RELATIONS WILL CONTINUE CORDIAL IN THE FUTURE AS IN THE PAST, WE ARE,

Very truly yours,
F. S. READER & SON,
Editors Beaver Valley News.

PLUMBERS RAISE WAGES

BASIS FOR PEACE NOT YET FOUND

CONTINUOUS CONFERENCE PRODUCES NO RESULTS

WILL SEE PRESIDENT AGAIN

Acceptance of Eight Hour Day the Real Hitch in Proceedings—Insistence Upon Arbitration Still Urged by Capitalists

Washington.—Eight presidents of important railway systems who have been designated to draft the railroad's reply to President Wilson's appeal that they accept his plan for averting a nation-wide strike, were in almost continuous session without solving the problem.

Three of the committee, Hale Holden of the Burlington, R. S. Lovett of the Union Pacific, and Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio discussed the situation with President Wilson. They were at the White House for more than an hour, and on leaving declined to talk about their visit, further than to say they had asked for the conference to "discuss the general situation" and expected to see the President again.

No Concrete Plan

Although some of the 60 or more presidents are showing a disposition to prolong the negotiations in the hope that the sentiment of business men of the country will be shown to be opposed to the idea of an eight-hour day, there was a general feeling that a definite answer to President Wilson's demand cannot be much longer postponed. The President is understood to have indicated that he desired his proposals to be fully debated by the executives, but their conferences among themselves have failed so far to develop any concrete plan likely to win approval.

So far as the presidents would discuss the present situation, they still are insistent upon arbitration of the eight-hour day and all other issues with the employees. As the conferences continued there was less talk of action which would lead to a strike, but some of the executives are expected to fight to the last ditch any plan which would force an eight-hour day upon the roads without some form of arbitration.

GREEKS IN BATTLE WITH BULGARIANS

Rumania Has Mobilized an Army of 800,000 Ready to Strike Austrians.

London.—Events in the Balkans, rapidly following each other threaten to drag two more nations, Rumania and Greece, into the maelstrom of the European war.

The crisis has admittedly been reached in Bucharest, while Greek troops, by engaging the Bulgarians in a bloody battle in Greek Macedonia, may lead the Athens government to enter the arena even against its own desire.

Startling Disclosures.

A startling new phase of the situation reached the public eye for the first time with the news that Rumania has completely mobilized her army of 800,000 and that Russia has landed troops at Saloniki, to co-operate with the British, French, Italian and Serbians.

Both these developments, now weeks old, have been religiously withheld from public knowledge by the entente censors.

Open Seasons Named for Birds.

Washington.—Regulations designating open seasons for hunting migratory birds under the new federal migratory bird law were promulgated by Secretary Houston of the Agriculture Department. All insectivorous birds are protected indefinitely under the Secretary's order.

Big Corn Crop in Iowa.

Iowa, with 303,000,000 bushels of corn last year, has in prospect 365,000,000 bushels this year, and the selling price now is 73 cents, as against 71 in 1915.

TROOPS HELD

Will Not Go to Border Until Strike Situation is Settled.

Washington.—Orders for the remaining mobilized units of the National Guard to proceed to the border have been suspended by the war department.

A telegram from Major General Funston made public by the war department disclosed that the general recommended the suspension of the orders. His telegram follows:

"In view of the possibility of a general railroad strike, I desire to call attention of the war department to difficulties that will follow in maintaining food supplies not only of troops in this department but of the civilian population as well. These border states produce but little foodstuff except cattle.

"In view of foregoing I recommend that National Guard organizations which are about to start for border stations be retained in their mobilization until such time as the question of a general strike shall have been determined."

Flood Relief Measure Passed.

Washington.—The Senate passed Senator Chilton's joint resolution for relief of the sufferers from the drought in West Virginia, the resolution, as passed, carrying an appropriation of $100,000. ## TROOPS WILL STAY ON BORDER Guard Will Be Withdrawn Only When American Lives Are Safe, Says Baker.

Washington.—The National Guard will be retained on the Mexican border until it can be withdrawn without again endangering American lives. Secretary Baker so declared the administration's policy in answering a score of letters from many parts of the country complaining that the state troops were being held in service after the emergency for which they were called out apparently had passed.

Complainants Answered.

In general, the complainants, whose names were withheld, alleged the border service was entailing loss financially on militiamen and hardship on their families. The secretary replied to all those seeming to merit attention.

By its presence on the border, he wrote to one, the guard is "winning bloodless victories daily." He declared that Americans resident along the international line were enjoying a peace and security they could not know without the military forces to protect them.

Hardship Inevitable.

The department appreciates, Mr. Baker said in another letter, the fact that a call for military service upon the militia organizations must "inevitably present cases of hardship." He added:

"The emergency, however, which required this call for the militia was one of a grave character, affecting the safety and lives of citizens of the United States men, women and children."

FUNSTON FOR WITHDRAWAL

BORDER COMMANDER DROPS A BOMB IN SITUATION

ZAFFRA SEASON IS NEAR

Administration Suppresses Report Fearing It May Embarrass the Mexican Commission—Black Jack's Army is Helpless.

Washington.—Gen. Funston in a telegram to the war department, and which the administration is making efforts to keep secret, recommends the immediate withdrawal of the Pershing expeditionary force from Mexican territory.

Rate of Sickness High.

The health of the troops also weighed in Gen. Funston's decision. He is understood to be considerably worried over the approach of the hot season in Mexico and the hardships to which the men will be subjected. With the physical strain they have undergone in the campaign, coupled with the bad climatic conditions, the outbreak of an epidemic is feared. Already the rate of sickness, it is understood, is considerably higher than among the troops on the border.

War department officials were dumbfounded when the Funston telegram was read. It is understood copies were quickly transmitted to the White House and to the state department, where the commission negotiations with Carranza are in progress. Orders were immediately issued to keep the message from becoming public, and Gen. Funston was advised it is understood, not to wire any further recommendations of a similar character.

Anti-Commission.

Should Carranza discover the Gen. Funston was in accord with him on the question of the withdrawal of the American troops, administration officials realized the basis for the joint commission's work would be largely swept away. On his instinct, once that issue was to be first taken up by the commission's members, and from the Mexican point of view, it was the only issue to be discussed.

Pershing Army Helpless.

Carranza's final consent to the broadening of the powers of the commission is pointed out, we merely conditional upon the taking up of the troops question first. Now with the American commander himself recommending withdrawal it is feared Mexico might disregard the commission plan altogether.

WILSON VETOES ARMY BILL

Chairman Hay Presents New Measure Features Objected to by President.

Washington.—The army appropriation bill was unexpectedly vetoed by President Wilson because he would not accept certain provisions in the revision of the articles of war, forced into the bill by the house conferees and commonly said in army circles to be in the interest of certain retired officers "at outs" with the army.

Chairman Hay of the house military committee, at once introduced the bill with the entire section, revising the articles of war stricken out and the declaration that no revision at all would go through with the bill in this congress.

Chairman Chamberlain of the senate military committee announced that the senate would reinstate the revision approved by the President and the war department, but stricken out in the house.

TO THE RAILROAD WORKERS OF THE UNITED STATES

The Beaver Valley Labor News wishes to congratulate you on a victory which is now almost complete.

In waiving the demand for time and one-half for overtime, in order to bring about a peaceful settlement, you have gained far greater in the esteem and good wishes of the public in one day, than the time and one-half would equal you in dollars and cents for many years to come. The principle for which you stood, the eight hour day, has been won. It is a peaceable victory never to be forgotten. Your plan of action was carefully laid, and successfully carried out. No victory was ever won without some sacrifice. Yours was the time and one-half for overtime, which was gracefully yielded, to the credit of each and every one of you who pay your little mite to keep the wheels of unionism turning. It is too bad that there are still those among you, who are so small, so narrow and unprincipled, as to accept that which you and your organizations have earned for them, and yet are willing to set idly by and permit you to pay the bill; while they criticize your officers for not getting more. Still, if we were all perfect, the highest standard of manliness would never be reached, because, we must observe the faults of others in order to improve our own.

While we believe the time and one-half for overtime is right and just, still, in leaving the matter for arbitration, there is a possibility of the men securing an advance rate of pay for longer hours in the form of an overtime penalty of a certain stipulated extra amount per hour for all over eight hours worked.

While you did not get all you asked for and ought to have, nevertheless you have demonstrated that in unionism there is strength. The four brotherhood organizations are stronger than the railroads, with all their capital. You have shown once more that the real king of these United States is labor. Labor can do everything without capital. Capital can do nothing without labor.

SMALL SUCCESS MAY LOOK INSIGNIFICANT TO THE UNSUCCESSFUL, BUT NOT TO THE MAN WHO IS A SUCCESS.
EVERY SUCCESSFUL MAN HAS BEEN A SMALL SUCCESS AT SOME TIME.

POOR "OLIVER'S" TROUBLES

dized press of the country printed editorial after editorial for them. The magnates had them printed in book form and sent to every newspaper in the country; and what has been the result—the press and public alike have become disgusted, for the public cannot forget those words once uttered, "To hell with the public," and "all the traffic will bear," any more than they can forget "90c a day."

They say the public has been informed that this demand by the employees cannot be granted without an increase in freight rates. At last it is out! Increase in freight rates; yet every day the papers are telling of the wonderful earnings of these same railroads. Strange, is it not? The companies present figures to prove that they cannot pay for the eight-hour day, it might decrease dividends. Never once do they mention what a benefit the eight-hour day would be to their employees. They want good and faithful men, but never a word of comfort or cheer do they receive. Dollars against humanity, the railroad stand. Humanity against dollars is President Wilson and the employees' stand. Where do you stand, Oliver?

It is not a fact that the Industrial Relations Committee, appointed by Congress, various State committees, learned physicians, professors, Governors of several states, and many public spirited citizens of the United States, state and state emphatically, that no man should labor more than eight hours in any 24? Then why should not President Wilson take the same stand—the stand for humanity? President Wilson's stand is right and just.

One Pittsburgh editor says, President Wilson has dealt a blow to the principles of arbitration that will result in reaching every corner of the country where organized labor exists. He is right; but what will the result be? It will be this: when arbitration is agreed to and a decision handed down, it will be in good plain English, so that no corporation lawyer can pick flaws in it by which the managers can rob the men of what they thought they had gained by the decision. This was done by the managers of the Eastern Association after the award of 1910, and the workers have not forgotten.

When all is said, the Olivers favor arbitration, for they can win, no matter how bad the case may be. Even a United States Senatorship can be secured by the means they use.

Does not the United States Government have the eight hour day, and is it not doing good work for the Government?

The Olivers, Babcocks, Garlands, Armstrongs, etc., are very solicitous about the workingman at election time, but when it comes to the workers' turn, they cannot see an eight-hour day, but demand arbitration. Why is this?

A RAILROADER.

"God's Country and the Woman"

Complete story of this great photoplay.

Lovers in "God's Country."

"God's Country and the Woman" Far away, in the timberlands of the North, where the purity of woman is placed above all else, lived Josephine Adare, a kind, honest soul, whose face plainly bore an expression of deep sorrow and anxiety. Up to this—God's own country—came a man, Phillip Weyman, to spend a year in that region.

The man meets the woman and falls in love with her. He begs her to confide in him her great sorrow, which he sees she is constantly thinking of, but she tells him that she may not do so. Seeing that he is persistent, and really anxious to help her, she asks him if he would be willing to follow her wherever she goes, doing whatever she asks of him, asking no questions, and with the hope of no reward but her undying gratitude. Owing to his great love for her, he consents, knowing that he will be working for a just cause. Through the long, bitter Northern winter, he travels with her, knowing neither where he is going nor what he is going to do. To aid her plans they are married, but it is a marriage in name only. She then takes him to the home of her father, John Adare, a rugged woodsman, where she tells him to pose as the father of a baby which she shows him. For a moment his faith in her wavers when he sees the child, but his manhood conquers and he determines to stand by his promise. Through many tense situations Phillip remains true.

Then on one eventful day, the infant dies. After the child's death, Phillip notices unusual activity about the camp, and suspects that Josephine's enemies are near. Though he knows not who they are, he longs to fight them; but Jean Croisette, Josephine's half-breed protector, who had also been assisting her in her trouble, tells him that he can do nothing but wait for orders from her. He is tempted to cast caution to the winds and search for them himself; but his better judgment prevails and he realizes that he must be satisfied with anxiety and inactivity. Josephine's ferocious wolfhounds have grown to love Phillip as they do their mistress. These terrible beasts, though born for fighting, have big hearts in their savage breasts, and, at a word from one whom they love, would tear an enemy to pieces.

One day, Josephine, who is known throughout the neighborhood for her kindness and love for children, is called to another village to tend a sick child. Jean follows to protect her; Phillip trails him with the dogs, and learns that she has been kidnapped by Lang, who Jean tells him, was responsible for all her troubles. Phillip rouses all the honest woodsmen in the neighborhood, who love Josephine for her kindness, and they set out to rescue her. They also enlist the aid of a tribe of Indians in their cause.

After traveling for some time, the rescue party traps the villainous gang in their lair, "Devil's Nest." Here Lang and his men barricade the doors and windows and prepare for the attack. A terrible battle ensues, and Lang's followers, seeing they are being beaten, try to escape, but find themselves hemmed in. In the midst of the battle, Jean is shot, and, knowing he is about to die, calls Phillip to his side. He tells him how, a year before, Josephine's mother had fallen into Lang's clutches while her husband was away, and of the birth of the child, which Josephine had claimed as her own, to shield her mother's honor. The story told, the faithful half-breed dies, with a parting injunction to Phillip to kill Lang and destroy the incriminating papers in his possession. In a lull in the fighting Lang tries to escape through a window with Josephine. His action is seen by Phillip who rushes over to protect her. In the struggle which follows, Lang manages to gain the upper hand; and reaches for his knife to end Phillip's life. Seeing this danger, Josephine releases the dogs, with a command to kill. As though they knew the sorrows of their mistress, the shaggy beasts leap upon the struggling forms, single out Lang, and greatly mangle his body. Phillip tells her that he knows all, and that she need no longer fear for her mother's honor, as he has destroyed the papers. She tells him that she has always loved him, and Phillip looks forward to a happy future—in God's country—with the woman of his choice.

"The Quitter"

The story of "The Quitter" sets forth how the miners of Paradise Glitch decide that someone must marry to relieve the monotony of the camp, so they make Happy Jack (Lionel Barrymore) the victim, and make him advertise for a wife, who must be a blonde. Among the many answers one beautiful face glows like a star among the ugly ones—Glad Mason, whose life is being burdened by the vicious attentions of her employer, a mining promoter.

Glad goes to Paradise Glitch, but Happy Jack, making over to her his mine and all his belongings, leaves in haste, the boys having told him an old Lang has sent the picture.

How "the quitter" and the girl meet in spite of all handicaps, how misfortune, completely depleted, is restored in surprising fashion by Glad, is told in a story which will be shown at the Majestic, Monday, Aug. 28.

"The End of the Trail"

William Farnum once more brings into play the marvelous strength and power of his frame in the newest of Wm. Fox pictures of the great Northwest, "The End of the Trail," which comes to the Majestic Thursday and Friday, Aug. 31-Sept. 1. Farnum acts Jules Le Clerq, a French Canadian.

But Devil Cabot is not dead. He arrives at the trading post just after a baby is born to Adrienne and Jules. He seizes Adrienne and the child and carries them away. She lives with him in deadly fear. ## "Silks and Satins"

Little Marguerite Clark will be seen at the Majestic Theatre, Saturday, September 2, on the Paramount Program.

In this unusual romance Miss Clark is a modern girl who is to marry a certain young dandy, against her wishes. Through the careful maneuvering of a table, a drawer is disengaged, which had heretofore been unseen, revealing a diary with an account of escape from her predicament inscribed in it by an ancient relative. The plot is a combination of an old love story with one of modern origin.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"Paying the Price"

"Paying the Price," the World Film picture in five reels, will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, Aug. 28. In this picture U. S. government co-operated with the producing company in procuring the proper atmosphere to stage this story technically correct, and to that end, Josephus Danfield, Secretary of the Navy, gave permission to the World Film Corporation to take scenes on and from the torpedo boat destroyer No. 69, the Wadsworth, and from this boat two regulation size torpedoes, each costing $4,500, were fired and exploded.

Gail Kane plays the leading role, and she is admirably well supported by Gladden James, June Elvidge and Robert Cummings.

"The Twin Triangle"

Miss Jackie Saunders, known as the Maude Adams of the screen, will be featured at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, Aug. 29, when "The Twin Triangles," a photodrama of universal appeal, will be shown.

In this production Miss Saunders has a role just suited to her wonderful versatility, and the production is one of the best to be shown at the Colonial.

"Notorious Gallagher"

Marguerite Snow, the charming and gifted Metro Star, and William Nigh, the versatile actor-director, will be seen on the screen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Wednesday, August 30, in "Notorious Gallagher," one of the most novel feature pictures ever produced for the Metro program. The story is a distinct novelty, and it is treated in masterly manner under the direction of Mr. Nigh.

"The Tarantula"

Although Edith Storey, of the Vitagraph players, has always had an enviable reputation for personality and for proving this statement in her own action in "The Tarantula," at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Thursday, Aug. 31.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

Their Misdeeds Seldom Evidence of Wickedness.

PLAYING HOOKY WON'T HURT

Parent Who Remembers How Things Used to Feel Is One Who Knows How to Manage His Boy.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

AT THE club Jones was reading the paper to himself and making comments to all within hearing. Suddenly he sat up and put down the paper. "Was that Walte's boy," he asked, "that was mixed up in that affair down at the lake?" No one seemed to know. Didn't even know there had been an affair. In that case Jones had to read to them. It was the story of a boy who had gone over the edge of a pier and was pulled out by another boy who happened to be passing. The boy who happened to be passing was young Bob, and he happened along at a time when he was supposed to be in school. That was the point. Although no one denied that it was eminently proper for him to jump into the water and save the ragged stranger, all were agreed that he had no business there. He was obviously playing truant.

"If a boy of mine did that," said Saffron, "I'd let him take all the medals and fine speeches that were coming to him, and after the celebration was all over I would take him into the woodshed and give him the worst flogging of his young life."

That sounded very heroic and very reasonable. After all, it's wicked to play truant. It was only a lucky chance that the boy came along in time to save the other child—perhaps this one had been a truant also. The chances were even that another time, he'd got run over by a fire engine. The boy's place is in the school, and he had no business along the lake front. He needed a lesson that would teach him his place.

It made Saffron real angry to think of a son of his committing an outrage upon law and morals. And the things he had in mind to do were—well, they were just the expressions of his anger. They were not thought out policies of applying force where it would do the most good. They were the instinctive appeals to violence, and had just about as much moral value as Bob's own dereliction.

And Brown, who had not been saying anything, could see that. And so he joined the conversation. He would not approve of truancy. He knew it was a bad thing and liable to lead to worse things. But there's no use get-punishing children. He was just as impulsive as the truant himself, with this difference. Whereas the boy had an uncomfortable feeling that he was doing something that was wrong—because it was disapproved—the man had the assurance that he was in the right, for in the punishment of children he was countenanced by generations of parents and most of his contemporaries.

The trouble with Brown was that, whereas he had learned enough to know that the misdeeds of children are in most cases the outward expressions of perfectly healthy instincts, and not evidences of "wickedness," and whereas he knew that most children will outgrow these misdeeds, he had no idea that there was anything to be done about it except to permit the fates to finish the story.

It is well for all of us to know what Brown knew. But that is not enough. Children will outgrow their childish impulses, but what will take their place? One of the ways in which the grown-ups acquired that feeling of righteousness in the presence of childish misdeeds was through the impressive indignation of their parents on the occasions of their own childish errors. It may be wrong for Saffron to put so much stress upon the wickedness of truancy, but it is just as wrong to evade the issue and treat it like teething, as something that will pass away when something else to do besides whipping children; Brown needed to learn that there was something to do.

As we become more and more familiar with the development of the child's mind we realize that many of the symptoms that are so alarming to others are in no way indications of depravity. But there is the danger that in learning this we may become indifferent to all symptoms. A child is to be watched and understood; this will avoid frequently the resort to violence. But he is to be understood and helped; this will save us frequently from the sin of omission.

We must know not merely enough to improve on the methods of revenge and penalty; we must know enough to evolve a positive program of constructive assistance to the child at every point at which his instincts conflict with the requirements of the world to which he must adjust himself.

Something to Regret.

In a Washington hotel lobby the other night reference was made to the wonderful thoughts of the little folk, when this incident was recalled by Congressman J. Edward Russell of Ohio:

One afternoon little Bessie sat in the kitchen watching her mother weave a hot iron through the dainty frills of some white frocks. The day was warm, and mother looked somewhat weary.

"Mamma," finally remarked the little girl in a sympathetic voice, "isn't it very hard work to iron?"

"Yes, dear," answered mother, with a soft sigh, "sometimes it is very hard."

For a moment the little girl thoughtfully communed with herself, and then her face became brightly illuminated. "Oh, mamma," she enthusiastically exclaimed, "Wouldn't it have been great if you had married a Chinaman?" —Philadelphia Telegraph.

Cheap Japanese Prints.

If you cannot afford expensive pictures, do not therefore put up with ugly ones. There are lovely prints that can be bought for a song, and if you do not wish to spend money on framing them, by all means mount them on gray, brown or black mats and tack them unframed on the wall. Japanese prints can be bought, in a size a little bigger than postcards, for 10 cents each. There are many lovely designs. One, in black, gray-browns and yellow, is a rainy scene at night. A Japanese woman with a servant, bearing a lantern, is silhouetted against a background of lighted houses, moving rickshaws and other pedestrians. Everybody carries a flat Japanese parasol, and long slanting lines of rain cut across the whole print. Others of these 30-cent prints show water scenes, garden scenes and Japanese children and babies in charming attitudes of play.

Peanut's Many Uses.

The peanut is a much more useful product than most people think. Besides its use in the roasted form, there are other innumerable uses.

The nuts contain from 42 to 50 per cent of a nearly colorless, bland, fixed oil, resembling that of the olive and used for similar purposes.

More than 25 years ago there was begun in Virginia the manufacture of peanut flour, of which a particularly palatable biscuit is made. North Carolina has long made pastry of pounded peanuts. It is also eaten for dessert, and is roasted as a substitute for coffee.

LABOR'S HOLIDAYS OF CENTURIES AGO

Workmen's Guilds of England Had Unique Methods of Celebration.

Labor Day Parades in This Country Are No Longer Popular With the Organized Workers—First One Held in 1884.

Since 1882, when the Knights of Labor resolved to hold their parades on Labor day, that holiday has been kept before the public in various localities, until now almost every state has followed the example of Colorado by making the first Monday in September a legal holiday. The idea of parading on that day has, however, lost popularity with labor organizations, as the holiday is celebrated in many forms of recreation by the several million strong army of wage earners who live by the exercise of brain or brawn. One day each year is therefore set apart for workers of all classes to relinquish labor and pursue the enjoyment of their individual bent. When there is such a diversity of sports every man demands his choice as to whether he shall spend the day at fishing, baseball, motoring or become an excursionist.

Nothing commands the good old days as strongly as the accounts of the feasts and festivals of the old English craftsmen, who kept certain holidays in revelry or ceremonious pageant even before America was discovered. In the present century it is almost impossible to imagine the influence of some of these old guilds of workmen, or to comprehend the occupations in which they were engaged. No longer is there any demand for horners, who engaged in making cups, spoons and window panes from the horns of cattle; nor is there but little demand for those whose business it was to dislodge chimney soot. Even the tinker who went from place to place mending pots and pans for housewives, and who passed them down to succeeding generations, has disappeared. There is no industry today, however, except perhaps that of building ships, but was represented in some crude way in the labor of the craftsmen, and if honesty and quality of work are considered, our hats must be off to those men of old.

That Labor day in Europe today is the 1st day of May is probably the outcome of this day having been celebrated by many of the old craftsmen before the age of invention. Among other merry-makers, the chimney sweeps spent a frolicsome Mayday, and in some localities still keep up some of their old customs. In former times London's chalk-faced chimney sweeps carried shovels and brushes as they paraded the streets dressed in cheap finery and decked with strips of gilt and colored paper. To these no Mayday was complete without a May dance.

The beribboned milkmaids who danced on the same day also aspired to have music at their jollification, and often marched behind a cow with gilt horns in procession. On that day these rural workers borrowed silver cups and tankards, which they hung around their milk-pails, decorated with ribbons and flowers. Such attractive paraphernalia helped them in collecting coins from their customers, before whom they danced.

Partly to secure a holiday and partly to increase their funds, the Friendly Society of Carters also celebrated the 1st of May with a procession. In country places the carters, with their wagons and horses gay with ribbons, stopped at the numerous public houses and at homes. At every stop within were under obligation to give ribbon to help in the decoration of the carts.

WORK

A Song of Triumph

By Angela Morgan, in New York Evening Mail.

Work! Thank God for the might of it. The ardor, the urge, the delight of it—Work that springs from the heart's desire, Setting the brain and the soul on fire—Oh, what is so good as the heat of it, And what is so glad as the beat of it, And what is so kind as the stern command, Challenging brain and heart and hand?

Work! Thank God for the pride of it. For the beautiful, conquering tide of it, Sweeping the life in its furious flood, Thrilling the arteries, cleansing the blood, Mastering stupor and dull despair, Moving the dreamer to do and dare, Oh, what is so good as the urge of it, And what is so glad as the surge of it, And what is so strong as the summons deep, Rousing the torpid soul from sleep?

Work! Thank God for the pace of it. For the terrible, keen, swift race of it, Flery steeds in full control, Nostrils aquiver to greet the goal, Work, the power that drives behind, Guiding the purposes, taming the mind, Holding the runaway wishes back, Reigning the will to one steady track, Speeding the energies faster, faster, Triumphing over disaster.

Oh, what is so good as the pain of it, And what is so great as the gain of it? And what is so kind as the cruel goad, Forcing us on through the rugged road? Work! Thank God for the swing of it. For the clamoring, hammering, ring of it, Passion of labor daily hurried On the mighty anvils of the world. Oh, what is so fierce as the flame of it? And what is so huge as the aim of it? Thundering on through dearth and doubt, Calling the plan of the Maker out, Work, the Titan; Work, the friend, Shaking the earth to a glorious end, Draining the swamps and blasting the hills, Doing whatever the Spirit wills—Rending a continent apart.

To answer the dream of the Master heart, Thank God for a world where none may shrink—

Thank God for the splendor of work!

LABOR DAY IS FOR ALL

It Is Not Intended for Any Class, but for Americans En Masse.

Men of labor came to America in the Mayflower. A printer and a carpenter signed the Declaration of Independence. George Washington, the whole world knows, was a surveyor at one time in his life. Lincoln was no more than a day laborer. Andrew Johnson was a tailor. William Howard Taft, after leaving college, was a newspaper reporter at $3 a week. Roosevelt. It can be fairly said, was a cowboy once.

A working man, by a strict definition, is "one who earns his living by manual labor"—otherwise, at tasks employing his hands. Farmers are working men and clerks in stores and offices must be, under the meaning of the dictionaries.

Actually, of course, anyone who works is a working man. Labor day, consequently, is not for any class, but for Americans en masse.

The following are but a few of the thousands of instances where great men of today began their successful careers by working with their hands:

Secretary Lane of President Wilson's cabinet learned the printers' trade in the office of a country weekly newspaper.

The Late James Whitcomb Riley.

Secretary of Labor Wilson began his career as a coal digger.

The first job held by Secretary McAdoo was that of a newsboy selling Macon Morning Telegraph. His next job was that of a farm laborer.

Secretary Redfield began his business career as a clerk in the post office at Pittsfield, Mass.

"I left school when I was fifteen," said the late James Whitcomb Riley, in the drawing enunciation once so familiar to the lecture-going public. "I knew I had to provide for myself, but I couldn't settle on anything. At last I hit on painting and took lessons—that's the way I now state it—in the graining of doors and the varnishing of miscellaneous woodwork."

Another famous Indiana man, Charles Warren Fairbanks, once worked as a carpenter for $12.50 a day. And Myron T. Herrick—T. for Timothy perhaps—the late ambassador to France, peddled dinner bells to farmers. Some of the bells are ringing yet. Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, also a multi-millionaire, was a clerk at $12 a week in a Chicago public office. "I was glad to get the place," he confessed.

In Her Party Frock.

The little miss, with the pretty curls, looks well in the simplest of her party frocks. She is sweetly conscious of being "all dressed up" and is entirely satisfied with things as they are. This is a state of mind most comfortable for all concerned.

The little party frock pictured above is made of such simple and inexpensive materials that every small girl is entitled to have her instinct for finery indulged. It requires nothing more extravagant than albatross cloth in cream white, a little Venetian lace in an all-over pattern and plain cream white net for the sleeves. The albatross is a light weight wool fabric in a crepe-like weave which has the advantage of being washable. It comes in white and all colors. Venetian lace is familiar as a pretty and serviceable sort which is just as washable as the plain net of which the sleeves are made.

In this dress the skirt is joined to a plain short sleeveless waist. With its fullness disposed in a group of plaits at each side the skirt hangs in a panel at the front and back. The short body is supported by narrow straps over the shoulder and fastens with small buttons and button holes in the back. The sleeves are gathered into three shirred sections over small cords and finished with a band of lace. The little slip-over jacket of lace is gathered over a cord into a round neck and bound with scallops at the back and front that lengthen into points at the side.

A wide rush of soft satin ribbon in one of the light tints is finished at one side with a big rosette bow with a single end. With a knowledge of the materials used and the small amounts required for a little girl, it is easy to figure the very modest cost of this pretty little party frock.

Lingerie Blouses.

The colored blouse of organdie, voile, georgette and wash satin has taken such a hold on the popular fancy that it is quite difficult to find a really attractive plain white blouse, excepting those for sports wear. Pale pink, all tones of tan and yellow, soft blues and grays predominate. The costume blouse of pale cream lace or Georgette usually has an interlining of the palest fish chiffon; the blue waist is piped with pink or another harmonious contrast. It is indeed a season of color and one may indulge to the heart's content.

For the Little Kindergartner.

The little miss who is about to take her initial step on the endless road of knowledge must be fitted out with plain and pretty frocks for school wear. Most of these are to be had ready made, in reliable materials and at prices so low that it is hardly worth while to make them at home. But others in which simple handwork in ornamental stitches is used for a finish are comparatively high priced. Here is one made of plain "India linen." This by the way, is an unsuitable name for a beautiful cotton fabric that needs no false colors for smooth sailing.

The plain full skirt is modeled at the top with mercerized crochet cotton and the edge of the full about the neck is finished with overcast stitches set close together. This cotton is in a color contrasting with the dress and in this instance delft blue is used on white. The top of the wide hem is outlined with diagonal stitches set close together and the edges of the small bands about the sleeves are done in the same way as the collar.

The greater number of dresses for school wear are made of heavier cottons and linens in colors. The fad for a reserved use of decorations made with the simplest of embroidery or other needlework stitches, shows no sign of decreasing in popularity. This quickly made and elegant-looking finish for the everyday clothes of little girls is in keeping with the familiar serviceable materials it is used on. It is not too fine for them. Fortunately the little miss whose home people can decorate her frocks in this way. Unexpectantly she will be educated to a fine "sense of clothes."

Remember That Boys Will Be Boys.

ting excited over it. Didn't we all do the same thing when we were young? Or at least we were all tempted to, and if we did not yield it was just our good fortune and not our superior virtue. Besides, its the sort of thing a child will do just because he is a child. When he gets to be as old as we are he won't be tempted to go down to the lake. Remember that boys will be boys. Give him a chance to grow up and he'll be all right.

This did not sound so heroic, but it did seem reasonable. After all, a day out of school breathing the fresh air and taking good exercise won't hurt any boy. He could make up his school work just as easily as though he had been absent on account of sickness, and this was better than sickness. Thousands of boys play "hooky" and then grow up to be decent citizens—some of them even become teachers or ministers. Let him alone, and he'll grow up all right.

Young Blank, whose children had not yet reached the age of truancy, was interested, but bewildered. He had expected to lay up a supply of practical wisdom to use in possible emergencies in the future. But he did not find the conflicting counsel very helpful. Evil-doers ought to be punished, of course; otherwise there would be no premium on doing the right thing. But if a child does what we consider "evil" without malice, should he still be made to suffer—especially when he is very likely to outgrow the instincts that lead to such acts?

The answer, with Saffron was that he had taken the pains to think out the right and wrong of playing truant, but the right and wrong of

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

A Labor Day Denouement

Ellis Graham

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Are you really going to give up your job, Katie?"

"Yes, John."

"Have you told Seeley?"

"Yes, and he was real decent about it. Of course, he began all that stuff about the growing business and my opportunity to grow with the firm, but I cut him short."

"How on earth, Katie?" asked John, for Seeley was something of an ogre to his employees.

"I said: 'Look here, Mr. Seeley, you can't soap this situation enough to make me slip into seeing it your way. I've got an old mother and father who need me, and I'm going home. He said: 'Now, Katie, you're just a bit homesick. Forget it. You'll miss your salary before you've been home a week, and a village don't offer a girl anything unless the butcher or the blacksmith marries her.'"

"Well, Katie, that's all so." Mention of the village eligibles made John hold to side with the unpopular Seeley.

"Yes, nobody knows that better than I do. But I'm making just $12 a week, and how much of that do you think I save after paying board and laundry and enfeeble and buying what few clothes I have?"

"Not much, I guess."

"In three years since I started in here at $8 a week I've managed to pinch along and save just an even $75. That's $25 a year, see? If I'd get sick that $75 would go in a jiffy, and working nine hours a day in a stuffy office and sitting up nights to mend and sew and wash half her clothes don't help to keep any girl healthy. Besides, my mother and father need me there. They don't say anything, but I know they need me, and they looked so old and frail when I was home Christmas. I told Seeley some of all this, and he said: 'I guess you're about right, Katie, but if you want to come back, there'll be a place for you here.'"

John stood helplessly with his hands in his trousers pockets and turned the waste basket this way and that with his feet. Katie slipped a purple card paper between the white letterhead and yellow second sheet and nimbly twirled the trio around her typewriter roll. Then she paused and John spoke very softly:

"You'll miss the life here, Katie."

"You'll miss the life here, Katie. You'll miss the car rides and the band concerts and the movies."

"Yes, but not any more than they miss me now at home." Katie looked pretty solemn, for she was young and loved gayety and music and the movies. John managed to find a scrap of paper on the floor and as he stooped to put it in the waste basket, he whispered: "Will you miss me a little bit?"

"Yes, John, lots."

Looking up, she caught such a pained look in John's eyes that she quickly stooped to blow the dust from her dictaphone record. There were tears in her eyes as she adjusted the long rubber tubes to her ears and turned on the electric current.

Katie's first week at home was delightful, but when she had cleaned and straightened up the whole house and planted her flowers she was pretty tired and felt the need of some diversion, but, alas! no music or movies or car rides were available in Plainville. Sunday was a long, still, lonesome day, and she did not enjoy the gossip which followed the morning service at the church where her parents always sat in a front pew. As summer came and her flowers grew and blossomed she felt better satisfied, but the small outfit for a few necessary repairs and furnishings had made quite a hole in her little savings. There was no income save the few scattered dollars from her father's fees as a justice of the peace and the butter and egg money her mother contributed. Nobody in Plainville had the slightest need of Katie's skilled services as a dictaphone operator. She was resourceful, though, and hit upon a plan which netted her a small amount each week. She engaged half the space in the hardware merchant's show window for Saturday afternoon. Then she baked some loaves of bread, an angel food cake and some little tpa cakes. She made an appetizing salad. All these she displayed in the window on Saturday with a card which said: "Let these help to make your Sunday dinner easy."

Plainville people were conservative. They looked askance at all innovations, and so the first housewives who passed gazed curiously at the display without a thought of purchasing. Young Mrs. Moore walked right in, though, as soon as she saw Katie's display and read the attractive little card.

"No stale baker's stuff for me when I can get this dandy bread," Mrs. Moore laid aside two loaves of bread as she spoke, and passed on to the salad. "No standing over the stove cooking vegetables and cake when these things drop right down like the manna did to somebody in the Sunday school lesson. Larry Moore doesn't hurt himself at the head of that section gang, and I shan't hurt myself cooking his victuals over a red hot stove."

Two other housewives followed Mrs. Moore's lead, and Katie's stock was soon disposed of. After her second Saturday, she arranged with certain housewives to call them up on Fridays to see what she could supply for their Sunday dinners, and she soon built up a good little business.

One Saturday she got a letter from John telling about the preparations for a big Labor day celebration on Monday. She remembered that last Labor day was the first time she had ever gone out with John and it hurt her to notice that instead of his mentioning it in his letter, he wrote: "I'm expecting to have the time of my life Monday. Hope you'll have as good a time as I do."

She had not been downtown for several days, but on Monday she decided she would take a holiday, although the village made no observance of Labor day. She put on a fresh white dress, her flower-trimmed hat and white shoes and started out for a walk. She met one of the village girls who was agog over the arrival of the new grocer from the city.

"Oh, he's swell, I tell you! And he isn't married, either!" she exclaimed, with sparkling eyes.

Katie went to the post office and the new store window looked so attractive she crossed over. She had a friendly feeling for this store because its contents and its keeper had come from the city she was longing to see again, so she thought she would go in and inspect it inside. As she walked in she saw behind the counter somebody who surprised her so that she stood quite still, while her face became as white as her dress. It was John. Out from behind the counter he came and grabbed her hands.

"Katie! Katie!" he exclaimed. "I didn't know how good it was going to be to see you once again. How do you like my store?"

"Your store, John? Is it really yours?"

"Yes, mine. I had saved up a few hundred dollars in the eight years I've been working and I got to thinking it would take all the best years of my life at that rate to save a couple of thousand. I'd worked three years in a grocery before I was shipping clerk for Seeley, and I know the business. I'm starting in a small way, but I'll grow!" John paused and brushed imaginary dust from the freshly varnished counter—"If you'll help me, Katie. Don't you think you'd like to be the better half of a growing business man?"

"Yes, if—"

"If what, Katie?"

"If he loved me," blushing violently.

"Katie, dear, I love you so much there ain't words enough to tell you."

With her head on his shoulder and his arms about her, John managed to substitute actions for words in a manner so satisfactory that they agreed ever afterward that both of them had the time of their lives on that great secular Labor day.

HOMETOWN HELPS

DESTROY BEAUTY OF CITY

Cards and Placards Have No Place in Streets of Any Well-Ordered Community.

Political ambitions are becoming so much an obstacle to civic beauty that the aesthetic souls of many communities have been on the verge of rebellion for some time past. When a man becomes obsessed with a desire to shine in public life he announces his matches virtues by means of glaring cards and placards. These cards are placed at every point where the human vision might be expected to dwell. Does one pause to enjoy the grandeur of a rural scene, he is reminded from every tree and rock that "Smith is the people's choice" for constable, or that "Jones stands for the square deal."

The outrage is heightened by a series of homely visages showing the aspiring ones in various poses of vanity.

Vandalism is a strong term, but it is too strong for such practices? The worst part is that it is perennial. The bounteous crop sown at election time is permitted to remain the year around. By the time the elements have succeeded in destroying one crop, another has put in appearance. Cards may be found in any grove—the cards of men who have been politically dead for years. It may have been proved at the polls that the erstwhile "people's choice" was not any one's choice; yet he must be regaled with the placards on every tree and eminence.

Minneapolis, whose finer sensibilities have been aroused, will have no more of this. Hereafter, candidates will have to proclaim their virtues in some other manner. Defacement of scenery by homely visages and trite slogans will be inhibited by law. At an election now impending, most of the candidates have agreed to keep their placards out of public scenic places. Others are to be arrested. The example set by Minneapolis is a worthy one.—Portland Oregonian.

TROUBLES OF LARGE CITIES

Land Ownership in Europe Carries Responsibilities That Are Unknown in This Country.

In Europe extensive land ownership frequently involves municipalities in unprofitable disputes. A large town owning a parcel of land in a nearby township proposes to build a hospital on it. The project is not pleasing to the township; its council prepares a building plan for the district, and runs a street through the proposed hospital site. Berlin itself was, only a few years ago, treated thus by a suburban neighbor. Electoral laws are severe; disenfranchisement is sweeping in effect. Under the "three class" method of apportioning the voting power, a taxpayer in the "first class" may have thirty times as much voting power as one in the second, and 400 times as much as their "third class" neighbor. Again, municipal governments are business agencies with most liberal charters. They build barracks—in the larger cities the average number of persons housed in one structure runs from Frankfurt's 20 to Berlin's 77—and these structures are material of a purely speculative business which cannot be regarded as a healthful influence physically or politically in the city's life. These things and a hundred others of similar nature do not condemn German municipal government any more than the peculiar excellences of the system constitute a condemnation of the British system in which those particular excellences are lacking. But they do bring out the difficulties of government and emphasize the fruitlessness of comparison of systems.—Exchange.

Window Seats Make for Comfort

One of the details of planning which should not be overlooked is the matter of window seats, of which there can hardly be too many in a home. In every bay window where possible a window seat should be constructed, and so constructed as to be useful as well as ornamental; that it have covers in the top, neatly hinged and so arranged that they may be easily opened to permit using the space under the seat for the storage of things which it is desired to have handy and for which there seems no other convenient place.

Around the fireplace there is nothing more attractive and comfortable looking than a nice built-in seat, and cover, as the space beneath is very useful for storing the kindling wood and occasionally a few big sticks as well, when it is not convenient to use a wood box or basket beside the fireplace.

Wide Streets in Uruguay

Cities that are worrying over narrow streets and sidewalks may take a lesson from the recent action of Montevideo, capital of Uruguay, which has passed an ordinance requiring that all buildings be erected at least 32.8 feet from the boundary line, except in the business district, where 13.12 feet spare frontage must be allowed for walks and parking, and must be entirely free from steps, balustrades and incumbrances.

Far Behind the Times.

Penelope—Marcella is years and years behind the times.

Perceval—What makes you think that?

Penelope—Just now she wanted to know if her hat was on straight.

Vices are among the oldest things on record, yet history doesn't mention the loss of a single one.

It is easier for a man to be the architect of his own fortune than to be the builder.

The Beneficiary.

"Professor Diggs has just succeeded in deciphering an ancient papyrus given up by half a dozen savants."

"Well, what good will that do humanity?"

"Perhaps it won't benefit humanity in general, but it will enable Professor Diggs to sign a few more lecture contracts."

Electric Wheel Chairs.

Electric wheel chairs similar to those employed at the Panama-Pacific International exposition last year are being used successfully in Europe for the wounded and crippled soldiers. Invariably the convalescent men prefer to direct their own chair rather than to have someone push them about. One of these chairs, which is of Swiss make and costs a small sum, is equipped with a one-quarter horse power motor suspended between the steering and rear wheel. Current is supplied from a battery of 15 lead plate cells housed in three boxes beneath the seat. The battery is of 50 ampere hours' capacity and provides sufficient energy for a run of thirty to forty miles. Five forward and five reverse speeds are provided. The steering and operating mechanism is of the very simplest.

Obedience is economy. Disobedience, extravagance. He who disobeys the laws of nature has a doctor bill to pay. He who disobeys the laws of his country has a lawyer's bill to pay.

"Barache," wrote Harry in his physiology examination, "comes from bits of information getting inside the ear tubes."

Getting What He Deserves.

Nestling in a newspaper corner next to the Panama-hat ads we find this stray sunbeam of a heart throb:

"The first face the baby sees in this world is full of kindness, and the last to bend over him when he is old and dying is full of pitying tenderness. It is the faces he sees in between that cause him all his troubles."

This is a dear sweet thought, but it strikes us that the "in between" faces are looking at him and very likely reflecting back to him just about what they see. Quite often it is not either kindness or tenderness, for, taking it by and large, this is a fairly just world.—Collier's.

Time's Revenances.

"The authorities wouldn't let me wear my new bathing costume," said the queen of musical comedy. "They said it was too risky."

"And you had to throw it away?"

"Oh, no, I'd wear it in the show next season. Then they'll pay money to come and see it."

Mr. I Has Shortest Name.

Mr. I, a fisherman in Hawaii, has the shortest name in the world. He wins over General O of Mexico by a valid technicality, as headline writers can attest.

CONGRESS MOVES TO HALT RAILROAD STRIKE

Administration Bill Gives Men Eight-Hour Day and Ten- Hour Pay.

RAILROAD CHIEFS ARE OPPOSED TO PROPOSITION

With the completion of the Administration's railway wage bill on Thursday, and its approval by President Wilson on the one hand and the brotherhood presidents on the other hand, belief that a strike will be averted has grown stronger in official circles.

As yet no assurances to this effect have been given by the brotherhood presidents. They were in conference with President Wilson Thursday afternoon. President Wilson called their attention to the present legislation and argued that if it shall not have been actually enacted by Saturday night it will have gone far enough to show that Congress stands ready to meet their demands, and urged as a patriotic duty that they rescind their strike order. After the conference it was announced at the White House that the representatives had "given no assurance of any kind."

Later, in a hearing before the Senate Committee on Inter-State Commerce, Mr. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, said that enactment of an eight-hour day law by Congress would be acceptable to the men and, therefore, a "satisfactory settlement," such as would make it possible for the brotherhood heads to rescind the order for a strike.

Out of the nine-hours' argument two facts stood clearly in the estimation of all affected parties. Congress alone can prevent a strike, and the public eventually will foot the bill for an eight-hour day with 10-hours' pay, which the trainmen demand. The railroad executives and the shippers insisted that the strike order at least should be postponed, and the four brotherhood chiefs declared with equal vehemence it could not be.

All sides apparently were more or less satisfied with the hearing, which had given them an opportunity to lay their cases before the public.

A dramatic scene, in which Mr. Garretson was the central figure, brought the hearing to a climax last night, shortly before the taking of testimony closed.

Garretson Explains

Throughout the day members of the committee at different times had asked the four brotherhood heads if they were powerless to stop a strike, save by reporting a satisfactory settlement to their men. The question invariably was evaded, by saying that Mr. Garretson would explain the situation before the hearing closed.

For almost an hour Mr. Garretson kept the crowd laughing with quaint expressions and humorous stories. When he had only three minutes left in which to speak, his brother presidents urged him to answer the question of power to postpone a strike. He suddenly became serious, stood erect, gazed at the ceiling for a moment and then began to speak.

"We have been asked," he said slowly, "if we have the power to defer the strike. It has been called for next Monday. I have the power to defer that date in my organization, but in the other organizations the situation is different. The heads of the other brotherhoods cannot call back the strike order."

His Gethsemane

"But here is where I stand. For years my men have trusted me. When I stood before the President the other night and he asked me if this could be done, I found my Gethsemane. To the men who have made me the recipient of all these things, I owe my first obligation. I can put it off, but if I did without gaining a satisfactory settlement, there would linger in the minds of the men who trusted me thoughts of treachery. If I put it off, across a fair record of 30 years would be written the word 'traitor.'"

For a moment the witness paused and seemed to peer far out over the heads of the crowd. Then tears came into his eyes and he rolled down his cheeks. He started to speak but choked. Apparently summoning all his strength he threw out his arms, lowered his eyes to the crowd and in a low voice asked "can I face it?" and dropped into his chair.

Not a person in the room moved for several seconds. Mr. Garretson relieved the situation by rising from his chair and leaving the chamber.

Will Rush Bill

Representative Adamson of Georgia made public the bill which has the Administration backing, announcing that the Democrats had determined to bring this before the House by special rule this morning, and that it is expected it will be passed by 4:30 this afternoon. Mr. Adamson said he did not expect any material opposition to the passage of the measure.

This bill practically grants everything the railway brotherhoods have demanded. It makes eight hours a standard day's work for men engaged in operations of trains, after December 1, 1916, and provides that they shall receive for this eight hours' work not less than they are now receiving for ten hours' work.

It provides a wage commission to investigate the operations of the act during a period of not less than six months.

LABOR NEWS' GROWTH MOST SATISFACTORY

Paper is Making Rapid Strides in the Way of Securing Additional New Business

The management of The Labor News may well be pardoned if it takes particular pride in this, the Labor Day edition of 1916. While not as large as some of the special editions which have been issued by the daily papers in the valley, it nevertheless compares favorably from a news and typographical standpoint and is well filled with advertising from the most prominent business and manufacturing concerns within its territory.

The Labor News is today a better paper from every standpoint than at any previous time since it was started, something over one year ago. Not only is the valley merchant becoming more convinced of its availability as a first-class advertising medium each week and affirms that conviction by using liberal space with regularity, but the subscription list is growing daily. Not a day passes but that several new subscribers are turned in. Members of the various locals throughout the valley are interested in the success of The Labor News, and accordingly work to get new subscribers. As a result, the list has grown rapidly, and it now has a large circulation.

The paper also stands well with the employer of labor. The old idea that a labor paper, to rightly represent the workmen, had to fight the employer on all occasions, has been dispelled by this paper, the employer being given a square deal, as well as the worker.

As is invariably the case when a labor paper is run honestly in the interest of the wage earner, The Labor News has had to combat those opposed to organized labor. But the management has kept its hands clean, and believes that it has gained the admiration of many of the employers, who may not agree with the principles of organized labor for which the paper naturally stands.

It is the aim of the management of The Labor News to make the paper better as time passes; to make it of more value to the worker; to espouse his cause and to make it a power in the Beaver Valley.

To make good clothes requires skilled tailors—the kind the Kay Tailors, Beaver Falls, Employ. Look for the Label.—adv.

EXPRESS APPRECIATION OF WORK PAPER IS DOING

BIG CELEBRATION AT JUNCTION MONDAY

The coming Labor Day celebration at Junction Park on Monday next, promises to be the most notable ever held by the Unions of the Beaver Valley, and if the weatherman will only do his part, there will be thousands of workers and their families at the park, ready for a day's outing and eager to witness the fine program of sports offered for their amusement. The program in full appears on this page, together with the names of the donors of the big list of prizes. The big ball game takes place in the morning; there will be band concerts both afternoon and evening, and Captain Blondell, champion swimmer of the world, will entertain the crowd with his skillful aquatic feats in the afternoon, and a water carnival will be held in the evening, featured by the blowing up of the American sailing ship, "William P. Frye."

Editors and managers of newspapers, as a usual thing, come in for a mighty sight more condemnation than praise, but there are, fortunately, occasions, when their hearts are warmed and their ambitions given a boost. The management of The Labor News is in receipt of a letter this week, reproduced below, which is certainly most gratifying, aside from the monetary consideration contained in said letter. It is evident that members of Lodge No. 323, B. of R. T., thoroughly appreciate the efforts of The Labor News management in making to further the cause of the union men, and this appreciation was not only expressed in words, but a check accompanied the letter. That the management of The Labor News feels grateful, indeed, to the members of Freedom Lodge No. 323, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, goes without saying. The letter follows:

Rochester, Pa., August 26, 1916.
To the Officers of The Beaver Valley
Labor News, Beaver, Pa.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:
Appreciating the great good your paper has been to the railroad men of this community, Freedom Lodge No. 323 of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, at its regular meeting last evening, issued a warrant for twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, payable to the Labor News, it is herewith enclosed, along with our thanks and very best wishes for a prosperous future for you and your paper.

It was also decided that we could be of some assistance to the paper by a hearty cooperation with the business men who advertise, and assist in making your paper a success. This we agreed to do.

Again thanking you for your past assistance in the interest of Organized Labor, and with best wishes and kindest personal regards, I am,
Fraternally yours,
GEORGE A. HOWE,
Press Secretary.

LADIES TO GIVE SUPPER

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Midland, will give a chicken supper on Thursday evening, Sept. 14, at Rice's Hall, from five to nine o'clock. These affairs, which are given by the society at different periods during the year, are looked forward to with great pleasure by many people and the indications are that the coming supper will be successful, if not more so than any previous occasion.

Courteous treatment, value for your money, a self-satisfied, well dressed feeling, are the things to be had at the Kay Tailors, Beaver Falls. We appreciate your patronage.—adv.

A GOOD CHANCE TO HELP

An excellent opportunity for men interested in the success of The Labor News to do the paper a good turn is offered by means of the big celebration at Junction Park on Labor Day. There will be hundreds of union men on the ground, many of whom are not subscribers to The Labor News, and who would gladly part with a dollar for a year's subscription, provided they were approached. If friends of the paper will make it their business to solicit subscriptions on the day in question, devoting a small part of their time during the day to the work, the rapidly growing list would receive a substantial boost. Think it over, telephone the Labor News office for a subscription blank book and then GET BUSY.

BROTHERHOODS HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

Men Officially Notified to Strike on Monday Unless Otherwise Advised.

Lewis Hall, Freedom, was taxed to its capacity yesterday by members of the Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, who had assembled in joint union session and were officially notified, that, on Monday, September 4th, at 6 o'clock in the morning, unless they are otherwise notified by their Local Chairman, the strike will take effect and all men will be governed by the following rules:

1. No man in road service involved in the strike will perform any service after the hour set to strike, unless he has already begun a trip and has actually left the terminal. If the train has left the terminal he will complete the trip and deliver the engine and train at the end of run, or tie-up point if tied up under the law, after which he will perform no further service until the close of the strike. Men in other than road service will leave the service at the appointed time.

So far as your legal right to strike is concerned, there is no difference between a mail train and freight train. You have identically the same right to refuse to perform service on a mail train as you have to refuse to perform service on a freight train.

2. All men on strike will keep away from the company's property, except such men as are designated certain duties to be performed by authority of the organizations.

3. Every man should understand that the laws of the land must be obeyed. Acts of violence of any nature will not be tolerated by the organizations.

4. The local representatives will arrange for a hall for meeting purposes at all terminals, using one of their own lodge rooms if available. Immediately after strike becomes effective all men will assemble at the hall secured for meeting purposes. When thus assembled an organization will be perfected by the election of a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary.

No person will be permitted to be present in the meeting halls other than those who are on strike, except by permission of the assemblage.

PROMINENT MEMBER OF LOCAL 842, B. R. T.

The Labor News presents below a likeness of J. O. Rumberger, for four years president of Greater Pittsburgh Lodge No. 842, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and a man who has always taken and still takes an important part in railway brotherhood affairs.

Mr. Rumberger was the first president of Lodge 842, and after serving four successive years, was elected treasurer, which office he held for one year, resigning on account of holding the office of chairman of the Grievance Committee and Legislative Representative. He is also an active member of the United Railway Brotherhood's Political Association of Allegheny county, and a member of the Executive board of the "Get-Together" organization. The aim of this organization is to extend the hand of brotherly love to all members of the Railway Brotherhoods, and to impress upon those member's minds the fact that "an injury to one is an injury to all."

Brother Rumberger has been a member of the B. of R. T. for sixteen years, and his advancement to the numerous high offices which he has held has been caused by the fact that he has always been on the job, ever ready to help a brother who has been in hard luck, and because he has been honest, fearless and a faithful worker in the cause of the B. of R. T.

"Big Rummy," as Brother Rumberger is familiarly known by his friends, is a MAN—could more be said?

The federal Workmen's Compensation Act has been passed by both houses of Congress and now only needs the President's O. K. to become a law. This much-desired legislation has been pending for eight years. The present law only provides for those who are engaged at hazardous occupations to all of the four hundred thousand federal employees. The bill provides that in case of death the widow shall receive 35 per cent of the monthly pay and ten per cent additional for each dependent child under eighteen, same to continue until death or remarriage. In case of injury, benefits shall be at the rate of two-thirds the wages lost during disability, with a maximum of $66.67 a month, and not less than $32.33, unless the employee's wage is less than that amount, in which case he shall receive full pay.

SERVICE PENSIONS NOT LIKED BY MEN

The Southern Pacific Railroad has warned employees that if they join the threatened strike for an eight-hour day, they will forfeit their pension rights, and Editor Barry, of the Star, says:

"That was to have been expected. Every corporation that introduces an 'old age pension' scheme does so with the reservation, clearly expressed that it may withdraw its provisions whenever it sees fit to do so. In other words, the employee never acquires a 'vested right' to be cared for in his old age—it all depends upon his subservience and willingness to submit to the rules laid down by his superiors for his guidance.

"That is the difference between a real pension, such as the Typographical Union, for instance, provides for its aged members, and the 'tin can' kind which has a nice strong string tied to it and can be disconnected without consulting the wishes of the supposed beneficiary.

"One may work for twenty or twenty-five years with the tempting bait of provision for his declining years dangling before his eyes, only to discover that on account of some infraction of rules or a desire to improve his condition by acting with his fellow employees, he is cut off from the promised benefits of long and faithful service.

"No doubt the service pension is a good thing in its way; but its real object is to enforce obedience and subservience by threat of its withdrawal. It is not a safe dependence for red-blooded Americans."

MODERN METHODS PAY

That the application of "safe and sane" methods in the banking business pays, is demonstrated by the success which has attended the efforts of the officers and directors of the Citizens National Bank of Monaca to place this institution among the leading financial concerns of the Beaver Valley. Organized in 1901, the bank has enjoyed a steady growth, until today, it boasts deposits of close to $280,000; resources amounting to over $400,000, and surplus and profits of over $26,000. The officers are: John T. Taylor, president; John J. Allen, vice president; Mont D. Youtes, cashier; Waldo E. Mengel, assistant cashier. The Board of Directors is composed of John T. Taylor, John J. Allen, J. Rankin Martin, Louis Kleyle, A. L. McKibbin, Mont. D. Youtes and Alonzo S. Batchelor.

Virgil's immortal epic begins with "Arms and the man, I sing." Were he writing today his theme would be, I think, "Tools and the man," for tools and the man is a phrase expressing twentieth century progress into the untried and unknown. Although labor has not fully come into its own, and is still wearing chains, more or less chafing, it is yet worthy to be the theme of the world's epic. Arms are destructive, labor is creative. The man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, is the true representative of modern civilization. He who scratches the earth with a hoe to make it smile a harvest is a greater benefactor than he who destroys and lays waste by arms what labor has created. Let us on Labor Day magnify "tools and the man," not "arms and the man."

Working men are for peace. They believe in the brotherhood of man—that all men are of one blood, and that war is only another name for murder, except it be in self defense. When workmen everywhere recognize that they are bound together by a stronger bond than that which is called patriotism, nations will be compelled to lay down their arms and war will be no more.

Labor Day belongs to the workmen. It is the sounding-board of labor that magnifies its demands and sends its voice to the ends of the earth. There are two classes into which society is divided—the privileged and the disinherited. The former has had the upper hand for centuries. It has ruled by might, and in its own interests, and does so yet. Capitalism is dominant and greedy. In interprets "a fair day's work for a fair day's wage" to mean as much work for as little pay as the laborer can be forced to concede. Workmen are compelled to strike to gain their just demands. Instead of labor being held in high honor, it is under restraint. Instead of being in demand, it has to beg for a job. The most sacred thing on earth, it is sold to the highest bidder in the market.

Labor is creative; it can transform the wilderness into a garden; it can cover the earth with a network of railroads and telegraph wires that destroy distance; can send messages through the air thousands of miles apart; it can sail ships under the sea, on the sea and through the air; it can build cities, and villages, and parks, and erect monuments of art; it can produce food in abundance. And in short, it can do everything, and without labor nothing can be done.

There should be no idle men. Drones have no place in society. He who will not work should starve. If labor were universal, waste eliminated, wars ended, nations in friendly relations the world would be prosperous, everybody have an abundance of the good things of life, and there would be more happiness to the square inch than there is to an acre now. All this labor aims to achieve. It puts into concrete form the deepest longings of the soul.

THE PROGRESS OF THE LABOR NEWS

The first Monday in September has been set apart by the American Federation of Labor as Labor Day. This year the day falls on September 4. The purpose of the day is to direct general thought toward the needs and aspirations of the workers and to afford the workers themselves time and opportunity to consider those things which vitally concern them and their labor organizations, through which they are trying to secure a living wage and reasonable hours of employment.

The Central Labor Union of Beaver County will celebrate the day at Junction Park, where an elaborate program will be offered for the amusement of the big crowd which is sure to attend.

The Central Labor Union, through the medium of its paper, The Labor News, desires to express its appreciation of the liberality shown by the various advertisers in this Labor Day issue, and to also thank the many business concerns which have made donations to the cause of labor.

It is the desire of the management of The Labor News to have the business men and other employers of labor in this valley on friendly terms with the various labor organizations, and the paper assures the employer a square deal from every standpoint.

The Labor News asks all members of the different locals, and friends of labor in general to patronize the different advertisers who have helped to make this Labor Day edition and the celebration at Junction Park a success.

nor more than nine months, appropriate $25,000 for the expense of this commission, which is to report its findings to the president and Congress and allows the President to determine the salary of the three commissioners.

Penalty Proviso.

The penalty proviso sets forth that any person violating any part of the act shall be guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $100 and not more than $1000, or imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both.

In only one respect does the Adamson bill fall short of the demands of the brotherhoods. It provides that overtime shall be paid at "a rate not less than a pro rata rate for the standard eight-hour work day," instead of allowing a 50 per cent increase for overtime. The brotherhood presidents have let it be known that the time and a half for overtime was their "trading demand."

It was agreed that the Senate would meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to begin consideration of the bill. President Wilson will be in his office at the Capitol at the time.

President Wilson told the leaders he was doing everything possible to have Congress legislate to meet the situation, and that it was their duty as American citizens to postpone or cancel the strike order pending its action.

Assails Railroad Heads

Senator Reed assailed the railroad heads for "taking the action they knew would bring on the strike when they had the assurances of President Wilson that they would be given increased rates, if the operating expenses under an eight-hour day warranted."

"There are great financial powers in this country," Senator Reed charged, "that want the strike and want it at this time. There are a half-dozen men in New York City who can prevent the strike. The only thing necessary for them to grant is the eight-hour day, and they can do it without the loss of a dollar to themselves. Congress has the power to keep the great lines of interstate commerce open. If the managements cannot do it, a legal power will."

Culinary workers of San Francisco, who are on strike for the eight-hour day, after being continuously charged with inciting to riot, while doing picket duty, adopted a unique method by using donkeys to advertise the non-union establishments.

"Miss Petticoats"

"Miss Petticoats," from the book by Dwight Tilton, has been adapted to the screen by Harley Knoles, and supported by a company of genuine players of merit, Alice Brady plays the leading role in a manner altogether pleasing and charming, at the same time giving the characters such a great impersonation as to make even her closest admirers gaze on in wonder. The many scenes requiring a sea or mill scene were filmed in the requisite locale, an old fishing schooner, the Chas. W. Morgan, of New Bedford, Mass., as well as the Wamsutta Mills being utilized in the production of this World Film feature which will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, September 4th.

"Temptation and the Man"

Though a very popular screen player, Hobart Henley's first big feature is "Temptation and the Man," the Red Feather feature to be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, Sept. 5, and his admirers are given an opportunity to see him play in five consecutive reels. "Temptation and the Man" is played by an all star cast, which includes, besides the star, Sybil Dowling, Bert Busby, Sydney Bracy, Joseph Granby and Clara Beyers, who all show their merit in this sterling photoplay.

"The Worldly Woman"

Mme. Petrova, the gifted emotional actress, is now starring in "The Worldly Woman," the Metro production which will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Wednesday, Sept. 6.

This is one of the strongest features ever offered on this program, and is said to be the best vehicle ever provided for Mme. Petrova, whose wonderful powers of pantomime have made her foremost among photoplay artists since she forsook the stage for the screen. She is surrounded by a strong supporting cast.

"The Daring of Diana"

"The Daring of Diana," a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature of New York newspaper life, will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Thursday, Sept. 7.

Thrills are many as Anita Stewart in the title role, receives her different assignments which gradually lead into the plot itself. In one scene we find Diana roaming about the streets trying to find some news for her paper.

Director Drew is noted for the realism which he instills into his pictures and his "Daring of Diana," is no exception to the rule. There is a thrill in every few feet without any melodramatic impressions.

"The Eye of God"

At the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Friday, Sept. 8th, Bluebird photoplays presents Tyrone Power and Louis Weber in "The Eye of God."

Mr. Power plays the role of a murderer, waiting in his cell the footfalls of his executioners. Miss Weber is the woman who has so cleverly applied the wiles of femininity to the susceptible heart of the criminal that he confesses and awaits his doom.

Decidedly out of the ordinary is this drama and entertainment of the most tensely gripping nature is assured to those who seek something uncommon and extraordinary in photoplaying.

BROTHERHOODS HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

5. The secretary will arrange a roll call (alphabetically) with each organization on a separate sheet. Roll will be called twice daily, morning and afternoon. The names of the non-members will be kept separate on the roll from the names of those who are members of the organization. All strikers will be required to answer the roll call and also to be in the halls, where halls are provided, during the day at all times, unless excused by committee action or by chairman of the meeting.

The secretary will also keep a record of the proceedings from day to day.

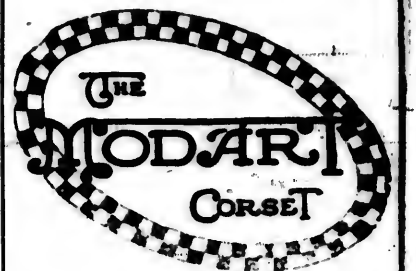

6. In the conduct of every strike there are numerous irresponsible persons, not members of the organizations, who take occasion to engage in acts of violence and disorderly conduct, and such actions are usually attributed to members of the organization, and great care should be taken by every member of the organizations to avoid associating with such persons and such conduct should be discouraged so as not to cast reproach upon the cause.

7. Some railroad officials may endeavor to coerce or mislead the men by asserting that men at other points have not quit or that they have returned to work. Such information should be discounted and all strikers should apply to their officers and committeemen for information, and be governed accordingly, and no member or non-union man will return to work until the strike is officially declared off, and all will return to work at the same time, without prejudice and with all former rights.

Each clause was read separately, and instructions given. Instructions were clear and concise, and there is a small chance for a misunderstanding.

At the afternoon meeting, George D. Blackwood, secretary of the Joint Protective Board of the B. of L. E. and E. for the Pennsylvania Lines West, was present and gave an interesting talk on the procedure of the Grand Officers in the eight hour, time and one-half for overtime movement, over which the strike is called.

At the evening session three local men did the speaking and were received with great enthusiasm. Those present were in a cheerful frame of mind and apparently were pleased that some definite action was soon to be taken in the matter.

The modern system of trades unionism came into existence in England about 1812.

Barbers of Newark, N. J., are conducting a vigorous campaign of organization.

The Machinists' strike in Philadelphia, is gradually coming to an end; thirty-five shops have signed an agreement for a closed shop and less than fifteen hundred men remain on strike.

Chief of Police McNamara, of Waco, Texas, has asked the mayor and city council to study the question of eight hours for policemen, claiming that such a move would prevent worry, care and vexation, thereby causing the officers to give better service.

The convention of the International Typographical Union, last week, instructed the executive board to lend its aid in a movement toward the erection of a suitable memorial to Ottomar Mergenthaler, inventor of the linotype machine, and to study the question of erecting an office building for the union, to be named in honor of the late William B. Prescott.

Seven thousand female cigarmakers of Detroit, Mich., are on strike against low wages and obnoxious conditions. Among their complaints are, working over the legal limit of hours per day, insufficient time allowed to eat lunch, fined for not making the required amount of cigars out of a given amount of stock, making one extra cigar with each hundred for nothing. This item alone nets the manufacturers over 10,000,000 cigars a year, without any cost for labor.

United States Senator Bryan, of Florida, opposed the federal Child Labor Act and "Dixie," a paper printed in Jacksonville, sarcastically replies that States rights is a bugaboo, used only by near-statesmen when it serves their purpose. When hog cholera measures are considered they want the government to act as a whole. Do they consider the hog more important than the child, it asks.

City laborers of Milwaukee, Wis., will receive thirty cents per hour for eight hours, after September 1st.

The Register of Mobile, Alabama, was one of the first southern papers to pass favorably upon the recent federal Child Labor Act, claiming that some states have aided notoriously in giving children the necessary protection, thereby inviting the needed federal legislation.

B. V. T. EMPLOYEES HOLD BIG OUTING

Have Good Attendance and Excellent
Sport Program With Base Ball Game.

The fourth annual outing of the employees of the Beaver Valley Traction Company, held on last Tuesday afternoon and evening of this week, proved to be a most pleasing affair. There was a big attendance, particularly at night, and the various concessions and dance hall were well patronized. The sports program in the afternoon was one of the best ever pulled off on a like occasion, the various entrants in the events being closely watched and several of the finishes were more than ordinarily exciting. The ball game between the motormen and conductors and the shop and power house men was a "scream" as long as it lasted—five innings. At the conclusion of the inning in question the 13 players reclined on the diamond and took the rest cure for a 15-minute period. The work of the pitchers, Dan McKenna, for the motormen and conductors, and Harry Pfeiffer for the opposition, was easily the feature of the game. "Long Dan," evidently inspired by the great deeds being done on the diamond by "Long Dave" Davenport of the St. Louis Browns, twisted himself into knots and propelled the pill with great force, if not with accuracy. It was a glorious exhibition of how to pitch ball, or not to pitch it. Pfeiffer was also in fine "form" and it is rumored that a scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was watching the game, will take both men on for a try-out next spring.

PHYSICIAN DECLARES 8-HOUR DAY ESSENTIAL

(By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.)

Shorter hours mean less exhausting and life shortening fatigue, more energy left at the end of the day for intelligent and whole recreation, instead of being so stupid and sodden and exhausted that drink was the only relief.

It means longer hours of sleep and better cleaning out of the blood of fatigue poisons, so that they don't pile up and burn out a man's arteries and throw him on the scrap heap at forty-five.

Higher wages mean better food and more of it, better housing, better clothing, better opportunities for the children and increasing self-respect and intelligence.

Part of these health and efficiency improvements have come intentionally and directly by improving conditions of work, and the ventilation and lighting and dust-and-fume-purifying of shops and workrooms.

Such strides have already been made in this direction that I have no hesitation in saying that some of the best lighter, best ventilated, purest aired and most sanitary buildings I have ever seen are certain glass, steel and cement built model factories which I have inspected.

I should like to see houses, particularly apartment and tenements, built on the same plan.

Partly by providing medical care and attendance for the workers, beginning very crudely and narrowly with more surgical attention to accidents and injuries occurring during work hours, then spreading to the careful physical examination of all employees, then to the health conditions under which they lived, to the health of their families, swimming pools, gymnasiums, gardens, playgrounds, model suburbs.

Finally, back again to the workman himself, carefully fitting him to the work which his physical and mental makeup best adapt him for, and fitting the work to him so as to promote his health, increase his working power and lengthen his life.

But far the greatest and most substantial part of this increase of health and diminution of disease has been due to the shortening of the hours of work and the raising of the wages.

All over the world today wherever hours of work are long, wages are low and the labor cost of the product high! Wherever in the world hours are short, wages are high and the labor cost of the product low.

If you know the length of the working days you can predict in advance the height of the wage and the labor cost of the product.

As hundreds of disastrous experiments with Hindu, with Chinese, with negro factory labor have shown the cheapest labor is the dearest in the long run, and the more hours a day beyond eight men work, the less they earn for their employers.

The same holds true, with certain partial exceptions, between long hours and short hours, highly paid and poorly paid occupations in the same country.

This generation has seen the working day go down from twelve hours to ten, to nine, to eight, with a constant and striking increase in the amount of work done per day by each worker, and intelligent and far-sighted manufacturers are already talking of a seven-hour day to still further increase the efficiency of their force.

I believe many of us will live to see it down to six.

With cheap labor the labor cost may amount to a fifth of the whole-sale price of the product, with highly paid labor it may fall to a tenth and even a twentieth, while from the point of view of the worker it is no more coincidence that the longest lived and healthiest occupations are the highest paid, and the shortest lived and unhealthiest the poorest paid; from bankers at the top of the list to servant girls at the bottom.

The one measure which would do most today to improve the public health and lower the death rate would be a minimum wage of three

ABRAHAM LINCOLN ON THE RIGHTS OF LABOR

(From a speech at New Haven, Conn., March 6, 1860.)

I am glad a system of labor prevails under which laborers can strike when they want to, where they are not obliged to work under all circumstances, and are not tied down and obliged to labor whether you pay them for it or not. I like the system which lets a man "quit" when he wants to, and I wish it might prevail everywhere.

I do not believe in a law to prevent a man getting rich; that would do more harm than good. So, while we do not propose any war upon capital, we do wish to allow the humblest an equal chance to get rich with everybody else.

I want every man to have a chance to better his condition; that is the true system.

I am not ashamed to confess that twenty-five years ago I was a hired laborer.

By the time they arrive at a conclusion some people are too tired to walk back.

Just because your blood is impoverished, don't attribute it to the high cost of living.

BOOM THE LABEL

The full blooded union man is the one who demands the union label all the time.

The union label needs committees to make the members buy union label goods more than committees to ask merchants to carry union label goods.

Complaint is sometimes made that merchants make a bluff at carrying union label goods in stock. This is perfectly natural as long as the union label demand is confined to committee demands. When the rank and file of the membership of the unions call for union label goods themselves, the merchants will also stop bluffing.

dollars a day for every adult worker and a maximum day for all classes of eight hours.

WHAT LABOR WANTS IS MORE, MORE, MORE

What does labor want?—It wants the earth and the fullness thereof. There is nothing too precious, there is nothing too harmful, too lofty, too ennobling, unless it is within the scope and comprehension of labor's aspirations and wants.

We want more schoolhouses and less jails; more books and less arsenals; more learning and less vice; more constant work and less crime; more leisure and less greed; more justice and less revenge; in fact, more of the opportunities to cultivate our better natures, to make manhood more noble, womanhood more beautiful and childhood more happy and bright.—Samuel Gompers.

THE MONACA NATIONAL

One of the Valley's Younger Banking Institutions Making Fine Record.

One of the most popular and efficient banking institutions in the Beaver Valley is the Monaca National Bank, of Monaca. Although located in a town of medium size and having the competition of another National Bank, the Monaca National, since the date of its organization in 1901, has steadily progressed, gaining appreciably each year in the volume of business enjoyed and constantly adding to its already large list of satisfied patrons. Within the past two years the deposits in this bank have increased nearly $100,000, as have also the institutions resources. Surplus and profits have nearly doubled and the success which the bank has recorded is proof that fair dealing, courtesy and up-to-date banking methods appeal to the people of today. According to patrons of the Monaca National, a great deal of the credit for the success which the institution is enjoying is due to the uniform courtesy and ability of Robert C. Campbell, Joseph Fischer and Kenneth Seigel, cashier, assistant cashier and teller, respectively, who are "on the job" during banking hours.

The officers of the bank are: President, George Lay; vice president, James R. Gornley and Martin W. Carey; cashier, Robert C. Campbell; assistant cashier, Joseph Fischer; teller, Kenneth Seigel.

OHIO UNIONISTS TO MEET OCTOBER NINTH

Officers of the Ohio State Federation of Labor have issued a call for the Thirty-third annual convention, to be held at Toledo, beginning October 9th.

Ohio unionists have been resisting the attempts of private liability insurance companies to weaken the state compensation law that they may write insurance. As this question directly affects every wage earner in the state, Secretary-Treasurer Donnelly says it will be one of the principal deliberations of the convention.

Resistance to wage reduction by union workers is the check upon still further encroachments upon the unorganized. To secure an advance either in wages or to prevent a reduction in hours of labor by union workers, is to bring correspondingly these advantages to the unorganized toilers.

HAS NO PART IN UNIONISM'S SPHERE

In reply to a query by a newspaper, "What is a satisfactory wage?" American Federation of Labor Secretary Frank Morrison said:

"A satisfactory wage is something more than a weapon to keep the wolf from the door; a compensation which a man can disburse himself, and make both ends meet without his rich employer's social settlement workers coming to him and attempting to teach him how to keep body and soul together on what he receives. Social settlement work is all right in its place. But it has no more place in the life of the workingman than in the life of any other man. Organized labor says of the capitalist: 'Keep your social workers. Give us an eight-hour day and a satisfactory wage and your social workers will not be necessary.'"

"Give us proper wages, and we will conduct our homes and our lives in such a way that we will not have to be instructed as to how much we shall spend for rent, food, clothing, doctors, amusements, magazines, and penny newspapers."

"No man wants to be dictated to as to what he shall spend his money

FLAGRANT VIOLATIONS OF CHILD LABOR LAWS

"Most appalling, indeed, is the utter disregard for the laws relating to child labor, compulsory education and the 54-hour law for women," asserts George H. Hamilton, of Columbus, O., chief inspector of workshops and factories, in his annual report. He says that in three months it was found necessary to institute 115 prosecutions for violations of these laws. Seventy-two per cent of the fines in the cases prosecuted were suspended or remitted. The report refers rather slightly to uplift and other voluntary societies which are "most annoying to the department."

for, the quantity and quality of what he shall buy, or how he shall buy it; what he shall read, or where he shall go."

LINCOLN'S PHILOSOPHY.

Abraham Lincoln once said: "I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. It the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing that I was right would make no difference." A wise philosopher was he.—Garment.

LABOR'S Achievements and Issues

From pen of
GOMPERS

Labor Day, 1916, brings the workers of America the right to cheer and confidence in the trade union movement. There have been tests and crises that have proved its fundamental principles; there have been opportunities that have tested its practical efficiency. Through them all the trade union movement has made sure progress and gained in confident vision for the future.

Every national and international, every local union affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, has made definite progress in securing for its members greater advantages in those things which are fundamental of betterment in all relations of life. In some organizations the success has been phenomenal.

Taking the labor movement as a whole, there has been greater progress in securing the eight-hour day or the shorter workday, than in any other similar period of time. The meaning of these victories can be interpreted only in the light of full understanding of the meaning of the eight-hour day. The shorter workday is something more than an economic demand. It is a demand for opportunity for rest, recuperation, and development; things which make life more than mechanical drudgery.

Workers whose working periods are short, are essentially different from those who are so worn by toil that they have neither energy nor mind for other things of life. They become more energetic, more resourceful workers with keener mentality and greater producing power. It inevitably follows that the short hour workers are the best paid workers. With every reduction in hours there is always a corresponding increase in wages. Wherever demands for the shorter workday, and higher wages have been presented and urged by organized workers during the past year, they have met with success. These economic gains have a potent relation to the social side of life.

Shortening the period of work lengthens the period for development and for all of the other activities that belong to the normal individual. Increases in wages give the workers the means for taking advantage of the increased opportunities of the shorter workday. The workers of short hours and better wages become very different citizens from those who are so exhausted by the daily grind that they have neither the time nor the energy for thought nor aspiration. These gains mean better homes, better food, better clothing; time and opportunity for the cultivation of the best and the highest that is possible in the life of man.

Economic achievements are the basis upon which the workers can secure social and political progress. The power which secures these achievements is the power that will secure justice for them in every other relation. Shorter hours and higher wages give the opportunity and the means to live better, more purposeful lives. Power through economic organization means political power. There must be an economic basis in order to give political activity reason for existence and a program. By organizing its economic power to secure political protection and by adhering strictly to a non-partisan political program, the American Federation of Labor has won glorious legislative victories.

The object of legislation which organized labor has sought to obtain, is to establish larger and better opportunities for life and freedom. Organized labor does not seek through legislation to do things for the workers that they can not do for themselves. It only seeks to establish for them opportunities. This principle applies to workers in private industry. In the case of workers in governmental employment, where the government is the employer and conditions of employment can be fixed only by legislation, then the organized labor movement seeks to do something more than merely establish opportunity. It must secure legislation regulating conditions of employment.

The record of the legislative achievements of the labor movement since 1906, when the non-partisan political party was inaugurated, is one of splendid victories. The two most important are the Seamen's Act and the labor sections of the Clayton Anti-trust law. The greatest thing in both of these acts is the advancement of human freedom.

The problem of human freedom was not ended by the work of Lincoln. There still remained a class bound to involuntary servitude, the seamen.

The Seamen's Act brings freedom to these workers. It makes American soil sacred to freedom, a country upon which a bondman may not step without losing his legal fetters. Freed and given an opportunity to protect themselves, the seamen are pressing their demands for higher wages and better conditions. Section 6 of the Clayton Anti-trust Act contains the most advanced concept of freedom.

"The labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce." According to old time philosophy, political economy; and legal thought, labor power was a commodity and article of commerce in no way different from coal, potatoes, and iron. Under this concept the most recent attempts have been made to hold workers in oppression and under the domination of employers, but the power to produce commodities is something different from the commodities themselves. It is personal, human, a part of life itself. Under the concept that labor was a commodity, and therefore property, employers have tried to repress efforts of workers for progress and for larger liberty, by punishing these efforts under anti-trust legislation and by attempting to restrain them through the injunctive process. It was to protect the workers against these abuses and to establish recognition of the concept that the workers and all of their attributes were human, that the labor sections of the Clayton Act were enacted. In addition to these big achievements, many other important humanitarian laws have been enacted by Congress, increasing in number with every session of Congress since the 59th session.

As Labor Day, 1916, comes in, and one of the most critical political campaigns since the Civil War period, it is well to call attention to the big issue of the campaign, which has a national, as well as an international relation. The issue is the attitude of the political parties toward questions of humanity and human welfare. The party now in power has in its legislative achievements placed the highest

A GROWING INSTITUTION

The Beaver Trust Company Shows Splendid Growth—Progressive Yet Conservative Bank.

Beaver Trust Company was organized and commenced business on July 1, 1902, succeeding the Beaver National Bank, which had been in business since July 1, 1896, the officers of the Trust Company at that time being the same as the National Bank: J. R. Leonard, President; E. K. Hum, Vice President; C. M. Hughes, Secretary and Treasurer.

The capital stock of the Trust Company was made $300,000.00 in order that it might be in position to fully care for the financial wants of the community. To this capital stock has been added more than $100,000.00 of surplus and undivided profits from the earnings of the company during the past fourteen years.

The company transacts a general banking and trust business, receiving deposits subject to check, paying interest on time and savings deposits, and acting in all trust capacities, giving special attention to the Trust Department in which it has successfully acted as trustee, executor, administrator and guardian for many estates and individuals, it having on its books at this time nearly three hundred accounts of this character, and has the satisfaction of never having received a criticism for its method of handling Trust Accounts.

To the date of the transfer of the Beaver National Bank to Beaver Trust Company, the total deposits were less than $250,000.00. Now, including Trust Funds, this item amounted, as shown by its statement of June 30, 1916, to $1,416,542.06. Several years ago the company found its quarters at 570 Third street, Beaver, now the home of The Daily Times, too small for the proper transaction of its business, at which time the Beaver Trust Building, its present home, was erected and quarters furnished which give ample room and the best of accommodations for the transaction of its business. Perhaps the most prominent feature of its furnishings is its splendid steel vault, built not only for its own use, but for the benefit of its patrons, in which are located the safe deposit boxes for the use of its customers. These boxes furnish absolute security from both fire and theft, and are becoming more and more popular among the people of this community.

As a whole, the Beaver Trust Company has been progressive as well as conservative, and the steady growth of its business from year to year indicates the strong financial position which it holds in the community.

Its present officers and directors are: U. S. Strauss, president; C. M. Hughes, vice president; Agnew Rice, vice president; Fred G. Bruce, treasurer; Chas. C. Galton, asst. treasurer; W. H. Harper, manager of Insurance Department. Directors—U. S. Strauss, James Galey, Agnew Rice, C. M. Hughes, J. R. Leonard, W. J. Mellon, F. G. Morhead, W. S. Moore, J. R. Martin, Robert Ritchie, J. W. Dougherty.

Interesting Facts Regarding Our Beaver County Schools

It is interesting, in education as in other phases of effort, to occasionally take a survey of what has been done in the recent past, and if possible, to project ourselves sufficiently into the future to see what is probable or at least possible in the years immediately to come.

During the past ten years the school registration in Beaver County has increased fifty (50) per cent, and this increase has been almost entirely in the south half of the county; for the location of this increase Wood-lawn has been largely responsible. To care for this increase of the pupil population, almost one million ($1,000,000) dollars have been expended for building and equipment.

There are five hundred seventy-five (575) teachers in Beaver County; of which number four hundred (400) are in incorporated districts and three hundred fifty (350) are located in the south half of the county.

These figures indicate a rapid increase in the number of pupils in the county. This numerical progress must always keep pace with material prosperity which, in Beaver county, has been marked during the past ten (10) years.

With the increase of population and the atmosphere of advancement in all other lines of activity, the thinking individual naturally inquires what has been the advance in education. To this question the professional school man or woman answers with something of embarrassment that the advance has not been all that could be hoped, not the same advance in school efficiency and school improvement as has been manifested in all lines of manufacturing and commercial activity. The cause for education in such districts as Beaver county being tardy in making the same advancement as does every phase of competitive business is two-fold; first, the natural tendency of the mass of individuals is to advance when there is some material or special incentive prompting the advance. In education this type of stimulus is, in a large way, lacking. Men will buy expensive machinery to utilize a by-product of their factory, who would not employ an extra teacher for their own children if the children could be cared for at all in the old way without this extra teaching force, although these same men were aware that by an additional teacher a great saving of time and effort on the part of the children would be realized. In the one case there is an immediate return in dividends while in the other the return, although more valuable, is not at once convertible into the "coin of the realm."

It is the natural tendency of many people to knowingly shorten their own lives by evil practices, if they only may enjoy, in the present, a few things which long life would eliminate. Immediate pleasure in the form of low taxes is of vitally more importance to many than the pleasure and satisfaction twenty years hence, which would be delivered from seeing more children better educated in their own community, whether these children be from under their own roof-tree or not; second, not many people outside of the teaching profession understand that there is a real science in education and, as a result, do not estimate it properly. However true the statement may be, it is true that there are laws of the mind which must be accurately known by the teacher if the pupil is to receive an adequate education. These laws are as important in education as are the physical laws in medicine and the diagnosis of disease. There are parents who want their child to "teach a year or two" before taking up a profession or business; there are school boards who will employ this individual, and there are committees that will tolerate such service. No one of these, whether it be parent, school board member, or citizen, would employ a physician who had not taken a definite professional training and was well equipped in the diagnosis of disease and administering medicine, much less an individual who had not studied medicine at all, but who wanted to practice medicine on the people for "a year or two," in order that he may have a small income until he decides what profession he decides to follow. Without any professional training anyone may teach school who can pass an examination in a few text books designated by the state government, few if any of such books have anything whatever to do with the profession of teaching.

Into the remedy of this there is some necessity to inquire. People in general are not able to analyze the success of some men and the failure of others. This analysis is complicated because so many factors enter into the case. However, a few general features may be recognized. It is a complaint on the part of parents frequently heard by school men, that because "of a poor teacher during a certain year" their child or children never recovered educationally, became discouraged, and finally dropped out of school. Although many more teachers are educational failures than are recognized by parents, yet the fact that some people outside of the profession are able to recognize the failure when it is prominent, indicates that there is much inefficiency on the part of the teaching in our public schools and, as a result, much educational waste—a by-product that should be utilized in the case of crowded rooms or an inefficient teacher, who may know much about history and mathematics but little or nothing about the profession of teaching.

In school statistics, the school rates are very high that is able to bring eighty (80) per cent of its pupils from the beginning to the high school grade. The high school that is able to graduate fifty (50) per cent of those who enter its first year is rated above the average. No owner of any modern factory would allow twenty (20) per cent of his raw material to be lost in the process of manufacture if he could buy a machine capable of utilizing this twenty (20) per cent, and no factory board of trustees could ward off bankruptcy for long that permitted fifty (50) per cent of its raw material to be wasted. Although the factory and the school are not, in every particular, analogous, yet the fact remains that modern communities will tolerate little progress in education, so little that the schools of Beaver county look very much as they did twenty-five (25) years ago, and are largely conducted in the same way and by the same type of teachers, while marked progress is shown in medicine, farming implements, telephones, factories, building material, and in every line of material and professional advancement, except that of the school. It is reserved for it to get on as best it can under the operation of old methods, and with supplies, equipment, and teachers consistent with the lowest possible tax.

The county superintendent may recommend and has often recommended, and has done more than is required under his contract, for improvement and advance, but unless such recommendations are followed little of value will result.

That this is true is evidenced by the fact that the average teacher in Beaver county receives less salary per month than the wages paid to the common laborer. Professional equipment is impossible under such conditions. Without professional equipment on the part of the teacher, little advance can be made. Higher salaries and better equipped teachers will mean progress, but these will come slowly so long as school boards bicker and bargain, not for what is best, but for the least possible which will allow the schools to operate.

BIG SHORTAGE OF UNSKILLED LABOR IN THIS DISTRICT

At the present time the labor situation is a greater cause for worry to the industries in and around Pittsburgh than the subject of war orders or the substitution of commercial products for munitions.

The shortage applies mainly to unskilled labor and to coal miners, and the situation is aggravated by the independence of common labor, which is virtually unorganized, as well as by insistence on the part of organized labor for the strictest observance of all the minutiae of wage agreements.

Coal Miners Scarce

In the Kiskiminetas and Allegheny valleys 6,000 coal miners have been idle because of differences in the interpretation of recently negotiated contracts.

In the Pittsburgh districts 12,000 more miners could be used than are available.

The Eastern Ohio field is short 4,000, and the Fairmont, (W. Va.) district needs 10,000. It is estimated that at least 12,000 common laborers could find employment in Allegheny County.

Shortage of Common Labor

The shortage of common labor in Pittsburgh is delaying progress on the additions to old plants and the construction of new. Labor of this kind is not only more independent but it is less nomadic in its habits than formerly—certainly less nomadic than the immigrants who before the war came annually in large numbers to the great industrial centers in this country.

It has been a common occurrence recently for laborers to apply for work in mills and furnaces located within the Pittsburgh city limits and to refuse to go a few miles up the Monongahela Valley, where the Steel Corporation is building its new by-product coke ovens. This latter project is one among a number that is being seriously delayed by lack of common labor.

To obtain relief an experiment is being attempted with negro labor from the South, something that has not been resorted to in many years. The difficulty in retaining help on a new job is scarcely less than that of assembling the men, the complaint being common that contractors' foremen do not hesitate to "steal" men from each other.

The cause of the shortage is three-fold—first, the stoppage of immigration; second, the emigration which occurred during the latter part of last year, and, third, the unprecedented activity in industrial circles.

This activity has been increased by the policy of prosperous corporations in devoting a larger percentage of surplus earnings to new construction, with the view of diversifying output.

Munition Makers Not Worrying

Pittsburgh munition makers are much less concerned over the future export trade than might be inferred from recently published reports.

A false impression was created by a statement appearing last month that the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, having completed its war order and no more being then in sight, was proceeding to dismantle the temporary plant provided for that business.

There has been no dismantling and none is immediately contemplated. For one thing, there is the prospect that the shortage of supplies disclosed by the mobilization of the National Guard on the Mexican border may bring contracts from the United States Government.

What is of greater consequence, however, is the fact that the most important piece of machinery used in the manufacture of various kinds of army and navy supplies is the lathe.

With comparatively slight change and little cost, it is said, these lathes may be readjusted for the output of products used in peaceful pursuits.

The demand for lathes and similar machinery is in excess of the supply, and there will be no dismantling of munitions plants of the throwing of machinery into the scrap heap while these conditions last.

Remarkable Progress

MADE BY American Federation of Labor

FRANK MORRISON

A history of the American Federation of Labor would record the advances and failures, triumphs and defeats, dreams and disappointments of the toilers of our country.

No statement of social progress during the past thirty-five years is complete without including the American Federation of Labor, the pioneer in every humanitarian achievement.

It was the first in the field for free textbooks, a secret ballot (Australian system), direct legislation, sex equality, against child labor and for every other reform now generally accepted.

It is the directing force in every struggle for shorter hours, higher wages, sanitary shops and homes; protection of life and limb, compensation laws and other gains that make for finer men and nobler women.

It voices the expressions, the longings and the hopes of the toilers of our land, who are welcome to its ranks, without regard to sex, color, creed, race or skill.

Has Resisted Injunctions.

It refuses to recognize any institution that would regulate man's disposal of his labor power, and it has resisted injunction judges in their attempt to check free speech and free press on the theory that labor is property. This agitation has resulted in the notification of Federal and District of Columbia courts by the Congress of the United States (Chayton law, signed by President Wilson, October 14, 1914): "That the labor power of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce."

It is democratic, both in spirit and deed. It encourages independence, fosters education and sustains every movement intended to equip toilers for a more aggressive and patriotic citizenship.

First Session in 1881.

The first session of the body now known as the American Federation of Labor was called to order in Turner Hall, Pittsburgh, Pa., on November 15, 1881. There were present representatives of 10 national trade unions, 75 local trade unions and 10 city central unions, with an estimated membership of 262,000 workers.

At that time a demand was made for a law creating a national bureau of labor statistics. Out of this agitation developed the present Federal Department of Labor, presided over by William B. Wilson, former secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, and the first trade unionist to be a member of a President's Cabinet.

Another demand provided for "the repeal and erasure from the statute books of all acts known as conspiracy laws, as applied to organizations of labor in the regulation of wages and the number of hours which shall constitute a day's work."

Trades in Whole Labor Element.

While the convention was discussing the organization system recommended by its committee, a colored delegate asked: "If my own people were included in the plan?" He was answered that "we recognize neither creed, color or nationality, but want to take into the folds of this federation the whole labor element of the country, no matter what calling."

This declaration has been made a major principle by the American Federation of Labor.

This organization plan provided for national and international unions of workers in each craft or calling, local unions in crafts that were not sufficiently organized to form a national or international union, and city central bodies that unify city and municipal trade union movements for mutual benefit.

Later, provision was made for the establishment of State federations, whose work is mainly in securing of remedial legislation. Central bodies and State federations are representative bodies, elected by local unions, in case of the former, and by local unions and city central bodies for the latter.

Federal Labor Unions.

Federal labor unions are chartered by the American Federation of Labor. These include workers who are not sufficiently numerous to maintain a local trade union of their individual craft or calling. When a sufficient number of workers in any of these crafts is secured, they are chartered by the American Federation of Labor as a local trade union, or, if a national or international union of that craft exists, they are assigned to same.

Local labor unions and Federal trade unions receive strike benefits of $4 a week for six days from the American Federation of Labor. The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is empowered to authorize the payment of strike benefits for an additional period.

Before strike benefits are paid the union must notify the president of the American Federation of Labor, who shall endeavor to adjust the differences. Failing in this, he shall acquaint the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor with all the facts in the case, and request them to vote on the question of whether a strike is necessary.

Regulation of Strikes.

If a strike is authorized the interested union shall be notified to call a meeting within twenty-four hours and take a strike vote. A three-fourths vote of all members present in good standing is necessary before a legal strike can be called.

The American Federation of Labor has no power to call strikes, either through its officials or by convention action. This power is inherent in the affiliated organizations.

A unique feature of the A. F. of L. is an absence of any forms of force to make effective its convention mandates. It provides no penalties for failure to observe its declarations on economic, political or social questions.

This sounds strange to those who believe in orders, mandates and authority, but our movement is founded on the aspirations and necessities of working men and women and the belief that the longing for social justice, inherent in all toilers, is a more powerful appeal than exhibitions of force.

Fraternity Its Greatest Triumph.

This appeal to man's best nature has developed a fraternity, solidarity and voluntary action that has made possible every gain by the American Federation of Labor, and to my mind is its greatest triumph.

During the early history of our movement, and up to quite recently, at every convention efforts were made to commit it to partisan politics and abandon the independent use of the ballot. The Detroit convention, in 1890, was notable because of its refusal to seat the representatives of a so-called "workingmen's political party."

In 1906 the Executive Council advised:

"The first concern of all should be the positive defeat of those who have been hostile or indifferent to the just demands of labor. A stinging rebuke to them will not only benefit the toilers, but the people of the entire country."

"Stand by Friends; Defeat Enemies."

"We will stand faithfully by our friends and elect them; oppose our enemies and defeat them; whether they are candidates for President, Congress or other offices, executive, legislative or judicial."

Central bodies and local unions were urged to elect committees to make effective the slogan, "Reward your friends and destroy your enemies."

It may be asked: "When will labor be satisfied?"

Let me answer by asking: Why is this query never applied to the professional man, the business man, the scientist, the artist or even he whose sordid life is devoted to the mere piling up of gold?

Trade unionists reject the theory of serfdom that labor must be "satisfied" while other elements in society are encouraged and applauded for their discontent with things that are.

We refuse to be satisfied. Through education and organization we will remove every barrier that impedes our path to the fullness of a bounteous world.

ECONOMIC VALUE OF THE LABEL AMONG WORKERS

Co-Ordinates the Forces of Labor Into One Comprehensive Effort.

INSPIRES UNITY OF PURPOSE

Stimulates Education and Emphasizes Skill and Superior Workmanship. Directs Purchasing Power of Workers So as to Strengthen Them as Producers—Stands for High Ideals.

The workers are fast beginning to understand the great social and economic value inherent in the Union Label. The increasing agitation and resultant demand for union label products are evidences of the workers' growing conception of the great social and commercial values of their purchasing power when exercised in a systematic and organized fashion. The union label movement has not been the first attempt to organize the purchasing power of labor. Numerous attempts and many experiments have been made in this direction in the past. Co-operative movements, consumers' leagues and associated efforts of a like nature have been primarily inspired by the desire to socialize and commercialize the purchasing power of the workers.

Unfortunately whenever such associated activities reached any degree of success the power and influence of these institutions many times were perverted into instruments of oppression and suppression of the workers as producers. Instead of co-operating with the economic organizations of the workers, very often these co-operative energies responded solely to a spirit of commercialism and to the suppression of a feeling and desire to socialize industrial pursuits.

In its ultimate attainment the union label movement comprehends complete harmony and unity of the hopes and aspirations of the workers as producers and as consumers. This movement responds to the possibility of uniting and co-ordinating all the attributes of labor into one comprehensive effort directed to democratize all industries and to ultimately establish a just, fair and rightful condition of life and work for all.

For years trade unions have responded in one form or another to this ideal of directing the purchasing power of the workers as producers whenever representations for improved working conditions were to be made to employers. Usually these activities were expressed in the form of a boycott or the fair list.

While these weapons have proven helpful, experience has shown disadvantages. While the exhortations of trade unionists to their friends and sympathizers to purchase only union label goods and articles may not have proved so immediately responsive or as vital in its immediate effect upon any one particular firm or person as has the admonition not to purchase the goods of a particular firm being boycotted, it is true nevertheless, that the response to the former appeal has been by far more comprehensive and lasting in its beneficial result. The boycott and the fair list are individual in character and the application spasmodic in nature, subject to ill feeling, strife and friction.

On the other hand, the union label is by far more comprehensive in character and is permanent in its nature, minus all elements of strife and friction. It is not urged that trade unions should dispense with the weapons of the boycott and the fair list. It is urged that the importance of the trade union label activity cannot be overlooked.

The union label unquestionably excels in that it inspires unity and federation, stimulates education, emphasizes skill and superior workmanship, promotes trades and defines unscrupulous competition, teaches the primal obligations of labor to a common cause, while steadily winning its way into the hearts of the masses in that it symbolizes human justice and human freedom. It is for the attainment of these lofty ideals, these humane accomplishments, that this emblem of trade unionism has been adopted. Mindful of the latent and potential powers for good inherent in the trade union movement, let all unite in this appeal and enlist in this noble cause for the uplift of the worker. Let all join in this great march forward, onward and upward under this great banner of fraternity and brotherhood, the emblem of humanity and the symbol of the hopes and aspirations of the workers for a better life and a greater and more humane civilization.—Shoe Workers' Journal.

BUILDING UP A UNION

The building up of a powerful trade union is like the growth of an oak—a slow process, but producing strength which cannot be secured by mushroom growth. It is far better to build slowly but surely, than to build what may appear to be a substantial residence upon a foundation and framework which cannot withstand the storms.

LABOR'S ACHIEVEMENTS

valuation upon human life and human attributes that has ever been declared and enacted by any political party in power.

The question that concerns the workers is how to hold their present advantages and how to secure from political parties still greater opportunities for freedom. The thing which is fundamental in Section 6 of the Clayton Antitrust Act, the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce. The representatives of the American Federation of Labor went to the political parties and asked them to declare themselves upon this principle. The answers that the political parties gave are in their platforms, where all may read.

The Democratic Party openly and favorably declared and emphasized its position. The Republican Party took no notice of Labor's request that they declare themselves upon that which the workers considered of greatest importance to them.

The international issue that now comes closest to the labor movement is the policy of our government toward Mexico. The cause of humanity is in the balance in Mexico. The people there are trying to work out their own problems and to establish their own ideals of political, social and economic justice. The labor movement in Mexico has developed; that is, the most power and the most power and the most constructive product of the revolution. Representatives of the labor movement of Mexico have joined with representatives of the labor movement of America to insure to the workers and the citizens of Mexico the rights of human beings, opportunities for freedom and for independence. Many of the problems of the Mexican workers are problems of the workers of the United States. Their welfare is our welfare. The boundary line between the two countries is only an artificial division that has little or no effect upon the course and the nature of industrial and commercial development.

The problem of industrial welfare in the states of the southwest is largely a Mexican problem. With low standards of life and work prevailing upon the 15,000,000 of Mexicans, there exists an obstacle to the establishment of higher standards within the United States. There are capitalists and exploiting interests of the United States who, because they have property in Mexico (often corruptly and dishonestly obtained), desire to maintain governmental agencies by which they can hold the people in subjection and deny to them the opportunity for protecting themselves through the organized labor movement, and other opportunities for growth and development. These selfish, exploiting interests are concentrating their political power in the present campaign to secure a different policy on the part of our government toward Mexico. Even under the guise of intervention, no matter how unnecessary and unwarranted, the advocates of that policy really aim at the conquest and annexation of Mexico. A few of the most reckless, such as the Otis and Hearst interests, come out brazenly in the demand for intervention, invasion, conquest and annexation of Mexico. Of course, every effort must be made to safeguard the lives and the property of our people living along the border line, but who can honestly say that the Mexican marauders were the only offenders? The allied forces of greed and profit would deny the Mexican people the opportunity for their development; they would gladly embroil the United States in an unnecessary and unwarrantable war with Mexico. To them property, property rights, profits are held far more sacred than human life, international honor and human liberty.

These are some of the issues that primarily concern the workers and all liberty-loving citizens of the United States; they are the issues upon which every wage-earner—every citizen—will make his own decision, not only in his every-day activity, but also at the polls on election day.

WHY YOU SHOULD BE A UNION MAN

Because it tends to raise wages. This is proven by all sorts of evidence. Because it prevents a reduction in wages; reductions never come to well organized labor.

Because it aids in getting shorter hours. Ask the union men who are working eight hours; they can prove it. They can show a union card also.

Because it teaches co-operation. When laborers co-operate they will own the earth.

Because it curbs selfishness; the grab-all is toned down by the fear of the opinions of his fellows.

Because it makes the job a better place to work. The bully foreman can't bull the union card.

Because it helps the family; more money comforts, and a better opportunity to improve your social conditions.

Because it helps the state. Unorganized and discontented labor is the parent of the mob. The trade unions stand as a rock between the government and anarchy.

Because it pays you sick benefits when sick or disabled.

Because it pays death benefits of $100 and upwards.

Because it stands for conciliation of all differences between employer and employee.

Because a union man's card is treated with respect and consideration by all union men, and the bearer of a card is never without friends, and can always get assistance if in needy circumstances.

JOIN THE UNION.

The following is taken from an appeal to non-union men recently issued by one of the building trade unions: "There is a good living for everybody engaged in our trade, employers and journeymen, but we must unite with our fellow workers to obtain it. Don't you think you are doing yourself, your wife and children an injustice by standing alone and working for smaller wages than you could otherwise obtain? Don't you love your children? Don't you want them to have the best you can possibly get for them? If so don't you know that it is your duty to join the union?"

A WHOLESOME PRAYER.

Teach me that sixty minutes make one hour, sixteen ounces one pound and one hundred cents one dollar.

Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience without a gun under my pillow, and unharmed by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

Grant, I beseech Thee, that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and in doing thereof that I may not stick the gaff where it does not belong.

Defend me to the jingle of tainted money and the rustle of unholly skirts. Blind me to the faults of the other fellow, but reveal to me mine own.

Guide me so that each night when I look across the dinner table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal.

Keep me young enough to laugh with my children and lose myself in their play.

And when comes the smell of flowers, and the tread of soft steps, and the crushing of the hearse's wheels in the gravel out in front of my place, make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple: "Here Lies a Man."—Homer McKee.

A FEW DON'TS

1. Don't condemn the labor movement because you know of "objectionable features." Every human institution has some imperfections.

2. Don't forget that organization increases wages and shortens the working day, making work steadier.

3. Don't shirk the moral obligation to do all you can to uphold the dignity of your trade—to elevate the standard of living.

4. Don't forget that the vast majority of your trade is organized. What is good for the majority is good for the minority.

5. Don't be blind to your own interests—unionism helps all working men and all society.

6. Don't let so-called "independence" prevent you from being unselfish and fraternal. We are all more or less dependent on some one or something. "No man stands alone." Get closer together.

7. Don't retard our progress by retaining a weapon in the hands of the employer.

8. Don't forget that our interests are identical. Improvement in your working conditions means improvement for all our crafts.

9. Don't say unions "can't accomplish their purpose." Over 7,000,000 of unionists think different.

10—Don't think that having gotten along without the union for five or fifty-five years that "it is useless to you." Organized labor has helped you and is helping now—through better conditions and increased wages.

Nobody likes a quitter, but many a man who wants the earth has to take water.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERN

The G. H. Hamilton Manufacturing Company Points With Pride to Its Advancement.

As a shining example of what grit, ambition and sticktoitiveness will do to build up a successful business, The Labor News calls attention in this article to the plants of the G. H. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., located in Beaver and Beaver Falls. Starting eight years ago, in a little one-story frame building, next to The Labor News office, and using but one room of the building in question, George H. Hamilton, of Beaver, opened up his little plant for the purpose of manufacturing canvas gloves. He put two machines in the "plant," starting with two employees and increasing the number to five during the first three months. In one year Mr. Hamilton had 12 employees in his little plant, disposing of his product to the local trade. In the summer of 1908 the growing plant was removed to its own three story building on Buffalo street, Beaver, the same covering 58,000 square feet. Thirty-five employees are on the payroll and forty machines are used. In January of the present year Mr. Hamilton, compelled by the great number of orders received and by the fact that help is exceedingly hard to get in Beaver, opened a branch factory at Beaver Falls, where sixteen employees are working and eight machines are used.

The excellence of the goods turned out—canvas, cotton flannel, jersey and leather palm gloves—has resulted in the plant being rushed with orders from all over the United States, there being at the present time $50,000.00 worth of orders on hand which Mr. Hamilton says he doesn't believe will ever be filled.

The Beaver plant has operated steadily for the past eight years, shutting down but one summer in that length of time. Business is constantly increasing, but the production is more or less handicapped by reason of the difficulty experienced in securing help. At the present time there is a proposition on foot to move the Beaver plant to Beaver Falls, where help is much more easily obtained, and where it will be possible to increase the production of the two plants to many times the present limit.

As an example of business enterprise, the success made by Mr. Hamilton, who is Treasurer and General Manager of the company, is one of the most notable in the history of Beaver county, and young men, starting out to build up a business, can do worse than to follow the rules laid down by Mr. Hamilton for his own guidance, when he first started in—"Work hard; pay attention to the details and use the other party as you would like to be used."

Noted Labor Leader On Panics and Their Causes

Discussion of Subject Reveals Much To Interest Union Workingmen

The cause of unemployment, or industrial panics, is a subject that concerns everybody, yet few understand. Much is said to enlighten or to deceive the public on the causes of panics. Few, however, possess the knowledge or the courage to tell the truth. Previous to the European war, the depression was world-wide; rent, interest and profit were responsible for the distress. All other factors are but details of these three principal causes.

Before the European war, every industrial center in the United States had its increasing army of unemployed, millions of able-bodied men and women were begging for an opportunity to work. Even during the so-called prosperous times we have many who are denied the right to work. And why? I might answer this question as it has been answered a million times by the beneficiaries and the hired defenders of the system, who are responsible for it, and by doing so, be called a safe and sane labor leader. I shall, however, try to explain, in this short space, a few of the real causes. First and primarily, is the criminal exploitation of the workers. No matter how much wealth the toilers create, their share is, invariably, as little as the competitive condition of the labor market will allow. The workers, unless protected by powerful unions, sell their labor-power at a price fixed by the employers, and the price of the commodity which they produce, and later by purchase, is also fixed by the employing class. And the difference in price, between that which the workers receive as wages and what the product sells at, is profit and this profit is the bone of contention among an ever-increasing horde of parasites. We hear much about a living wage for the workingman, but not a word about the living profit for the master. Suppose the profit would only be enough to keep the master alive and in working condition, and that the wives and children of the masters, like those of the workers, had to become bread-winners. This thought may sound harsh, even cruel, but the fact remains that this is what our masters mean when they speak of a living wage for the workers. And if the producers of all wealth are to be content with a living wage, which unfortunately, millions are not getting, then what, in your opinion, do you really thing the non-producers are entitled to? "But," say the profit-takers, "we are surely entitled to a fair return for our money when we invest it." Fortunes, accumulated by rent, interest or profit, represent unpaid wages, special privilege and extortion, and in either case represents wealth that rightfully belongs to those who created it, or to society as a whole. Every dollar, represented in industry, was earned by labor. Every cent, that is paid for the material and labor, came out of unpaid labor. The producers of wealth created the surplus and the non-producers own it. The harder we work, the poorer we get, and the larger the army of the unemployed. Another factor that adds no small share to the unemployed problem is the mania for efficiency and economy that has swept over the country during the past dozen years. Do not understand me as opposing efficiency and economy, because I believe in both, if it benefits society as a whole, or at least the greater majority, who are the wealth producers. This efficiency would do under a sane and just system of production. Under our present system, however, efficiency and economy means larger profits for the employer, and speeding up and working beyond the endurance point to the employee; cutting down the time and cost of production and turning many thousands over to join the army of unemployed. Efficiency and economy, in production and transportation, has not reduced the price of a single commodity, but, by the very nature of capitalism, it must and does increase the price.

An industrial establishment worth, let us say, one million dollars, employing five thousand people, and earning for its owners, ten per cent on their investment, employ efficiency experts, day-work, wherever profitable, abolished, and piece-work, established. A bonus is given the piece-workers and the speeding-up begins. Under the old system, it required, say, ten hours' time to make ten parts of a certain machine, and the worker received five dollars a day, or an average of fifty cents per each piece made. Under the efficiency piece-work system, the price per piece is fixed high enough in the beginning to lead the workers to believe that the change in system means to them increased wages. The pace is set, and all work with the rapidity they are capable of, in order to increase their earnings. A few weeks pass, when a readjustment of prices takes place. The workers, eager to earn as much as before the readjustment (reduction), work just a little harder than before; a minute saved here, a second there, and the old wage is nearly reached. The old and incompetent drag helplessly in the rear, and, in time, more readjustments of prices take place, the highest skilled, with all their speed, cannot earn what they formerly did, under the old system, and the increased production means that fewer employees are needed. First it is the old and incompetent that are thrown on the human scrap heap. The working force, gradually being reduced, has the effect of making servile slaves of those retained. The million dollar establishment, before mentioned, has no longer need for five thousand employees. Under the efficiency system, they can now turn out as much with half the number of employees and this means increased profits for the owners. If the old investment earned ten per cent, the new, earns considerably more. For this added revenue, stock is issued, and this stock represents the unpaid earnings of the workers, that they, in return, must create more wealth to pay profit on. Thus we see that the more energetic and thrifty the workers are under capitalism, the greater their burden.

The Reading Railway Reports says that $26,000,000 were put in improvements and betterments after dividends were paid. More stock was issued to cover the increased values. This stock will pay more dividends. So labor goes on piling up wealth, on top of wealth and each time additional stock is issued, more interest must be earned by the concerns. This interest must come out of labor and the commodities which the industry makes or the railway carries. Result: Increased cost of commodities and increased army of unemployed.

Inventions are also responsible for many jobless. I do not wish to be understood as being opposed to in-

Beaver County Girls' Bread Baking Contest During Fair

Numerous Prizes Have Been Se- cured and Will Be Awarded the Most Competent.

(By B. H. Dimit)

Great interest is being displayed by the girls of Beaver county in the Girls' Great Baking Contest, which will be held during the Beaver County Fair at Junction Park. Already quite a number of girls have entered the contest and many more are expected before the entry list closes on September 14, at 9 a. m.

This contest is open to all girls between the ages of 10 and 18 years. Each girl will be required to make and bake without assistance. The loaves are to be oblong in shape, measuring about eight inches long by four inches wide. Each loaf is to be accompanied by a written statement of the contestant giving information on her recipe, kind of yeast, dried, compressed, or home made; time left to rise, number of kneadings and the time required for each; how long in the oven, date and time of baking, and number of hours for entire process.

All loaves will be placed on exhibition at the Farm Bureau booth in the Horticultural Hall. Loaves will be received until 9 o'clock, September 14, and the judging will be completed that afternoon. If the loaf can not be brought to the Fair it may be sent by parcels post to the Farm Bureau, Beaver, Pa. In this latter case, however, all loaves must reach Beaver on September 13, in order to insure their being in place before the judging begins.

The list of prizes includes the following:

First prize, a $5 hat, donated by Allen & Moore, milliners, of Beaver; second prize, a fireless cooker; third prize, Boston School of Cooking's cook book; fourth prize, a year's subscription to "American Cookery" magazine; fifth prize, a year's subscription to the "Ladies Home Journal."

In addition to these regular prizes each girl will be eligible to compete for the following special prizes, providing, of course, that she complies with the conditions attached:

One-fourth barrel of Gold Medal flour for the best loaf of bread baked from that flour; one-fourth barrel Occident flour for the best loaf baked from that flour, and one-eighth barrel for the second best loaf; three-fourths barrel of Dadds & Garret flour for the best loaf baked from Dadds & Garret flour, and one-fourth barrel for the second best; a 25-lb. sack of Pillsbury flour for the best loaf baked from that brand; one eight-quart aluminum water kettle, value $3.00, for the best loaf of any brand; one-half barrel of New Century flour for the best loaf of that brand; one-half barrel of said flour, and one-fourth barrel for the second best; one-half barrel of Minnehaha flour for the best loaf of bread baked from that flour.

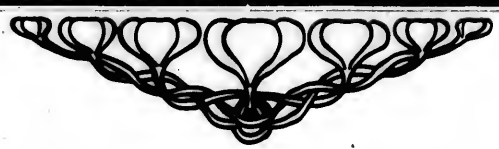

To enter this contest merely send your name, age and address to the Farm Bureau, Beaver, Pa. A copy of the rules and conditions governing the contest will be sent and space will be reserved for your loaf in the exhibit. Do not delay but send in your name at once. Show father that your bread will even surpass the bread that grandmother used to bake.

ERIE EXPOSITION IS TO BE GRAND AFFAIR

Will Entertain Throngs Who Will Visit Celebration Week of September 18.

Turn where you will throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio or Western New York and you will find that one of the principal topics of conversation is furnished by the Erie Exposition which is to be held during the week of September 18 to 23. A really tremendous interest has been aroused in this one hundred thousand dollar exhibition plant with its contemplated million dollars' worth of exhibits and few there are residing anywhere within a radius of 150 miles of Erie who are not planning a trip to the big show and looking forward to the occasion as one of the most delightful of their entire careers.

Erie is one of the most charming summer cities in the country. It is especially so during September when a day spent on the shores of Lake Erie becomes a positive delight. During Exposition Week the city is to be in gala attire with its downtown business section gay with flags and bunting and its stores bedecked in true carnival style. A carnival spirit is to prevail over all and a genuine, warm-hearted welcome will be in waiting for the stranger within the city's gates.

The Erie Exposition will be a night as well as a day show. Its gates will be open at 8 o'clock in the morning and from then on until midnight there will be one grand, giddy whirl of fun and festivity. Parades, band concerts, horse races each day, aeroplane flights, $1,000 worth of fireworks to be exploded each night, twenty big free circus acts, shows galore and concessions by the score, a wonderful automobile exhibits of $150,000 worth of the latest and finest makes, a stupendous livestock show and a multitude of other attractions too numerous to mention, will fill the visitor's time with a surfeit of pleasure and with much of educational value.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of this mammoth exhibition which is now but a little more than two weeks off. Exposition buildings, horse and cattle and small stock buildings, race track, grandstand and speed barns, all are in readiness for the biggest event of its kind which has ever taken place in Western Pennsylvania, and one of the biggest of its kind ever staged anywhere in this country. Erie will bid you a very cordial and sincere welcome, will open its homes and the doors to its hearts to you and when once you are within its gates will make very certain that you have one of the biggest times of your lives forevermore to sing Erie's praises.

Addressing a class of newly naturalized foreigners at Pittsburgh recently, a newspaper dispatch reports a United States Circuit Court of Appeals judge as warning them to be careful about participation in strikes, as little good come of them.

The process of naturalization should not be made the opportunity for airing reactionary views on the labor question, and this judge, if he be reported correctly, far exceeded his province by making the statement above referred to.

Contentment in old age is deserved by him alone who has not lost faith in what is good, his preserving strength of will and his desire for active employment.—Turgeneff.

NOW IS THE TIME

TO HAVE YOUR HOUSE WIRED FOR THE USE OF ELECTRICITY

NO HOME IS MODERN WITHOUT IT!

Electric Illumination is the most economical. You use it only when you need it and you only pay for what you use.

Electric Illumination is an assurance of safety from fire. There is always a risk in striking matches to light the gas or oil lamp. Don't take any chances for the small amount of money involved.

Electric Illumination is the most elastic. You can locate it just where you want it, so that it can be applied directly on the work in hand and where it will be easiest on the eyes. Don't ruin your eyes with faulty and antiquated methods of lighting.

Electricity is a tireless servant. You can use it at trifling cost to operate the washing machine, vacuum cleaner or electric iron. They save weary steps and money besides.

Electricity is at your service every minute of the twenty-four hours and you only pay for the amount you actually use.

Electric Illumination is the coolest, most efficient, most comfortable, most economic substitute for the sun that you can obtain.

If your house is not wired, phone Contract Department, Beaver Falls No. 35, and arrange for a free estimate of the cost.

At the Majestic

"The River of Romance"

Harold Lockwood and May Allison will be seen on the screen at the Majestic on Monday, Sept. 4. In "The River of Romance," a five part Metro wonderplay, Mr. Lockwood is seen in the role of a wealthy young man who decides to make his own way in the world. Not finding anything better to do he buys a broken-down motor boat, which he uses to ferry passengers among the islands of the St. Lawrence River. There he meets the girl and falls in love with her. The girl is struck by his manner, but on account of his station in life, refuses at first to consider him seriously, but little by little she loses her heart to him.

How he finally carries her away against her wishes in his boat and forces her into an elopement, when she thinks he is a burglar, forms a story of thrills. The boat sinks while they are running away, and the supposed boatman saves the girl.

"Destiny's Toy"

Joe Martin, a lone fisherman, had dreamed and dreamed that the sea had cast its riches at his feet, but his vision never was realized until one day he waded out among the rocks to pull ashore a bundle and found—a little girl. It was not the treasure of which he had dreamed, but as the days lengthened into years, Martin swore that old Father Neptune had given him the greatest treasure he possessed.

It all happens in the Famous Players production of "Destiny's Toy," in which Miss Louise Huff makes her first appearance as a permanent member of this company.

This Paramount feature is booked for the Majestic Theatre, Tuesday, September 5th.

"The Making of Maddalena."

Those Americans who are voluntary exiles are usually the ones who express their love of country with the most emphasis. This is exemplified in "The Making of Maddalena," the Morosco-Paramount feature coming to the Majestic Wednesday, Sept. 6.

Always gay spirited, the atmosphere of the student quarter is surcharged with electric thrill. Bunting is brought out with many cherished copies of "Old Glory" to make the studio an American shrine. All are happy with infectious joy when an unexpected letter shatters the hopes and ambitious of the leader of the rebels. The reckless outcome of his drunken folly extracts a bitter penalty that gives this powerful story a thrilling punch.

"Sporting Blood"

All the excitement of the race-track runs through William Fox's new photoplay of the turf, "Sporting Blood," which comes to the Majestic Thursday and Friday, Sept. 7-8.

Dorothy Bernard and Glen White are the stars. Miss Bernard plays the part of Mary Ballard, whose brother is ruined through the manipulations of Dave Garrison, a notorious figure on the turf. Mr. White plays Jim Riddle, who has his sister's score to settle with Garrison. Riddle and Mary combine to defeat Garrison, who has fallen in love with Mary, who tells him "If I'm worth winning, play the game."

She bets herself against $10,000 that Shooting Star, Garrison's horse will not win. By clever manipulation she manages to change her horse, Bay Belle, for Garrison's and runs Shooting Star as her own. She wins and in doing so, ruins Garrison and forces his retirement from the turf.

"The Clown"

To be a circus clown was the boyhood ambition of Victor Moore, popular Lasky comedian, and when a small boy ran away from home and joined a circus. His circus career lasted three weeks, when his father finally located him and, after a brief wood-shed conference, drove all desire for circus life out of his head. But his ambition is realized now, and he will be seen in the Lasky production, "The Clown." This story of the sawdust circle is said to be superior to even his immortal "Chimie Fadden" pictures. He is surrounded by a cast of unusual excellence.

EMPLOY ONLY UNION MEN

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement which appears in another column, from the Kay Tailors, of Beaver Falls. This concern has become one of the most consistent advertisers in The Labor News and is worthy of the patronage of union workers throughout the valley. The Beaver Falls store is one of several operated by the same organization. The main factory is located in Buffalo, N. Y., where several hundred men are employed, every one of whom is a Union man. Even since the incorporation of the Kay Tailors nothing but Union labor has been employed. Charles D. Fischer, manager of the Beaver Falls store, is a man who thoroughly understands his business and who stands ready at any time to give his customers the benefit of his advice relative to styles and grades of goods, and to see that they get a square deal at his store.

PANICS AND CAUSES

ventions and progress, but I do say that an invention that robs a man of his trade and the right to work, to such a worker, an invention is a curse and not a blessing. Labor-saving machines are constantly being invented and installed, and just as constantly are skilled workers losing their jobs.

No individual or set of individuals should be allowed the private ownership of labor-displacing machinery. The modern tools of production and distribution must become the property of all the people, and be operated in the interest of all, and not as now—in the interest of the few, to the detriment of the great majority—then the invention will be a blessing to all, and not as now—a curse to many.

Child Labor is another very important factor. Modern inventions make possible the employment of children where little or no skill is necessary, displacing not only the skilled, but unskilled men and women. Thus, we find children regularly employed while millions of able-bodied men and women are walking the streets. If the two million child-workers we now have in the United States, were put back to school and on the playgrounds where they belong, two million fathers, who walk the streets during panic times, would have jobs.

Men and women are not as cheap as children, therefore, such an arrangement would make unpardonable inroads on profits, and the change would, by many, be denounced as ungodly, unpatriotic and un-American.

Looking at the subject from another angle, it is claimed by certain statisticians that labor receives as a wage about one-fifth of the wealth that it creates. Whether these figures are any way nearly correct, I do not know, nor do I believe that anyone can tell. But I do know that my class creates all wealth, owns the remaining ninety per cent. True, we also receive above this enough to keep alive, but this is also true of the non-producers. It is, therefore, evident that we are exploited out of the lion's share of the wealth we create, and being in the overwhelming majority, we cannot buy back enough of the things we make to keep us employed. Nor can the non-producers who are in the minority do so. I admit, however, that in all ages the social drones proved themselves very efficient consumers. These well-fed and finely-groomed men and women live in magnificent splendor, consume the best there is on earth, and are cared for by servants as if they were invalids or infants. They no longer, like those whose fortunes they inherited, even manage their own affairs. The colleges and universities train men and women to do this work for them! their women do not even propagate; they prefer fondling no-account dogs, to children. And these people have the audacity to call themselves the upper or better class, while, in fact, they are nothing more than a useless, idle, parasitical class, who hang like millstones around labor's neck.

The strangest part of it all is that the industrial masters seem blind to their own future economic welfare. By cutting down the consuming power of the workers, who are in the great majority of consumers, they are destroying the market for their products. Those commodities dam up, business stagnates, profits dwindle, dividends cease and bankruptcy follows. This leaves the owning class without a source of revenue, and throws them back into the working class, most of whom are inefficient and helpless, and suffer more than the workers who have been trained to shift to changing conditions. This economic law of capitalism, the owning class do not understand. And, in order to perpetuate this insane system, every nation on earth absorbs considerable of our labor energy, and takes the strongest out of the field of production, and makes them consumers and destroyers. While this may not cause unemployment, it does cause poverty, and consumes about 65 per cent of our federal revenues. It is also one of the many burdens which keeps the workers poor when employed, and leaves them almost dependent the day they join the army of unemployed. I regret that times does not permit me to dwell upon this subject at greater length and in more detail. As it is, I have hardly touched a few spots.

I understand the purpose of your organization is to encourage progressive legislation. It is not my desire to discourage you in your efforts. Much as I may admire your philanthropic spirit, and hope you will accomplish much for the good of mankind in your efforts, I fear your disappointments will be many. You will find, or perhaps you have already learned, that no matter how you turn, or what you may try to accomplish, seemingly insurmountable barriers confront you. You may succeed in placing a legislative patch here or there on the ragged garment of capitalism, but patch as we may, the system of private ownership of the means of life has not a single moral prop to lean upon. It is inhuman, yes, race-destroying, and patching can no more change the nature of the system than can the leopard change his spots. Therefore, the only remedy for the evils now confronting us is, change the system from production for profit, to production for use. Let our slogan be: "All able-bodied men and women who do not work shall not eat. All shall render such service to society that they are best fitted for.

All shall work." And, if we produce more than we are able to consume, we will simply reduce the hours of labor.

If we find that by everybody working six hours a day, we are producing too many of the good things, we will cut the workday to four or to two hours if necessary. Then all will have time for recreation, for mental and physical development—the beginning of a new epoch, the beginning of real civilization. The unemployed problem will have passed into history. Every man will have a job, every woman a home, and every child an education. And this would be real civilization.

Building Trades Council Is Thriving Organization

Has Had Remarkable Growth
Since Its Organization
In 1913

MANY UNIONS ARE NOW AFFILIATED

During the fall of 1913, after much agitation, D. S. Leighty, a member of Local Union No. 7033, Carpenters & Joiners of America, of Monaca, Pa., after several attempts, succeeded in getting the members of the Monaca Local interested in forming a central organization of all the building craftsmen, known as the Building Trades Council, he being appointed as chairman of a committee for that purpose.

This committee visited the various locals of the building craftsmen in this district and secured the co-operation of Bros. John Starr, Elmer Holden and Charles Sagers, of the Painters, Bros. Milnes, A. T. Jones and Thomas Bonner, of the Plumbers; and P. A. Davin, of Carpenters Local No. 246, New Brighton.

This making the required number of trades required to secure a charter, Brother Leighty, being a District Organizer, secured a charter from the Building Trades Department and instituted an organization known as the Building Trades Council of New Brighton, Pa. and vicinity. Brother P. A. Davin was elected president, D. S. Leighty, secretary, and Thomas Bonner, treasurer.

A committee was appointed to visit the Bricklayers' Local in Rochester, and solicit their support in this movement, and to extend them an invitation to send a committee to the meetings that they should understand the workings of the Council. Needless to say that our committee was received by the Bricklayers in a friendly manner and a committee from their local visited our council, with the result of their hearty approval and co-operation which, to a very great extent, has made this Council second to none in the Building Trades Department.

At about the same time the Plasterers and Lathers affiliated with the Council, making six organizations affiliated.

During the winter of 1913-14, Brother Leighty secured charters and organized a local of Electrical Workers, and a local of Sheet Metal Workers, and added them to the Building Trades Council. Brother J. C. Bonner, president of the Electrical Workers union, being one of their representatives in the council. On account of the inability of Brother P. A. Davin to attend the meetings, the honor of the presidency of the Council was conferred on Brother Milnes, of the Plumbers. Later, Brother Milnes having secured employment in Ohio and leaving for that place, Brother J. C. Bonner was elected president of the Council.

In February, 1915, Brother Leighty formed a temporary organization of the Hod Carriers, and on March 16th, instituted them under Charter No. 214 and affiliated them with this Council, making nine building trades unions affiliated with the Council.

During the month of May, 1914, the Council decided that they should have a Business Agent in the field to look after the interests of the different locals affiliated. Brother Leighty was nominated and elected to fill that position until June 30th, 1915. At the expiration of his first term Brother Leighty was re-elected and served until June 30th, 1916, and, when he declined a third term, Brother S. S. Bowser was elected to the position of Business Agent, and is now serving in that position.

Brother Leighty also having served continuously as secretary, and was re-elected to that office in July, 1916, for one year. Brother Bonner, having held the office of Treasurer until his death, when Brother W. G. Dithridge was elected to fill the unexpired term and was re-elected for the year 1916. Brother A. T. Jones has served as trustee from the beginning of the organization.

In March, 1914, Brother Leighty was elected a delegate to the Pennsylvania State Council of the Building Trades Council, held in Harrisburg, Pa., where he was elected vice president of the State Council and a Board Member of this district. During his incumbency as Business Agent Brother Leighty has worked untiringly for the betterment of the organized workers of this county, and in time of trouble between employer and employee has, by his fair dealings, in nearly every case, arranged a settlement equitable and just to all, and when objections were raised to the charter of this Council, it was Brother Leighty who asked the Department to issue a charter covering the county. He was twice refused, but finally succeeded in getting the charter changed to read Beaver County and vicinity. The following names appear on the new charter: R. Low, R. F. McClure, T. A. Gorman, J. C. Bonner, Charles Cyrus, Ben H. Barnes, Thomas H. Bonner, F. Coene, R. Shaffer, Frank Hamilton, A. T. Jones, J. Boggs, D. S. Leighty.

Brother Leighty as Business Agent, was also a leading spirit in the organization of the Beaver Valley Labor News, the first and only labor paper published in Beaver County. The Labor News, at the present time, is fast gaining in circulation and in strength, which fact the business men and workers are beginning to realize. The Labor News is owned and controlled by the union men of Beaver county, and is the official organ of the Building Trades Council, a large part of the stock being owned by the Building Trades Unions.

The Building Trades Council of Beaver County is now composed of the following organizations: Carpenters' District Council, Bricklayers' Local No. 7, Pa.; Plasterers' Local No. 56, Plumbers' Local No. 115, Hodcarriers' Local No. 214, Lathers' Local No. 263, Sheet Metal Workers' Local No. 357, Painters' Local No. 530, Electrical Workers' Local No. 712, and Ambridge Carpenters' Local No. 1732.

The Building Trades Council was first organized in the small hall over the Bestwick Hardware store, but owing to its rapid growth and the lack of room in those quarters, secured larger rooms and at present are quartered in the Kramer Building, New Brighton, where they have two office rooms and a lodge hall.

TODAY

We dream bright dreams of tomorrow;
Our castles are built in the air;
And with hues sublime, of the coming time.

We paint us a picture fair,
But we never stop to consider
That the future lies away,
And that there is naught into being brought

Unless it is wrought today.

To the cherished haunts of the old time

Our eyes are backward cast,
And a sweet voice calls through Memory's halls

To woo us unto the past.

But, however dear are the visions,
We do not dare to stay;

From out of the "gone" we must move on

To the duties that call today.

We've the "now" in which to labor!

We've the "now" in which to be!
And the "now" alone we can call our own

Through all eternity.

The past and the future are shadows,
But the present is ours for aye.

To us 'tis given to build our heaven
In the kingdom of today.

SAMUEL W. GOMPERS

Brief But Interesting Facts Concerning America's Foremost Labor Leader.

Samuel Gompers was born in Spitalfields, London, England, on January 27, 1850. His parents were originally natives of Holland. At the age of 10 years and 3 months he began work in a cigar factory, having selected the trade of cigar making as a means of earning his livelihood. This was not the first time, though, he had gone to work, for he had worked several times in a shoe factory, before this; but this is when he began his life as a cigar maker. In 1863, accompanied by his parents, he came to America, and settled in New York City. He had been in America a little more than a year when the Cigar Makers' International Union was formed, and there being no age requirements or limitations he became a member. Although the organization now numbers more than 40,000 and each member counts his membership in numerical order, Mr. Gompers' membership due card is No. 1, a fact of which he is very proud.

Samuel attended school from his sixth to his tenth year, then was apprenticed to a shoemaker; but, disliking the work, he learned the trade of his father, and while working as a cigar maker, he attended evening school for four years. This appears to have been the extent of his instruction in any school. He came to the United States when 13 years old, settled in New York city, and in time became a naturalized citizen of the United States. His present home is in Washington, but he maintains his citizenship in New York city.

In a sketch of his life approved by himself, he says of his father that he "was a cigar maker, an industrious workman, a kind father, and a man of remarkable memory." He declares of his mother that she "was a woman of excellent antecedents, her parents being highly educated," and through her influence on his intellectual and moral life he was to study and to seek to benefit his fellow men.

The application of more common sense in legal affairs and less law-making, are an urgent need of our time, and the portly Yale professor might do much toward redeeming himself in the eyes of trade unionists by leading a crusade with that aim in view.

A MODEL RESTAURANT

Morado Park Restaurant is one of the finest restaurants in Beaver county, barring none. It is sanitary in every respect, handles the very finest grades of candies, chewing gum, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, soft drinks, and all kinds of sweet and butter milk.

We serve meals at all hours, short orders, sandwiches of all kinds, and the finest ice cream in the state.

The Morado Restaurant is also the ticket office and waiting room for the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler, New Castle Co., and the Beaver Valley Traction Co.

Besides the Morado Park Restaurant being a beautiful place, here is Morado Park, one of the most beautiful natural places in the western part of the state, or of Ohio or West Virginia. The dancing pavilion is kept in fine shape, the manager of the park is kept clean and in excellent condition, and he always has a pleasant word for all his patrons. The shade trees and fine mineral water is great. Morado Park is a fine place for a picnic or reunion of any kind. At night the park is well lighted up.

For your next reunion or picnic have Morado Park booked, and I am sure you will not regret it. Trolley and train service from all parts of the State.

In making arrangements for your next picnic or reunion, consider Morado Park, and rest assured that the park manager, James Henton, and the manager of Morado Park Restaurant will do all in their power to make your outing a most enjoyable affair.

MORADO PARK RESTAURANT, adv. J. D. McKenna, Prop.

We are hearing less and less these days of Rockefeller's Colorado union which was created with a loud flourish of trumpets and much publicity. Last reports indicated that it was leading a very precarious existence, but that it only to be expected, for its foundations are laid on sand.

No less a personage than former President William Howard Taft asserted recently that "ours was a government of laws and not of men" and on this point, at least, we heartily and thoroughly agree with him. The great American fetish is "laws, laws and more laws."

The Boilermakers' Union, of Wilmington, Delaware, have secured a signed agreement with the Harlan & Hollingsworth Corporation for a 48 hour week for piece workers and 54 hour week with increased pay for the day-workers.

The city and county of San Mateo, California, are now paying laborers $3.00 per day as a result of the efforts of the Central Labor Union of that city.

"There is great opportunity in the immediate future for democracy and freedom. A century ago the feudal system died in the Napoleonic wars that convulsed Europe, and the third estate established their right to freedom and participation in the affairs of government and society. "Slowly but surely the workers have been making demands for recognition of their rights as human beings and as members of society and have established many of them."—Gompers.

THREATENED RAILROAD STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

Congress Passes Eight-hour Law
Saturday—Temple Votes Against Bill.

DISSATISFACTION AMONG LOCAL RAILWAY MEN

The question of what the Railway Brotherhoods have gained by the passage of the eight-hour law by Congress on Saturday last, appears to be one which none are able to answer. From train service men, working in Conway yards, a Labor News representative learns that many of them are not satisfied with the outcome of the fight. The question is far from being actually settled, and the general opinion seems to be that it will have to be fought out again in the near future.

The Labor News prints herewith a communication from George A. Howe, of Rochester, for many years an official in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and a man well versed in railway affairs:

My Observation of the Eight Hour Demand.

I see the threat of train service employees to strike forced Congress to pass an eight hour law for the train service employees only. Allen L. Benson, asks a fair question: "Why does this law not include the other million railroad employees?" That question should need no answer—it should not have been necessary to ask it at all. When the four Brotherhoods first made the demand for an eight-hour day, the railroads said it was not an eight-hour day that they wanted, but an increase in pay, and they did not intend to grant an increase to those already overpaid employees, but intended to take care of the other million less fortunate, less paid employees, who work on the great American railroads. Why, if the railroads think so dearly of their underpaid employees, did they not request the President to include them in this eight-hour law just passed, instead of them forcing their spineless foremen to go among these employees with petitions to Congress for a Compulsory Arbitration Bill, and telling them that it is a request for an eight-hour day for all employees. This is actually taking place in Conway yards, and the "thing" who does it, still persists in speaking to men on the streets of Rochester, the same as of old.

No, the railroads have no more love for these underpaid employees than they have for the so-called better paid men, whose demand for an eight-hour day put them to so much trouble. As for the eight-hour law, it would be well not to pass judgment on that until we have had the opportunity to read and analyze it, and then it will be time to comment. But I do know, however, that the railroad men must stick to their organizations till the finish, because the principle of their move must not be weakened by the less of one man.

My intention in writing this was to call the attention of the workers to their strength. See what 400,000 employees can do by their industrial cooperation. What if they were organized on a political basis the same as on the industrial fields. I believe if any class of workmen is to be able to cope with the situation in the future, that they will be forced to organize politically and industrially, and just such an organization is now under way. If you are interested in a move of this kind, write to 184 George St., Rochester, and receive all literature on the subject, which will be furnished you cheerfully.

President Ripley, of the Santa Fe, declared that the so-called eight-hour law was nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages to the men who receive the most money in the railway service. Mr. Ripley's statement follows:

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four leaders of labor organizations, enacted a so-called eight-hour law, which is nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of the best-paid men in railway service. It is only fair to the public and to our employees to say that the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company does not intend to comply with the law until ordered to do so by the court of last resort. Congressman Temple voted against the eight-hour law and his reasons, which we herewith publish, certainly have the ring of sincerity:

The Right of Labor to Organize.
"No one," said Dr. Temple, "now questions the right of labor to organize to advance its own interests. There are some who still selfishly deny it, whether they honestly believe it or not, but they express such sentiments, when they express them at all, very quietly, indeed."

"The change from the home and small shop system to the factory system has created a revolution in the condition of those who toil with their hands. The apprentice in the small shop in the old days expected when he became master of his trade to become the proprietor of a small shop of his own. Now the average worker cannot and does not look forward to ever being more than a wage-earner. Increased production by labor-saving, perhaps labor-multiplying machinery would be more accurate, has increased not only the possibility but the actuality of production enormously and unions are organized to enable the men to stand together and claim their just share of the product in the shape of adequate wages for their work. The workers could get along without organization under the old system; under the present system it is an absolute economic necessity."

Not Favorable to Compulsory Arbitration.

"Of course, there is an upper limit beyond which wage increases cannot go without bankrupting the employer, but equally so there is a lower limit beyond which they cannot be depressed without making it impossible for the laborer to accept the wage and live. This is what La Salle called 'the iron law of wages.' And it is because this is so that compulsory arbitration does not appeal to me. Its possibilities as a means of enforcing unjustly low wages on the worker are no less great than its power to enforce just or unjust high awards on the employer. And here I come to one of the, to my mind, strongest objections."

ADVERTISERS AND READERS PLEASED

Special Labor Day Edition of Labor
News Excites Universal Admiration.

That the special Labor Day edition of The Labor News is appreciated by advertisers and readers is evidenced by the many complimentary remarks passed to The Labor News representatives from merchants and subscribers. "The best edition of the kind ever gotten out in the valley," is a remark which greets members of the force engaged in getting out The Labor News many times daily. Merchants, without exception, were much pleased with the style in which their advertisements were gotten up and readers were impressed with the character and amount of reading matter with which the paper was liberally filled. The nature of these endorsements is most gratifying to the men who are publishing The Labor News, and are a strong incentive to them to keep the good work up.

ENLARGING THEATRE

Samuel Goodman, proprietor of the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, is building an addition to his popular playhouse which, when it is completed, will give him a seating capacity of over 1,000. It is anticipated that the improvement will be completed by October first. Since purchasing the Colonial, Mr. Goodman has bent his energies, not only to provide the best of photoplays, but has installed a Smith pipe organ, one of the finest and most expensive instruments of its kind, has placed a fine mirror screen in place of the old canvas curtain, and has newly decorated the house. The result has been that the Colonial is one of the most popular and extensively patronized picture theatres in the valley.

"TO MOVE OR NOT TO MOVE" IS QUESTION

Members of Monaca Carpenters' Local No. 1033, Cannot Agree on Meeting Place.

"To Move or Not to Move," is the burning question which confronts the members of Monaca Local 1033, Carpenters and Joiners. It appears that a number of the members of this thriving organization have, for some time past, become dissatisfied with the quarters in Bank Hall, Monaca, where the Local holds its meetings, claiming that the lighting system is entirely inadequate; that the room is not kept in a cleanly condition; that the ventilation is bad, and that it was up to the Local to seek new quarters. The discussion has waxed hot at several meetings, particularly at the last meeting, held on August 29, said meeting being called for the purpose of voting on the third and final reading of the proposed amendment to the By-Laws, and also to vote upon the proposition to secure new meeting quarters. The following letter from the Recording Secretary of the organization, C. W. Reed, will explain the present situation:

Monaca, Pa., Aug. 29, 1916.

Editor Labor News:

I beg to submit the facts relative to our Called Meeting of August 29th, for the purpose of voting on the third and final reading of the proposed amendment to our By-Laws, also to vote on a change of meeting place. As the cards were printed properly and mailed to each member one week prior to August 29th, everyone had a chance to be present who wished to vote on By-Laws or on a change of meeting place, not to misconstrue the purpose of the notice. The chair was asked to entertain a motion to move from one room to another in the same building. To this an appeal was taken and sustained, much to the disgust of the opposing parties. Speeches for and against the proposition were made. A vote was then taken on the proposition to move or remain in the present quarters, the vote showing a large majority in favor of moving to some other hall. With a volley of very complimentary remarks to the chair and some of the cooler heads, opponents retired without formality. A motion was made to nominate a town or meeting place. Carried. Monaca, Beaver and West Bridgewater were nominated. Monaca received 4 votes, Beaver 5 votes, West Bridgewater 23 votes. Motion to hold our first meeting in the month of October in the K. of P. Hall in West Bridgewater, carried.

By-Laws passed third and final reading.

There were three applications for membership presented, two of the candidates being present, they were acted upon, but the third candidate was not present.

C. W. REED,
Recording Secretary.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO UNION WORKERS

What Is Going on in the Field of Organized Labor—Notes From All Points.

Six thousand barbers of the downtown district of New York have secured an increase of $1.00 per week. Minimum wages of $14 per week have been established at Allentown, Pa., and St. Louis, Mo.

Cigarmakers, numbering 6,000, have gone on strike in Porto Rico, against a reduction in wages.

Plumbers' Union, of Hannibal, Mo., in arranging for an agreement with the Master Plumbers, were requested to refuse membership to any plumber who did not work for the Master Plumbers, but refused, claiming they could not tie themselves up so that employment depends upon membership in an organization in which they have no voice.

The American Federation of Labor now occupies the new, seven-story office building, located at Ninth street and Massachusetts avenue, Washington, D. C.

Compensation insurance, controlled entirely by the State, was favored by President Fenton of the Oklahoma Federation of Labor in his report to the annual convention. He states the federation favored such legislation last year, but were rejected by the Senate with the result that the insurance companies have reaped a golden harvest and employers are paying high premiums for insurance.

Iron Molders, of Bridgeport, Conn., went on strike and the employers seized the property and band accounts of the molders. In other States, a judgment must be first obtained before this can be done, but in this State, employers can seize the workers' property and force them to go to law to recover it. This case is similar to the famous Hatters' case of Danbury and will, no doubt, be in litigation for years.

The Farmers' Union, of Illinois, passed resolutions, extending sympathy and support to the miners on strike in Rosiclare, Hardin county.

Railroad shopmen of Indianapolis, have secured an increase of two cents an hour. Representatives of the federal department of labor assisted in the adjustment of the wages and the signing of the agreement.

The Georgia legislature, just adjourned, passed compulsory education, free text-books and factory inspection laws, through the joint efforts of the State Federation, Farmers' Union and Railway Brotherhoods.

The adjourned convention of the New York Federation of Labor went on record as being opposed to any Russian Cossack or Irish Constabulary law.

Street Carmen of Birmingham, Alabama, and Chattanooga, Tenn., have secured an increase in wages and the closed shop.

Patternmakers of Detroit, Mich., are on strike and Judge Van Tyle has issued an injunction against them doing picket duty. Already several members were arrested and fined. President Wilson, of the Patternmakers' Union, states that picketing will be continued if necessary to secure pickets from other cities.

After a short strike, 600 rubber makers of Milltown, N. J., employed by the Michelin Tire Company, secured an increase in wages.

Congressman Rainey, of Illinois, while speaking upon a bill to permit mixing of corn and wheat flour in making bread, stated that the reason there is so much opposition to the bill is because it would prevent the adding of water in order to increase the weight of the loaf. He stated that he had bought five loaves of bread, of different brands, at a Washington market, each weighing 13 ounces. The next day they weighed 12 ounces and the next day, another ounce of water had been absorbed.

Japanese wage-earners are anxious that President Compers, or some representative of the American Federation of Labor, should make an official

NEW VALLEY CONCERN WHICH IS PROSPERING

A recent addition to the business life of the valley, which has prospered greatly since it was started a few weeks ago, is the Iron City Dry Cleaning Company, of Pittsburgh, located on Brighton street, Rochester. Harry L. Gilmore, of Pittsburgh, opened the Rochester branch, and from the first day business has steadily increased and his motor delivery wagon is now busy many hours daily. Prompt service, good work and a commendable attention to his customers' wants have been the principal reason for the big success which Mr. Gilmore has made. The concern is a regular advertiser in The Labor News, and our readers are asked to consider them when in need of work in their line.

Thousands Visit Junction Park Monday—Fine Program of Sports Presented.

CHILDREN UNDER 16 YEARS NOT ADMITTED

One of the greatest successes in the line of Labor Day celebrations in the Beaver Valley was recorded on Monday last, when a great crowd visited Junction Park on both afternoon and evening in honor of the celebration of the day. Owing to the quarantine against infantile paralysis, which prevented children under 16 entering the park, the attendance was cut somewhat, but it is estimated that fully 5,000 persons entered the grounds during the day.

Those who went were entertained with a fine sports program, with good music by the band, and by the big dance hall and various concessions, all of which were well patronized. The dancing floor, in the evening, was completely filled with lovers of the light fantastic. During the progress of the afternoon dance the band played for several numbers, which act was highly appreciated by the dancers. The various contestants in the program of sports were closely matched and several of the finishes were very close. The prizes, which were of an unusually high class, were distributed to the happy winners and the program was pulled off without an accident of any sort. The "scramble" for the 5,000 marbles did not take place, much to the disappointment of scores of the youngsters, who were ready for the fray. The reason of the inability of the management to put the "scramble" on was that the marbles, which had been purchased by Supt. Boyce, had been placed in the Traction office but could not be found. Mr. Boyce, being absent on a vacation, the marbles could not be located.

The most entertaining event on the afternoon program was undoubtedly the greased pig chase. Some hundreds of men and boys, appreciating the fact that pork was worth more than at any previous time in years, took after the porker and after a merry chase he was captured. The big crowd thoroughly enjoyed the spectacle.

The committee of the Central Labor Union, under whose auspices the celebration took place, are to be congratulated upon the outcome of their efforts to provide a celebration which would be pleasing to the crowds. That they were successful is the universal opinion.

MOLDERS' LOCAL 219 IN REGULAR SESSION

D. A. Rouch Wins Gas Range Which Was Raffle Off—Committee Appointed for Dance.

Local No. 219, International Molders' Union met in regular session on Tuesday night, routine business being transacted. The members decided to hold their annual dance and Brother Wm. Gossett was selected chairman of the committee which will make all arrangements for holding this event.

The gas range manufactured by the Olive Stove Co., was raffled off. The thirteenth ticket out of the hat being chosen as the lucky one. It proved to be No. 284, held by D. A. Rouch, of New Brighton, Pa. This is the gas range put up by Union No. 219 for the benefit of John Shafer and family. A fair sum was realized.

Brother Edward Morrow was reported on the sick list.

Frank Mittner is still unable to do anything in the way of work. The Compensation Act is helping to lighten the load of making a living, as it has been eight months since he was injured. Business was reported good, all members being employed.

PITTSBURGH TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

Exercises to Commemorate 100
Years a City, Oct. 1-7

PAGEANTS TO SHOW HISTORY

Great Parade on October 6 is Expected to Be Greatest Demonstration in City's History—Pageants at Forbes Field Will Be Presented by 1,500 Performers and Chorus of 1,000 Voices.

Pittsburgh will, during the entire week October 1st-7th, have a great celebration of the Centennial of its incorporation as a city. The celebration will be under the auspices of The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania but the city and county authorities, business organizations and citizens generally are taking an active part in the arrangements.

It was in 1816 that Pittsburgh ceased to be a borough and became a city and the celebration is intended to commemorate the achievements of the community within the past hundred years, portray its present condition and forecast its future.

Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong is honorary chairman of the general committee and William H. Stevenson, president of The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, is active chairman, with Burd S. Patterson as secretary. The committee has headquarters at 602 Keenan Building, Pittsburgh.

The program for the event is as follows:

Sunday, Oct. 1st—Religious Day: Special congregational, union and neighborhood services.

Monday, Oct. 2nd—Educational Day: Presentation of school local history prizes.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Oct. 3rd, 4th, 5th—Pageant Days: Historical pageant in the evenings at Forbes Field by 1,500 performers and chorus of 1,000.

Friday, Oct. 6th—Civic, Greater Pittsburgh, G. A. R., Preparedness, Patriotic and Waterways Day: Great civic and military parade. Presentation of medals to pupils for essays on Lincoln by Sons of Veterans.

Saturday, Oct. 7th—Athletic Day: Football game at Forbes Field, Pitt vs. Westminster, and other sports.

All Week—Special Pittsburgh exhibits and music at Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society. Window exhibits of Pittsburgh-made goods by merchants. Exhibit of Pittsburgh historical pictures at Carnegie Art Galleries. Exhibit of Pittsburgh historical relics at Carnegie Museum. Exhibit of Pittsburgh books and musical compositions at Allegheny Carnegie Library.

Distinguished present and former residents of Pittsburgh will speak during the celebration. The members of the Pennsylvania State Editorial association will visit Pittsburgh during the week.

The great parade on Friday, Oct. 6th, promises to be the greatest in the history of the city, exceeding the notable one of the Sesqui-Centennial celebration of 1908.

Robert Garland, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is president of the parade committee and Colonel J. M. Schoonmaker, vice president of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad and a distinguished veteran of the Civil war, is to be chief marshal.

The magnificent historical pageant to be given at Forbes Field on the evenings of Oct. 3rd, 4th and 5th will be a most unique and interesting affair.

One thousand five hundred persons will participate in the pageant which will represent scenes in the history of Pittsburgh. There will also be a musical chorus of 1,000 persons. The pageant will be under the direction of Professor George M. P. Baird of the University of Pittsburgh, who has also written the scenario.

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies."

—Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis. A Massachusetts Woman Writes: Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well."

—Mrs. PIERRE COUNTESS, Box 229, Blackstone, Mass. Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, impeding evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

Mollycoddle. "Did you see that?" yelled the excited man in the Panama hat. "That robber of an umpire calls Gilligan out at third and Rafferty never come with in a foot of touchin' him." "It looked that way to me, too," admitted the man beside him. "Still, I dare say the umpire could see the play better from where he was than we could from up here."

"Aw, go on home," retorted the other savagely. "You ain't got no business goin' to a ball game. You're one of those blamed pacifists, that's what you are!"

OPPOSES USE OF INJUNCTION

Secretary of Labor Wilson Makes the Announcement at Bridgeport, Conn.

PREDICTS EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Cabinet Member Also Says Organized Labor Will Not Stand for a Restoration of Conspiracy Laws—Other News of General Interest to Workers.

Secretary William B. Wilson of the federal department of labor, in a speech at Bridgeport, Conn., announced his opposition to the use of the injunction as a weapon of the employers in "strike conspiracy" cases. He also predicted a national eight-hour day for all crafts and urged continuous fighting for this issue. Secretary Wilson was speaking at the machinists' outing. In discussing the recent action whereby Bridgeport foundry owners, alleging conspiracies, obtained an injunction against the Molders' union forbidding picketing, he declared: "Organized labor will not stand for the restoration of the conspiracy laws in the United States. For 600 years labor has fought conspiracy laws. In 1875, in Pennsylvania, the last conspiracy law was put out of business. Employers began to look around for something to take its place. An injunction was given in Massachusetts because working men maintained the right to strike when shorter hours and better wages were not granted. Injunctions have been granted since. With all due respect to the courts, I say organized labor will not stand for this."

More than 86,000 women are now employed by the German railroads. When soon after the beginning of the war the government started to replace the railroad employees called to the front by employing their wives, daughters or sisters, fear was expressed that the service would suffer. This fear, however, has proved groundless. The women have shown themselves so capable and faithful that their number is increased continually. The majority of them are telegraph operators, office clerks, etc., but thousands are employed in the actual operation of the roads. They act as conductors, depot guards, switch and crossing tenders, car washers, track walkers, baggage masters and in many other capacities. Wuertemberg even has two female station masters and in Bavaria a large freight depot is in charge of a woman.

Threatened with the loss of their homes and small savings accounts, and even with imprisonment, 300 striking iron molders of Bridgeport, Conn., wired an appeal to J. F. Valentine of Cincinnati, president of the Iron Molders' Union of North America. Deputy sheriffs, as rapidly as possible, are attaching the little cottages owned by the strikers and their bank accounts under a $200,000 damage action brought by four foundry companies whose men went on strike. The action was brought following the success of the manufacturers who obtained a $250,000 judgment against strikers in the famous Danbury Hatters' union. Connecticut is the only state in the Union that permits property to be attached in such a manner before a judgment is secured.

More than 6,000 paper box makers employed in New York factories struck. They are said to be the lowest paid and one of the worst fed classes of workers in the United States, most of them averaging $4 to $6 a week, they assert. The few who handle the machines earn $10 to $12 a week. They demand an increase of 10 to 20 per cent in wages, double pay for Sundays, and time and a half for overtime. They do not want to work over 50 hours a week, and ask for eight legal holidays in the year with pay. Their union asks recognition.

Stylish coiffures are the latest thing to be threatened by a strike. The Human Hair Workers' union of New York at a meeting decided to walk out. Morris Feinstein, assistant secretary of the United Hebrew trades, said that, much as they grieved to think of the disastrous results such a strike would create, the human hair workers in 100 shops have decided to quit making switches, curls, wigs and other adornments unless they receive a 25 per cent raise and a 51-hour week. About 1,000 men and girls are affected. The Kern-McGilluddy working-men's compensation act, which was passed by the house of representatives several weeks ago, was passed by the senate. The measure provides compensation for all federal employees injured in line of duty. A commission of three members is created to administer the law.

The state board of labor and industries estimates the loss in wages and sickness expense in Massachusetts amounts to over $10,000,000 annually, or 3 per cent of the total pay rolls of the state. The board says that between 60 and 70 per cent of this loss can be prevented.

Officials of the A. F. of L. metal trades department are attempting to secure an executive order which will continue the same wage scale, hours of labor, free rent, fuel and light to Canal zone employees as prevailed during the so-called construction period of the Panama canal.

PENSIONS OLD EMPLOYEES

Western Electric Company Has Pioneering System—Death Benefits Are Also Arranged For.

The Western Electric company maintains a pension system which provides that after the age of sixty employees become eligible to a pension at the rate of 1 per cent of their average salary, during the preceding ten years, for each year of service. In case of accident resulting in total disability, the employee receives full pay for 13 weeks and half pay for remainder of the disability. In case of partial disability the company also provides liberal remuneration. In case of sickness, with certain modifications for years of service, the company gives full pay for 13 weeks and half pay for 30 weeks. In addition to these benefits, the company provides death benefits for wife, or husband, or dependent relatives of the employee. This death benefit, or life insurance, is limited to a maximum of $2,000.

The operation of the daylight saving law in England is among other results having the effect of increasing the output in shipyards and engineering works. On the northeast coast some of the yards have been able to arrange additional spells of daylight overtime and in other establishments there has been an increase in output owing to the fact that there are in the aggregate a large number of extra hours when the work can be carried on without the aid of artificial light and with a lessened sense of fatigue. Additional evidence of the benefit of the act from the industrial standpoint comes from the railways. It has been stated in the official organ of the National Union of Railwaymen that the alteration of the clock has been followed by an improvement in the working of long distance night goods trains. It has been found that the extra hour of daylight has enabled the trains to be made up and loaded in less time and there is a general feeling in railway circles that the summer time act should come into permanent operation, as it would enable the work of railway goods yards to be conducted with greater rapidity and safety. A point which seems to appeal to the men who are on eight-hour shifts is that, whatever the turn of duty to which they are assigned, they either begin or finish work in daylight. This may seem to be a small and unimportant matter, but the fact that it has caused comment among a large body of workers reveals an unexpected direction in which putting working hours in advance of solar time has proved beneficial.

President Grace of Bethlehem Steel announces that his company will spend $70,000,000 for improvements to its properties. This is the largest appropriation for such a purpose which any industrial concern has made for some years. The significance of this heavy outlay of capital at this time is that it is not made for the purpose of manufacturing war munitions. Even the most pronounced pessimist will agree that the war must have ended before Bethlehem will have been able to spend $70,000,000 for extension and betterments to its plant. It seems certain, therefore, that Mr. Schwab and his associates are not building anew for war, but for after the war. It must follow that these steel producers see post-bellum days of great promise. Since every business man is now busy asking himself and his neighbor what will happen when the war is over, Mr. Schwab's enormous forward movement comes as a most hopeful assurance of continued big trade.

One of the most deadly callings, and one of which very little is known, is that of workers in champagne cellars. The work, which is light and without any obvious elements of risk to health, consists in turning over the bottles of champagne so that the wine may be clear and transparent and absolutely free from sediment. The men who do this work spend eight or ten hours a day in the dark wine cellars turning over bottles by the thousand. This monotonous duty they discharge day after day in semi-darkness, in a high temperature, unhealthy atmosphere and absolute solitude. These combined conditions affect the nerves and health of the workers so seriously that few of them can continue at their posts until middle age.

Encouraged by the success of the street car workers in their strike in New York, the Birmingham (Ala.) street car men have organized and presented demands to the company. National organizers announced that 100 per cent of the street railway men have joined. This may mean that Birmingham will face a strike of street car men. It is understood that they will demand recognition of the union, an increase of wages and a day's pay for every day a man reports at the office whether there is work for him or not.

Plans are being made by the Spanish-American Iron company, which is allied with the Bethlehem Steel company, to erect a million-dollar nodulizing plant at Felton, Cuba, an ore depot on the shores of Nipe Bay.

With regard to replacing in Germany's industry the men who are serving in the armies, women, prisoners from the allied armies and laborers from neutral countries are being used.

Kingson (Ireland) Urban council has decided to apply to the local government board for sanction of a loan amounting to $381,000 for the erection of 274 houses for the working classes.

The latest returns compiled and published in the Trades Labor Gazette show that the Belfast district holds the record for the lowest rate of pauperism in the United Kingdom.

LOOK TO FOURTH GENERATION

Writer Sees Little to Praise in the First Three Generations of Modern Americans.

The North American child is too often merely the by-product of marriage. It serves as an outlet for that pride which the parents cannot always reasonably take in themselves. It is petted, spoiled, pampered, overindulged and underdisciplined, till there is evolved a strange pliny for whom the world soon grows banal, who is destitute of the pettiest appeal of childhood. Knowledge, Alan Sullivan writes in Harper's Magazine for August. The world is its football. It is smart beyond description. But there is in the forced garden of its life no sheltered bed where may bloom the flowers of graciousness or peace. Of such will be the new aristocracy, and its traditions will be of grandfatherly who, by virtue of that fine native American longheadedness, delivered the goods of their period and were promptly and suitably rewarded. But there will be few traditions of courtliness, scant reminders that noblesse oblige, and but scattered memories of inherited responsibilities. The sempiternal dollar will still dominate. One generation was too busy collecting and the other too busy spending. The second generation offers no promise and the third but little. The fourth will probably open a new and finer cycle.

Making a Bad Matter Worse.

It is a dangerous thing, when you have let slip an unfortunate remark, to try to cover up the blunder.

Mrs. G. was talking with the wife of Judge H. about her son's choice of a profession. "I don't want him to be a lawyer," she said. "Why not?" said the Judge's wife. "I think there is nothing much finer than the legal profession for a bright boy."

"Well," said Mrs. G. bluntly, "a lawyer has to tell so many lies." Then it dawned on her that she was talking to the wife of a lawyer; so she hastily added, "That is—er—to be a good lawyer."

His Caution.

"Tut-tut morning," related Mr. Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "while I was in bed, wrapped in the arms of Morpheus, and wife cooking breakfast, she suddenly bolted for me to get up quick, 'Buz, Bowdy, the baby, had swallowed a quarter."

"No, I reckon not, just yet," says I. "While I admire to see a child develop a saving disposition this early in the game, I don't want to flutter the little cuss by paying too much attention to him."—Kansas City Star.

Welcome Change.

"I understand that skirts are going to be longer," remarked the observant citizen.

"That's good," replied the tired business man. "Maybe next season I can go to a musical show without laughing. I'm looking at a plain, everyday street parade."

Abyssinia is an important cattle-breeding country.

REALLY A SIMPLE MATTER

Johnny's Reference to Dictionary Must Have Given Him Considerable Enlightenment.

"Father," said the son, looking up from a book with a puzzled expression on his face, "what is pride?"

"Pride," returned the father, "pride! Why—er—Oh, sure you know what pride is. A sort of being stuck up, a kind of—well, proud, you know. Just get the dictionary; that's the thing to tell you exactly what it is. There's nothing like a dictionary, Johnny."

"Here it is," said the latter, after an exhausting search. "Pride—being proud." "Um—yes, that's it," replied the father.

"Well, look at 'proud.' That's the way you have got to hunt these things out, my lad."

"I've got to," answered Johnny.

"Pre—pri—pro—why?"

"What does it say?"

"Proud—having pride."

"That's it! There you are, as clear as day. I tell you, Johnny, there is nothing like a good dictionary when you are young. Take care of the blind, my son, as you put it back!"—Pathfinder.

Indefinite.

"What are all those people on the pier looking at?"

"There's a dark object in the water and they're trying to decide whether it is a man-eating shark or the Bremen."

Here is a story with a moral for working men: A visitor was being escorted through an insane hospital. He observed that the inmates possessed of like manias were segregated in groups with only one guard over each group. Those who lost their reason over religion were placed together in a ward. In a like manner those on suicide bent were segregated. Men who became unbalanced over inventions were also grouped with but a single watchman over them.

The fact that there was only one guard in each ward puzzled the visitor, but he asked no questions until he was escorted to the room in which homicidal inmates were detained. This was the most dangerous looking of all. Their wild-eyed glares gave him a chill, and turning to the guard he excitedly asked: "How many guards have you over these wild men?" "I am the only one here," was the calm reply of the keeper. "Aren't you afraid they will kill you?" the visitor asked in astonishment. "I am not afraid of any one of them," replied the guard with quiet pose. "But are you not afraid they will unite and kill you?" was the next question and asked more excitedly than the others. "My dear man," answered the guard philosophically, "don't you know that fools never unite?"

And so it is with too many wage-earners. They see about them everywhere evidences of the achievements of the working classes through united action; they know that the eight-hour day, a minimum wage based upon the cost of living and higher needs, and a thousand and one advantages have come to other laborers through organization, while they plod along at the same old "supply and demand" gait, never rising higher than a fixed level and usually falling below the bare living standard; working helplessly alone, mere atoms in the midst of organization's vineyard.

In the face of such a situation should not the reply of the guard to the visitor in the insane hospital appeal to every unorganized wage earner in the land?—Duluth Labor World.

THE MOTHERS OF MEN

The greatest influence for good in the world is mother love. If all the mothers should unite their efforts in one given direction; who can say that there would be any limit to what they might accomplish.

In that master picture plan for eternal peace, "Civilization," there is introduced an organization known as "The Mothers of Men" which has for its purpose the ending of all wars. One of the most effective scenes is where the thousands of women of this society stand before the palace, and demand that the King shall end the war. The great demonstration on the part of the mothers of this realm is the first thing to cause the King to consider peace at all.

It is through the influence of the members of "Mothers of Men" that Count Ferdinand, inventor of the deadly submarine, is converted to the cause of peace.

The whole thing is brought into the picture to show in an unmistakable way the power which is and can be wielded over the affairs of the world by organized women of the world.

There are many organizations of women in the world, but we believe there is room for one more. The society of the "Mothers of Men" should not be left to be but a dream of the films; it should become a reality. The voices of the women who sit and wait and wonder whether or not their men will come back from the war should not be a feeble, individual thing. Their protest against the murder of war should be voiced in a united chorus of the voices of all the women of all the nations of the world.

The united women of the world can bring eternal peace. It is simply necessary that they be banded together to use their influence for the accomplishment of this purpose. The greatest thing that can come from the showing of the wonder film "Civilization," will be to have inspired the founding of a real organization of "The Mothers of Men."

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

MAMMOTH SHOW ASSURED FOR BIG ERIE EXPOSITION

Big Show to Open Monday, September 18th, and Continue Six Days and Six Nights.

With the Erie Exposition now only about ten days distant, the big million Dollar Show has taken on absolute and definite proportions. Eighty five acres of exhibition space are not going to be too many to house all of the exhibits, attractions and concessions which are going to mark this record-breaking event and the directors have increased their estimate of the weekly attendance from the 150,000, at which they originally set their mark, to a full round 200,000.

The present week is witnessing a tremendous influx of entries just as Exposition Week, Sept. 18 to 23, may be safely looked to to witness a similar influx of out-of-town visitors. The entries are to close on Sept. 12 with the big show opening its gates on the 18th, but already they are pouring in not alone from all parts of the state, but from all sections of the country. There will be one of the most interesting exhibitions of woman's work and of the work of the school children in manual training, etc., ever gathered together. There will also be acres of farm implement exhibits and an astounding array of farm and home labor-saving apparatus.

The livestock show will be marked by the finest display of highly bred blue-ribbon stock which has ever before been seen in Pennsylvania. Horses, cattle, sheep, swine and the pick of the poultry world will be on view. The sheep show will prove unquestionably one of the largest ever seen in the entire country. Besides all this there will be a fine program of races each day, an automobile section with 150 of the very latest makes and models, aeroplane flights, a wonderful thousand dollar exhibit of fireworks each night and a practically never-ending array of shows, concessions, and other attractions.

For but a moderate admission at the gate, the visitor to the Erie Exposition will see more than has ever before come within his reach, in all probability. There is first a hundred thousand dollar plant housing the exhibition, there will be a million dollars worth of exhibits themselves, twenty big free circus acts, fifty other shows, concessions by the score, parades, band concerts and airship flights day and night, while in the evening a day of educational value and of absorbing pleasure will be topped off by the greatest of all pyrotechnical spectacles, "The War of Nations."

Let no one miss Erie's Million Dollar Show week of Sept. 18-23.—aud.

At the Majestic

"A Child of Destiny"

This five-reel masterpiece, starring the charming actress, Irene Fenwick, will be the attraction at the Majestic theatre on Monday evening, September 11. The story is one of more than usual interest with a strong moral. Miss Fenwick scores heavily in the leading role.

"Susie Snowflake"

With admirable judgment the Famous Players Company selected for Miss Pennington's debut a photoplay story which deals with the musical comedy stage, thus giving her an opportunity to transfer to the screen a great deal of the art which has made her famous. As "Susie Snowflake" she will appear at the Majestic on Tuesday, Sept. 12. It is the story of a little actress.

There is many a laugh, a tear or two and many a tense moment in Susie's life, as it is portrayed upon the screen, and there is no question but that delightful Miss Pennington will far excel even the enviable reputation which she won on the stage.

"A Virginia Romance"

The University of Virginia is a thing with excitement, just before the football game between Virginia and Hillside University. Ralph Everly and Harry Daniels are valued members of the team. Ralph is in love with Georgia, Harry's sister, and has urged her to give him her answer. She tells him he shall have it after the game.

Harry has been consorting with gamblers, and they urge him to throw the game, as they are putting up money on the side of the opponents, and the betting is heavy on the home team. Just as the game begins, they send a note to Harry, offering him a thousand dollars to throw the game. By a mistake Ralph gets the note, but does not read it as the whistle is sounded for the game to begin. The first half is played, Virginia winning 3 to 0. Between halves Harry gets the note from Ralph's helmet, makes a fumble and loses the game, 7 to 3. The blame is placed on Ralph and Georgia refuses him. He finishes his schooling and goes to New York, where he becomes successful. Harry, associated with a bank, has stolen from the institution. Ralph proves him guilty and he serves his sentence. He is determined to kill Ralph, Georgia finds it out and warns Ralph, there is a reunion and all are satisfied. This picture will be shown at the Majestic, Tuesday, September 12.

"The Tarantula"

Although Edith Storey, of the Vitagraph Players, has always had an enviable reputation for versatility, we find her proving this statement to our satisfaction in "The Tarantula," at the Majestic Theatre, Wednesday, Sept. 13.

Her character in the first reels of this Vitagraph picture is that of a lively, care-free Spanish senorita—full of life and greatly attracted to a young American, although in opposition to her father's wishes.

Gradually the character is seen to undergo a complete change. When she is betrayed by her American lover, her father sends her from his house, and in company with her duenna she becomes a dancer in a Spanish music hall. Revenge must be hers—every move is made with that in view—her free and easy manner gradually vanishes and an avenging woman is found before the plot runs its course.

"Daredevil Kate"

"Daredevil Kate" is a character unique in literature and motion-pictures," said Virginia Pearson, star of the William Fox production of that name. "Kate begins by being a bad woman; then she becomes good; then she relapses into wickedness with redoubled energy; and when she again becomes good, she does so to stay."

"I call her a girl bandit. I've thought about her ever since I began

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"A Woman's Way"

"A Woman's Way," from the story by T. Buchanan, will be the attraction at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Monday, September 11, when Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell will be seen in this great World Film social drama. It tells in a vivid manner the means adopted by the woman to win back her husband's affections, and her method is well worth trying by any woman who feels that some other woman is trying to corner her husband's love and affection. Women in that state of life should not fail to see this play. It will do them good.

"From Broadway to a Throne"

Carter De Haven who will appear in the Universal feature, "From Broadway to a Throne" at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, created a sensation at Universal City the other day. Strangest sounds emerged all afternoon from the dressing rooms, and no one seemed to know who was the cause of the terrible torture.

The mystery was explained when Carter De Haven, general cut-up and a favorite with everyone, appeared at the door with a saxophone suspended from his mouth. Carter said that he had absolutely no desire to learn how to play the instrument but that he had to do something to get even with the people who tormented him all day long with ukaleles.

"Dorian's Divorce"

Grace Valentine will make her debut on the Metro Program as a full fledged star in "Dorian's Divorce," a five-part feature, at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Wednesday. Lionel Barrymore, one of the most popular actors in the silent drama, is co-starred with Miss Valentine in this Metro wonderplay.

"Dorian's Divorce" is a story of society, high finance and mystery, and deals with a man's sacrifice for the wife of his bosom. There is not a dull moment in the entire production, and will be a treat for those who appreciate the best in motion pictures.

"Bobbie of the Ballet"

Stage life, with its unflinching appeal to the public, is intimately disclosed in the Bluebird photoplay "Bobbie of the Ballet," at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Friday, Sept. 15, with Louise Lovely impersonating a ballet girl who resists temptation under strong pressure, and triumphs over those who would wreck her life. There is a pathetic appeal to the hearts of humanitarians in this girl's struggles against heavy odds and an example of uprightness for girls who may be weakening under the stress of their surroundings. In working out an intensely interesting story the producers have adopted several sensational methods to intensify the appeal of a great moral lesson, embellishing the visualization of the narrative in beautiful photography.

work on this picture, and I can't get a term that is more descriptive. Yet she is not always a girl bandit, for at times there is no thought of unkindness toward others in her heart. She is as changeable as a chameleon, yet the fundamentals of her character are as changeless as the proverbial Sphinx." This remarkable photodrama will be shown at the Majestic, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 14-15.

"The World's Great Snare"

Some of the largest settings ever erected in a motion picture studio were built for "The World's Great Snare," which is starring Pauline Frederick at the Majestic Theatre on Saturday, Sept. 16.

Perhaps one of the most striking scenes is that which shows the interior of the Montana Cafe, in San Francisco, where Miss Frederick, as Myra, the dancer, does some very clever terpsichorean work. The setting itself is a huge structure which shows both the stage, main floor and balcony of the cafe. Here are enacted some of the most thrilling scenes of the play, among them a fight in which one of the contestants is hurled over the balcony rail to the floor below, thus precipitating a general riot on the part of the miners and Mexicans in the cafe.

A great deal of the action of the story transpires in a typical mining town where the coroner's inquest is usually held a few minutes after the shooting and without the formality of moving the victim's body from the scene of the tragedy.

Twenty-five hundred machinists of the Winchester Arms Company, of New Haven, Conn., are on strike for an eight-hour day.

TO WEAR ON TOUR

EFFECTIVE CLOTHES DESIGNED FOR FAIR MOTORISTS.

Pure of Every Kind and Design Are Permissible—Empire Hats Reappearing—Dinner Frocks in Pale Smoke Gray.

No matter how sensitive a woman may be about wearing great bands of fur, ermine capes and foxes strung about the neck on hot days, she may throw her sensitiveness to the winds when it comes to motoring.

Here she may glory in all the peltry that she wishes. Her sports suit of Jersey, woolen, rather than silk, may be banded with fur from the knees down and the shoulders up, and she may wear fur hats as well, if she wishes.

Her motor coat may be copied after one of the smart new models, which is of olive green velour, with a cape collar, immense cuffs and a straight panel from neck to hem of back and white fur laid in broad checks.

France is wearing fur on all her August hats, from San Sebastian to Rhone valley, and America is wearing it on her motor hats throughout every state in the Union. She has unearthed or else bought a top coat of soft fur which she uses on cold nights, and she has even taken her muff out of camphor, sunned it a bit and included it in her motor wardrobe.

She is ready for whatever comes in the way of weather, for the shops have provided for her usage in case of rain, a London coat made of transparent oilskin, in colors plain or iridescent.

This, with a hood to match, can be rolled up in a tiny case and stowed away as easily as a box of biscuits. It is the raincoat de luxe for motoring, and it has solved the problem for the woman who can stand anything but getting wet.

An interesting fact is that second empire hats are coming out with first empire frocks. What's history between milliners and dressmakers? They have no more hesitancy in mingling the eleventh with the twentieth century, the renaissance with the great war and 1800 with 1912, than the hostess of a fancy dress ball.

The new second empire hats are made after the shape that the Empress Eugenie loved. The milliners often call them shepherdess hats. They are made of a soft quality of velvet, the edge bound with a ribbed ribbon.

The French draw hats are here in quantities, and in a brilliant Italian pompadour, a petunia reddish purple, the American women prefer the stiff shapes with only a bow of ribbon or a bunch of trimming.

The charming dinner frock illustrated is of pale smoke gray, made over a slip of gray satin and is trimmed with bands of sky blue ribbon. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNDERWEAR THAT IS SMART

Manufacturers Have Outdone Themselves in Providing Pretty Linen for Milady's Use.

An unusual petticoat is made of nainsook trimmed with two deep ruffles of batiste cut in points and chemise has a panel front and shirred val lace. Rosebuds are placed at intervals on the ruffles.

A pink crepe de chine envelope chemise has a panel front and shirred sides which make it especially suited to wear under a gown that is flat in front and distended at the sides.

A fine quality of pink crepe de chine fashions a chemise trimmed with fine val lace. It is cut on new lines, showing how a panel effect may be given with two rosettes to gather the fullness to the sides.

A dainty pair of knickerbockers is made of white flaxon evenly striped, with one sheer and one heavier stripe. The bodice is of flesh-colored habutai silk, straps and all, with pleated edges for a finishing and three tiny flat bows of satin down the front.

Val lace is ruffled on every edge of a nainsook chemise in princess style and festoons of insertion in bolero effect. A ribbon bow with fluttering ends trims the front.

A band of French knotted embroidery finishes the straight top of a nainsook chemise and double ribbons are used for shoulder straps.

Another chemise of white batiste is tucked to just below the bust line and finished with insertion. Ribbon is laced through eyelets in this band, to ling in front, and double ribbons form the shoulder straps.

Below a yoke of embroidery and lace another chemise of white batiste hangs nearly straight in box plait. The shoulder straps are ribbon, and a ribbon is laced in and out of the yoke.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The white beaded nets are in high favor for evening wear.

White bead trimming is the feature of a sports suit of white pongee.

Flesh colored organdie takes the place in some of the summer frocks that flesh colored chiffon took in winter frocks.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry on Automobiles

SAY! did you ever have to leave the soothing influence of your own rattling radiators in the Big City and go romping off to a rich relation's for the Christmas week-end?

Well, don't do it, if you can help it, and if you can't help it get back home as soon as possible.

When Uncle Gilbert Hawley sent us an invitation to run up to Hawleysville for a day or two I looked at Peaches and she looked at me—then we both looked out of the window.

We knew what a wildly hilarious time we'd have splashing out small talk to the collection of human bric-a-brac always to be found at Uncle Gilbert's, but what is one going to do when the richest old gink in the family waves a beckoning arm?

I'll tell you what one is going to do—one is going to take to one's O'Sullivan's, beat it rapidly to a choo-choo and float into Uncle Gilbert's presence with business of being tickled to death—that's what one is going to do.

You know nature has a few immutable laws and one is that even a rich old uncle must in the full course of time pass on and leave nephews and nieces. Leave them what? Ah! that's it! Where's that time table?

Hawleysville is about forty miles away on the P. D. & Q., and it is some burg. Uncle Gilbert wrote it all himself.

Uncle Gilbert has nearly all the money there is in the world. Every time he signs a check a national bank goes out of existence. He tried to count it all once, but he sprained his wrists and had to stop.

On the level, when he goes into a bank all the government bonds get up and yell, "Hello, papa!"

When he cuts coupons it's like a sheep shearing. He has muscles all over him like a prize fighter just from lifting mortgages.

When Peaches and I finally reached the Hawley mansion on the hill we found there a scene of great excitement. Old and distant relations were bustling up and down the stone steps, talking in whispers; servants with scared faces and popping eyes were peeping around the corner of the house and in the roadway in front of a sobbing automobile stood Uncle Gilbert and Aunt Miranda, made up to look like two members of the Peary expedition at the Pole.

After the formal greetings we were soon put hep to the facts in the case.

"You see, John," bubbled Aunt Miranda, while a pair of great green goggles danced an accompaniment on her nose; "your Uncle Gilbert loaned the money to a man to open a garage in lawleysville. But automobilists never Aunt Miranda explained: "Just make yourselves at home, children."

Uncle Gilbert continued to eye the car for another minute, then he turned to me and said, "Want to try it, John?"

"Nix, Uncle Gilbert," I protested. "What would the townspeople say? You with a new motor car, afraid to run it yourself, had to send to New York for your nephew—nix! Where's your family pride?"

"My family pride is all right," answered Uncle Gilbert; "but there's a lot of contraptions in that machine I don't seem to recognize."

"Oh, that's all right; you're a handy little guy with machinery," I reminded him. "Hop in now and break forth. Don't let the public think that you're afraid to blow a bubble through the streets of your native town. The rubber sweater buttoned to the chin and the Dutch awning over the forehead for yours, and on your way!"

Reluctantly Uncle Gilbert and Aunt Miranda climbed into the kerosene wagon and I gave him his final instructions.

"Now, Uncle Gilbert," I said, "grab that wheel in front of you firmly with both hands and put one foot on the accelerator. Now put the other foot on the rheostat and let the left elbow gently rest on the deodorizer. Keep the rubber tube connecting with the automatic fog whistle closely between the teeth and let the right elbow be in touch with the quadruplex while the apex of the left knee is pressed over the spark coil and the right ankle works the condenser."

Uncle Gilbert grunted. "Why don't you put my left shoulder blade to work?" he muttered. "It's the only part of my anatomy that hasn't got a job."

"John," whispered the nervous Aunt Miranda, "do you really think your Uncle Gilbert knows enough about the car?"

"Sure," I answered, and I was very serious about it. "Now, Uncle Gilbert, keep both eyes on the road in front of you and the rest of your face in the wagon. Start the driving wheels, repeat slowly the name of your favorite corner and leave the rest to fate!"

And away they started in the Whis Wagon.

Before they had rolled along for half a mile through the town, the machine suddenly began to breathe fast and then, all of a sudden, it choked up and stopped.

"Will it explode?" whispered Aunt Miranda, pleadingly.

"No," said Uncle Gilbert, jumping out; "I think the cosmopolitan has buckled with the trapezoid," and then with a monkey wrench, he crawled under the hood to see if the trouble was stubbornness or appendicitis.

Uncle Gilbert took a dislike to a brass valve and began to knock it with the monkey wrench, whereupon the valve got mad at him and upset a pint of ancient salad oil all over his features.

When Uncle Gilbert recovered consciousness the machine was breathing again, so he jumped to the helm, pointed the bow at Boston, Mass., and began to cut the grass.

Alas! however, it seemed that the demon of unrest possessed that Coal-oil Coupe, for it soon began to jump and skip, and suddenly, with a short, it took the river road and scooted away from town.

Uncle Gilbert patted it on the back and spoke soothingly, but it was no use.

Aunt Miranda pleaded with him to keep in near the shore, because she was getting seasick; but her tears were in vain.

"You must appear calm and indifferent in the presence of danger," muttered Uncle Gilbert as they rushed madly into the bosom of a flock of cows.

But luck was with them, for with a turn of the wrist Uncle Gilbert jumped the machine across the road, and all he could feel was the sharp swish of an old cow's tail across his cheek as they rushed on and out of that animal's life forever.

Aunt Miranda tried to be brave and to chat pleasantly. "How is Wall street these days?" she asked, and just then the machine struck a stone and she went up in the air.

"Unsettled," answered Uncle Gilbert when she got back, and then there was an embarrassing silence.

To try to hold a polite conversation on a motor car in full flight is very much like trying to repeat the Declaration of Independence while falling from a seventh-story window.

Then, all of a sudden, the machine struck a chord in G and started for Newfoundland at the rate of 7,000,000 miles a minute.

Aunt Miranda threw her arms around Uncle Gilbert's neck, he threw his neck around the lever, the lever threw him over, and they both threw a fit.

Down the road ahead of them a man and his wife were quarrelling. They were so much in earnest that they did not hear the machine sneaking swiftly up on rubber shoes.

As the Benzine Buggy was about to fall upon the quarrelling man and wife Uncle Gilbert squeezed a couple of hoarse "Toot Toots!" from the horn, whereupon the woman in the road threw up both hands and leaped for the man. The man threw up both feet and leaped for the fence.

The last Aunt Miranda saw of them they were entering their modest home neck and neck, and the divorce court lost a bet.

Then the machine began to climb a telegraph pole, and as it ran down the other side Aunt Miranda wanted to know for the tenth time if it would explode.

"How did John tell you to handle it?" she shrieked, as the Rowdy Cart bit its way through a stone fence and began to dance a two-step over a strange man's lawn.

"The only way to handle this infernal machine is to soak it in water," yelled Uncle Gilbert as they hit the main road again.

"I don't see what family pride has to do with it; there isn't a soul looking," moaned Aunt Miranda.

"Oh! if I could only be arrested for fast riding and get this thing stopped," yelled Uncle Gilbert as they headed for the river.

"Let me out! Let me out!" pleaded Aunt Miranda, and the machine seemed to hear her, for it certainly obliged the lady.

I found out afterwards that in order to make good with Aunt Miranda the machine jumped up in the air and turned a double hand spring, during the course of which friend uncle and his wife fell out and landed in the most generous mudpuddle in that part of the state.

Then the Buzz Buggy turned around and barked at them and with an excited wag of its tail scooted for home and left them flat.

Late that evening Uncle Gilbert explained that there would have been no trouble at all if he had removed a defective spark plug.

But I think if Uncle Gilbert would go to Doctor Leiser and have his parimony removed he'd have more fun as he breezes through life.

Peaches thinks just as I do, but she won't say it out loud. She's a fox, that kid.

A Fly Town.

San Vicente, Mexico, is a community of fly catchers. It lies in the Sierra Madre mountains and its industry consists in catching flies for a European market where compressed fly cakes are used as bird food. The Mexicans harvest their crop on a marsh which breeds millions of black flies somewhat larger than the common house fly. During the season the peons go among the swarms of insects with nets. Each catch is emptied into a bag and at the end of the day the bags are emptied into a box which is also a press. A cover is placed on it and pressed down and weighted with heavy stones. After 24 hours the contents are pressed into a layer. This is cut into six-inch cubes and dried in the sun and is then ready for export. A special tariff on the importation of these cakes is levied by Germany, where most of them go. The San Vicente community almost lives on this unique industry.—Technical World.

Romance vs. Reality.

"Ah!" sighed the sentimental maid. "What is so old as the lofty hills?" "I don't know," responded the matter-of-fact young man, "unless it is the unlofty valleys."

THREATENED RAILROAD STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

jections to the program of legislation formulated by President Wilson, of which the Adamson eight-hour law so called, is but a small part. The program includes the Canadian trade disputes act, it was incorporated as a section of the bill. It did not pass, in fact but one paragraph of the bill did pass. Asked by fellow members as to what the administration means to do about the others later, Congressman Adamson, the president's spokesman in this matter and having charge of the bill in the House, jocularly responded, 'Dying sinners, we shall meet again.'

The Administration's Purpose. 'I take this to mean that, if still entrusted with power, the administration means to pass this law in full later on, including the Canadian trade disputes law feature, which not only makes arbitration compulsory but makes it a crime for workmen to strike against an unsatisfactory award under its operation. I do not like the idea and I do not think you do; besides I suspect it is contrary to our constitution which provides that involuntary servitude, except as punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted shall not exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction. If workmen being legally branded as criminals for laying down their tools rather than submit to a manifestly unjust reward isn't involuntary servitude, just what would you call it?'

'I am emphatically in favor of an eight-hour working day for railroad men, but the eight-hour day law, the single section passed, is it an eight-hour law? It gives the actual day of eight hours to no one. The only advantage to the trainmen is that it gives them, after January first next, the same pay for eight hours they now draw for ten, but there is no limit placed to the number of hours they may be called on to work, they may be kept at work 16 hours continuously, with only proportional pay, no extra pay for extra time as is the rule in other unionized trades where a definite number of hours for a day's work is established. You may call it an eight-hour day; but it is not an eight-hour working day; it is an eight-hour measuring day and there is no guarantee that it will continue longer than six months and 30 days as a minimum or nine months and 30 days as a maximum. Within these limits of time after January first next the commission appointed by the President must report, during this time it declared unlawful for any interstate railroad to reduce the men's wages.

Military Necessity.

'If you want to know what the President's whole program means read his address to Congress recommending it, read his proposition empowering the president to seize and operate the road in case of military necessity and empowering him to draft any railroad employee into the government service to run the trains. What is military necessity? Who is to decide when it exists? The President ordered the national guard to the Mexican border on the plea of military necessity. He could see the necessity for it. I could not. What warrant have we that the report of the commission next October will be satisfactory to either the men, the railroads, or the public, the three parties in interest?

Reasons for Opposing Adamson Bill. 'I voted against the Adamson bill because I believed it to be the first step toward compulsory arbitration, and I have told you why the idea of compulsory arbitration does not commend itself to me. I do not say I would not under any circumstances vote for a measure of compulsory arbitration. I would vote for it if I became convinced it were necessary with the same conviction I voted against it, but it would take powerful arguments to convince me.

'I have not and I do not promise laboring men to vote for anything they ask, but I have promised and I renew that promise to study carefully and conscientiously anything they ask me to vote for. If I believe it is right I will vote for it, if I believe it wrong I must vote against it.

'Friends in congress who thought as I did but voted as I did not on the Adamson bill said to me, 'Temple, don't vote against it. You'll never be able to explain it to the working men. 'I'll take my chances with the working men of my district. I have a better opinion of their intelligence than to think I can't explain to them and make them understand what I myself understand. Some of them may disagree with my judgment but I'll take all chances on any of them doubting that I was voting for what I conscientiously believed to be their best interests.'

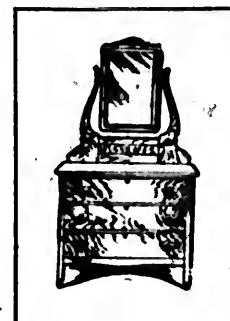

The Labor News again advises railroad men not to give up, but to remain loyal to their organizations. If you should give up your organization or an any way pass, reflections upon your Brotherhoods for what so far has been accomplished in the eight-hour movement, you merely play into the hands of the company, and assist in defeating yourself. If you are dissatisfied with the outcome, remember that there are others who are not, and if you should show a disgruntled spirit at this time, you not only admit defeat for yourself, but you assist in defeating all future moves.

ACCIDENTS DUE TO INADEQUATE LIGHT

Report of Industrial Commission of Wisconsin Contains Much of Interest.

INSURANCE FIGURES CITED

Carelessness of Workmen Not Blamed, in a Great Number of Cases—Union Wins Fight Against New York Paper Box Manufacturers—Labor News.

In a "service letter" to manufacturers in that state the industrial commission of Wisconsin says: "The investigations of the commission reveal the fact that many accidents which have been attributed to carelessness of workmen were really caused by the absence of proper light; the workman could not see what he was doing." The commission quotes the findings of a well-known insurance company, which made a study of 80,000 accidents occurring in industries and found that 23.8 per cent or nearly one-quarter, were directly or indirectly caused by inadequate light. "Apply this experience to Wisconsin," says the commission, "and about 3,000 accidents would be prevented each year if adequate light were provided in factories. This would mean a saving of $300,000."

Fifteen paper box manufacturers of New York, employing a total of more than 400 workers, have agreed to the terms of the Paper Boxmakers' union and have resumed operations, according to Samuel Rosenbaum, financial secretary of the union. Additions to the ranks of the striking boxmakers are claimed from several of the larger manufacturers who have been running with half forces. Applications for settlement also are said to have been received from 25 other manufacturers.

Matthew Wolf of Chicago was re-elected President of the International Photo Engravers' union. Other officers are: Peter J. Brady of New York, first vice president; Henry Schmall of St. Louis, second vice president; Henry J. Wessel, San Francisco, third vice president; Louis A. Schwarz, Philadelphia, secretary and treasurer, and Theodore Greifzu, Philadelphia, Rudy Clemens, Chicago, and Edward Voltz, New York, associate editors of the Engravers' Magazine.

Two hundred boiler-makers and helpers employed by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad from Maybridge, S. D., to the Pacific coast have been granted a wage increase of two and one-half cents per hour. The average wage of boiler-makers will be 40 cents per hour and that of helpers 25 cents an hour in the future. A nine-hour day will be continued as heretofore.

Metal plants, mines and public service work in Pennsylvania last year exacted the highest toll of life and health of the 18 subdivisions of industry included in the 1914 classification. The results are: Metal plants, 25,004 injured, including 212 killed; mines and quarries, 13,955 injured, including 749 killed; public service, 16,919 injured, including 51 killed.

In its year's work, the committee on industrial hygiene of the New York Retail Dry Goods association has found some serious physical conditions among employees in the department stores of Greater New York and has secured from store owners and employees alike a degree of hearty co-operation that has made possible a pronounced improvement in those conditions.

At the closing session of the annual convention of the International Typographical union an arbitration agreement with the American Publishers' association was ratified. The agreement is to cover a period of five years beginning on May 1, 1917. Under its terms every difference of the members of the union with their employers will be settled by arbitration along fixed lines.

Chattanooga's street car strike has been peacefully terminated. The Chattanooga Railways and Light company recognized the newly formed union of carmen and reinstated all discharged employees. A new wage scale will be drafted by a special committee. The maximum pay of Boston telephone operators is raised from $12.30 to $14 a week under an agreement ratified. The new schedule increases the pay of all members of the operating force and gives shorter hours to night workers.

The eight-hour law for city employees is being violated in the Baltimore (Md.) municipal parks, and the trade union movement is demanding the law's enforcement.

A new wage scale of the Cap Mahers' union, providing for an increase in wages from $18 to $18 per week, has been approved by the San Francisco Labor council.

More than $12,000,000 has been expended by the Cigarmakers' International union in caring for its sick, unemployed and destitute members and families during the last 36 years.

Kingston (Canada) labor unions put in a strong protest to the city council over the proposal to have the German prisoners of war employed on street paving.

Idaho has a commission to report on the need of a minimum wage law for children.

Five companies on factories have been sanctioned by the Florida federation of labor.

EFFECT OF CHILD LABOR LAW

Strong Statement Made by the National Committee on Industrial Relations Is Worth Consideration.

The enactment of the federal child labor law by congress will free nearly three-fourths of a million children from industrial slavery, says the national committee on industrial relations. It is a long step toward freeing nearly 1,500,000 other children who labor but the product of whose labor does not enter into interstate commerce. In 1827 a union organization of workers in the city of New York declared that no child under sixteen years of age should be permitted to work in gainful industry. That was the first recorded effort to abolish or to avoid child slavery in the United States. The evil was then only a little one comparatively.

Never before in their history were the great Cramp shipyards at Philadelphia so busy as at present. Day and night the huge plant is in operation and the roar of machinery and the rattle of riveters are incessant. Apart from three torpedo boat destroyers for the United States government the other vessels under construction are for commercial uses. The plant, which covers 13 acres, employs 5,200 hands and is paying out an average of $75,000 a week.

Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 has made a five-year agreement with the book and job printing employers. It provides for an increase for compositors of $1 a week November 1, 1916, and an additional $1 January 1, 1919. They now receive $24 and work eight hours a day. Machine operators will receive similar increase. The new scale was endorsed by the rank and file.

Members of the International Photo Engravers union, in annual convention at Kansas City, were asked not to press newspaper publishers for increased wages because of the threatening print paper situation. H. N. Kellogg of Indianapolis, chairman of a special standing committee of the American Newspaper Publishers association, made the request in addressing the convention.

It is announced that the 1,000 men and women employed in the raincoat making industry in Boston have started on their new wage scale, which carries with it a 15 per cent increase in all shops the owners of which are members of the Boston Raincoat Manufacturers' association. Under the new scale the women are given a minimum wage of $8 a week after three weeks experience.

In its statistics of industrial accidents, just issued, the state department of labor says there were 1,081 fatal accidents in New York's factories alone during 1911 to 1914. The greatest proportion was caused by mechanical power. Heat and electricity caused 32.9 per cent; falls of persons, 18.4 per cent; weights and falling objects, 7.5 per cent, and miscellaneous, 7.9 per cent.

The Illinois industrial commission makes public the fact that of the 326,700 immigrants admitted into the United States for the year ended September 30, 1915, 95,028 indicated New York state as their intended residence. This fact should be considered jointly with the commission's statement that there is now in that state an alien population of 3,000,000.

Danger of a strike of coal miners in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Arkansas has been averted. This was announced by members of the subcommittee of miners and operators. Agreement has been reached on the six disputed clauses. By the settlement 35,000 men will continue at work. It also means higher prices for coal, according to the operators.

The Massachusetts board of labor and industries estimates the loss in wages and sickness expense in Massachusetts amounts to over $10,000,000 annually, or 3 per cent of the total pay rolls of the state. The board says that between 60 and 70 per cent of this loss can be prevented.

Armed with an appeal "To the Workers of All American Countries," signed by President Gompers, Carlos Lovelira and Baltazar Pages have left this country for a tour among Central and South American countries in the interests of a Pan-American trade union movement.

An increase in wages was granted miners of southern Wyoming in an agreement signed by representatives of mine workers and coal operators. Unskilled laborers are to receive an advance of 26 cents a day while the increase of skilled labor is somewhat smaller.

A strike of 200 spinners in the textile mills of Pittsfield, Mass., Dalton, and Hinsdale, was voted by the Spinners' union. The operatives ask a minimum wage of $15 a week and recognition of the union.

Three hundred miners at Oak Hill (Ind.) mine, near Clinton, went on strike, contending that miners had been compelled to lay tracks in the mine, which should have been done by top men or laborers.

After investigating laundries in the principal cities of Kansas a subcommittee of the State Industrial Welfare commission reports that of 564 women workers checked up, 179 are receiving less than $6 a week, 86 less than $5 and some are receiving $3.50. Out of the entire number but 15 are paid more than $10 a week.

In general, women are replacing men throughout Germany in all branches of trade, the professions and as clerks, cashiers, saleswomen, street car conductors, elevator operators, artisans, farming, light street cleaning and other unskilled pursuits.

New Sports Suits for Autumn.

Before the summer sports or pastime suits have vanished from our midst their successor has entered and made its bow. It is destined to bloom with the goldenrod and asters and it is naturally of heavier materials than the suits for summer weather. Serge, velveteen, and corduroy contribute to its durability and to its style as well.

It is likely that these new sports suits for autumn will be innocent of stripes. Those shown so far are of plain materials or of plaids and, fabrics made up together, and they are undeniably smart. Young or old, women wear about the same styles in them, and they subtract years from the matron's appearance in a way to make her rise up and call them blessed, besides cheerfully parting with her good money for them.

Among the most enticing suits, those made of white serge combined with the same materials in handsome colored plaids are triumphing. Sometimes the skirt is white and the coat of the plaid with white collar and cuffs. Or a white skirt is banded with plaid, and a white coat has plaid cuffs and collar, belt and pockets.

When the story is not told in plaids it veers to colored velveteens or corduroys. In the picture a white serge skirt is worn with a taupe gray coat of velveteen with girdle of soft satin. Buttons and tassels make the quiet finish. The blouse is of crepe de chine made plain.

It will be noticed that the skirt extends only a little below the shoe tops and it is not likely that the sports skirt will lose character by growing longer. One may wear a suit of this kind with assurance. It is good to look at and full of its own style. Although the color combination is as quiet as possible the fabrics and the cut of the garment give the suit plenty of "snap." There is nothing tame or commonplace about it.

Elegant Hats for Those in Mourning.

Two very elegant hats, made for those in mourning, are shown. They will satisfy the most discriminating taste, for they fulfill all the requirements for correct millinery of this particular kind. They are made in conservative and becoming shapes, of English crepe or of a specially woven silk and crepe, and the workmanship in them is above reproach.

An all-crepe hat is shown at the left, and all the world over its import is understood. It is the material used for the first period of mourning. The shape is a drooping brimmed sailor of moderate size, and it is covered smoothly with crepe. The fading is of the same exquisite material. Crepe is of a texture that lends itself to the making of flower-forms, and the trimming of this hat is made of crepe. There are four large roses, each made of three sizes of crepe petals set about a cabochon of crepe at the center of the flower. The hat is lined with a soft silk.

The second hat is of silk with a wing made of folds of the silk and crepe. It extends across the front of the hat and terminates in a large cabochon at the right side.

Either of these hats is of a convenient size to be worn with a veil. Veils of silk net, bordered with crepe, take the place of all-crepe veils in new millinery. Or mesh veils bordered with bands of narrow grosgrain ribbon may be used after the period of first mourning is passed. There is much latitude in the choice of styles and the wearing of mourning in this country. But those who elect to wear it must not break certain rules. No extremes of styles are in keeping with the reserve that marks mourning apparel. Fabrics must be good and workmanship of the best. Crepe remains the unquestioned indication of mourning.

Net Wraps Five Layers Deep.

Before the beautiful brocaded cloaks, which are already in New York ready for the open season, are allowed to see the light there is being shown and worn joyously a new sort of evening coat, called the outdoor dinner cape. These are made of five layers of silk net colored often like a flame opal. They furnish just enough protection against the night air and do not "limp" with the damp, for there is no dressing in the net.

DAME FASHION'S LATEST DECREES

Review of Styles Presented to the World by the Leading French Designers.

SKIRTS WILL BE NARROWER

Longer, But Less Wide, Is the Edit, Though There Will Not Be a Return to the Hobble Skirt—End of War Will Affect Clothes of American Women.

PARIS.—There is no doubt now that the French designers will put through their plan to give us skirts that are longer and less wide. There is no return, however, to the sheath or hobble skirt. Not a ripple on the surface of fashion indicates that woman will have less freedom in walking because of the tightness of the hem.

There is a great deal of fullness taken out of the side seams in the new skirts, and the effect is more like the full skirts of the eighteenth century than those of last winter.

A few of the Paris houses cut their walking skirts only three yards wide. Four yards, however, was a more general measurement, and many of the evening skirts fell to the floor in slight fullness, with a sizeable train behind.

Even this moderate amount of fullness is not held out by cerclettes or crinolines, nor is there any tendency toward the barrel skirt or the exaggeration of the hips by the wateau panniers.

No Hip Distension.

Mind you, there is still an ornamentation of the hips, but it is not used for the purposes of distension. What one writer has called the slipper trimming, is a popular expression of the belief that the sides of a skirt should be brought into relief.

Laevin originated this trimming, and Poiret put a good deal of emphasis on it in a slightly different way. It consists of a stitched or embroidered band or bedroom slipper with a rounded toe, and this is placed downward over the hips and usually forms part of the belt.

Certain forms of this slipper trimming have been so commonized in cheap, ready-to-wear garments that the public may be wary of it. It is not possible to tell this early whether or not it will run more than a few weeks.

Is the Short Skirt Doomed?

There may be a few hundred young women and girls who will insist upon the extra short skirt until they are assured that it is doomed. It is graceful on all those who are not burdened with height or width, but it has been carried to such degrees of absurdity during the last six months by women who should have known better, that one does not look with any sorrow on its threatened downfall.

All the smart French women have taken to Oxford ties as the fashionable shoe, the tie that has the broadly rounded toe, the short vamp and high, Spanish heel with lacings of luten-wide ribbon tied in a smart bow at the instep. Such shoes demand a longer skirt than the high laced boot that America went quite mad over last winter.

It is not possible to get away in our fashions from the reflection of the French spirit and French history, and in this connection the designers are wondering what effect the close of the war will have on the clothes of American women.

If France is not victorious the experts believe that all the clothes in the fashionable world will be somber, modest, demure. No flicker of gaiety will creep through fabrics or costume.

If France is victorious, America will burst out in the gay panoply of conquerors. Scarlet and purple, gold and silver and all the magnificent trappings of military achievement and of elated spirit will be reflected in our clothes.

No Victorian Trivialities.

The joyful thing about the new clothes is that all the bows and flutings and ruffles and ruches that disgraced our recent costumery are absent.

These styles, known as 1840 and 1870, were twisted into something that suggested grace and daring by those who were gifted by nature to transform something ugly into something charming by the alchemy of their personality—the kind of person, you know, who makes orangeade out of all the lemons handed out by life, to quote from an optimist's diary; which is, after all, the most constructive policy of happiness in this world.

One gets weary of the Mark Tapscott of life who are forever smiling at the things that are wrong and pretending to be cheerful, but the chemical ability to turn something bad into something good, makes this word want to cheer the person who can do it.

All of which is a verbose way of saying that only a gifted few can make Victorian ornamentation appear attractive.

High Prices in Paris.

Simplicity is the new keynote of French clothes, but expensive simplicity, which, after all, is far better than expensive ugliness. Gowns are priced beyond the dreams of avarice, today, and no one but a buyer for a rich American firm can afford more than one in Paris at this season.

No plausible reason is given for this increase in prices. There is no need of one. Paris needs all the money she can get and she is no different from any other section of humanity on this planet in demanding all she can get when she knows that the world is dependent on her work.

Whether or not this will mean that the American people will pay more for their autumn clothes is in the balance. We, the laymen, have never found that the American commercial world ever had the slightest hesitation in getting all it could out of us.

Fashions That Are Promised.

Several of the French houses still insist upon the Russian influence in clothes, but this does not mean the influence of the Russian ballet. There is a vast difference between the clothes of a Cossack and those of a slave in Scheherazade.

Russian blouses, Paris says, will be longer than ever and will be belted with superb pieces of crude, brilliant Russian embroidery in which there is a glint of metal.

Many jackets will be three quarter length.

The gray known as bleu ardoise, which is slate blue, is to be incorporated into a variety of clothes.

For everyday wear and sharing the place of honor with ermine, in a popular sense, is rabbit. This common peltry is by no means commonly priced, and yet it is used so lavishly on all the new clothes that one imagines the French designers had been raising rabbits on a stupendous scale in order to get ready for this usage of the fur.

The straight skirts which hang plumb from hip to hem are plaited. Many of the dressmakers endorse this style for the street.

Short velvet jackets are added to plaid and striped skirts for the early autumn, and the velvet hat goes with them. There are two new shapes which the milliners have brought over from Paris, one of which is a hat from the Russian marine with a pom-pom on top made of feathers and the other a modified cowboy hat with a slouched brim and a huge silver triangle in front.

GREEK PREMIER HAS RESIGNED

ENGLAND PLANS TO ATTACK GERMANS FROM REAR

HOLLAND REMAINS NEUTRAL

French Capture Trenches on the Somme—Constantine May Command Armies If Greece Enters War—Position Is Stated.

London.—Premier Zaimis of Greece has resigned. With the new cabinet crisis thus arising, the final act in the drama of Greek indecision is about to be staged and all reports from the Balkans agree that when the curtain rises for the new ministry, Greece will be found a party to the war on the allies' side.

Dispatches as to King Constantine's decision regarding his premier's resignation are conflicting.

Athens.—Several members of the Zaimis cabinet called at the palace and insisted that it was impossible for the ministry to remain in power. The belief is held in official circles that a cabinet crisis can not be avoided.

Position Stated.

Munitions and equipment is all that the entente offers Greece in return for intervention. All former territorial offers have been withdrawn. If she sides with the allies she will do so without future guarantees.

This is the main reason the Hellenic government continues to hold out. Coupled with it is the theory widely held in Greece that if Germany emerges from the war as the arbitrator in the Balkans, she will amply reward Greece for her neutrality.

For the entente, a prompt decision on the part of Greece is now imperative, because of the danger presented to the Franco-British expedition in Macedonia by a possible future Greek turn to the central powers, which might bring the Greek army against them from the south.

A report is current that Constantine plans making his son regent, while the war lasts, and while he himself takes the chief command of his army in the field.

May Operate From North Sea.

Berlin.—Facing cumulative evidence of her inability to break through the German lines in the west, England, it is alleged, is taking up serious consideration of the old plan of landing somewhere on the North sea coast, which would enable her to attack the Germans in Belgium from the rear.

French Take Trenches.

Paris.—The French infantry started an offensive along a front of six kilometers north of the Somme, and in half an hour took an entire first line of German trenches, says the official communication.

Another portion of the French forces carried a system of trenches along the road from Bethune to Peronne. Prisoners to the number of 1,500 had been taken when the report was filed.

PRESIDENT MEETS THE MEXICAN COMMISSION

Exchanged Calls With Carranza Representatives—Expresses His Sympathy.

New London, Conn.—President Wilson lent his personal touch to aid the efforts of the American-Mexican joint commission in seeking a permanent foundation of sympathy and understanding upon which may rest the future relations of the United States and Mexico.

Putting aside for one hour his own cares and his presence at the bedside of his sister, who is dying here, President Wilson exchanged calls with General Carranza's representatives.

It was the first time during his administration that the executive had dealt personally with a representative of the Mexican de facto government, and the significance of this fact was not lost upon the commissioners.

The President said he was familiar with the fundamental principles of the struggle for free government in Mexico. He assured them of his deep sympathy with their aims, adding that right thinking men all over the world must sympathize with such high aspirations.

Norway Has First Concrete Ship.

Christiania, Norway.—A new type of ship has arrived here. It resembles a huge barge and is constructed entirely of concrete, except the ribs, which are steel, and is the first stone vessel ever floated. It is said that the hull will resist damage better than steel or wood and that the ship is therefore safer.

Emery Dues Dipos Out Foreigners.

Charleston, W. Va.—Startling conditions have been revealed here in the deaths of almost a whole colony of Poles, employed in the grinding room of a local axle factory. The foreigners are dying of tuberculosis as a result of inhaling emery dust.

Four Die In Crash.

Astoria City, N. J.—Three women and a man were killed and two women severely injured at Ocean Heights when an automobile collided with a freight car at a grade crossing.

REFUSES TO END STRIKE

President Shouts Dealings to Accept Mayor's Suggestion.

New York.—President Shonta of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, announced that he will not accept the recommendation of Mayor John Purroy Mitchell and the Public Service Commission to call off the strike and arbitrate the differences between the railway companies and the labor union.

After Mayor Mitchell and the commission had taken steps to terminate the strike by urging that it be immediately declared off and that both sides arbitrate their differences, plans to continue and extend the strike were discussed at a meeting of the United Labor Conference of Central Bodies of Greater New York.

After the conference, Hugh Frayne, New York state organizer of the American Federation of Labor, said: "The consensus of opinion among members of organizations represented was that the railroad officials must be met with the sort of force they are applying to the men."

IN FIELD AGAINST VILLA

Trevino Prepares to Crush Bandit—Preparations Complete.

Chihuahua City.—Mexican government troops are preparing to take the field in a vigorous offensive against Villa and his bandits reported to be in the Santa Clara canyon. This announcement was made by General Jacinto Trevino following a conference with General Matias Ramos, Domingo Arrieta and Eliseo Aradondo.

General Trevino said that 15 pieces of artillery of the 70 and 80 millimeters caliber have been sent from Monterrey for use in the campaign.

Villa Pays in Silver.

El Paso.—From the seat of a wagon, Francisco Villa addressed the populace of Batavo, Chihuahua, when his forces captured the town. Villa was quoted as saying: "You see before you 'Pancho' Villa, the bandit. But you see also that I am paying my soldiers in silver, and I promise you it will not be long until I have a large army."

CONGRESS ENDS LONG SESSION

BROKE ALL RECORDS OF APPROPRIATIONS

THE TOTAL IS $1,637,583,662

National Defense Measures Require $800,000,000 During Next Three Years—Treaties Ratified and Commissions Are Created.

Washington.—Congress has adjourned. The session that lasted longer and saw more dramatic moments than any in recent history and that had appropriated more money than any congress preceding it, came to a close amid scenes that contained little of the spectacular or the bizarre. The incidents of the latter kind that have marked the ending of many a congress were altogether lacking.

The senate waited to adopt the final resolution setting the adjournment hour.

The house had gone through with its adjournment resolution. During a two-hour morning session there was only a slight undercurrent of real work—cleaning up of small odds and ends—but a lot of speech-making of the eagle screaming variety and some fun.

The first session of the Sixty-fourth Congress was concerned chiefly with national defense.

When the gavel fell Congress had directed reorganization and re-equipment of the army and navy at the unprecedented cost of $655,000,000 with authorizations that will increase the total in three years to nearly $800,000,000. With other expenditures appropriations were brought to the grand total of $1,637,583,662, the greatest aggregate in the country's history, and exceeding that for the last fiscal year by more than half a billion dollars.

The senate continued on its course until the very last minute when, exactly five minutes before 10, Senators Kern and Smoot, named to wait on the President, announced the decision to adjourn had the President's approval.

At the same moment the house stopped at the appearance of Representatives Fitzgerald, Kitchin and Mann, who had waited on the President and received the same message.

More Sympathizers May Strike in Various Trades.

SPAN COLLAPSES; 11 ARE KILLED

SECOND ATTEMPT TO BRIDGE ST LAWRENCE FAILS

FOUR BODIES RECOVERED

Lives of 90 Men Were Endangered—Chief Engineer Among Them—Accident Witnessed by Thousands—Completed in Year.

Quebec.—With the loss of 11 lives, the second attempt to bridge the St. Lawrence river here resulted in failure when the massive center span, weighing 5,000 tons, suddenly collapsed and fell into the river. Of the 90 men caught on the span when it began to sway, all were rescued except 11, and of those only four bodies have been found.

The span was being raised from pontoons and was about 15 feet above the water when from some unknown cause it collapsed and sank into the river, which is 200 feet deep at this place.

The St. Lawrence river was filled with many boats at the time of the accident, and on the hills along the shore were hundreds of persons who came by rail and automobile to see the culmination of the mighty engineering project costing $17,000,000. The big steel frame was taken in tow to the gap which it was expected to fill.

Thousands See Accident.

Shortly after the gigantic pontoons reached the allotted place and were withdrawn by tugs, leaving the massive girder resting on hydraulic jacks. These had begun to raise the big span, while the crowds shouted, thinking they had seen the most impressive ceremony of the bridge raising. The spectators began to leave, when suddenly there was a roar of breaking steel and the span dove into the water.

Nine years ago a similar accident at the same spot took a toll of 70 lives.

Property Loss $600,000.

The property loss resulting from the Quebec bridge disaster will be approximately $600,000. It was stated by George L. Evans of the Dominion Bridge Company. The accident will delay the completion of the structure for 10 months.

Chief Engineer McMillan was among the injured. He was rescued by a tug.

He turned over his message to the second courier at Providence, R. I., who sped for the next relay point at Kingston, N. Y.

PAYMASTER KILLED; LOOT RECOVERED

Auto Held Up—Pay Roll Stolen—Employee Suspected of Crime. One Identified.

WHEELING, W. Va.—After killing Lee Rankin, superintendent of the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company at Florence, O., two masked bandits escaped with money with which Rankin was going to the mine to pay employees.

Rankin was on his way from the bank to Martins Ferry in a taxicab driven by Paul Pickens. At a lonely spot in the road, two armed men emerged from the bushes and, without giving a chance for life began to shoot. The first shot struck Rankin, who fell.

The robbers secured the money from a suitcase and disappeared. Rankin was hurried to the hospital by Pickens, but died without regaining consciousness.

Loot Recovered by Boys.

All the money stolen was found by boys in weeds near the scene of the crime. The money, $8,070.80, was in the box which was lifted from Rankin's automobile by the robbers.

Harry, Baldwin of Bellaire, O., as a suspect, was identified by Paul Pickens, driver of the automobile, as one of the highwaymen.

WILL NOT OBEY EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Santa Fe Route Refuses to Comply With Act Unless Forced to By Supreme Court.

Topeka, Kan.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, declared in a formal statement that the Santa Fe did not intend to comply with the Adamson eight-hour law, recently enacted by congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered so to do by the United States Supreme Court.

Ripley's Statement.

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four leaders of labor organizations, enacted a so-called eight-hour law which is nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of the best-paid men in railway service. It is only fair to the public and to our employees to say that the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company does not intend to comply with the law until ordered to do so by the court of last resort."

Southerners Back Protest.

UNIONS WITH 750,000 MEMBERS ASKED TO WALK OUT

SERVICE IS BADLY CRIPPLED

Auto Trucks, Roller Skates and Other Means Reported to Reach Destinations—Little Night Service—Day Service Half.

New York.—A strike of stage employees, longshoremen, brewery workers, machinists, bartenders, molders and printers, in sympathy with the unionized carmen, was decided upon at a meeting of the heads of their unions.

A resolution was passed calling on all union wage-earners of Greater New York, Yonkers, Mount Vernon, White Plains, in support of the contention of the street railway men of their right to organize.

Approximately 750,000 men and women are enrolled in the unions represented at the meeting.

"Fight to Finish"

Before a sympathetic strike can be declared, however, it was explained by the union leaders, it will be necessary for them to call mass meetings of their respective unions and put the proposition to a vote of the members.

Three women were arrested as ringleaders of a mob that assailed street cars at One Hundred and Fourth street and Madison avenue and one of these is charged with hurling the stone that struck and seriously injured a woman passenger.

Adults on Skates.

In the subway and on the elevated railway lines trains were run with greater frequency than usual. This, it was explained, was done to accommodate the overflow of Sunday crowds, which ordinarily ride on surface cars.

In some instances adults were observed on roller skates.

BETRAYED!

Labor deserves its fair reward and, like capital, can get it only by deserving it.

Labor suffers whenever its great thinking majority does not control as it has a right to do.

This majority is orderly and fair-minded. It does not countenance violence, the bludgeon, the knife, the pistol and the fire-brand.

It manifested no sympathy with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times or with the convicted so-called labor leaders in Chicago when they were recently sentenced to jail for conspiracy and blackmail.

The thinking majority would not tolerate the re-election to places of honor in their organization of leaders who had been convicted of dynamiting as at Los Angeles.

The majority would not follow any leader who acknowledged, as one did in New York recently, that he was associated with another so-called "leader" in San Francisco while the latter was under indictment for murder.

Infinite harm has been done to organized labor by the failure of the majority of its members to protest against leadership that has betrayed them.

They were betrayed in the Danbury Hat strike. The promise made to the striking hatters that they would be protected from loss resulting from the action of courts was deliberately broken.

They were betrayed in New York City when Sam Parks, now in State Prison for his crime, sold them out.

They were betrayed in Los Angeles by dynamiters now in stripes, and they are being betrayed today on the Pacific Coast by leaders facing long terms in prison.

If Mayor Mitchel had promptly declared that he would not yield to the demand of the car union of New York to reinstate employees who had been convicted of misdemeanors during the strike, he would have shown the kind of backbone that the employees and the public generally admire.

Let organized labor get rid of its betrayers and of all the political hangers-on who trade for political offices on the absurd claim that they can deliver the labor vote.

No one man or set of men controls the votes of the workingmen of the United States. These are the most independent of all our voters.

In their hearts thoughtful workingmen despise the demagogues who seek to curry their favor and trade upon their votes.—Leslie's Weekly.

Program for Next Week

MONDAY, SEPT. 18—Metro Pictures Corporation presents a five-act wonderplay, "The Devil at His Elbow," a story of what Rum and a Woman can do to a man.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 19—Pallas Pictures presents Myrtle Stedman in "The American Beauty," a charming story of love and the sea.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 20—V. L. S. E. Inc., presents Orrin Johnson in "The Light at Dusk," a drama of the soul.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, SEPT. 21-22—William Fox presents June Caprice and Harry Hilliard in "Little Miss Happiness," the sweetest story ever told.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 23—Daniel Frohman presents the popular stage favorite Donald Brian in "The Smugglers," an amusing photoplay comedy.

At the Majestic

"The Devil at His Elbow." A startling five-part Metro wonderplay in which Clifford Bruce and Dorothy Green are co-starred, will be seen at the Majestic, Monday, Sept. 18. This production contains scores of big situations presented on an elaborate scale in genuine settings on New York's waterfront, on board a big steamer at sea, and on a submarine of the United States navy. The story features Mme Petrova. It deals with the subject of drink and its evil influence when taken by a mechanical engineer as a stimulant to continue in an almost super-human endeavor to complete plans for a new submarine. Mr. Bruce has the role of the engineer, while Miss Green plays the part of a woman of the waterfront.

"The American Beauty." In the panic created by the burning of an ocean liner at sea, the Ellsworths become separated from their infant daughter. The babe is rescued and grows into beautiful womanhood as Ruth Cleave—a fisherman's daughter.

Paul Keith, an American artist, is seeking the ideally beautiful woman, and after several failures he discovers in Ruth Cleave, in a most unexpected way, the beauty of soul that he has been seeking. The love story of the beautiful model and the young aristocratic painter has many tangles and unwonted turns. Keith casts aside all barriers of his aristocratic upbringing and proposes to Ruth, who refuses him. Why and of the results—the story relates with a thrilling charm, and is to be seen at the Majestic, on Tuesday, September 19.

"The Light at Dusk." Relentless, pitiless, self-seeking—an autocrat who has forced his way from the penury of Russian peasantry to the power of an American Steel king—Valdimir Krestovsky smears the pallid paste of poverty over the mill slaves who are his brothers.

In his luxury, he forgets also his wife and daughter, stranded in a far-off Russian hotel, and re-marries a society leader.

Then, when his second wife dies, comes the realization—with pangs of conscience and remorse.

He seeks to forget his past in art and one masterpiece so clears his vision that he sees "The Light at Dusk" and is shown the way. At the Majestic Wednesday, September 20.

"Little Miss Happiness." Once again June Caprice forges the front in a picture of country life. Her newest film for William Fox, "Little Miss Happiness," which will be the feature at the Majestic Theatre on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 21-22, overflows with quaint humor, and the spirit of the fields, with the innocence of a little girl who has passed her days among the daisies.

In this new photoplay Miss Caprice takes the part of Lucy White. Harry Hilliard plays Dave Allen, son of Lucy White's neighbor, Squire Allen.

Lucy lives with her grandma. She earns a living for them both by selling yeast. Among her customers are the Allens, whose son, Dave, is away at college. Because of the miserable existence her father forces on her, Sadie Allen, the daughter, leaves home and goes to the city. There she falls in with Max Barker, a dissolute college boy, who marries her. The ensuing scenes wind out a story of absorbing interest.

"The Smugglers." Donald Brian, the popular stage favorite, will be seen in "The Smugglers," which comes to the Majestic on Saturday, Sept. 23. The laughable series of comic tragedies which result from the attempt of John Battleby Watts, who has made millions by converting hay into breakfast food, to recover his wife's $20,000 pearls which he has carelessly lost, and for which he has substituted bogus pearls, is presented with much humor and many thrills. The culmination of Watts' trials occurs at the Customs House, when he attempts to smuggle in the bogus pearls in order to avoid the exposure which would result from his declaring them at their supposed $20,000 valuation. In spite of his efforts, however, the indignant Mrs. Watts learns of the substitution of her pearls. In the following scenes Watts learns that the belief that "pearls are made of tears" is composed of more truth than imagination.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Summer Girl." "The Summer Girl," a fantastical farce comedy, with Mollie King and Arthur Ashley in the leading roles, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Monday, Sept. 18. In this picture Miss King and Mr. Ashley appear in by far the best advantage of their motion picture careers. The story deals with a rich young girl who goes down South to spend the winter, plays the role of a mischievous young country girl, falls in love with an artist, poor but honest.

As success crowns the efforts of the latter, he seeks Mary, his country girl idol, only to find that she has gone to the city. From the laundress where Mary stopped, the artist learns her identity, and how she had outwitted him. Succeeding in getting her address, seeks her out, and after a thrilling courtship, makes her his wife.

"The Mark of Cain." "The Mark of Cain," a five-reel Red Feather feature photoplay to appear Tuesday Sept. 19, at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, has a collection of motion picture stars that is remarkable. The male lead is taken by Lon Chaney. In this play he successfully takes the part of a lad who goes to prison to save his father's name. Miss Dorothy Phillips plays opposite Chaney. She has been playing leads for the Universal for several years. The part of a society woman is well taken by Gretchen Lederer. Miss Lederer is an old favorite with movie fans. Lydia Yeamans Titus, who takes the part of mother, is very well known to older movie fans. Mark Fenton takes the part of an elderly man; and finally little Georgia French, who is not yet six, and is one of the most capable of child actresses.

"The Masked Rider." This thrilling five-part Metro-Quinty wonderplay, which will be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Sept. 20, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison in the leads, promises to be one of the sensations of the season. It is a strange, vital story of the mountains, dealing with the desperate methods employed by a gang of moonshiners before they are rounded up by government agents. Mr. Lockwood, in the dual role of a country parson and the masked rider, is responsible for breaking up the band. And in so doing wins the heart of the "flower of the mountains," the role essayed by Miss Allison.

John Henry Gets a Present

SAY! did you ever dream you were going to get a wonderful Christmas gift from a rich relation and wake up in the icehouse?

Friend wife and I are not mercenary, but we did have a hunch that Uncle Peter would slip us an onyx clock with which we could hide the knotholes in our money mantelpiece, or an amethyst ash tray which we could use as a bathtub for the canary; but nothing doing!

It was a sad blow to us that Christmas morning, because the old boy is upholstered with coin. He owns all the eagles on the gold pieces. He has pet names for them and keeps them cooped up like a flock of chickens.

And all he sent us was a book worth sixty cents net, written by a pretzel pen pusher named Helfenhelfen.

I wanted to throw it out the window at a taxi driver engaged in exercising his engine for the benefit of those in the neighborhood who were sleeping late on Christmas morning, but Peaches had her shoes and stockings off and was wading through the first chapter.

The book, she informed me, was a series of essays on reincarnation.

Can you tie that for a Christmas present from a man to whom money comes crying like a child and begs to be put to sleep in his safety-deposit vaults?

Reincarnation is a long, loose-looking word—and to a perfect stranger it has a slightly suspicious sound, but its bark is worse than its bite.

After reading about half a gallon of Helfenhelfen's theories, Peaches began to bite her nails and make faces like a highbrow.

"The idea of a person having been somebody else in a previous existence is interesting, isn't it, John?" she gurgled. "I wonder who I was?"

"You appeared first as the Queen of Sheba," I told her; "and after chasing King Solomon up a sycamore tree you disappeared for several centuries and then you slipped into history's moving pictures as Cleopatra, and I've a dog-gone good mind to divorce you for the way you carried on with Marc Antony."

"Oh, tush!" giggled Peaches. "Have some sense. Who do you think Hep Hardy was?"

"Hep!" I said, "why Hep originally was a katydid or a tree toad, probably both. Later on he appeared as a dancing dervish and made weekly pilgrimages to Mecca to fill himself and the goatskin with grape. Then he dropped out for several hundred years to get a new set of watertight compartments and finally reappeared as Joe Morgan in 'Ten Nights in a Bar-room' and he's been playing that ever since."

"I don't see why you can't take this seriously," she pouted. "Herr Helfenhelfen's book is very wonderful."

"So is a Swiss cheese sandwich," I ventured. "Did you ever stop to think how wonderful those holes are in a

First Essay.

David kept his boot heel on the neck of the fallen Goliath and laughed pleasantly.

"Are you all in?" David inquired, after a pause.

"I refuse to speak until you take your spurs out of my face," replied the giant.

David at once showed his obliging nature.

"We shall meet again," Goliath replied hoarsely.

"Not if I see you first!" said David.

"I will take good care that you don't," chuckled the expiring giant.

"How?" was David's interrogation.

"It will be in the far, far future," said the giant. "You will then be one of the Common People walking in the streets."

"And you?" David asked.

"I will be a chauffeur on a smoke wagon, and what I will do to you will be a pitiful shame," responded the giant.

Then with a bitter laugh the triumphant Goliath turned over and pushed his mortal coil off the shuffle-board.

Second Essay.

The ghost of Julius Caesar looked threateningly at Brutus, the Stabbiat.

Brutus sneered.

"You," he said; "to the mines!"

Not one of Caesar's muscles quivered.

Brutus used a short, sharp laugh.

"You," he said; "on your way!"

Caesar never batted an eyelash.

Brutus pointed to the rear.

"Go way back," he said, "and use your laziness."

Caesar pulled his toga up over his cold shoulder.

Brutus laughed again, and it was the saucy, triumphant laugh of the man who dodges in front of a woman and grabs a seat on the elevated railroad.

"The next time we meet you will not do me as you did me at the base of Pompey's statue," said the ghost of Caesar, speaking for the first time since we began this essay.

"We will not meet again because I refuse to associate with you," said Brutus.

Caesar smiled, but it was without mirth, and as cold as the notice of suspension on the door of a bank.

"Yes, we will meet again," said Caesar.

"Where?" said Brutus.

"In the far, far future," said the ghost of Caesar shriekingly. "You will be born into the world again by that time, and in your new personality you will be one of the Common People, and you will burn gas."

"And you?" inquired Brutus.

"I will be the spirit which puts the wheels in the gas meter, and may heaven have mercy on your pocket-book!" shrieked the ghost of Caesar.

Brutus took a fit, and used it for

"And when will that be?" inquired Wellington, laughing loudly. "In the far, far future," replied the little Corporal. "You will then be one of the Common People."

"And what will you be?" Wellington asked.

"I shall be spirit of the High Cost of Living and I shall gnaw at your pocketbook until your appetite becomes a burden unbearable. Bonsoir, mes enfants, du spitzbuben!"

Then the little corporal called a cab and left Wellington flat on the battlefield.

When I came back from the kitchen I found Peaches in the front room hugging Helfenhelfen to her heart and laughing her yellow head off.

"Like it?" I asked, swelling up with the pride of authorship.

"Look!" she spluttered between laughs. "Look, John! Isn't Uncle Peter a dear old fox? He wanted us to read this book and find the real Christmas present. Look here, on page 173 he has neatly attached a thin little check for a thousand dollars! Isn't he a darling?"

"It's worth that to read 173 pages of Helfenhelfen," I squawked, to cover my confusion.

Some Uncle, that old boy, and I take back anything I may have said about him in those dark moments before Helfenhelfen came across with the cash.

After we sat there for two hours spending the money, I asked Peaches how my homemade essays stacked up with the German importations.

"What essays?" she inquired blankly.

"Why, I left them here on the table," I said.

"Oh, that!" she cooed. "I thought that was a letter of apology so I threw it in the wastebasket without reading it, because an apology wasn't necessary."

Isn't she the limit in imported child-fon, I ask you?

HER SIDE OF THE CLOTH

Younger Sister Was Anticipating What in Time She Knew Would Be Hers.

How often it is that the younger of two children in a family is at a disadvantage, in the matter of what is done for him, the clothes which he wears and the attention which he receives generally. It is sometimes pathetic, although occurring not so much from any real difference in the feelings of the parents for the two as from thoughtlessness and the natural order of things. The handing down of clothes from older to younger, for example, is almost necessary in many a family, but it is a hardship for the younger one, nevertheless.

One family once had two girls in exactly this situation, the younger being just so much behind her sister in growth and development that it came perfectly natural that the elder's dresses should fall to her lot in the course of time. And so it happened that all the new things were the elder's and the younger always had them made over for herself.

One day the elder was told by her mother to go downtown and select some material which she liked for her graduation dress and bring it home for approval. Full of glee, the girl started to go, when the younger spoke up in all seriousness: "Don't you think I ought to go with her, mamma," said she, "to see if I like the other side?"

It set the mother to thinking, and after that the younger got some new things of her very own.—Rochester, N. H., Courier.

How Shoe Peg Was Invented.

To a Massachusetts man, Joseph Walker, is due the credit of inventing the shoe peg. Previous to the year 1818 its use had not been known, and its inventor gave a new start to the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Shortly after the introduction of this invention some unscrupulous parties are said to have tried to swindle the unsuspecting by endeavoring to sell shoe pegs as a new kind of coin.

Up to 1818 boots and shoes had been sewed, and the peg, made first by hand, came in to revolutionize the trade. It was, however, the custom of shoemakers who lived away from the manufacturing centers to make their own pegs by hand, even as late as 1890, but the machine-manufactured peg has now superseded them.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

A Little Talk on the Appreciation of Their Efforts.

SHOULD KEEP THE CREATIONS

It is the Pleasant "How Nice" That Makes All the Difference to the Hearts of the Children.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

As each child's name was called he stepped forward and received from the kindergarten the result of his efforts at "making something" for some member of the home. The children were gay and they were anticipating the joy of giving. It was a pleasure to watch them. But when Genevieve's name was called a new note was struck. "Please, Miss White," she said, "my mother does not want me to bother her any more with the things I make." And Miss White laid Genevieve's calendar aside.

It is not difficult to see the point of view expressed in Genevieve's plaintive abnegation. There is really no room for all these things at home. We have all the calendars and blotters and picture frames and shaving pads that we really need. And as for ornaments, these things are not particularly beautiful, and if they are, as may sometimes happen, they do not harmonize with the scheme of things already installed, and besides, they gather dust, and there are few homes that have not already too many dust catchers. We can well understand that Genevieve's mother was weary of calendars and bookmarks.

But Miss White is also weary of calendars and bookmarks. Where one mother has had half a dozen she has had hundreds. She manages to smile, however, in spite of the clutter and in spite of the obvious monotony through a curious trick of the mind which it would be well for Genevieve's mother and other mothers to learn. The trick is this: Instead of dealing with calendars and bookmarks, she fixes her mind upon the efforts of the tot, she sees trial and tribulation, she sees wonder and experiment, where the rest of us see only crude imitations of tulips or apple blossoms.

Notwithstanding the high rentals we have to pay, it ought to be possible for every mother to keep each child's tokens of struggle and conquest for some time at least. For nothing is more important to the child than that his meager and unsuccessful attempts at mastering his material surroundings should receive generous encouragement. And while much is gained by having someone stand by and cheer him when he falters, that is not enough. The product, poor though it be, is the symbol of an idea, an inspiration, and deserves the courtesy of serious and dignified attention from parents and other elders. The calendar is as worthy of a place on the wall as anything you can buy at the store, for by honoring it you teach the child that his efforts are not wasted. As for taste in calendars, leave that to the years.

Of course it is not necessary to display all of the child's creations or to convert the home into an industrial museum. It is, in fact, the latest trophy that carries the greatest interest, and the latest may be made to displace its predecessor, each effort thus receiving its due share of attention and appreciation. Where there are several children it should be possible to provide large paper envelopes and boxes in which these early treasures may be kept.

Every mother knows that young children can be a nuisance and in the way just when they are trying to help with some "work." The number of peas that the baby can shell or the area that the child can sweep will contribute little to lightening the day's work. But the value of the contribution is not to be measured thus. It is to be measured in good will, in application and in the satisfaction that comes—or should come—from having made a worthy effort at doing something useful. We should therefore not belittle the achievement or make the child feel that his assistance is worthless.

The child works in the spirit of the artist. He is not seeking material rewards; he wants the satisfaction of doing something that has meaning and he wants appreciation. Without these he will become either a shirker, shunning all effort or a perfunctory glazier, laboring under compulsion of one kind or another. It is therefore necessary not only that opportunities be furnished for doing various kinds of work, but that the first awkward attempts be appreciated in a way that will lead to further effort. And this is just as true of attempts at singing or invention—invention of a song or story, for example—as it is of attempts at making some object or drawing that others may handle or exhibit.

While this doctrine of appreciation does not permit us to belittle the child's efforts, it still leaves us free to help the child with criticisms calculated to enable him to increase his work. But we should call attention to such defects only as he is in a position to remedy himself, and without too much effort. If the doll's dress is too long, it's a simple matter to cut it down. But if it's too short we note that it's a very nice dress, and think we'll make the next one a little longer. The repeated emphasis on defects of design or execution may have the effect of improving the child's taste or judgment; but they are more likely to discourage all effort.

A child that sees too clearly the shortcomings of his efforts will refuse to do anything at all. This was the case with four-year-old Herbert, whose sense of form was so far ahead of his muscular control that he could get no satisfaction out of the paper stars he cut out himself, and so refused, after one or two attempts, to try again.

When little Allan's mother failed to recognize the child's drawing as that of a "lamp" she was wise enough to take to herself the blame—"How stupid of me!" For, after all, you can recognize even the lamp if you are told what it is supposed to be. And so the burden of keeping keen the edge of effort rests upon us. But don't let the child become conceited.

THEY COULDN'T RESIST HIM

Young Man Surely Had a Taking Way With the Ladies, if You Let Him Tell It.

"Oh, I make friends with people whenever I like," he had explained, "and they never object. They like it. They all like it."

"And you speak to strange young ladies?"

"The last one I spoke to was in London last month. I was standing on the steps of a house in Piccadilly, watching some visiting potentates drive by, when the door opened, and out came the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life. She stood for a moment looking up and down the street, and I said to her: 'Do you know who that fierce, fat man in the last carriage is—the one who looks like a walrus?' She said: 'Oh, that's my Uncle Ethelbert!'"

"But that was the end of it," Mary broke in—"you didn't go on talking to her?"

"The end of it," Krujer Hobbs had concluded, taking off his glove and offering a slim bony hand—"the end was that we had tea at an A. B. C. shop, and she said she was sorry she was engaged to marry her cousin, whose name, I think, was Lionel."—From "Krujer Hobbs" by Marjory Morten, in Century Magazine.

Serum to Save Drowning Persons.

Experiments are being made with a serum which is said to have been used with success in restoring cases of asphyxiation and drowning in animals several hours after life has been to all appearances extinct. There appears to be one drawback in the result thus far, however, in that in many instances there have been serious after effects such as high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries. If the serum is to be perfected, as appears to be likely, the physicians are of the opinion that it can be injected several hours after the accident and restore life. In one case the serum was used on an animal that had been apparently dead from drowning for a period of four hours. The animal was brought back to life, though it died later from blood pressure.

War and the Weather.

If the north Atlantic skippers who think that the bad weather from which they have been suffering is due to the concussion of the bombardment in Europe would compare notes with their colleagues in the West India and Caribbean trade they might take a broader view of the meteorological disturbances. The storms which have been raging in the north Atlantic, the bay of Biscay and the Mediterranean started in the tropics and had already paid respects to our coast before crossing over to add to Europe's troubles. The skepticism of the scientists in regard to the connection between war and weather is well founded. As for the gun upon all that can be said at present is that they are under suspicion.

WHEN FOES MEET IN AIR

German Lieutenant Tells of Engagement in Which French Aviators Lost Their Lives.

"One afternoon a French flyer appeared," says a German lieutenant, "it circled over Douaumont and then rose high above the clouds. For a long time it seemed to be just hanging in the air. And then—from our side there arose a buzzing, a fierce, sharp buzzing, and it made straight like a bee line for the little French flyer. It went through the clouds and disappeared. Nothing could be seen. The clouds covered all. Five minutes of suspense passed, and then a shot, and after that a roaring. We waited breathlessly, and then two little black spots were seen breaking through the clouds. Tiny little spots, and these spots were the two French aviators. They grew bigger as they fell. A moment after the men came the flaming machine. It came down roaring and crashing. Its wings were set on fire, and the red, white and blue of the tricolors looked like a revolving American barber pole. Everything crashed to the earth, a hopeless, mangled mass. Again a spot broke through the clouds. It came swift and straight, without any spectacular showing. It was Boelke returning home."

Gets Attention—

First, because of its wonderfully delicious flavor—

Then again, because it is ready to eat—fresh and crisp from the package.

But the big "get attention" quality is its abundance of well-balanced, easily digestible nourishment.

For sound health, every table should have its daily ration of Grape-Nuts—

"Are You All In?" David inquired, After a Pause.

Swiss cheese? How did they get there? You don't find them in a Camembert, do you?"

Peaches put up the storm signals and burned me with a baleful glance. "It's easy enough to make fun of something you can't do yourself," she snapped.

We were on the verge of our first quarrel and all on account of an old German dope peddler, but it was up to me not to hoist the white flag if we were to live happily ever after.

"Why, little bright eyes," I said; "that's the palest thing I do. Writing essays on reincarnation is where I live. I can put old Oscar Bauer-kraut to sleep because I have the punch in every paragraph. Where's my fountain pen? I'll show you!"

"Indeed!" was all she said as she flounced out of the room. So it was up to me to make good as an essayist or forever lose the title of Captain.

So I dashed off the following globe of thought, left them on the outside table, and went to the kitchen to find food, and managed into the kitchen to many minutes, but the ghost kept on shrieking in the Latin tongue.

Third Essay.

Napoleon stood weeping and wailing and gnashing his eyebrows on the battlefield of Waterloo.

He was waiting for the moving picture man to get his photograph.

The victorious Wellington made his appearance, laughing loudly in his sleeve.

"Back, Nap! Back to the Boulevard des Dago!" commanded Wellington.

Napoleon put his chin on his wishbone and spoke no word.

"You," said Wellington; "you to the Champs Elyse! This is my victory, and you must leave the battlefield—it is time to close up for the night."

"We will meet again, milord," answered Napoleon. "Avec bon temps au long wait!"

"What does that mean?" asked Wellington.

"It means that the next time we meet I will do the waiting," answered Napoleon bitterly.

Drops of Water Must Not Be Permitted to Stand on the Leaves of Gloxinia, as Water Will Rot It.

PREPARATORY WORK FOR WINTER

What about the winter window garden?

Now is the time for much work that cannot be delayed.

One of the best winter blooming geraniums is Mrs. E. G. Hill.

Many odd plants should now be discarded and new ones started.

Do not let the geraniums get leggy. Pinch into shape.

Pinch out the buds from plants intended for the window garden.

Late started plants are not satisfactory. Begin now.

Get your soil, sand manures and potting materials together.

Clean, scour, sun and put in place the pots for winter. Have every vessel clean.

Use charcoal in your drainage. Dead coals from wood-sheds are good as any.

Repot all plants needing it, cutting back severely. Don't try to keep everything.

Try to have your plants at their best when it is time to take them in doors.

Pinch and prune into good shape.

Drops of water must not stand on leaves of the gloxinia, as water will rot it.

Get seedling primroses from the florist now, keep growing and thrifty for winter bloomers.

The peristrophe variegata is a good bracket plant and a free bloomer.

For winter blooming, get dormant tuberous-rooted begonias; give each tuber a pot by itself.

If one has no plants and cannot afford to buy, the seedlings of many garden plants are easily cared for. Many are satisfactory.

The Zanzibar balsam-impatiens sul-tana is always in bloom, always beautiful, easily cared for. A fine window plant.

Slips of fuchsias, heliotropes, petunias, coleus and other soft-wooded plants, root readily in moist sand. Slip now.

THE WINDOW GARDEN

By E. VAN BENTHUYSEN.

Give the windows at which plants are to be kept a little attention at this season. Go over the sash, and make sure that the glass in it is well fastened in place by putty. If any panes are loose, reputty them. See that the sash fits the frame well.

These little crevices are the ones through which a great deal of cold may come when the temperature drops below zero and there is a stiff wind blowing.

It is an excellent plan to fit the windows of the dwelling with storm windows—storm sashes. Not only for the benefit of the plants, but the human occupants as well.

At windows protected by storm sash plants can be allowed to stand against the inner glass, on the coldest night, without injury, as the air space between the two sashes is a most efficient non-conductor of cold.

HOW TO ATTRACT BIRDS

Protection is the prime requisite for increasing the number of birds in an area, and the results of protection are in direct proportion to the amount given.

Besides insuring birds against every form of persecution by human kind, we must defend them from various natural foes. The most effectual single step is to provide a place for the birds free from the cats.

Although a considerable number of our native birds build their nests on the ground, the majority place them in trees of shrubs, either in holes or on the limbs or in crotches.

Shrubby and trees for nesting sites, therefore, are essential for making the place attractive to birds, and a double purpose is served if the kinds Constant removal of old trees and modern tree surgery resulted in a great diminution of a number of tree cavities, the natural home of most of our hole-nesting birds. Fortunately most of these birds will utilize artificial nest cavities, or birdhouses.

HAD GRAND DAY'S SHOOTING

Amateur Sportsman Thoroughly Enjoyed Himself Until Unfortunately His Supplies Gave Out.

"Awfully sorry, old chap," said the host, greeting his guest, who had arrived for a week-end with the guns, "but I shan't be able to come out today! However, a sportsman like you'll be able to get on by yourself. 'Ere's a gun, and 'ere's a bag of ferrets. Keep well in the wood, and you ought to 'ave plenty of sport."

So away went the cockney sportsman, gloriously arrayed in glaring leggings, deer-stalker and Norfolk jacket. At about untypical p. m. the mighty hunter returned.

"Well, 'ow'd you get on, ole chap?" asked his host.

"Oh, grand! Capital sport! Got any more?"

"Any more what?"

"Why, any more of those squirrel things you gave me in that bag. I've shot that lot!"—London Tit-bits.

Farm Lands Increase in Value.

The value of farm lands of the United States is estimated at $45.55 per acre, as compared with $40.85 a year ago, $40.31 two years ago, $38.10 three years ago and $30.23 four years ago. The census reported the value of farm lands in 1910 as $32.40, and in 1900 as $15.57 per acre.

In recent years the value of farm lands has been increasing at the rate of about 5 per cent a year, or approximately $2 per acre per year. The exceptional increase of the past year may be explained partly by the reaction in the southern cotton states following a temporary depression last year, and partly by the stimulus given by the war to prices, particularly of grain.

It's Foolish to Suffer

You may be brave enough to stand backache, or headache, or dizziness. But if, in addition, urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of kidney trouble before you know it. But if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the "pains" you have and avoid future danger as well.

Sharp stitches pierced my kidneys and I had headaches and dizzy spells. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me as soon as I took them and I haven't had any serious signs of kidney complaint since."

Certain-teed

takes "its place in the sun" and holds it longer than other similar roofing, because it is made of the very best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with the correct blend of soft asphalt, and coated with a blend of harder asphalt. This outer coating keeps the inner saturation soft, and prevents the drying out process so destructive to the ordinary roof.

The blend of asphalt used by "The General" is the result of long experience. It produces a roofing more pliable than those which have less saturation, and which are, therefore, harder and drier.

At each of the General's big mills, expert chemists are constantly employed to refine, test and blend the asphalt used; also to experiment for possible improvements. Their constant endeavor is to make the best roofing still better.

The quality of CERTAIN-TEED is such that it is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply). Experience proves that it lasts longer. Behind this guarantee is the responsibility of the world's largest manufacturer of roofings and building papers.

The General makes one third of America's supply of asphalt roofing. His facilities are unequalled, and he is able to produce the highest quality roofing at the lowest manufacturing cost.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate covered shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest skyscraper to the smallest residence or out-building.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate before you decide on any type of roof.

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRAMMAN, 769 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNHAM, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KIELING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION IN REGULAR SESSION

Question of Stand of Legislative Candidates on Labor Matter Is Taken Up.

COMMUNICATIONS OF INTEREST RECEIVED

A regular meeting of the Central Labor Union was held Monday evening at the headquarters in Eagles' Hall, New Brighton. Reports from the committee on the Labor Day celebration at Junction Park were received. While the receipts were not as large as anticipated, the fact that children were barred from the park on account of the quarantine, which consequently reduced the attendance, the members of the organization were all well satisfied with the amount received.

The question of the stand of the several candidates for legislative offices on matters affecting organized labor, was brought up, and Secretary Kroes was instructed to write to Secretary Quinn, of the State Federation of Labor, for a copy of all labor legislation in which union men are interested, and which will come before the next legislature. Upon receipt of the same, the secretary will turn the matter in question over to The Labor News management for the purpose of having the staff ascertain where the candidates stand on these questions.

Credentialed from Local No. 287, International Association of Theatrical Stage Employees were presented and their delegate seated. This organization will be affiliated with the Central Labor Union in the future. The delegate reported that the Lyric Theatre in New Brighton, had been placed on the unfair list. This theatre has refused to treat with Local 287, hence the action taken. All union men should bear this in mind.

Various communications from organizations were read by the secretary, the following being one of the important ones:

From union cigar makers in Philadelphia, Pa., came a request that a committee be appointed to visit cigar dealers in the valley for the purpose of informing them that the firm of Otto Eisenlohr, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of the "Cinco" cigar, were fighting their employees in their endeavor to secure an increase in wages and the committee was asked to advise local merchants that the firm was on the unfair list and to ask them to discontinue the sale of "Cinco" cigars. The matter was discussed and action will be taken.

This communication was received from Metal Polishers and Buffers' Union, Local 118, Athol, Mass.:

On April 17, the Polishers and Buffers employed at the L. S. Starrett Co., of Athol, Mass., were forced to strike after being refused an increase in wages. Now this concern is employing strikebreakers and housing and feeding them in one of the company's cottages, and the labor crushing Metal Trades Association is financing the fight against us. We have men that have been working for this company for 20 years, and we all came out to a man. The fact that no strike was ever won without financial assistance, led us after 20 weeks to send out this appeal, whereby we can successfully defend our position, and in this we can only be successful by getting union men to assist us. Our strike has been endorsed by the C. L. U., and Local 750, International Machinists, who a year ago had over 500 men employed at the L. S. Starrett Co., but now have only nine members.

This firm manufactures tools used by machinists, carpenters, blacksmiths, draughtsmen, pattern makers and machinists in general, such as calipers, dividers, rules, spirit levels, micrometers, hack saws, screwdrivers, etc. Have your local appoint a committee to visit the dealers who handle the L. S. Starrett Co. tools in your county and ask them to write this firm urging them to settle with their striking polishers and buffers. Thanking you in advance we remain, fraternally yours, Strikers Committee.

This communication was compiled with and Messrs. Molter, Kroes and Grimshaw were appointed to visit the firms handling the Starrett products. A communication was also received from the Minnesota State Federation of Labor stating that they expected to be confronted with an effort to pass a State Constabulary law at the next Sylvester Sole, 55 years old, conductor employed in the Conway yards of the Pennsylvania railroad, died at the Rochester Hospital Monday evening from injuries suffered Monday at noon, when he was crushed between two cars while making a coupling.

Sole was one of the oldest conductors, in point of service, employed in the yards. He had been in the train service for more than a quarter of a century, and was one of the best known railroad men of this district.

His wife and two children survive. The dead man was a member of Apple Tree Camp, Woodmen of the World, and of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

session of their Legislature, and asking that the Central Labor Union of this county to write them telling how that organization has affected the unions in their struggles for better conditions.

The following resolution, which was adopted at the Beaver Falls Convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, was presented and read:

Whereas, Our forefathers, in their first declaration of principle, saw the wisdom of incorporating therein a guarantee to every citizen of these great United States, the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and

Whereas, Any action of the General Assembly of this State that could be construed as to restrain, suppress or stop the sale of malt, or spirituous liquor in any county of this Commonwealth, would be contrary to the fundamental principles incorporated in the above mentioned declaration of Americanism, and as such action would be an abridgement of personal liberty; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor Convention, in regular session assembled on this 9th day of May, 1916, stand unalterably opposed to any legislation that would in any way restrain, suppress or stop the sale of malt or spirituous liquor in any county of this Commonwealth, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to all unions in this State with the request for concurrence in the same, and sufficient copies of this resolution be furnished to the Associated Press for publicity purposes.

The Ring Master.....Handsome Howard

The Villain "Daredevil Mike".....Mike Messenger

Explanation of Characters.

The Woman, Miss Liberty, is a tall, beautiful young lady, of perhaps 22 years. She has golden colored hair, large black eyes, and pearly white teeth, enclosed in a perfectly shaped mouth. She wears a blue crown, inlaid with small silver stars. Her gown is made of fine silk, in a red and white stripe, with a military effect. She is the ideal of all men's hearts, and they all try to win her by honest methods but "Daredevil Mike," who, after failing in an honest way, because of the lack of ability, resorts to the unmanly principles of villainy.

"The Constable" is a little old man who resides in the village of Conway. Harmless in a sense, but determined to capture the elusive "Daredevil Mike."

"The Miser" is an old razor-back foreigner from the foothills of West Virginia, who, in his declining years, has homesteaded on a small farm back of Rochester, and is willing to swear on oath that "There's not a cent in the house."

"The Gambler" is good old honest Axel, full of jokes, always hooking the "Old Constable," and has one accomplishment no one appears to understand. He has been known to sit in a game of poker, buy a $2.00 stack, lose it, quit, and at the same time break even to the cent.

His Pal, Fred, although a gambler, is a great admirer of "Miss Liberty," but his attentions are always blocked by "Daredevil Mike."

"The Inn Keeper," George Ring and his wife, keep the old Wayside Inn, or rather the Old Wayside Inn keeps them. It is at this famous old hotel that "Daredevil Mike," disguised as a Trainmaster, is able to obtain food without being detected by the "Old Constable."

"The Sheriff" runs a ranch away up at the east end of Conway, and is much feared by "Daredevil Mike."

"The Ring Master," with his assistants, are in league with "Daredevil Mike."

"The Villain," Daredevil Mike, who if he had a little more sense might be half-witted, was pronounced an incurable when a small boy. He was a failure at everything he undertook. Finally, he assumes a new name, and determines to get "The Woman" by foul methods. He goes to Mr. Hollowhead, grand master of the Pencils Wagon Road Co., and by assuming an attitude of a modern Simon Legree, by cracking the whip in his mocking bird style, he gets away with it. Thus begins the picture.

RANK INJUSTICE DONE ROCHESTER MERCHANT

ELMER CAMERON IS TAKEN BY DEATH

While everything that kind hands and medical skill could accomplish was done to relieve the suffering of Elmer T. Cameron, aged 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Cameron, Corporation street, Beaver, after months of suffering the Grim Reaper harvested the young life when he passed away at his home on Monday. During the last few days of his suffering Elmer called for several of his friends and acquaintances, seeming to fully realize that the end was near and he wished to see those who had been kind to him.

O. L. Cameron, the father, is a member of Local 1033, U. B. of C. & J. of A., the members of which extend their heart-felt sympathies in this bereavement.

GENERAL NOTICE TO ORGANIZED WORKERS

Unfair Concerns Are Printing and Binding Copies of Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The Labor News is in receipt of a communication from A. P. Sovey, President of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders of Indianapolis, Ind., calling attention to the fact that advertisements are appearing in the magazines pushing the sale of the "Handy Volume" of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and that the printing and binding of these volumes is done by K. R. Donnelley & Sons Co. of Chicago, and the J. F. Tapley Book Mfg. Co. of New York, both of which concerns are operating non-union establishments and have been opposed to the printing trades unions since the inauguration of the eight hour work day in the printing industry. Delegates to the Central Labor Union are requested to report this matter to their respective locals.

Max Fuchs Wrongfully Placed On the Unfair List by the District Council.

NO INVESTIGATION MADE; MATTER TO BE RIGHTED

The Labor News, in the issue of September 15th, carried an item relative to the meeting of the Carpenters' District Council on the Monday evening previous. In this item was a statement that Max Fuchs, Rochester merchant, had been placed on the unfair list, because of the fact that he had employed a non-union carpenter in remodeling the interior of his store room.

It develops that a rank injustice has been done Mr. Fuchs. He was placed on the unfair list without an investigation having been made. Mr. Fuchs came to Rochester to open up his store and needing the services of a carpenter, asked a business man where he could find one. He was told to hire the man who did the work. Unfortunately for Mr. Fuchs, he unknowingly hired a non-union man, and knew nothing of the matter until he was advised by friends that he had been placed on the unfair list. The fact that Fred Marquart, who owns the block in which Mr. Fuchs' store is located, is on the unfair list, is said to have been responsible for the placing of Mr. Fuchs on the same list.

As a matter of fact, the non-union carpenter employed by Mr. Fuchs has been working within the past few weeks in a business place on the same side of Brighton avenue with two union painters, but somehow this feature was overlooked. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that the same non-union carpenter has been doing work for one of the largest retail dealers in the valley for many years, and nothing was ever said about placing this merchant on the unfair list. It is evident that Mr. Fuchs has been made the "goat" through no fault of his own.

S. S. Bowser, Business Agent for the Building Trades Council, paid a visit to Mr. Fuchs on Thursday evening, and after listening to his explanation of his part in the affair, advised him that the matter would be brought up at the meeting of the council on Thursday evening of next week, and assured him that the injustice done him would be rectified. This is no more than right and Mr. Fuchs is certainly entitled to the co-operation of organized labor throughout the valley in advertising the facts in connection with the affair.

TERRIBLE TOLL TAKEN IN LOCAL INDUSTRIES

The frightful mortality in Pennsylvania industries continues. Figures for the first eight months of the year show a total of 166,084 accidents, a daily average of 810. Of the total accidents, 1,820 were fatal. The monthly average for the first eight months of the year is 198 fatalities and 20,760 accidents of all kinds.

The many accidents of the year have led to 49,552 compensation cases being entered in the state workmen's compensation bureau, 1,578 of these cases arising from fatal accidents, and 47,974 from non-fatal ones. Compensation agreements have been perfected in 592 of the fatal cases, giving support to 418 widows, 130 parents, 1,055 children, 14 sisters, five brothers and one niece.

On August 1, more than $450,000 had been paid in disability cases. The amount to be paid in fatality cases in which definite agreements have been made, totals more than $1,300,000, to be paid out weekly over terms of years. The amount already paid in fatality cases on August 1, was more than $39,000.

PAY INCREASED

The McKeesport Tin Plate Company of McKeesport, announces an increase of wages of 10 to 20 per cent. affecting 1,700 men. Last week the largest pay-roll of the year, amounting to $104,000, was distributed to the employees. This week seven new mills will be put on, making a total of 43 mills in operation.

Showing Dainty Bridal Garments

Shops Make Lavish Display of Pretty Things That Once Were Made at Home.

FINERY THAT IS EXQUISITE

Artistry, Frivolity and Originality Have Been Combined With Wonderful Results—Gorgeous Colors Rule in Most Cases—Empire Styles Have Popularity.

While acknowledging that the young bride of today is justified in selecting for her trousseau only those bits of lingerie that are suitable for the fashions of the hour, still, one has pleasant memories of the preparation of a dozen of each, that was the sum and substance of a wedding chest of other days.

One thinks of the patience, eagerness and joy which went into the work of making those dozens of garments and the long hours spent by the family together, cutting, basting, stitching and putting on the handwork. It was always a task of love, this preparation of the underlinen for a girl in the family, and all her intimate friends added their share. But this affectionate task, like many other things that were once considered necessary in the family life, has gone by the board.

The shops do our work for us, and it is all a part of the substitution of the radiator for the open fire, the electric stove for the charcoal and wood, the ready-made gowns and suits for the home sewing room and the machine stitching for the threaded needle.

Women Have More Leisure. In every way women are finding that drudgery is loosening its hold on their lives, and soon all they will have to do is give their time to social service, reading and the lighter forms of pleasure.

In the last few months the smart shops have made a strong effort to introduce original house robes. They have gone to Venice and to Moscow for their inspiration.

There are negligees that look as though they had been fished from the stage of the Russian ballet, and there are others that could easily be worn in a more formal manner.

That which is known as the wrapper is dead. The calico Mother Hubbard of practical life has absolutely no place in the modern finery. Even with her simplest combing sack, the bride-elect sees to it that it is touched with artistry, frivolity and originality.

Displays Draw Customers. The outpourings of the shops today—matinee, sleeping sacks and breakfast gowns, allure the most economical and conservative women to their windows.

One of the attractive negligees made for an October bride is of white chiffon lined with flesh pink chiffon and edged with wide bands of white maroon. It is girdled above the waist with large pink roses, from which fall at one side loops and ends of natter blue velvet ribbon.

Invented to go with it is a piece of headgear which is neither cap nor crown, but which borrows a suggestion from each. It is made of a fine pattern of white lace, with broad points running upward and wired to stand. Lightly brushing the tips of these points and floating away to the shoulders and back, is a veil of white tulle.

The mules are of flesh pink colored silk, with satin heels, and are touched at the instep and toe with pink rosebuds.

Gorgeous Colors for the House. For the same trousseau there is another negligee made of white Lierre, draped over American Beauty satin. In this the arms and neck are also bare, but there is a comfortable shoulder cape which keeps one from catching pneumonia.

This cape is caught at the bust with an American beauty rose, and the lace which falls away from the high waistline has two long points at the back which are weighted with crystal tassels.

Along with this negligee go silk stockings of American beauty pink and cloth of silver bedroom slippers.

One of the fanciful caps which are supposed to be worn by the bride-elect in the morning when she has breakfast, is a curious cross between a nurse's cap and a Brunhilda helmet. It fits well over the forehead, but leaves the back of the head in full view.

Of Really Novel Design.

The cap in question shoots upward from the forehead in broad panels of embroidered satin, and there is a wired frill of white tulle that aspires to the heavens. It is tied on the head by a band of silver ribbon which begins with a pink rose between the eyes and finishes in a daring bow at the nape of the neck.

No one who goes out to buy the underlinen for a trousseau can be guided by what has been worn before or by what tradition once laid down as the proper equipment for a lady. It is best to go through a few of the shops which make a specialty of original underclothes, and if it is not possible to pay the price, to duplicate the garments elsewhere.

One happy solution of this problem is that the department shops get out, at small prices, an amazing assortment of dainty and fashionable lingerie.

Colors Most Favored. What is the tendency today? Well, it is toward flesh pink as a color, hemstitching and picot edging as trimming, blue ribbon against a pink surface and a flush of roses wherever it can be placed.

Whether or not the first empire styles will come into our afternoon and evening gowns, they are certainly here in fashionable lingerie. One might think that Josephine's famous white satin robe had been taken as a model for the new nightgowns.

Some of these have the puffed sleeves, although the tendency is Grecian. There is often a surprise bodice, back and front, and draped armholes finished with hemstitching or picot.

There are crepe de chine gowns that are cut out in the form of a mandarin jacket, with a long, round décolletage edged with picot.

New Shades in Skirts.

Some of the new petticoats are so distended on the hips that they keep out the dress in the most approved mode that fashion dictates. Many of the bright colored petticoats are of quite a different hue to the dress and contrast is rather studied than anything else. The black and white skirts are passe and instead petunia, cherry color, purple, bright green and rich copper-brown are worn.

Bright-Colored Capes.

A stunning cape to wear over lingerie dresses is of bright red, blue or yellow bolivia, vicuna or velvet de-laine. This cape is simply a very wide circular cape which drops nearly to the hem of the short dress and is gathered on to a wide sash, which has long ends. So when it is drawn up round the neck it makes a muffler which goes about the throat several times.

Novelties in Gloves.

There seems no reason why gloves should not be buttoned on the inside and quite reasonable that they should be on the back, where there is no wear. Yet the back buttoned gloves recently offered for sale had a very odd appearance not altogether pleasant.

Broad-belted Russian coats are even more than ever in favor.

COURT SETTLES TRADE DISPUTES

Permanent Arbitration Council a Prominent Feature of British Legislation.

BOTH SIDES REPRESENTED

Idea is to Do Away, as Far as Possible, With Strikes and Lockouts—Brooklyn Transportation Companies Advance Wages of Their Employees.

Great Britain has had a permanent arbitration court since 1908. In 1911 an industrial council was created of 18 representatives of employers and an equal number for the workers. Two years later the council advised that in all trade agreements provision should be made for the submission of disputes to a third party and that pending the decision there should be no strike or lockout. This, of course, is not compulsion in any form, wherein it resembles the former Erdman act relating to railroads and more lately the Newlands act.

A committee of miners and operators have agreed on a two years' contract for the 35,000 miners in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. The increases are: Three cents a ton on machine mined coal, 5 cents on pick mined coal and 5 per cent for all yardage, dead work and day labor. The increases are similar to those worked out in eastern states and are based on the recent agreement between operators and representatives of the United Mine Workers.

An increase in wages to employees in its transportation department was announced by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company. The increase took effect on September 1. A statement given out at the company's offices said: "This action was taken by the directors of the various operating companies in recognition of the demonstration of loyalty which the employees have given during the recent attempts of outsiders to stir up dissatisfaction."

The increase effect 0.216 employees of all classes, from cleaners to superintendents. The additional cost to the company will be in the neighborhood of $450,000 a year.

Six of the eleven railroads affected by the strike of freight handlers in their terminals have granted the demand of the strikers, according to Thomas J. Hanson, president of the union. The latest road to grant concessions was the Chicago Great Western, and 100 strikers returned to work.

Hereafter the employment of children under fourteen years in mills and factories of Alabama is forbidden. Child-labor laws, enacted by the last legislature, went into effect today. Enforcement of the new law rests with the state prison and cotton-mill inspection department. Individuals or corporations who violate the law are subject to a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 for the first offense and not less than $100 nor more than $500 for the second offense. The new law effects thousands of children working around the mines, factories and in the cotton mills of the state.

A second street car strike at New York was averted and a victory won for the carmen's union when the New York Railways company agreed to reinstate 14 men discharged for participating in demonstrations in the former strike. A second clause of the agreement submits the cases of 35 other men, discharged for various alleged offenses other than strike participation, to arbitration.

Organized labor of California is preparing to make an aggressive campaign against the proposed constitutional amendments which, if carried at the approaching election, would place California in the list of day states.

Almost seven workers were killed as a daily average during the past six months of this year in Pennsylvania. The monthly average was 189, while the monthly average of injuries, fatal and nonfatal, were 20,197.

During the first six months of 1916 almost as many fatal accidents occurred in Pennsylvania industries and were reported to the bureau of statistics, as were reported during the 12 months of the preceding year.

Director of the bureau of standards of New York city says an unskilled laborer's family of five persons cannot maintain a standard of living consistent with American ideals on wages that fall below $340 a year.

California's representatives at Washington pledged their support to the resolution adopted by the San Francisco Building Trades council, urging a minimum wage for all mechanics, laborers and others employed on military reservations.

According to the department of labor statistics wages in all parts of the country during the year just passed have advanced from 5 to 15 per cent.

The governors of the West of Scotland Agricultural college have inaugurated a scheme for the training of women and girls for farm work.

On account of the increased cost of living the Denbighshire (Wales) police committee has decided to double the war bonus paid to their officers.

On September 18-27 at New Orleans, La., International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers will convene.

STATE IS MADE ARBITER

Compulsory Settlement of All Labor Troubles a Principle of the Law in Denmark.

Denmark upholds by law the principle that the state may interfere to prevent labor disturbances and heal breaches by force. The principle of compulsory arbitration was legally adopted, indeed, in April, 1910. To a permanent arbitration court 12 members are elected annually, three associates and their alternates by the association of Danish employers and masters, the other three and their alternates by the Danish federation of labor. This continues as long as these organizations represent a majority of employers and workmen. Decisions have been made in 146 cases.

Organized labor opposes compulsion in any form on the ground that it robs strikes of one of their most powerful features in many instances—the promptness with which they are declared; also because it interferes with personal freedom by denying the right to withhold labor power at pleasure. Likewise, organized labor does not agree with the fundamental postulate of the Canadian law that public opinion, which governs arbitration, is disinterested and therefore affords a certain road to justice.

A strike was called at the General Electric company's plant at Pittsfield, Mass., according to an announcement by the international officers of seven different unions among the employees. They claim the failure of the management to recognize their organizations in their demands for an increase of 10 per cent in wages is responsible for the strike order. About 6,000 are employed at the factory and the labor leaders claim 3,000 are union members.

A large number of foreign factory employees of the Packard Motor Car company have been promoted to positions in the engineering department, as the result of their study in the factory night school. A class of eight of the members recently completed the prescribed course in mathematics and mechanical drawing, and have been given certificates. The entire enrollment is more than 150.

In response to the prolonged agitation regarding the hardships suffered by government old-age pensioners by reason of the increase in the price of necessities, the British government has decided in special cases to make an additional allowance not exceeding half a crown (50 cents) a week.

At a meeting of miners in Kilwinning (Scotland) district to consider the united ambulance scheme for wounded soldiers, it was stated that the total sum required would be about $400,000, and the proposal was for the miners of Scotland to pay at the rate of 12 cents a week.

The California commission of immigration and housing has forced 16 labor camps to raise their sanitary standards during the month. The commission announces it will start a campaign to compel these camps in northern California to comply with the law.

The committee on affiliation to the American Federation of Labor of the Authors' League of America has issued a statement setting forth the advantages writers would get from being unionized. The question will be submitted to a referendum vote.

Wage conditions in Norway have undergone a decided improvement in the last few years, and the government expresses the belief that it can make the inducement attractive enough to cause thousands of Norwegians to return from America.

A statement has just been issued by the women of France telling the government that they can now provide 300,000 more woman workers to do all the French munition making and increase by that number the fighting forces of the republic.

"Frisco Cooks' Helpers' union, the Bartenders' union, the Musicians' union and all other organizations whose members are employed in cafes, restaurants and hotels will join in the attempt to establish the eight-hour day for all culinary workers.

Canadian government railways have increased wages of yard foremen, section foremen, section men and extra gang foremen. A general increase of 20 cents a day is given all others, except monthly rated men, who are increased $5.

About 150 journeymen broommakers employed by 30 firms went on strike at Chicago for a 20 per cent wage increase. The strike threw 350 other employees out of work. The latter recently were granted an increase.

At the thirty-eighth annual convention of the New Jersey Federation of Labor, a resolution expressing confidence in the integrity and purpose of President Gompers in his leadership of the federation was adopted.

The commander of the Twentieth German army corps has ordered the mobilization of all civilians to aid in harvesting the crops. They will be paid for their work at the local rate of hire.

Classes for the training of disabled soldiers have been started by the disabled soldiers' aid committee of England. The object is to teach the men how to work at electric power stations.

The British civil service commission, ere during 1915 dealt with 50,500 cases, comprising 23,648 at open competition, 12,957 candidates nominated to compete and 12,724 nominated singly.

That uniforms for the soldiers now at the Mexican border are being manufactured in San Francisco by Chinese is the charge made by the Garment Workers' union of that city.

Home Town Helps

HAVE LAWN CENTERS OPEN

Proper Placing of Trees and Shrubs Should Always Be Made an Important Consideration.

Let your lawn centers remain open and clear that the whole yard may appear as large as possible; generous, yet well framed with plant shrubs and trees on all sides. If you must have a Phoenix Canariensis on a 40-foot lot, place it in the rear where it may also serve as a shade tree, though the same rules properly should obtain in the back yard as in the front yard. Better to use fan palms if you will have some, or the beautiful columnar cacti. Do not plant in the center or centers so that one or two large objects may alone be viewed by you, but frame your greensward or picture with shrubs, even trees, so that you will have a little privacy and snugness, a limited seclusion, so that you feel as though on your own property. This open-face, look-at-me type of gardening so prevalent is not at all conducive to home life, and is founded not on generosity and unselfishness, but on false pride and a desire to "show off." Every true plant lover has at least a part of his grounds secluded; and somewhere on the premises may be found, if of sufficient extent, some suggestion of intricacy of design, without which no garden is very interesting or attractive unless in a spectacular sort of fashion, and the latter is debasing to the art.

DEMAND FOR SHADE TREES

Massachusetts Journal Recognizes the Value of Proper Adornment of the City's Streets.

A real good hot summer day brings home to Bridgeport the shame of shadeless streets. In this case it is a burning shame, and no mistake. We wonder what administration will develop the foresight and public spirit to take the steps necessary at the present for the assuring of shade trees for the future?

Shade trees add to the value of property. They help to keep the city cool in summer. They conserve public health and comfort. They please the eye and are one of the greatest factors in the beautification of a city. People have an instinctive appreciation of trees—all the world knows that New Haven is a city of elms, and the most famous street in Germany is "Unter den Linden." Pests have rhapsodized over trees, and Handel wrote his famous "Largo" in celebration of a plain tree, which afforded grateful shade to the composer. And the practical advantages of trees are equal to the esthetic advantages. But it is unnecessary to cite these facts, because practically everybody agrees. What is needed is the taking of definite steps to assure shade trees in the future and to counteract the lack of such a provision in the past—Bridgeport (Mass.) Telegram.

Wild Rose Hedges.

Wherever there is a wild rose hedge it should be retained and encouraged, if the blossoms are of a good shade. Otherwise one should try to get in a more pleasing variety. Wild roses differ enormously in their color tints, ranging all the way from very pale to a very deep and beautiful pink. Evidently there are a great many varieties among wild roses. There is a fixed belief that wild roses will not stand being picked. The writer one Sunday morning attended church in Minneapolis, where wild roses were twined in great profusion about the pillars and balconies of the church. They were there by the thousands and had been there for many hours. They retained their freshness throughout the day. The secret of their retaining freshness was that they had been gathered very early in the morning before sunrise and while covered with dew. Some varieties of wild roses seem to bloom till very late. The writer has picked wild roses as late as September, and in Cook county, too!

Councilwoman at Work.

A fight against the unsightly, unsanitary and value wrecking billboards of Los Angeles has been reopened by Estelle Lawton Lindsey, councilwoman of that city. Mrs. Lindsey announced recently that she would at once renew the fight to bar the billboards from the residence districts and would ask the council to pass the ordinance barring them. This measure provides that the consent of a majority of the property owners in the same block must be obtained before a billboard may be erected in a residence district. The Chicago ordinance was the model for this Los Angeles bill and the supreme court of Illinois upheld the measure at Chicago, but the billboard posters appealed to the Supreme court of the United States and the case is still pending.

Civic Co-operators.

Under the Chicago Industrial club's plan, 2,500 persons have enrolled as civic co-operators, giving practical aid in civic helpfulness. It is said that not one instance of overindulgence or mediocrity interference has been noted since the plan was inaugurated.

Unsuspected Efficiency.

The bureau of plant industry is endeavoring to improve tobacco by scientific study of the different brands. To eliminate the personal equation in smoking and to secure uniformity of conditions the bureau has a carefully regulated apparatus for testing the burning quality of cigars. The "pull" on the cigar is secured by means of an aspirator, which is filled by a continuous inflow of water and emptied at regular intervals by a siphon. The "pull" occurs at intervals of 30 seconds and lasts for a period of ten seconds. The apparatus smokes four cigars of the perfect type in about 30 minutes.—Tobacco.

Smuggling Cotton.

Since cotton became contraband all sorts of ingenious dodges have been tried to get it through the blockade. One ship which was intercepted carried what purported to be a cargo of flour. Certainly there was a great deal of flour in it—and a great deal of cotton as well. Some of the first sacks examined panned out correctly. Then an officer kicked one midway. The sack yielded oddly to the impact of his foot. No dust flew out and it seemed, as he expressed it, like kicking a pillow. At once the sack was emptied, and what a revelation! The middle part of it contained only cotton. All the other sacks gave up a like secret. There was flour at the top, flour at the bottom—and cotton in the middle of them all.

"The Fall of a Nation"

"The Fall of a Nation," which will be presented for the first time in Western Pennsylvania, at the Majestic Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 26-27, tells a vital story of international significance. A confederation of European powers decide to seize North America and annex it to Europe. A secret army of the foreign-born is raised in New York. As the greatest city of the North American States has few armed defenders, it is an easy task to capture it overnight.

Meanwhile 150,000 trained troops, fresh from the European wars, are rapidly transported across the Atlantic with all their equipment of great guns, poison gases, liquid fire and bombs. Effecting a landing, they easily vanquish the small North American army, join the foreign-born conquerors of New York, and march to Washington where they depose the President and put in his place the Imperial Viceroy of the Provinces of North America.

While the locale of the story is in and near New York, its momentous lesson applies to any country unprepared to meet the foreign foe. At the end of the present war there will be millions of idle troops in Europe.

What new task will be set for them? Will covetous eyes be cast on the riches of the continents discovered by Columbus? Will some Emperor—like Napoleon III, who sent the French invaders into Mexico—attempt to seize a fair and wealthy portion of the New Hemisphere? Then—unless the country attacked is ready and well prepared—history will record a real tragic "Fall of a Nation."

It is against this terrible danger that Thomas Dixon, the author of the spectacle, provides an awful warning. Nirella's famous 10-piece orchestra will render the music, written by Victor Herbert.

JUNCTION PARK HAS SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Junction Park closed the 1916 season on Saturday, the last day of the Beaver County Fair. The dancing hall and roller rink will be operated throughout the remainder of the year and during 1917, plans being under way to present to turn the theatrical pavilion into an ice rink during the winter.

The season just closed has proven to be the most successful the park has enjoyed in years. Manager Chas. C. Shetterly, having demonstrated that he thoroughly understands operating an amusement park. As evidence of this statement it may be mentioned that the receipts of the park this season have almost doubled that of the previous year.

Manager Shetterly left Thursday for Chicago, where he goes to close up matters connected with his roller skating concession at Forest Park. From Chicago he goes to Franklin, Ind., for a brief visit with his mother and brother, proceeding to Marion, Ind., where he will close arrangements for the rebuilding of the big park at that point. He will return to the valley in about ten days and will remain during the winter.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF THE RAILROADS

The threatened strike by the employes of the great railroads of the country has caused many men to favor government ownership of all the railroads who had been until now opposed to it. These men, of course, have not given much study or thought to the subject, or they would not have changed their views so quickly on such an important political policy. They see in government ownership an immediate answer to the question of how to settle for all time difficulties of this character, and to make our country immune from such danger.

We see too many reasons against such a course, and we do not follow immediately our many friends who favor it.

To double the number of our official family, to add to the now powerful influence of the professional politician, will do more to bring discredit upon our democratic form of government than can possibly be balanced by the good that will follow government ownership of the railroads.

Instead of enlarging the functions of the government, we should limit them, and thus lessen the activities of those business politicians who corrupt our legislatures and make possible railway wrecking, stock gambling, and other agencies that are used in piling up the huge fortunes that menace the land. We do not make our people nor the government any better by adding to the machinery of government. Government is made better or worse according to character of the average citizen—his habits of industry, self-reliance, love of order, and respect for authority.

The tendency of every Democratic institution is to put too much faith in the efficacy of legislation to right the wrongs of our people, and not enough confidence and reliance in the common sense of most of our people.—New York Observer.

DISORDER AND THE STRIKES

There are no leaders of organized labor who today will counsel or permit violence in any form in aid of a strike.

When disorder occurs, the responsibility for it rests upon men who gather in mobs and are urged to a state of great excitement by some fanatic who has no respect for any government, or law or order, or upon men hired to cause trouble of this kind.

Our government rests upon the assent and approval of the governed. It could rest on no better or stronger foundation.

Every man who respects our institutions knows and feels the responsibility that goes with his citizenship. It is his duty, no matter how much he may agree with the views of those who gather in mobs at such times, to oppose every attempt at violence.

Violence adds nothing to what is right, and in labor disputes it will destroy any feeling of sympathy that the public may entertain for those on strike.

It is, therefore, of first importance in the organization of a strike, that the men be instructed not only to keep themselves free from acts of violence, but also to stop those who would urge and excite others to such acts.

The recent lockout of the garment workers illustrated the value of discipline and good conduct under very trying circumstances. Had any trouble occurred during that lockout, the property had been injured or destroyed, the workers' cause would have been lost. As it was, there was no occasion for the slightest criticism of the conduct of the men and women engaged in that affair. They won and retained public confidence and support throughout their struggle.

If any disorder should occur because of any dispute now existing between the railways and their employes, it will not be through lack of wise counsel by the leaders who are handling the case of the men.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

"A Fool Countryman"

By EUNICE BLAKE

"John," said Mr. Whitcomb, president of the Ascola First National bank. "I've got to send $10,000 to San Miguel right off, and I want you to take it there. You'd better make an armed fortress of yourself, for I'm positive there is some one connected with this bank who is giving information to criminals whenever any sum of money leaves the bank. Hemstreet was robbed of $300 a week ago when he left without a possibility of any one outside the bank knowing that he had any money with him."

I assented to what Mr. Whitcomb said, but I made up my mind to try to pull through in my own way. I knew that a trap had been laid for Hemstreet and he had fallen into it. If there was any trap laying in my case I proposed to have a hand in it myself. I slung a short "bulldog" up my right sleeve by an elastic strap in case of an emergency, but I did not expect to use it. I got myself up as a "hayseed," not that I expected to fool those who might be laying for me, but because I might wish to fool some one else. In my hand I carried an old fashioned carpet-bag made of real carpet.

I carried the money home with me and the next day took a train that passed through the town at 4 o'clock in the morning. Glancing through a window while dressing, I saw the face of a man at a window on the opposite side of the street. His face was very white in contrast with a very black beard. He was looking straight at my window, and as soon as he saw me looking at him he disappeared.

On my way to the station I neither saw nor heard any one in the street, the stillness being marked, but once I heard faint footfalls behind me. I turned, but saw no one. However, while walking back and forth in the station who should come in but the pale faced man with the black beard. He went to the ticket office and from there to the train. On taking my seat I did not look to see if he was in the car with me, but I presumed he was. After the train had started I went to the cooler to get a drink of water, taking my bag with me, and then I saw my watcher, as I supposed him to be, sitting not far distant from the seat I was using.

Returning to it, I began to talk to a man sitting beside me. I asked him how far it was to San Miguel and what hour the banks closed there. He asked me if I was going there, and I told him I was. I asked him if he was going there, too, and he admitted that he was, whereupon I whispered to him that I had a large sum of money in my bag and offered him $25 if he would go with me from the station to the bank. He said that he would go with me cheerfully, but didn't care to take any pay for doing so.

I became quite chummy with my new found friend, who seemed to be a gentleman and was evidently a bit amused at my country simplicity. Indeed, he told me that I should not have divulged to him my secret. If I trusted him I was likely to trust others and to lose my money. I pretended to be regretful of my indiscretion, but declared that since I had trusted him at all I would trust him throughout. He seemed grateful at my confidence and agreed to do anything in his power to aid me. For this I pretended heartfelt gratitude.

When we were approaching the next station to San Miguel I proposed a plan by which my new acquaintance might get the funds safely through for me. He carried no baggage, having a trunk, which was checked. I asked him if he would get off the train with my carpet-bag at the station we were approaching and proceed by other conveyance to San Miguel and deliver the bag to me at the bank as soon as he should arrive. He asked me if the amount I carried was very large, and I told him it was over $500, which was no lie.

He now plied me with questions to test my sincerity, to all of which I gave replies that seemed to satisfy him. He also asked me if I thought any one was on my track to rob me. I told him that I suspected a man sitting back of us with a white face and a black beard. My neighbor finally consented to carry my bag for me when we left the train at San Miguel. This was the best I could do with him.

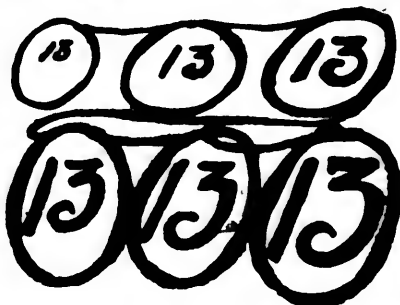

As we approached the station I got up, leaving my bag with my friend, and went again to the cooler, which was at the forward end of the car. The train was slowing up at the time, and passengers were rising from their seats. Before the train stopped I jumped off and disappeared.

Well, I saw no more of my friend until shortly after I had reached the bank. Then he came in puffing, his cravat awry, his hat caved in. I met him at the door.

"Great Scott, man, what did you leave me for with your bag just as the train pulled up to the station? They've got your money."

"Don't you worry, my friend," I replied; "there was no money in that bag. It was distributed over my person. It is now in bank. I'm no granger. I'm cashier of the First National bank of Ascola. Please make out your bill for services as messenger and for damages and I'll remunerate you, with thanks and apologies."

Not a cent would he take. The best I could do with him was to get him to dine with me. He said he had hated to see "a fool countryman" robbed, hence his sympathies. But long afterward the bank kept him from bankruptcy.

At the Majestic

"God's Half Acre"

Mabel Taliaferro, who is now appearing exclusively in Metro wonder-plays, will be seen at the Majestic on Monday, September 25th, in "God's Half Acre."

This photoplay possesses every requisite for a screen masterpiece. The star is one of the foremost of either the stage or screen. The story is unusual and high in quality; the supporting cast is exceptionally strong; the settings are wonderful, and Edwin Carewe, who ranks with the three best directors in the country, produced it.

The story of "God's Half Acre" is laid around "Rainbow's End," a home for aged persons. Miss Taliaferro, in the role of Blossom, a young servant, is called by the old folks, who fairly worship her, "The Angel of Rainbow's End."

"The Fall of a Nation"

A magnificent spectacle in which the most popular author and the most eminent composer in America collaborated, will be seen in "The Fall of a Nation," at the Majestic on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 26-27. Thomas Dixon wrote and directed the film, whilst delightful and entertaining Victor Herbert composed the music.

The result of their joint efforts is a grand opera cinema that presents in a big, epoch-making way the origin and destiny of the American Republic. No other picture equals its truly wonderful depiction of Twentieth Century war. Withal the love story is a fascinating one, the comedy episodes are thoroughly amusing, and the acting will satisfy the most exacting lovers of sterling dramatic art.

"The Unwelcome Mother"

These are the big moments in William Fox's film, "The Unwelcome Mother," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, September 28-29.

The light-house keeper finds a baby adrift in a boat. He brings her up as his own child.

The girl, playing on the beach, meets a rough sailor who is fleeing from a charge of murder. She goes through the ring ceremony with him which he calls marriage. The ceremony consists in linking one of her finger rings with his, and throwing the two into the sea.

A wealthy widower meets the girl, and marries her.

She learns that his children cherish the memory of their own mother so deeply that they will have nothing to do with her.

She decides to return to the light-house. When she leaves, she meets the sailor.

She tells the whole story of her early life to her husband.

The children overhear the story, and give her their love. She stays with her husband.

"The Selfish Woman"

Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely, the Lasky stars who have appeared on the Paramount Program, will again be seen together at the Majestic on Saturday, Sept. 30, in a new elaborate feature photoplay entitled "The Selfish Woman."

Wallace Reid will appear as Tom Morley, a young engineer, who is building a railroad for a big concern through the Imperial Valley. Tom's father is very anxious to obtain a franchise for the same purpose and when his son spends a week end at home, he tries to persuade him to give up his work and offers him a large interest in his bank. Tom indignantly refuses.

At a house party Tom meets Alice Hale, a young society girl, with whom he falls in love. Alice's mother is seeking a wealthy husband for her daughter as they are both very poor, and in debt. And though Alice is really in love with another man she consents to Tom's proposal of marriage.

Alice at first schemes against her husband. Subsequently, however, she

"The Closed Road"

House Peters, whose last appearance on the World Film program was in "The Closed Road," a play considered by the press and public as the most accurately filmed drama in years will be seen shortly in a play at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, Sept. 25, in "The Railrider," a railroad story in which Mr. Peters is seen to the best of advantage. The play was directed by Maurice Tourneur, and is released on the World Film program.

"The Flower of No Man's Land"

Viola Dana will make her debut on the Metro program at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Sept. 27th, in "The Flower of No Man's Land," a five part Metro-Columbia wonderplay. It is full of thrills and surprises and contains scores of picturesque settings.

"The Alibi"

No detail in the atmosphere of "The Alibi," to be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Thursday, Sept. 28th, has been neglected. The large court room scene is correct to the minutest detail. The lawyers for the prosecution and defense are placed in the proper places—the jury performs in the proper manner and the tension on the part of the audience is evident in every scene.

The interior of the house-boat is also worthy of commendation. It was only through the greatest bribing on the part of the director that the ancient owner allowed the players to use his home as their studio for the few days. The scenes in the prison, also, are well staged. Another scene shows a gang of prisoners at work and Director Scardon made the play-is won over to Tom's side and together they defeat the machinations of those who would plot to destroy Tom's work.

ers work hard in order to help along the realism.

Perhaps one of the main reasons for the strong intense dramatic tension running throughout the story is the fact that every detail was watched and made right before work started, and there is no doubt that "The Alibi" will add further laurels to the Blue Ribbon Feature.

"Shoes"

The girl worked in a five and ten cent store for the munificent wage of $5 a week. Her mother took in washings to help support the family—consisting of two smaller children, and a lazy, good for nothing father.

The girl needed shoes. The wrecks she wore were falling from her feet. To prevent picking up splinters from the rough boards on which she stood all day behind the counter, she protected the bottoms of her feet by inserting pasteboard insoles.

Each week she took her unopened pay-envelope home to her mother, and each week she was promised $3 with which to buy new shoes. But there was always need for the money she earned to supply the family larder; to provide beer and tobacco for her lazy father. Just how the half-slave shop girl finally succumbed to relentless fate and "sold out for a pair of shoes" is to be pictorially related in Bluebird Photoplays at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Friday, Sept. 29, in a great moral and sociological revelation.

The Virginia Federation of Labor is making an effort to secure free textbooks for children.

BARBERS ENFORCE SCALE

Journeymen Barbers' union, of Allentown, Pa., is enforcing its new $14 weekly minimum wage. Every shop in the city but two has accepted these rates.

Delegates representing the organized cigarmakers of southeastern Pennsylvania, held a second conference in Reading on Sunday, to take up the question of organization and an increase in wages. The vote taken, as ordered by a previous conference, resulted in a referendum of 85% of the membership voting for an increase of two dollars per thousand. The conference then decided on a vigorous campaign and will endeavor to get a vote of the non-unionists on this question. October 16th has been the date decided upon when the increase shall become effective.

BE A REGULAR UNION WORKER

The danger that threatens the labor unions of this country from the enemy within the ranks has often been forced upon our attention; in turn, we have pointed to this same peril, generally alluding to some self-seeker who would endanger the well-being of all while trying to advance his own ambition. But the "danger from within" we would point to in this article, while just as imminent, and liable to lead to destruction, has nothing to do with those who seek self advancement at the cost, or to the danger of, their fellows. These at least are alive to their own interests as they see them; are aggressive and active. And, if there is danger in their machinations it is largely due to the large and apparently growing class to whom this article applies.

The "stay-at-home" union man; the kind that is always too tired, too busy, or too careless to attend his local meetings; the man who is never present on election night and then howls about the kind of officials that are elected; the delegate who is sent to represent him at the conventions.

If a business man should say that he was too busy to attend a meeting of the stockholders of a corporation in which his all was staked, we should not be surprised if his individual holdings were sacrificed. We can scarcely imagine a man of affairs so careless of his interests we could only imagine it possible in some young spendthrift who had inherited but never earned.

In the labor unions men have staked their all. Many there are who today are too lazy, cowardly or careless to attend the meetings of their unions and there assert themselves, demand a hearing and a vote on every important issue, who in the days of struggle for the recognition of their rights to organize risked their jobs, the means of existence for themselves and families, often risked their very lives in order that they might achieve freedom through organization. And the result is worth all the sacrifices that have been made. There is not an investment known that has paid dividends equal to that which has been earned by unionism. In dollar and cents alone men and women have helped themselves immeasurably; and in securing their personal and political freedom, no high-sounding phrase in State or in national constitutions has brought the reality of the rights of citizenship as has the power of the workers' economic organization.

It is pitiable that so many of those who have fought the good fight should have their efforts throttled by those who are careless of their interests today.

The necessity for their earnest and sincere efforts has not passed. The time has not yet come when we can rest and declare "the work is finished and it is good."

Sacrifice is still demanded. Sacrifice of ease, of time, thought and care. And the possible reward is as great as that received from past efforts. The demand is still for the active co-operation of every beneficiary of unionism. It is your business today, even as you recognized it as your business in the early days. Yours the gain, if gains are to be made; yours the loss if, by your indifference or worse, the organization deteriorates.

Don't let anyone else attend to what is your affair. Attend to it yourself, and then only can you be sure your interests are considered and protected.

INSPIRING FILM TO BE AT MAJESTIC

Patrons of the Majestic Theatre, Rochester, are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the forthcoming productions of "The Fall of a Nation," the wonderful eight-reel feature by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Birth of a Nation," which Manager Goldberg has booked for Tuesday and Wednesday, September 26-27. "The Fall of a Nation" is a drama of the origin and destiny of our Republic and a veritable bugle call to arms for national defense. There is an enchanting love story running through the picture, set to Victor Herbert's music, the famous Nirella's Orchestra, of Pittsburgh, interpolating the music at all performances. There will be two matinees each day, from 1 to 3 and from 3 to 5 o'clock, the admission being 25 cents to any part of the house. But one show will be given at the evening performance, the same starting at 8:15, the prices of admission being 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c, all seats being reserved.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

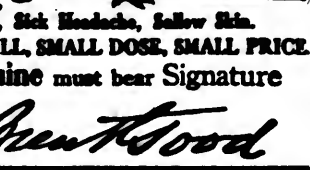

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MOORE, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential) for free advice which will prove helpful.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin, Small Bill, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE. Genuine must bear Signature.

Cheap Cooking Range. An electrical toy range has lately been invented which can be made of real utility in a small apartment. At a demonstration recently given a hearty meal for five persons was cooked at the expense of 12 cents' worth of current. The little stove includes an oven and six small hot plates. The meal cooked included a five-pound roast, boiled potatoes, biscuit, macaroni, two small apple pies and apple sauce. Of course each result was only obtained at that cost by a skilled demonstrator, but the tiny electric range has great possibilities for the adult housekeeper as well as for the small girl it was designed to amuse.

Not Perfect. "How are you making out with your new motor boat? Learned to run it yet?" "Oh, yes. That boat takes me anywhere I want to go." "That's fine." "The only trouble is it won't bring me back."

Ohio unionists are seeking abolition of injunctions.

OH! MY BACK

A stubborn backache is cause to suspect kidney trouble. When the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, stooping brings a sharp twinge in the small of the back, that almost takes the breath away. Soon there may be other symptoms: scanty, painful or too frequent urination, headache, dizziness, or rheumatic pains. Don't wait for these troubles to become serious—use Doan's Kidney Pills at once. You'll find no better recommended remedy.

A Pennsylvania Case

Mrs. Jane Jackson, 60 Bellefonte Ave., Lock Haven, Pa., says: "I was in misery with severe backache and pains in my joints. I could hardly get around to do my housework, felt tired and languid, and had dizzy spells. Doan's Kidney Pills corrected all these ailments and I am glad to say that the cure has been lasting."

Every Woman Wants Partine

Partine is a powerful, yet gentle, laxative. It is the only one that does not irritate the bowels. It is the only one that does not cause a headache. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of appetite. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of sleep. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of strength. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of color. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of beauty. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of health. It is the only one that does not cause a loss of life.

Partine is the only laxative that does not cause a loss of health.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry on the Lovelorn

SAY! have you ever noticed that when a girl with an aluminum headpiece is handed the "This-Way-Out" signal by his adored one, he either takes a pickie parlor and begins to festoon his system with hope, or he stands in front of a hardware store and gazes gloomily at the guns?

You haven't noticed it? Why, you astonish me! Friend wife met me by appointment to take dinner at the Saint Astormore the other evening, and with her was her little brother, Stephen, aged nine.

"I brought Stevie with me because I had some shopping to do, and he's so much company," Peaches explained as we sat down in the restaurant. "Stevie is always pleasant company," I agreed, politely, but with a watchful eye on my youthful brother-in-law all the while.

That kid was born with an abnormal bump of mischief, and by painstaking endeavor he has won the world's championship as an organizer of impromptu riots.

"Oh, John!" said Peaches, when I began to make faces at the menu card. "I didn't notice until now how pale you look. Have you had a busy day?"

"Busy!" I repeated. "Well, rather. I've been giving imitations of a bull-fight. Everybody I met was the bull and I was the fight. Nominate your cats! What'll it be, Stevie?"

"Sponge cake," said Stephen promptly.

"What else?" asked Peaches. "More sponge cake," the youth replied, and just then the smiling and sympathetic waiter stooped down to pick up a fork which Stephen had dropped.

In his anxiety not to miss anything Stevie rubbered acrobatically, with the result that he upset a glass of ice water down the waiter's neck, and three seconds later the trayrotter had issued an extra and was saying things in French that would sound scandalous if translated.

It cost me a dollar to bring the dish-dragger back to earth, and Stevie said I could break his bank open when we got home and take all the money if I'd let him do it again.

Just then I got a flash of Dike Lawrence bearing down in our direction under a full head of benzine. Dike was escorting a three days' jag, and whispering words of encouragement to it.

A good fellow, Dike, but he shouldn't permit a distillery to use his throat as a testing station—he's too temperamental.

"Har'ye, Mrs. John!" he gurgled as the waiter pushed an extra chair under. "Howdy, John? How de do, little man? 'Scuse me for interrupting a perfectly splendid family party—my mistake!—I'm all in—that's it—I'm all in, and it's your fault, John; all your fault!"

"What's wrong, Dike?" I inquired. "Ev'ing!" he martined; "ev'ing" erful gray hair and golden eyes, perky bew'ful girl. I told your husband all about her—I made confession that I was madly in love with this bew'ful girl and your husband told me to go and propose to her and drag her off to a minister and I did propose—my mistake. After I made my speech she said to me, this bew'ful girl said to me: That's all right; no doubt you do love me, but are you eugenic?" And I said, "No, I'm Presbyterian."

Dike paused to let the horror of the scene sink in and then he fell overboard again with a moist splash. "That bew'ful girl" glanced at me coldly—ju' merely indicated the door, that bew'ful girl, and I passed out of her life forever. Two days later I found out ju' what eugenic meant and b'lieve me, from my heart, my sincere regret is that I was not college bred before I met that bew'ful girl.

Saying this he grabbed a wineglass from the table and held it close to his heart in order to illustrate the intensity of his feeling.

The next instant a thick, reddish liquid began to flow sluggishly over the bosom of his immaculate white shirt and was lost in the region of his equator, seeing which Dike gave vent to a yell that brought the waiters on the hot foot.

"I'm stabbed, stabbed!" groaned the startled jag-carpeteer, clutching wildly at his shirt front as the plate-passers bore him away to a haven of rest.

"It's my clam cocktail," whispered Stephen to me; "I poured it in his wineglass 'cause they was too much tobacco sauce in it for me!"

"Brave boy!" I answered. "It was a kindly deed."

Then we finished our dinners in all the refined silence of Saint Astormore so carefully furnished.

Dike's sad story of misplaced affection and an unused dictionary puts us wise to the fact that in these changeful days even the old-fashioned idea of courtship has been chased to the woods.

It used to be that on a Saturday evening the Young Gent would draw down six dollars worth of salary and chase himself to the barber shop, where the Bolivian lawn trimmer would put a crimp in his mustache and plaster his forehead with three cents worth of hair and a dollar's worth of axle grease.

Then the Young Gent would go out and spread 40 cents around among the tradesmen for a mass of lilies of the valley and a bag of peanut brittle.

The lilies of the valley were to put on the dining table so mother would be pleased, and with the peanut brittle he intended to fill in the weary moments when he and his little geisha girl were not making goo-goo eyes at each other.

But nowadays it is different.

What with eugenics and the high speed of living Dan Cupid spends Then Lena would giggle. Not once, but seven giggles, something like those used in a spam.

Then she would reply: "No, Simpson; it cannot be. Fate wills it otherwise."

Then Simpson would bite his finger nails, pick his hat up out of the coal-scuttle and say to Lena: "False one! You Love Conrad, the floorwalker in the butcher shop. Curses on Conrad, and see what you have missed, Lena. I have tickets for a swell chowder party next Tuesday. Ah! Farewell forever!"

Then Simpson would walk out and hunt up one of those places that can't get an all-right license and there, with one arm glued around the bar rail, he would fasten his system to a jag which would last a week.

Despair would grab him and, like Dike, he'd be Simpson with the source thing for sure.

When he would recover strength enough to walk downtown without attracting the attention of the other side of the street, he would call on Lena and say: "Lena, forgive me for what I done, but love is blind—and, besides, I mixed my drinks, Lena, I was on the downward path and I nearly went to Helgoland."

Then Lena would say, "Oh, Simpson, I wanted you to prove your love, but I thought you'd prove it with beer and not red-eyes. Forgive me, darling!"

Then they would kiss and make up, and the wedding bells would ring just as soon as Simpson's salary grew large enough to tease a pocketbook.

But these days the idea is altogether different.

Children are hardly out of the cradle before they are arrested for butting into the speed limit with a smoke wagon.

"I'm Stabbed!" Groaned the Startled Jag-Carpenter.

Even when they go courting they have to play to the gallery.

Nowadays Gonsalvo H. Puffenlotz walks into the parlor to see Miss Imogene Holbrook.

"Wie gehts, Imogene!" says Gonsalvo.

"Simlich!" says Imogene, standing at right angles near the piano because she thinks she is a Gibson girl.

"Imogene, dearest," Gonsalvo continues, "I called on your papa in Wall street yesterday to find out how much money you have, but he refused to name the sum, therefore you have untold wealth!"

Gonsalvo pauses to let the Parisian clock on the mantel tick, tick, tick! He is making the bluff of his life, you see, and he has to do even that on tick.

Besides, this furnishes the local color.

Then Gonsalvo bursts forth again: "Imogene! Oh! Imogene! Will you be mine and I will be thine without money and without the price?"

Gonsalvo pauses to let this idea get noised about a little.

Then he goes on: "Be mine, Imogene! You will be minus the money while I will have the price!"

Gonsalvo trembles with the passion which is consuming his pocketbook, and then Imogene turns languidly from a right angle triangle into more of a straight front and hands Gonsalvo a bitter look of scorn.

Then Gonsalvo grabs his revolver, and aiming it at her marble brow, exclaims, "Marry me this minute or I will shoot you in the topknot, because I love you."

Then papa rushes into the room and Gonsalvo politely requests the old gentleman to hold two or three bullets for him for a few moments.

Gonsalvo then bites deeply into a bottle of carbolic acid and just as the coroner climbs into the house the pictures of the modern lover and lovelorn appear in the newspaper and fashionable society receives a jolt.

This is the new up-to-date way of making love.

However, I think the old style of courting is the best, because you can generally stop a jag before it gets to the undertaker.

What do you think?

Made a Difference.

Little Willie became slightly indisposed, and when the family doctor was called he prescribed some medicine in powder form.

"Come, Willie," said the fond mother, preparing one of the powders as soon as the medicine arrived from the drug store, "you must take this right away so that you will be well."

"No, I don't want to take it," whined Willie, backing away from the dose. "I don't need no medicine."

"Why, Willie," pleaded mother, gently drawing the boy toward her. "You never heard me complain about a little powder, did you?"

"No, an' neither would I," was the startling rejoinder of Willie. "If I could just put it on my face like you do, but I have to swallow it."

Worth Trying. "I don't understand what is the matter with this machine," said the man whose car was stalled at a crossing. "The agent told me a child could run it."

"May be the agent was right at that," growled the traffic cop. "Why don't you hire a child?"

A check of brass may enable a man to acquire gold.

His Meal Ticket. "I met Mr. Blinks at the Van Gelter dinner last night. Isn't he a most fascinating man?"

"He has to be. If Blinks didn't get invited out to dinner three or four times a week he'd starve to death."

Instead of running away from your work try to find a more efficient way of doing it. That is the secret of success.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Largest Fountain Pen. "What is believed to be the largest fountain pen ever made for actual use was completed a few days ago in New Orleans. This pen is made of silver and holds two ounces of ink. It is ten inches long with the cap and eight inches without the cap, not including the point. The pen weighs about four ounces.

The Kind. "A little bird told me you fellows are out for a good time tonight."

"I guess it must have been the lark we're going on."

Feed on Corn. "What a ridiculous idea setting those hens in the cornfield!" said the farmer's wife.

"Nothing ridiculous about it. It's a great idea of mine," said the farmer. "Don't you see the hens won't have to leave their work to get their meals?"

Bad for Business. "At one time British warriors wore leopard skins."

"Bad uniforms. Too easily spotted."

The chap who courts more than one girl at a time is courting trouble.

ROCHESTER, PENNA.

Many facts, generally unknown, were revealed in the report of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations. Among many others were the facts that:

- Nearly half of the women work for less than $6.00 per week.
- One of every 12 corpses in New York, is buried in Pottery's Field.
- Five hundred dollars is the yearly income of half of the wage-earning fathers of families.
- Babies of the poor die three times as fast as those of the rich.
- Farm tenancy is increasing at an appalling rate.
- Two-thirds of all children are forced to leave grammar school before graduating and only ten per cent. finish high school.

The express companies report a net profit of $6,981,000 for the eight months, ending in February. For concerns driven out of business by confiscatory government regulation and competition, this can be considered doing fairly well.

The firm of Otto Eislenohr, a cigar manufacturing concern, incorporated at nine million dollars, with offices located in Philadelphia and nineteen factories located in as many different towns, have announced, in each shop, that from Sept. 15th, an increase of 50 cents per thousand becomes effective, which will affect approximately 4,500 people. They also notified the jobbers of an increase in the selling price of considerably more than the increase in wages. This increase comes one week after the fourth of a series of conferences held by the cigar makers, at Reading, to determine upon making a demand. October 10 was the date set by the cigar makers for another conference will be held on October 20.

8-HOUR LAW AUTHOR EXPLAINS WORKINGS

Says Act Does Not Fix Wages, But Only the Hours of Labor of Railroad Men.

"It looks like they are sorry the strike was averted," said Congressman Adamson, author of the eight-hour law for railroad men, in discussing the claims of opponents of this legislation in the House of Representatives, last week.

"In the first place," he said, "It is not true that the act fixes wages. That statement is gratuitous and inconsiderate. The law fixes an eight-hour day. We had previously a 16-hour day and a nine-hour day. We now have an eight-hour day. The only reference to wages is in the language used to hold in statu quo until the workings of the eight-hour law could be observed and all other features of the service adjusted to the eight-hour law. The language means and means only that there shall be no changes in the relations of the parties in any effort of the railroads to recoup what they assert to be an increase of wages.

"The present threat of some railroad officials to resist the law and refuse to put it into effect until forced to do so by the courts is strangely inconsistent with the known position of the railroad officials, often stated by them and made in their replies to the President, that they have no objection to an increase of wages if they are permitted to recoup for that by increased charges on the public. They would no doubt welcome with avidity an increase of wages and expenses and evidently favor it, because they think that they could secure an increase of rate largely out of proportion to the increased expense.

"Those gentlemen who see proper to resist the law until compelled by the courts will probably find the first expression from the court in the shape of a criminal warrant for failure to comply with the law.

"These gentlemen pretend that the eight-hour law is unconstitutional. The constitution charges congress with the duty and invests it with the power to regulate interstate commerce. Part of that regulation should and does relate to the safety of passengers and property. This act, like the 16 and nine-hour laws, is based on the idea of public safety. If it is warranted by the constitution, it is not unconstitutional. If it is a regulation of commerce it is constitutional. No genuine lawyer will deny that prescribing hours of labor for persons operating trains, prescribed in the interest of public safety, is a regulation of commerce. If any alleged lawyer gives any such erroneous advice and any railroad official, acting on that advice, goes to jail, he should have 'benefit of counsel' far enough to insure the incarceration with him of that unfaithful lawyer, and both of them would look well in stripes, and probably will be thus adorned if they persist in their announced course."

According to the statistician of the United Mine Workers, gunmen are becoming scarce and demanding higher wages. Many of them have gone to fight in the armies of Europe or joined the fighting element in Mexico.

Operation of mines in the anthracite region grows more difficult daily, due to the scarcity of laborers. Managers fear that laborers will be harder to secure as the winter approaches.

Seventy-seven federal employment offices have been established in connection with the Division of Information of the United States Department of Labor, in thirty states.

The Operative Plasterers' and Cement Finishers' International Association will meet in Annual Convention next week, in Detroit, Michigan.

With the recent passage of a Mothers' Pension law by Maryland, 29 states now have such laws on their statute books.

After compilation of local unions in Massachusetts, it was found that there were one thousand, four hundred and eighty in the state.

According to a report issued by the Canadian Department of Labor, the war has subjected Canadian unions to a severe strain, as returns for 1915 show a loss of 22,820 members.

The Ohio Industrial Commission has issued a pamphlet on "Job-Selling Evils in Industrial Plants." This reprehensible practice has been carried on for years, it claims, and should be at once abolished. New, English-speaking workmen were the chief victims, and the price ranges, anywhere from a bottle of whiskey to $35, and produces one of the worst types of industrial slavery.

Covington, Ky., has started a labor paper, the first issue containing extracts of a speech made there by Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, in which he said it was impossible to conceive that the social conscience of the millions of men in the present armies of Europe would not be quickened and that on the return of peace they will not accept the degrading conditions of former years.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

BROTHERHOOD CHIEF URGES WILSON VOTE

President W. G. Lee Tells Railroaders Not to Forget the President's Loyalty to Labor.

Cleveland, O.—W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, issued this bulletin to the 133,162 members of the organization:

"Surely it is the duty of not only our members, but all persons who work for a living, to support our friends and, if possible, defeat our enemies at the coming election. Therefore, it is urgently requested that the position taken by President Wilson and both branches of Congress be not forgotten, and that all members use every honorable means to retain in office, regardless of partisan beliefs, those who have proved their loyalty to the cause of labor."

It was announced similar bulletins will be issued by Warren S. Stone of the Engineers' Brotherhood, A. B. Garretson, of the Conductors, and W. S. Carter of the Firemen. It was learned that in violation of tradition and editorial in the coming issue of the "Railroad Trainmen," the trainmen's brotherhood official organ, will attack Republican candidate Hughes and will urge the support of Wilson and the tickets.

"They'll call it a political frame-up—we know that," said W. S. Carter, president of the firemen's organization, who came here, on business, "but it is not at all. I am going to send out soon a bulletin asking members of our union to vote for their friends. They know there is no politics in this. They know Hughes made a political issue out of an industrial issue. Why, it was just as much surprise to us as to anybody when Congress passed the eight-hour legislation. We know our duty now."

ANNUAL CONVENTION HELD IN NOVEMBER

American Federation of Labor Meets in Baltimore on November 13th. Important Business.

The Thirty-sixth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor will be held at the Lyric Theatre, Baltimore, Md., beginning at ten o'clock a. m. Monday morning, November 13th, 1916, continuing in session from day to day until the business of the convention has been completed.

Delegates must be selected at least two weeks previous to the opening date of the convention and their names forwarded to the Secretary of the American Federation of Labor immediately after the election.

It is, of course, entirely unnecessary here to enumerate all the important subjects with which our forthcoming Convention will concern itself, but the reminder is not at all amiss that every effort must be made to broaden the field and means for the organization of the yet unorganized workers, to strive to bring about more effectively than ever a better day in the lives and homes of the toilers, to defend and maintain by every honorable means in our power the right to organize for our common defense and advancement, for the exercise of our normal and constitutional activities to protect and promote the rights and interests of the workers; and to assert at any risk, the freedom of speech and of the press, and the equal rights before the law of every worker with every other citizen; to aid our fellow-workers against the effort now being made by Labor's enemies to entangle the workers in the meshes of litigation before the courts in the several states; to arouse our fellow-workers and fellow-citizens to the danger which threatens to curb or take away their guaranteed rights and freedom; the tremendous conflict now being waged in Europe and its possible consequences and results, not only upon the people of European countries but upon the people of America, as well as on the whole civilized world, must of necessity, receive the deepest solicitude consideration of the working people of America. How and what further actions can be taken by the American labor movement to help bring about an early peace among the warring nations of Europe; how that peace can be secured with the establishment and maintenance of justice, freedom, and brotherhood the world over. These and other great questions of equal importance will, of necessity, occupy the attention of the Baltimore Convention.

Old Age Pensions are being favorably considered, at present, in England, owing to the high cost of living.

FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Some time ago a consideration of our economic conditions and tendencies, of the position of women in gainful occupations, of the nature and course of the demand, led me to the conclusion that the granting of suffrage to women is inevitable. Opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. If women are to have the vote, as I believe they are, it seems to me entirely clear that in the interest of the public life of this country the contest should be ended promptly. I favor the vote for women. —From Mr. Hughes' Speech of Acceptance.

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

IRON MOLDERS' UNION NO. 217, HOLD SMOKER

Prominent Labor Officials Are Present and Give Interesting Talks.

COMMITTEE RECEIVED HIGH COMMENDATION

The regular meeting of Iron Molders' Union No. 217, of New Brighton, was held Monday evening in Eagle's Hall at that place, the meeting being featured by one of the most enjoyable smokers in the history of the organization.

Following the regular meeting, which was short and consisted of the transaction of routine business and the initiation of a new member, Roy Redmond, of New Brighton, the meeting was thrown open to invited guests, apprentices and helpers.

The committee in charge of the arrangements, which consisted of Roy Guy, chairman, Joseph Dawson, Roy Kron, Charles McCormick, Fred Felt, R. H. Mitchell and I. D. Fisher, fairly outdid itself in providing entertainment for the guests. Music was furnished by the City Orchestra and by the Mooseheart Quartette, both of Beaver Falls, and the following program was carried out:

Valentine Barie, Business Agent of the Pittsburgh district, officiated as toastmaster, a position which he filled to the extreme satisfaction of his hearers. Mr. Barie is not only a witty but a logical speaker, and his remarks were listened to intently.

Robert T. McCoy, Trustee of the International Molders' Union, made a speech which was not only eloquent, but was filled with good ideas and advice to those present. Mr. McCoy spoke of the wonderful increase in the formation of labor unions throughout the United States, and entertained his hearers by relating intimate accounts of the details and the difficulties encountered in organizing locals. It was all most interesting and of exceeding benefit to those present.

Jacob Margolis, attorney for the International Iron Molders of the Pittsburgh district, was present and told those present of the strike which has been on in his district for the past eight months.

C. L. Miller, representing the Hoisting Engineers of the Pittsburgh district, was in attendance and delivered a most convincing address, being followed by the Mooseheart Quartette in a pleasing selection. R. H. Mitchell, of Local 217, then favored with a vocal selection entitled, "When You Sang the Psalms to Me," the same being beautifully rendered and much enjoyed.

Following a selection by the orchestra, Walter Richards of No. 217, rendered a vocal solo, "Tennessee," the same being sang in his inimitable style. Mr. Richards' efforts brought forth a round of applause.

Following Mr. Richards came another selection by the orchestra, after which Robert McCoy, of Rochester, gave a toast to the workers, the same being exceedingly clever.

George T. Taylor, of Cleveland, iron molder, was present. Mr. Taylor is one of the oldest molders in the state, being aged 65 years, and starting to work at the trade in 1858. He was the recipient of much attention, and is at present employed in the Murphy Foundry, Beaver Falls.

The Labor News was requested by the officials of the Council to express the thanks of the body to the Mooseheart Quartette and to the City Orchestra for the pleasure which their music had given the members and their friends.

There was everything to eat, drink and smoke which one's heart could wish for—sandwiches, ice cream and cake, various grades of soft drinks and cigars, which, incidentally were not of the "Cinco" brand. The various members of the committee were indefatigable in their efforts to see that those present were amply provided with the good things, and it was the unanimous opinion of every man present that the affair was one of the most entertaining and most profitable which it had ever been his good fortune to attend.

Following a brief talk by a member of The Labor News staff on the necessity of union men supporting a labor paper, Mr. Barie took occasion to tell the men present why they should support The Labor News, stating that he wished Pittsburgh had one-half as good a labor paper, and that during the big strike in Pittsburgh, the union men would have been mighty glad to have had the support of an able labor sheet. He told the men that it was their duty to subscribe for The Labor News, and to cut out some of the other papers they might be taking if it was necessary, to enable them to see their way clear to pay for their local paper. The result of the speeches referred to is that a number of new subscriptions were taken and others promised to subscribe in the near future.

A meeting of the Executive Board of the International Iron Molders will be held at Pittsburgh on Sunday next, and on the following Sunday the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Conference will be held at New Brighton.

MEETING OF THE DISTRICT COUNCIL

Meeting Was Well Attended and Matters of Importance Discussed of Fuchs Matter Up.

A regular meeting of the Carpenters' District Council was held on Monday evening at the headquarters of the organization in the Kramer Building, New Brighton.

Max Fuchs, Rochester merchant, who was placed on the unfair list a few days ago, a full account of which action was published in last week's issue of The Labor News, was taken off the list and is now in good standing. This action was taken by the Council after hearing the particulars of how Mr. Fuchs was placed on the unfair list through no fault of his own and the mistake is now rectified.

A committee, appointed to revise the constitution and by-laws of the Council, consisted of Messrs. L. B. Craig, E. E. Shaffer and O. F. Gault. Business Agent Bowser was present and made a report of his office. He also presented to Council a copy of the Carpenters working agreement duly signed by G. W. Smith, a New Brighton contractor.

After October 23, the Council has decided to put their Business Agent in the field for a short time. J. A. Kronk, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council having been assigned to work along with Business Agent S. S. Bowser, owing to the great number of jobs and their being scattered over such a wide range of territory.

CARPENTERS' LOCAL 1033, HOLD MEETING

Will Decide on October 26th Whether Or Not to Change Meeting Places.

At a meeting of Carpenters' Local No. 1033, of Monaca, held Tuesday evening, the body decided that the action, taken at a former meeting, to change the place of meeting was unconstitutional, as such action, according to the by-laws, requires a thirty-day notice to members. As a result there will be a special called meeting for the evening of Thursday, October 26th, at 7:30 o'clock, to be held in Bank Hall, Monaca, for the purpose of voting upon the proposition to change the place of meeting and to nominate and elect a suitable meeting place from a list furnished by the Trustees.

VISITED HIS FATHER

H. M. Grimshaw, of Rochester, a member of Iron Molders Local No. 218, who was hurriedly called to the bedside of his father last Tuesday, has returned home, and reports his father's condition as improved.

"DRESS-UP" WEEK TO START ON FRIDAY

Everything Will Be Gala When Store Display Windows Are Viewed On Friday.

With blasts of whistles, the tolling of bells and other features extraordinary, Dress-Up Week in Beaver Falls will be heralded to the public on Friday morning. A concert band will play on the streets and in concerns in the business section—everything will be gala.

Windows of stores participating in the event will be unveiled at 7:30 o'clock. In a glow of lights their contents will remain on exhibition for two hours or until 9:30 o'clock. No goods will be sold on the opening evening, but on the following day—when Dress-Up Week will be in full swing—the latest in fall and winter styles will be placed at the disposal of the purchaser. The week will continue until October 7th.

Some features of the week are still to be announced, and the boroughs of the lower valley will have a day set apart for them, in which they will be given an opportunity to share with Beaver Falls in seeing what the latest styles are to be.

PRES. WILSON ON RAILROAD QUESTION

President Wilson last Saturday actively opened his campaign for reelection with a speech replying to Republican criticism of his settlement of the recently threatened railroad strike. Mrs. Wilson spoke from the porch of Shadow Lawn. His speech in full follows, and is submitted to the workers for their consideration:

"Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Business Men's League, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"I need not tell you what a sense of gratification it gives me that you should come bearing this generous message which I have just heard from your chairman. There is a sense in which the business men of America represents America because America has devoted herself time out of mind to the arts and achievements of peace and business is the organization of the energies of peace. No one who looks about upon the field of American business at the present moment can fail to realize that a new breath and spirit have come into the business of America.

"There have been times when it looked as if America were interested only in herself, but in these recent years American business men have lifted their eyes to more distant horizons and have seen how the markets of the world were waiting for their service, and as they have sought and obtained entrance into the markets a new vision has come to them of what the development of the resources of America means; of what the organization of American efficiency means; of why it was that American merchants and American manufacturers and American miners and all the multitude of men who have developed the peaceful industries of America, were planted under this free policy in order that they might look out upon the service of mankind and perform it.

"Pulse Beats Strongly.

"There was no time when the pulse of energy and success beat so strongly in the veins of American business as it beats today. And yet I hope that all business men in America realize that we are only at the beginning of a new era. America has not played its proportionate part in the development of the trade of the world. I mean that it has not played a part proportionate to the gifts of Americans and the resources of America, and that in the times to come, partly because of the unhappy circumstances of recent years, but chiefly because America is now about to release her energies, the scope of American business will be what men have hitherto not dreamed of, if American men know how to take advantage of the opportunity.

"The problems that are before American business are world problems. America must understand the world in order to subject it to its peaceful service. And yet when we look upon the field of American business there

AMBRIDGE MAN TELLS ABOUT CONVENTION

N. E. Ghrist, Member of Ambridge Carpenters' Local, Attending at Fort Worth, Texas.

N. E. Ghrist, of Ambridge, who represented his local at the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, at Fort Worth, Tex., favors The Labor News with copies of the proceedings of the meeting. The opening day was featured by an address of welcome on behalf of the commercial bodies of Fort Worth, by Ben E. Keith, prominent member of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, the last paragraph of his address being as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention, and ladies, let me assure you that we welcome you to Fort Worth. You are welcome; the latch string is out and will remain out as long as you remain in our city. The banks have instructions to honor your draft for any amount. If you see fit to take advantage of that, go get the money. We want you to feel and know that we welcome you here on this occasion."

Mr. Tyra also delivered an address of welcome and turned the keys of the city over to the delegates. C. W. Woodman, State Labor Commissioner, spoke on the many remedial laws which have been placed on the statutes and said that in civic life in Fort Worth it had been 12 years since an enemy of the people had held a public position.

On account of lack of space, it is impossible to publish the proceedings of the convention, the same for six days covering 132 printed pages. Sufficient to say that a vast amount of business is being disposed of, a number of complex propositions were settled, and that the convention was in every way being conducted successfully.

are some things that disturb us. Some men seem to think that the way to advance American business is to walk backward and to attempt again the provincial policies which have characterized an age when we shut our doors against the influences of the world.

Labor Not Commodity

"Labor is not a commodity. It is a form of cooperation, and if I can make a man believe in me, know that I am just, know that I want to share the profits of success with him, I can get ten times as much work out of him as if he thought I were his antagonist. And his labor is cheap at any price. That is the human side of it, and the human side extends to this conception, that the laboring man is a partner of his employer.

"If he is a mere tool of his employer, he is only as serviceable as the tool. His enthusiasm does not go into it. He does not plan how the work shall be better done. He does not look upon the aspect of the business or enterprise as a whole and wish to cooperate the advantage of his brains and his invention to the success of it as a whole. Human relationships, my fellow-citizens, are governed by the heart, and if the heart is not in it, nothing is in it.

Distressing Experience

"I have recently been through an experience which distressed me. I tried to accommodate a difference between some of the employees of the American railways and the executives of the American railways, and the one distressing thing I discovered was that on the one hand there was suspicion and distrust of the other side, and that that suspicion and distrust was returned by the other side in full measure.

"The executives did not believe in the sincerity of the men, and the men did not believe in the sincerity and fairness of the executives, and while arbitration was being discussed I had this sad thought: Arbitration is a word associated with the dealings of hostile interests. There ought to be no such thing as the contemplation of hostility as between men whose interests are the same and who should cooperate together.

Discovers Real Problem

"And, therefore, it came upon me with a force that it had never had before, that the real problem of capitalism (Continued on Eighth Page)

"WHAT WILL HUGHES DO?" ASKS WRITER

Valley Trainman Criticizes Republican Candidate and Boosts Wilson.

(By a Railroader)

That question is on all the working-men's tongues, and a more vital question never remained unanswered; and it will remain unanswered because Mr. Hughes does not wish to compromise himself any more than possible. We will have to give him credit for frankness in one way—that is, he does not favor union labor, and that he believes in that agent of the capitalist classes Compulsory Arbitration. Why? Because they have two chances to the workers' eye, they know it. Mr. Hughes is not a man who is afraid to place his name before the eight-hour bill was passed, only the shoe is now on the other foot. In New York City a strike is on that threatens to become more dangerous every day. Does Mr. Hughes attempt to persuade Mr. Shonts to arbitrate? Not he. It is the owners this time who refuse to arbitrate, even after they have deliberately broken an agreement, which they signed with the men through the offices of the Mayor of that city: "Broken agreement!" Would not the newspapers of that city, in headlines six inches high, have informed the public of the perfidy of the thing, had this been done by the union men. Now is the accepted time for Mr. Hughes to say to Mr. Shonts and his crowd—arbitrate. But does he? Oh no, the street car company has a chance to win this strike, and Mr. Hughes dares not butt in. When Wall Street commands him to keep out, Mr. Hughes is again the sphinx.

Mr. Hughes has an opportunity now that probably no other aspirant to the presidential chair ever had. He can in a few words place himself in the minds of millions of men and women as being a man of consistent ideas (which he says Pres. Wilson is not) if he would state that the street car company of New York should be forced to live up to that "Broken Contract." Would not the people he seeks to vote for him believe that he was speaking truthfully when he stated that the Brotherhood should have been forced to arbitrate, (maybe not in those exact words, but with words that left that understanding) and that was his honest opinion. As it now stands he is considered a four-flusher by many former friends, and President Wilson has been the gainer by his actions. But what will he do if elected? Can you, Mr. Man, that works for a living, take a chance. Mr. Hughes is not your friend. Remember the Danbury Hatters' case, and last but not least, the eight-hour day. Reject him. He has been weighed and found wanting.

Three cheers for Wilson and the eight-hour day.

Down with anything that stands in its way.

Now if all you workers will only unite, do your little bit while the time is ripe. And go to the polls on Nov. 7th. Show them you know what the ballot is worth.

Make a mark on it here and there, But make them with the greatest of care;

And this you should never once forget Mr. Chas. Hughes is Wall Street's pet. And after it is over on Election Day, He will be able to get lots of hay (sleep)

But it will not be in Washington, No! up along a ten mile run.

As Guests of Light and Traction Co.'s Are Taken Over the New Power Line.

ENJOY ELEGANT BANQUET AT WILLIAM PENN HOTEL

Valley newspaper men, on Wednesday, as guests of officials of the Beaver County Light Co., the Duquesne Light Co., and Supt. W. H. Boyce, of the Beaver Valley Traction Co., were taken in autos for a trip along the route of the high tension power line which conveys electrical power from the big plant of the Duquesne Light Co. at Bruno's Island, to Beaver valley points. At the conclusion of the trip the scribes were thoroughly convinced that the present owners of the electric interests in this district are not depending upon promises, but are going ahead with the work with unlimited faith in the development of the county. The present lines will care for a double demand for power, if necessary, and will permit the placing of additional cables whenever needed, and it is evident that the entire Beaver Valley district will soon be furnished with unlimited electrical power. Steel towers, erected on hill-tops, in valley and under every condition support the heavy copper cables, each of which weigh two tons to the mile.

Of more than usual interest to the valley men was the trip to Bruno's Island, where the third largest power plant in America. General Manager R. S. Orr conducted the party over the river to the island in a launch. At this point the submerged cables cross the river. An inspection was made of the system in operation for securing fuel, which can be brought to the island by water by means of a switch built beside the Ohio connecting bridge. The big submerged coal storage bin, capable of holding 100,000 tons was inspected. Over 175,000 tons of coal, a supply for four months, will be kept upon the island at all times.

Four turbines of 15,000 k. m., or 20,000 horsepower each, now supply the power for the Pittsburgh district. With the installation of additional turbines now being constructed, the power will be increased to 150,000 horsepower in the near future.

The touring party left the Junction office at 10 a. m., and at noon were served lunch, or rather a fried chicken dinner, with all the "trimmings," at the construction camp along Sewickley creek, and in the evening a banquet was served at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, three private dining rooms being reserved for the party. Officers of the company told of the aims and the ultimate completion of the project, and the local men were given a complete insight into the mechanical workings of this mammoth concern.

tention of sending it over the New Haven road to New York. It was then sent back.

Seven thousand girl cigarmakers are on strike in New York City and New Jersey towns. The firm threatens to move to Durham, N. C., if their employees do not return to work.

An increase in wages, amounting to a half million annually has been granted by the Grand Trunk Railroad, affecting baggagemen, yardmen and brakemen.

Over one thousand suitcases and bag workers of Philadelphia, are on strike for an increase, ranging from 25 to 50 per cent. This is the first time this industry was ever tied up completely.

An investigation of government ownership of railroads, telegraph lines, express companies, river and ocean transportation and other public utilities, will begin on November 20th, by a joint sub-committee, composed of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the House and Senate, of which Senator Newlands is chairman.

In an interview with newspaper men in Philadelphia, President F. D. Underwood, of the Erie Railroad, made the statement that there is a general feeling that the eight-hour day is coming and will come. He favors the matter being left in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, claiming they already have the power to regulate and raise rates, therefore, no further legislation is needed.

Strike-breaking guards, operating in Philadelphia, recruiting men to operate street cars in New York, were driven out of the city by the officials of the State Department of Labor and Industry. More than a score of these undesirable were operating without a license and took French leave as soon as they learned of the activity of State officials.

The Supreme Court of the State has upheld the constitutionality of the Workmen's Compensation Law. The United States Supreme Court has already decided that States can pass such laws. The decision clears the way for legislation on at the next session of the legislature in accordance with the constitutional amendment adopted last November, authorizing the making compulsory of the workmen's compensation act.

The superdreadnaught Arizona, recently completed in the New York
Navy Yard, was constructed by government workmen, at the prevailing union scale of wages. $1,000,000 was saved by the government, compared with the lowest estimate of private concerns.

Some employers in Chicago have inaugurated systems to encourage thrift among their employees. One method is to have a certain amount credited in a bank book to an employee each week;
another, to loan the employees savings and pay him interest for it at the rate of five or six per cent, but it appears, so far, that most employees prefer to handle their own money.

Figures recently compiled by the Federal Department of Labor, show that immigration is at a low ebb at present. From August 1st to September 18th, 47,431 were admitted. The chief increases this year, to date, have been from Mexico, Greece, Spain and Portugal. Before the war the yearly amount of new arrivals was above the million mark, but the fiscal year, 1916, the figures dropped below 300,000, the lowest for many years.

HIGH WAGES AND A HIGHER COST OF LIVING

While wages have increased by leaps and bounds during the past two years, owing to the unusual conditions and the demands for labor caused by the European war, the cost of the necessities of life has kept pace with this increase, and is now proportionally far beyond it. Comparing the average wage of two years ago with that of today, it looks as if we were very prosperous, but the workmen of this community with whom we come in contact, and we meet many of them of various trades, all declare that they are not as well off as they were last year, because of the high cost of living.

In Great Britain, and especially in South Wales, the organized railway workers have made a demand, not only for an increase in wages, but also for a guarantee from the government that, in future, it will control the supply of food and regulate the prices.

Program for Next Week

MONDAY, OCT. 2—Metro Pictures presents Edmund Breese, the sterling dramatic actor in "The Weakness of Strength," a powerful presentation showing the emptiness of power.

TUESDAY, OCT. 3—Pallas Pictures presents the redoubtable Dustin Farnum in a photoplay of the famous "Davy Crockett," as done by Frank Mayo.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4—Jesse L. Lasky presents Miss Blanche Sweet in "The Dupe," a most absorbing drama of domestic life.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, OCT. 5-6—William Fox presents the ever popular Theda Bara in "Her Double Life," a thrilling play of woman's deception.

SATURDAY, OCT. 7—Jesse L. Lasky presents Mae Murray in "The Dream Girl," a charming play of romance and adventure.

At the Majestic

"The Weakness of Strength"

The story of "The Weakness of Strength," which will be seen at the Majestic Theatre, Monday, Oct. 3, is one of the most dramatic which Mr. Breese has ever had in his long career on the stage and screen, and deals with the consuming and ruthless ambition of "Dan Gaynor," a Maine lumberman, and his rise to success at the expense of everything which most people hold dear. How he sacrifices the woman he loves and is hated by all who come in contact with him in his climb up the ladder of success until in the end he finds that all he has wrested from the blood and tears of others is nothing, and the things he valued least are the dearest after all.

"Davy Crockett"

The vast range of scenery and climate that is available for motion pictures in Southern California is wonderfully shown in the raging snow-storm scenes and the summer garden scenes that were taken on locations all within a day's ride from the studio.

The Pallas-Paramount photoplay, "Davy Crockett," to be seen at the Majestic, Thursday, Oct. 3, contains these scenes that were taken in the forest during a blizzard and the depth of the snow and ice-covered trees show a Southern California that few people know about. After taking these snow scenes the actors motored down to the sea shore to an estate with an old colonial mansion, surrounded by blossoming flowers and golden fruit, where the summer-like warmth made the frontier costumes seem too heavy.

All of the many and beautiful scenes of frontier days, with diversified climatic conditions were taken with an eye to their artistic value and have enhanced the romantic interest of this story of Davy Crockett's younger days.

"The Dupe"

Blanche Sweet will be seen at the Majestic, Wednesday, Oct. 4, in the Jesse L. Lasky production on the Paramount Program of "The Dupe," written especially for her by Hector Turnbull and prepared for the screen by Margaret Turnbull.

Blanche Sweet, by her ability alone, has risen to be one of the most distinguished artists of the silent drama. The Lasky company has given her many different roles to portray; she has been a child of the slums, a Russian anarchist, a maid of all work, a belle of society, and in "The Dupe" with her husband, where she is also seen by the man she loves. How the

"Husband and Wife"

William A. Brady, shortly after assuming charge of the production of World Pictures, announced that he would soon show many of his big Broadway successes with all-star casts. The first of these new all-star Brady-mades to be released is "Husband and Wife," which has, besides Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn, Emmett Corrigan, Gerda Holmes, Montagu Love, Dion Titheradge and Little Madge Evans play prominent parts in the cast. This first great all-star World picture will be the attraction at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Monday, October 2.

"The Beckoning Trail"

"The Beckoning Trail," a five reel Red Feather feature production which appears at the Colonial Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 3, has a remarkably strong cast headed by Warren Kerrigan. For years he has been connected with the moving picture game and has always been a favorite because of the sterling way which he plays the hero. Playing opposite Kerrigan is Lois Wilson, who takes the part of a girl of the back woods very well. Miss Wilson is pretty as a picture in the simple frocks which the part demands. Harry Carter has the part of the town bully, a heavy part of the type, which he plays so well. The part of an actress is taken by Miss Maud George, who can play such parts very naturally, as she was on the stage for many years before going into the pictures.

affair is adjusted and she eventually is united with the one whom she loves, is presented in a most unusual and attractive manner.

"Her Double Life"

How a girl rises from life in the slums of London to one of the highest places in English society, then falls suddenly, when the deception by which she had climbed is disclosed, is told in Theda Bara's new subject for William Fox, "Her Double Life," which comes to the Majestic Thursday and Friday, October 5th and 6th.

Miss Bara takes the part of Mary Doone, the tenement child, who makes her home in The Refuge, a parish home at which Elliott Clifford (A. H. Van Buren) is pastor. When the call comes for war nurses, Mary answers. At the front she meets Lloyd Stanley (Stuart Holmes) a war correspondent.

TUESDAY, OCT. 3—Red Feather Photoplays presents the popular favorite, J. Warren Kerrigan in an unusual drama of the east and west, "The Beckoning Trail;" also a Metro Travelogue and Tom Mix in "Roping a Sweetheart," a one-act comedy.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4—Metro Pictures presents Madame Petrova in "The Eternal Question," a five-act wonderplay. Also a Ham and Bud comedy, "Ham the Fortune Teller."

THURSDAY, OCT. 5—The Greater Vitagraph Co. presents charming Lillian Walker in a drama of the city, "The Kid;" also a Vitagraph comedy, "There and Back," and "The Pathe News."

FRIDAY, OCT. 6—Bluebird Photoplays presents Violet Mersereau, Wm. Garwood and Paul Panzer and a great cast in "Broken Fetters;" also an Essanay two-act drama, "His Stolen Fortune."

SATURDAY, OCT. 7—Equitable Pictures presents beautiful Gail Kane in a five-act drama of New York stage life, "The Labyrinth;" also Juvenile Film Co. presents an all star cast of Kids in a two-act comedy, "Chip's Burlesque on Carmen."

"The Eternal Question"

Mme. Petrova, foremost emotional actress, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Wednesday, in "The Eternal Question," a gripping five-reel Metro wonderplay produced by the Popular Plays and Players. In this production by an exceptionally strong cast. The feature abounds with big and striking scenes, among them and aviator dropping from his aeroplane to the deck of a transatlantic steamship and the subsequent rescue of the aviator and the girl he has saved, by the crew of a United States Torpedo boat. There are also some interesting situations staged along Fifth Avenue and on the famous bridge path in Central Park.

Friday, with piquant Violet Mersereau impersonating an American girl, raised in China, and so much like a native that she is able to be passed off as genuine by the Chinaman who brought her, in slavery, to America, and held her for a high price in his notorious den. How this girl was rescued by an American artist who had secured her services as a model, is related in a series of thrilling incidents that make a gripping photoplay.

"The Labyrinth"

The story of "The Labyrinth," which is coming to the Colonial Theatre on Saturday, is the next of the Equitable features, is one which will appeal to the hearts and minds alike of those who see it. It is that of a big hearted, whole-souled girl, who makes her living and supports her invalid sister by dancing, becomes a star, is interested in and marries a missionary worker in the slums, finds herself in a tangle between her husband and her manager, neither of whom knows of the relation of the other to the woman, and is released from her entanglements in an effective, if rather startling way. Gail Kane is the star of the play.

"Broken Fetters"

When San Francisco's Chinatown was destroyed in the memorable disaster, New York's Chinatown became the most unique and individual settlement of Celestials outside of China. Bluebird Photoplays have gone to this interesting spot to make authentic scenes for "Broken Fetters," to be exhibited at the Colonial Theatre, on she is seen as the social secretary to a capricious and flighty society woman. The story tells how, as a contrived young girl she secures employment as a social secretary in a wealthy family. The wife, madly in love with a young society man, becomes jealous of his attentions to her assistant. Wishing to rid herself of her husband and compel the young man to marry her, she manages to place the girl in a compromising position, whom she had known in London. She is saved from dishonor at Stanley's hands, by the bombardment of the hospital tent. After the attack, Mary finds the body of a young girl in the tent. It is Ethel Wardley (Madeline Le Nard), a niece of Lady Clifford's, who is on her way to make her home with the aunt she has never seen.

Mary changes clothes with Ethel, takes the girl's papers and luggage, and goes to Lady Clifford's. She is received as the niece. The aunt (Lucia Moore) loves the girl, and Elliott, the son, soon falls in love with her himself.

Then Stanley returns to England and brings with him Ethel Wardley, who has recovered from the wounds received on the battle line. They go together to the Cliffords, and are about to disclose the truth about Mary, when the poor girl confesses. She sees then that further life with the Cliffords is impossibilities, although Lady Clifford loves her so much that she wants her to stay. But Mary returns to The Refuge to work out her salvation among the little children.

"The Dream Girl"

Romance and adventure, the meeting or low life and high life from the dominant elements in this feature, which comes to the Majestic Saturday, Oct. 7. Mae Murray plays the part of a young girl in the slums, her young life surrounded by handicaps on every side. In spite of her birth and environment the girl has a love for everything beautiful and artistic. Just at the moment when fate seems to have dealt her a most unkind blow she is brought into contact with better surroundings. The girl's father, an inveterate drunkard, appears most unexpectedly at a moment when she seems to have freed herself from her early life and become the wife of a wealthy young man who is deeply in love with her. Although she loves him very dearly she bravely declines that her duty is to her unfortunate and unworthy father. Her spirit of sacrifice touches the callous soul of her father and in a flash he sees himself as the wretched creature he is and he decides to withdraw himself from her life. The young people marry and even the wretched father is taken care of.

GREAT SUCCESS WAS 'THE FALL OF A NATION'

Crowded Houses Greet Production at the Majestic on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Crowded houses at all performances of "The Fall of a Nation," which was the attraction at the Majestic on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, showed appreciation of the wonderful film by liberally applauding the various scenes. The theme of the picture is most interesting, telling a vital story of international significance. A confederation of European powers decide to seize North America and annex it to Europe. A secret army of the foreign-born is raised in New York, and as the city has few armed defenders, it is captured in a night.

The audiences were delightfully entertained during the course of the performances by the exceedingly fine playing of Nirella's orchestra, and by the singing of Miss Helen Baschoef.

City firemen are organizing rapidly in many cities. Three cities in Iowa just received a charter and plans are under way to establish an International Union of this kind.

"THE FALL OF THE OPPRESSOR" FILM

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Written by George A. Howe, Picturized by Beaver Valley Film Co.

Reel No. 1.

It was in the year 1893, in a small railroad village on the Pennsylvania Wagon Road, east of Pittsburgh. A drunken set of railroaders were on duty. They begin the day's work in a good old fashioned, friendly way, but as the day grows old and the whiskey grows less, they break into a car and rob it of its contents, finding more whiskey, which makes them drunker and results in a fight. To make a long story short, an investigation is conducted by the Master, but the men remain loyal to each other on the car breaking charge and nothing was proven against them, except drunkenness, and they were all discharged. In discharging them the Master gave them to understand that they were unfit to work for such a company as the Pennsylvania, and that they could never work for them again on any of its divisions.

The panic of 1894 is on in full.
Soup houses were opened in all large cities. In the fall of that year, we see the "Bread Line" two squares long in the city of Pittsburgh, and in it is two of the men discharged for the drunken row on the lines east. They get their loaf and go down to the wharf to eat it. As they eat the little fellow said: "Mike, did you ever feel as if you would like to be a man?"
Mike merely looked at Shorty, who continued: "You are rather a good-looking fellow and if you would cut out your drinking and try to be a man, you may get away with it and make a mark for yourself. I could have got a job today, over at Allegheny, for the Pennsylvania, but I gave my right name and referred to the lines east and they turned me down. Now why don't you try to reform? You've been a drunken, worthless cuss all your life, and what have you got?
Nothing! You don't even know where your next meal is coming from, and you've lost all semblance of self-respect, so why don't you straighten up and go over to Allegheny and try to get that job I almost had today?"

Shorty had finished his loaf and is now ready for the night, remarking to Mike, "Good night," and at that he crawls under an old barge to sleep, leaving Mike to himself. Mike finishes his loaf and is thinking of the lecture Shorty had just given him. He cannot help but think of Shorty's burning question—"Why don't you try to be a man?" He crawled under the barge but could not sleep. He kept turning over in his mind Shorty's question and of the girl that he loved better than life itself, and his blood turned cold and his heart appeared to stop when he realized that he must be a man to win her. This he knew was next to impossible, as he was conscious of the fact that there was not a spark of manly principle left in him.
The morning found him wide awake, and going to the river, he washed and cleaned up the best he could, and for the first time in his life, starts out to be a man. He walks to Allegheny in the hope of getting the job Shorty almost had the day before. He knew he could not use his right name and make good, but his desire to be a man takes possession of him and he determines to change his name. He walks into the employing office and asks for a job braking. The officer asks him if he had ever done any railroading and he answers, no! Lie number one —on his first day of trying to be a man. He turned away to hide the color of his face. It was there and then that he realized, with his character and past record, it was impossible to be a man. But, however, the employing officer needed a brakeman, and he gave Mike the job.
Th scene changes. It is the General Manager's office. The General Manager is informed that the service employees on the lines west of Pittsburgh are organizing unions, and he had called in his staff officers for a conference on this subject, to devise ways and means to stop his employees from joining unions. After hearing all the officers give their plans to break the unions, the General Manager arose and said: "Gentlemen:

These unions must be broken on this property. I do not intend that any set of my employees are going to interfere with the dividends of this company—now it is up to you to put these unions out of business on this property or I'll put men in your places that will. That will be all—now go back to your respective districts and don't forget that I want results. The staff left the General Manager knowing that they must make good or lose their positions.

The scene changes back to the employment office in Allegheny. Mr.
Hollowhead is just returning from the meeting with the General Manager and he recognizes Mike as he came out of the office with his new lamp, all equipped for work. Mike realizes that it is all off with him, as Hollowhead knew him and his past record, and worse than that, he had changed his name. Hollowhead grasped the situation immediately and in passing Mike he said to him: "Call at my office as soon as you complete the day."

Mike goes about his work, not thinking of the work at all, but of Shorty's lecture the night before and how he started out to be a man. How he had lied, how he had changed his name to get the job and then be recognized by Hollowhead even before he had got started. He was going to give it up but he had a chance to make $1.60 by completing the day, so he stuck it out.

On completing the day, Mike goes to Mr. Hollowhead's office. On nearing the office he pauses, undecided whether to go in or not, but he knows that he has been detected and determines to make the best of it. He goes in.

Mr. Hollowhead looks up when Mike enters and exclaims in a mocking sort of way: "So you thought you could come over here on this Wagon Road and get a job with that record of yours. You thought by changing your name that you could get away with it, but you can't—you're discharged!"
Mike knew that there was no use to argue with him and he turns to go, when Hollowhead said: "Just a minute. I may permit you to stay, provided, however, that you agree to do what I want in connection with your work." Mike asks, "What is that?"
Hollowhead then told him that some of the men on his division were joining the unions, and he wanted to know who they were, and if he would agree to furnish him with the information, he would be permitted to stay and work under his assumed name.

ital and labor was to bring the two sides to understand and believe in one another, that the problem of the next generation, if America were really to release her energy, was to be this real, genuine, fundamental reconciliation between capital and labor. I did not realize until I held those conferences just how far apart they were in that particular and indispensable part of our national life, the transportation of the country, and when I did realize it I saw that there was a great task that was worth any man's while ahead of us, to bring the minds of the country together, to see that men understood one another, to see that they had some assurance that they were speaking the truth to one another. I never had franker conferences in my life than I had with the representatives of the two sides.

Acquainted With Facts.

"Before I consulted with them I, of course, made myself acquainted with the points at controversy, and I learned that they were very simple indeed; that the men demanded an eight-hour day, and that in order to make the eight-hour day work they demanded that the railroads pay them one-half more for overtime than they paid them for the time in the regular day, the men alleging that that was the only way in which they could obtain a genuine eight-hour day, by making the railroads pay more than they paid for the time within the eight hours. I saw at once that there was one part of this that was arbitrable, but that, in my opinion, there was another part that was not arbitrable. I do not regard the question of the principle of the eight-hour day as arbitrable.

"The first thing I told both sides before I requested their opinion was that I stood for the eight-hour day. I received no suggestion from either side as to what the basis of settlement was to be, except that the railroad executives did suggest that Congress give them some sort of assurance that if the eight-hour day went into operation, they would get increased rates for the carriage of their freight. I pointed out to them that it was impossible to tell whether they would need increased rates for the carriage of their freight.

"We believe in the eight-hour day because a man does better work within eight hours than he does within a more extended day, and the whole theory of it, a theory which is sustained now by abundant experience, is that his efficiency is increased, his spirit in his work is improved, and the whole moral and physical vigor of the men is added to.

"This is no longer conjectural. Where it has been tried, it has been demonstrated. The judgment of society, the vote of every legislature in America that has voted upon it is a verdict in favor of the eight-hour day.

"And, therefore, I said to those gentlemen on both sides at the very beginning: 'The eight-hour day ought to be conceded.' But they said: 'It will cost us an immense sum of money.' 'How do you know how much it will cost you?' is asked.

Want Result Predicted

"I said to the railroad executives: 'You are asking that the result of the eight-hour day be predicted and the prediction be arbitrated. You are asking for an arbitration of a conjecture, of an opinion, of a forecast of figures, and if you were to ask me personally to arbitrate such a question I would say I am not competent to arbitrate it.

"The reasonable thing to do is to grant the eight-hour day, not because the men demand it, but because it is right, and let me get away from Congress to appoint a commission of as impartial a nature as I can choose to observe the results and report upon the results, in order that justice may in the event be done the railroads in respect to the cost of the experiment."

Will Carry Out Program

"The question is apt to be obscured in some quarters, as if we were saying that it was the right of the Government or of organized society, which is another term for the same thing, to say to a man, 'You must work whether you want to or not. America is never going to say to an individual, 'You must work whether you want to or not.' But it is pledged to say to an organization of men, 'You must not interrupt the national life without consulting us.'

"It is not a question of obliging individuals; it is a question of ending a partnership and seeing to it that no organization is stronger than the organization which we all belong to and support and call love by the name of our own government.

"So I laid a program before Congress by which, at any rate, a beginning might be made in that direction and that program is going to be carried with."

CANDIDATE W. D. CRAIG ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Tells Where He Stands in Labor Matters Which May Come Up At Next Session.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATORSHIP

The following list of questions, sent out by the State Federation of Labor, to be answered by candidates for legislative positions, will prove interesting, reading to the workmen of the valley, inasmuch as it will show the men where one of the candidates for the office of State Senator stands on matters affecting labor, which will be brought up at the next session of the legislature. The questions and answers to the same, as given by W. D. Craig, candidate on the Republican ticket, for State Senator, follow:

Question 1. Would you feel it your duty to oppose the Repeal of the Full Crew Bill?

Answer: I would.

Question 2. Would you be likely to vote against an Attachment of Wages (Garnishes) bill?

Answer: Yes.

Question 3. Do you favor the idea of holding a State Constitutional Convention on a non-partisan basis?

Answer: Yes.

Question 4. Would you be opposed to an increase in the number of the State Constabulary and the salaries of its officers?

Answer: Yes.

Question 5. What would be your probable position on the subject of Old Age Pensions, to be paid to persons having reached the age of sixty-five years?

Answer: I would support a fair and reasonable Old Age Pension Bill.

Question 6. Would you be in favor of an adequate appropriation for the Mothers' Assistance Fund, so as to make the fund more advantageous to widows and abandoned mothers, and of making it compulsory on County Commissioners to adopt it?

Answer: Yes.

Question 7. Would you support a bill to prevent the use of machines in working out of stumps and pillars in the bituminous mines?

Note—Working out the stumps and pillars is dangerous to an extraordinary degree, because, during the operation, the coal supporting the roof is all being taken away. Usually, before it falls, the rock, immediately above the coal, gives out warning sounds and the miners take extra precautions. With the running of a machine, the preliminary disturbance in the rock cannot be heard and the unfortunate miner remains at his task, in ignorance, till death comes to him. To prevent the use of machines in such work, is the purpose of the proposed bill to which Question 7 applies.

Answer: I have no knowledge of the subject matter of this question, and in my attitude would be governed by what the facts are shown to be. If the facts are as stated in the explanatory note, I would be in favor of such legislation.

Question 8. How do you feel toward the passage of an Anti-Injunction Bill, providing that what may be done legally by one person, shall not be illegal if done by two, or more, persons?

Answer: The purport of this question is not exactly clear to me. However, if you mean legislation to prevent the abuse of the injunction process in disputes between labor and capital, or between employers and employees, I would be in favor of legislation preventing such abuse.

Question 9. Would you help to pass a Compulsory Compensation Act, making it obligatory on all employers to insure their employees in the State Workmen's Insurance Fund; raising the Compensation scale to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of wages; paying to widows and dependent widowers, the sum of thirty dollars per month (as in New York State) till death, or remarriage, and increasing the period of payments for disability by at least twenty-five weeks?

Answer: For many years I have advocated the passage of a compulsory compensation act from every school house and street corner in this county and still favor it. I am not sure, however, that the sum of thirty dollars per month and a period of 25 weeks would be the most desirable provisions of such a law. I am in favor of any compensation act properly drawn, to give a workman and his dependants the full and fair compensation for their injuries.

W. D. CRAIG.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO UNION WORKERS

The recent election in Maine shows that the voters of the state desire a shorter workday. The legislature had passed a 54-hour law and submitted it to the voters at the general election. Thousands of dollars and tons of literature were distributed by the leading textile manufacturing interests of the state, but, despite all this, the measure carried by a decided majority.

Under the same conspiracy law that gave basis for the suit of Bridgeport, Conn., foundrymen against the Molders' Union, three of the strikers have instituted action for $200,000 against the Monumental Bronze Company and their officials. Assault in pursuance of a conspiracy and fraudulent arrest are the charges preferred by the strikers. Already $65,000 is tied up and several of the members of the firm are being sought by body writs by deputy sheriffs.

More than 300 stogie makers are on strike at Bellaire, Ohio, and vicinity. They are not organized and recently asked for an increase of 25c per thousand, which was refused, and the strike resulted.

Representatives of Jewelry Workers' Union, representing nine of the largest cities in the country, met in New York City and formed an International Union, consisting of seven thousand members.

Over 100,000 Japanese are employed in various occupations in the United States and the Philippines.

The recent British Trades Union Congress registered a strong protest against sending soldiers to work in factories unless they are placed on the same footing as civilians in regard to treatment and wages. A similar protest in this country may also result, as the recent Congress has passed a law, patterned after the English law.

Russian workmen in the munition factories, are now receiving wages never dreamed of before.

Iron Molders of Baltimore, recently received an increase of twenty-five cents a day.

The Virginia Federation of Labor is demanding an eight-hour day for all State work let by contract or done by the State.

Bakersfield, California, unions have laid the cornerstone for a labor temple.

Stage employees of Grand Rapids, Michigan, have secured an increase of $2.00 per week.

The Women's Trade Union League will hold a conference in Chicago, on October 6th, to devise ways and means to secure the eight-hour day for women through organization and legislation. More than a dozen of the middle west states will be represented.

A minimum of 88 cents an hour and an eight-hour day with time and half time for overtime has been secured by shell makers at Wheeling, West Virginia. Laborers also secured an increase.

The strike at the Eagle Silk Mill, in Scranton, has been settled. An increase in wages, the return of discharged employees and recognition of the union has been secured.

A shortage of labor is reported in Alabama and other southern states. Labor agencies and agents, representing northern companies are shipping

TOWNSEND STRIKE IS DECLARED OFF

Federal Union No. 14,994 Surrenders
Charter But Employees Receive Wage Advances.

Owing to a lack of interest on the part of the men engaged in the strike at the Townsend Works at Fallston, which has been on for several months, the same has been declared off. The great obstacle which Federal Union No. 14,994 encountered in the effort to bring the strike to a successful conclusion, was the fact that the hundreds of men who went out when the strike was called, all found better jobs of a higher rate of wages immediately after leaving the Townsend Company. As a result the strike died a natural death, brought about by lack of interest on the part of the strikers themselves. The Federal Union charter has been surrendered.

However, the effort to gain decent conditions at the plant was not in vain, as the company, after having lost a large amount of money by reason of the fact that a part of the works has been idle for months, have raised the wages, it is stated, of the relatively small number of strikers who have returned to work. For instance, girls who were formerly making from $33.80 to $36.40 per month, have been raised to $50 a month, while the men have been granted an increase of five cents per hour. In addition, the head of the Townsend Company is said to have promised to get rid of the strikebreakers, who have been employed at the plant for several months. All in all, the fight, which was made by a few of the men and girls who were interested, has not been in vain.

negroes north at the rate of one hundred per day. Most of them are sent to the mining regions of Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The government railroad in Alaska is now carrying coal from the famous Matanuska field to Tidewater, which means cheaper fuel and it is predicted, it will be followed by opening of new industries.

According to the figures secured by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, the cost of living has increased 35% and little hope is given of any reduction.

B. Suzuki, representing the Laborers' Friendly Society, of Japan, is coming as a delegate to the California Federation of Labor. He will also attend the A. F. of L. Convention.

Milk drivers to the extent of 6,000 are on strike in New York.

The Broom Makers, of Pittsburgh, won a strike in 15 minutes, for a demand for an increase. The controversy had been going on for four weeks, with no favorable results, until the strike was called.

Labor unrest has penetrated Honolulu, where 300 stevedores went on strike for better conditions.

Machinists of Nashville, excepting those in the railroad shops, have secured the eight-hour day and 45 cents an hour.

The Michigan Association of Circuit Judges held a meeting in Lansing and resolved to ask for an increase from $3,500 per year to $5,000. In discussing methods to secure this increase, one member referred to the advantage of lobbying and the august body became panic-stricken.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce is fighting to establish the open shop, and funds seem plentiful. The local unions are assessing themselves to overcome this work of the Commerce Chamber.

Wilkens-Barre, Pa.—James A. Steese and Patrick Gildae, of the state department of labor, who have previously been unsuccessful in their efforts to bring to an end the trolley strike that has been waged for almost twelve months, will renew again their efforts toward securing peace. They will be assisted by Rezin Orr, international treasurer of the Carmen's Union.

The company has offered to reinstate 170 men, but the union has so far refused to accept that proposition.

MEDIATORS WILL TRY AGAIN

Wilkens-Barre, Pa.—James A. Steese and Patrick Gildae, of the state department of labor, who have previously been unsuccessful in their efforts to bring to an end the trolley strike that has been waged for almost twelve months, will renew again their efforts toward securing peace. They will be assisted by Rezin Orr, international treasurer of the Carmen's Union.

The company has offered to reinstate 170 men, but the union has so far refused to accept that proposition.

GIVEN MEAT- FARM WORKERS

Employees of Chicago Contractors Will Benefit by Wage Increases.

Over a thousand employees of the meat packers of Chicago, who were on a voluntary increase of wages of 2½c an hour. Every employee in the United States, no matter where located, will receive the increase, which will aggregate $25,000 a year. The increase went into effect the first of October. The packing house teamsters of Chicago, also working under an agreement will receive the advance. The packing companies making the voluntary increase are:

Swift & Company, Armour & Co., Morris & Co., and Wilson & Co. (formerly Schlager & Sons Co.)

Members of the Wholesale Clothing Association, manufacturers of ready-to-wear clothing, and employing 10,000 garment workers, posted a strike Monday that beginning December 1, 48 hours will constitute a week's work, with time and a half for overtime. The cost of the voluntary change is estimated by J. L. Abt, president of the association, will be more than $1,000,000.

MORE PAY FOR LOCAL WINDOW GLASS WORKERS

Substantial increases in wages for window glass workers in the window glass factories of the country was decided upon at the convention held in Cleveland between the National Association of Window Glass Workers and representatives of the factories.

The new scale becomes operative October 25th, and provides for an increase of 20 per cent. for single strength, plus 10 per cent. for single strength blowers only. The increase for double strength is 16½ per cent. The new scale will affect approximately 5,000 men in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kansas, Oklahoma and Indiana.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST STEADILY GROWING

New Subscribers to The Labor News
Are Being Sent in Daily By Valley Union Men.

That the Union men throughout the valley are becoming more and more appreciative of the work The Labor News is doing for them, is evidenced by the fact that not a day passes but what some unionist turns in from three to ten new subscriptions. On the first four days of the present week a total of twenty-nine new subscriptions were entered on our books and the indications are that by Saturday of this week the number will be close to sixty. For a number of months after The Labor News was started, it was something of a job to get the members of the various crafts to take an interest in the paper to the extent that they would dig up new subscribers. At the present time the friends of the paper need no particular urging, going out and getting the new ones in goodly numbers and sending or bringing them to the office. All of which goes to show that The Labor News is growing and is proving more valuable in its field today than at any previous time in its existence.

NO DANCE AT JUNCTION PARK THIS SATURDAY

On account of the Children's Home Fair at Junction Park this week, the regular Saturday evening dance will not be held. The next dance will be held on Wednesday evening, followed by dances on each Wednesday and Saturday evenings throughout the fall and winter.

Manager C. C. Shetterly, who has been west on a combined business and pleasure trip, returned on Wednesday and will remain throughout the winter and next season. Under his management the park has gained a great deal of its lost popularity and that it will continue to become more popular is undoubted by persons familiar with the workings of the place.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION TRANSACTS BUSINESS

MOVING TO ROCHESTER.

Frank Cable, member of Bricklayers and Masons' Local No. 7, expects to move soon from Sunflower, to Rochester. Rochester will certainly welcome you, Frank.

B. V. T. U. 250, MEETS AND ELECTS OFFICERS

Raymond Steadman Chosen President.
F. W. Tallon, Financial Secretary,
Declines Renomination.

The annual election of officers of Beaver Valley Typographical Union No. 250, took place Monday evening at the rooms of the organization in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton. The following officers were elected, there being no opposition, except for recording secretary: President, Raymond Steadman; vice president, John Carson; secretary-treasurer, John Clark; recording secretary, H. Linsenbiller; sergeant at arms, H. L. Judd; trustees, Cecil White, John Shiever and Robert P. Nulton. The newly elected officials were installed by President pro tem, G. J. Nigh.

Mr. Spencer, of Beaver Falls, was elected as an additional delegate to attend the convention to be held at New Castle on Sunday next.

J. W. Tallon, for 20 years secretary-treasurer of the union, declined a renomination for the office, feeling, as did the members present, that he had done his part. The union tendered Mr. Tallon a vote of thanks, and as a mark of their appreciation voted him a paid up card for the ensuing year.

THE RIGHT TO LABOR

Whereas, God Almighty has given to every man one mouth to be fed and one pair of hands adapted to furnish food for that mouth. If anything can be proved to be the will of heaven it is proved by this fact, that that mouth is to be fed by those hands without being interfered with by any other man who has also his mouth to feed and his hands to labor with. I hold, if the Almighty had ever made a set of men that should do all the eating and none of the work he would have made them with mouths only and no hands, and if he had made another class that he intended should do all the work and none of the eating he would have made them without mouths and with all hands.

Abraham Lincoln.

BAGNELL EXTENDED THE SYMPATHIES OF CRAFTSMEN

The sympathy of The Labor News management and the members of his craft is extended to H. G. Bagnell, in the recent bereavement of his wife, which occurred at New Brighton on Friday, last.

Mr. Bagnell is one of the leading members of Bricklayers and Masons' Local, No. 7, of Rochester.

BRICKLAYERS & MASONS MET FRIDAY EVENING

The regular meeting of Bricklayers and Masons' Union, No. 7, was held Friday evening in Socialist Hall, Rochester, with a good attendance of members present. Among the matters up for special action was the reinstatement of Charles Moore, of Freedom, which received favorable action. Other routine business was also discussed and disposed of in the regular way.

At a recent conference, held in Detroit, Henry Ford said that if he had control of the railroads, he would cut the freight rates to one-third the present rate, double the pay of the railroad workers, and, by cutting out the iniquity of the railroad management, make more profits for the stockholders than are earned at present.

Receives Reports of Delegates and Takes Action on Several Communications.

RESIGNATION OF HARRY GRIMSHAW ACCEPTED

A regular meeting of the Central Labor Union was held Monday evening in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton. There was a fair attendance and the reports of the delegates were unanimous on the proposition that the men were all busy and that more men would be hired by a number of manufacturers if it were possible to obtain them.

Harry Grimshaw, delegate from Iron Molders' Union No. 219, and a trustee of the Central Body, tendered his resignation. He left on Wednesday for Columbus, where he expects to locate. William Bebout of the Barbers' Local, was elected to succeed Mr. Grimshaw as Trustee, and will fill out the unexpired term.

Delegate Powell of the Horse Nail Workers' Union No. 7073, reported that the Standard Horse Nail Works had signed the eight-hour scale. A report had been circulated that the company would refuse to do so, but it was erroneous.

Secretary Kroes read several communications, two of which are published herewith. The one from the United Garment Workers of America stated that Sonneborn & Son, of Baltimore, manufacturers of the "Style-Plus" brand of clothing, and Strouse Bros., of Baltimore, manufacturers of the "High Art" brand of clothing, were employing non-union help. A committee was appointed to take the matter up with the Beaver valley dealers who handle these brands, and to see if it will not be possible to get the merchants to stop selling these two brands of clothing.

United Garment Workers of America.
New York, Sept. 22, 1916.

To Central Bodies, Greeting:—
I desire to notify you that the firm of Strouse Brothers Company, of Baltimore, Md., who manufacture the "High Art" brand of clothing, are unfair to organized labor. The cutters of that firm are on strike to protect their right to continue their membership in the United Garment Workers of America. Every influence possible has been brought to bear on them to secede from this organization and join the secession movement. This firm has recognized the seceding tailors and desires very much that the cutters join with the tailors.

The Lithuanian tailors who demanded 15c for making pockets, which is one cent less than what other firms in Baltimore are paying for the same grade of work, went on strike and our cutters took advantage of this opportunity to protect themselves and prevent their being forced out of the Garment Workers into the secession movement. If the tailors lost their fight, they would be forced over to the seceders and likewise the cutters.

Henry Sonneborn & Sons, of Baltimore, also have encouraged some of our members to secede and our cutters there are on strike to maintain their right to be members of the United Garment Workers of America. The brand of clothing they manufacture is the "Style-Plus."

We request that your Central Body take this matter up and appoint a strong committee to wait upon the clothing dealers in your city and request them not to purchase or handle Strouse Brothers' "High Art" clothing, or Henry Sonneborn & Sons' "Style-Plus" garments and insist that they return all garments that are being shipped to them at this time. As soon as possible, one of our organizers will visit your city.

B. A. LARGER,
General Secretary, United Garment Workers of America.

"THE FALL OF THE OPPRESSOR" FILM

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Written by George A. Howe, Produced By Beaver Valley Film Co.

Mike paused as he was about to leave Mr. Hollowhead's office. He could hold his job if he became a traitor to the men he worked with. Again he thought of Shorty's burning question, "Why don't you try to be a man?" "How can I be a man under such conditions?" he asks himself. Why did he consider what Shorty had said, and what right did he have to say it? If Shorty hadn't put the idea in his head he would have thought nothing of Hollowhead's offer but to accept, but now, he stood undecided just because Shorty had asked a question—"Why don't you try to be a man?" He thought, will I accept Hollowhead's offer, or will I go back to Shorty and the bread line and say, boys, I am trying to be a man. No, I never was a man, and I don't know whether I could be one even if I wanted to be. So he turned to Hollowhead and said, "I accept your offer."

Hollowhead smiled and said: "I thought you would. Now let us get down to business. You are to go to work among the men, join their unions, find out who the members are and report to me just what they do and the names of the ones that do it. You can take an active part in their affairs, get on the grievance committee and be a dynamiter, you know—lead others to do the same and I will take care of you. You may get now, but remember, don't speak to me in public, and make your report every night by letter. Good-bye," and with that he waved Mike to the door.

Mike went out of the office to the street to think over what he had done. He had sold himself for a liter of gold and a very small liter at that. A job at $1.60 a day—again he thought of Shorty, his question, his own past record and he realizes that he is now at the beginning of the end of his career. As he goes to move he staggers as if he were drunk, but he had not had a drink that day. He remembers now that he had been so full of thought of other things, that he had not eaten since the night before. He was so hungry that he was weak, he had no money and as it was late in the evening, he could not go to a boarding house. Knowing that the railroad men generally loaf in the saloons down on Beaver avenue, he goes there. At the saloon he finds four railroad men, it happening that one of them had worked on the same crew with him that day, so he makes himself acquainted and tells them he is hungry. In those days, railroad men, although drinking men, were generally a whole-hearted, sympathetic lot of fellows, and when they found a hungry man, they couldn't do enough for him, at least this is the way Mike found them. After they had fed him and took up a small collection in order that he might buy gloves and other necessities with which to work, one of the men took him home to beard and room until he could find a place. It was late and the family were in bed, so Mike and his good friend at once retired. A month passes with but little happening. A few railroad men had been discharged for practically nothing, and the strange part of it was, that they were all members of the union. In that month, we find Mike treated by his good friend Hollowhead. Mike had gained the confidence of his friend and from him had learned all about the union. It was strange that this man was not discharged, because Mike was waiting until he drew his first pay and would be on his feet and in a position to get board and room at another place. The day finally came, it was a sad day for Mike's friend and his family, because Mike's report to Mr. Hollowhead the night before pay day, contained the information that this man was a member of the union. The scene changes to the Train Master's office. Mike's friend calls on the Train Master to request transportation over a foreign road, and is refused. He goes out and meeting Mike tells him of Mr. Hollowhead's refusal. Mike sees a golden opportunity. He gets his friend drunk and tells him to go back to the office and demand the transportation. He did and was discharged for being drunk and disorderly in the Train Master's office. It is needless to say that he was "black listed" all over the country, and branded as an "agitator." His children are put in an Orphan's Home. His wife is forced into the streets, and he himself, becomes a "bum," all of which is music to Mike's ears.

A year passes. The industrial depression of 1893 is passing over. Business is picking up everywhere. The union on the lines west did not do much good because the men were discharged as fast as they joined until this time, when it became different, as there was a lot of work and the company could not afford to lose the men, thus giving the union a chance to get a start. Inasmuch as Mike had worked a year, and the union was growing at such a rate, it was decided that he should join and disrupt it from the inside, so he makes application, the same being approved, and he is notified to appear for admission.

The scene changes; Mike joins "Good Will" Lodge No. 106, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trackmen. After the initiation was over Mike is called upon to make a speech, and he arose and said:

(To be continued next week).

THE LABOR MOVEMENT

(By John M. O'Neill.)

The labor movement had its birth in the womb of oppression and will live and grow stronger until it has removed the cause which brought it into existence. As long as men and women feel the yoke of economic slavery, as long as there can be heard a wail of agony from a hovel of poverty, as long as insatiable greed mocks the agony of the struggling millions whose sweat is minted into dividends, just so long shall the workers of the world protest against the system that robs the few in broad-cloth and the many in rags.

Exploiters in every nation of the world have united to crush the movement that is giving battle to industrial despotism, but the cause that was founded on those eternal principles that breathe a higher civilization for humanity, will stimulate the workers of the world to come together into a mighty army, that will yet be invincible in righting the wrongs that afflict the toiling millions of the earth.

"Education and slavery cannot exist together in one land," and as the vision of the toiler becomes clearer to discern the brutality of the economic system that enslaves the many and enriches the few, he places his individuality behind the fortress of the labor organization, feeling and believing that men cemented together by the ties of class interest can and will usher in a civilization where man, woman and child shall be free.

Labor is no longer in its swaddling clothes, but has assumed the proportions of a lusty manhood and the economic tyrant whose lips were once curled with a sneer of derision at labor's weakness, has become pallid with fear, for he knows that "labor is fast becoming a giant and that resistance to tyranny is obedience to God." He knows that right must prevail amid the wreck of empires and the crash of thrones, amid the scattering of kingdoms and the fall of nations, and as he looks into the future he can behold the cross of labor entwined with the evergreen of hope, and the victims of exploitation welcoming the dawn of that day when gold shall be no longer god among the nations of the world.

The wrongs of the centuries are piled mountain high, but labor is fighting the battle of all the ages, and when the smoke has died away in the distance, the slave will become a man, "the noblest work of God."

It is true that the road to victory will not be strewn with roses, but men and women who loath tyranny and love liberty will not halt or falter in the onward march that leads to the goal of economic freedom. The spirit that hurled regal imperialism from the bosom of a western continent and the love of liberty that shattered the auction block and clothed the black man in the robes of citizenship, lives in the yearning hearts of the exploited millions, and their crusade against the injustice that is bred from wrong economic conditions will triumph over all the forces that for ages have enslaved the human race. The royal parasite in his gilded palace, as well as the greed-crazed financier in his counting room, are listening to the mighty voice of labor, that is becoming more patent throughout the nations of the world, and they can hear the tread of that increasing army, whose economic and political power will yet tear tyranny from its throne of despotism and bequeath to man that heritage which the conspiracy of the centuries has stolen from humanity. The future is pregnant with mighty changes and it requires no prophet to predict the coming time when the brutal system that builds a prison and a palace, that breeds a pauper and a prince, a master and a slave, shall be consigned to oblivion and there shall be ushered in the sunlight of a civilization, where man can obey the Scriptural mandate: "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

"PLEASE TELL US, MR. HUGHES," SAYS POET

California Physician Asks Pertinent Questions of the Republican Candidate.

As you talk from day to day, Mr. Hughes,
We are reading what you say, Mr. Hughes;

We are carefully a-weighing,
Every word that you are saying,
As the President you are flaying, Mr. Hughes.

You're emitting lots of noise, Mr. Hughes,
We're afraid you've lost your poise, Mr. Hughes;
Malediction so terrific,
And your charges so prolific,
Should be rendered more specific, Mr. Hughes.

You say things most unkind, Mr. Hughes,
'Tbout when Wilson changed his mind, Mr. Hughes;
'Spose you write us all a note,
Telling when you changed your coat,
So's to favor women's vote, Mr. Hughes.

You were Governor of your state, Mr. Hughes;
Your repentance is too late, Mr. Hughes;
Did you not then put the ax
To the Federal Income Tax?
You should cover up your tracks, Mr. Hughes.

And the bill for two-cent fare, Mr. Hughes,
When you occupied the chair, Mr. Hughes—
Did you sign that little measure,
And thus save the people treasure?
No, you vetoed it with pleasure, Mr. Hughes.

You are often heard to speak, Mr. Hughes,
Or our policy being weak, Mr. Hughes.
It is cheap to sing that song—
Say exactly what is wrong—
Tell us how you would be strong, Mr. Hughes.

Oh, you make an awful mouth, Mr. Hughes,
About our neighbors on the south, Mr. Hughes;
Will you tell us what you mean—
Would you have us intervene?
That would cause a bloody scene, Mr. Hughes.

We have enemies Castilian, Mr. Hughes,
Who would fight us by the million, Mr. Hughes;
But an enemy far greater,
Is the lying agitator—
He's the vilest form of traitor, Mr. Hughes.

He regards you with affection, Mr. Hughes,
And will work for your election, Mr. Hughes.
War of conquest he is framin',
For this trouble he's to blame, an'—
He should hang as high as Haman, Mr. Hughes.

You have wept and you have wailed, Mr. Hughes,
That the Democrats have failed, Mr. Hughes.
We would know just how you feel,
If they give us a new deal,
Just what laws you would repeal, Mr. Hughes.

While you're speaking of "free trade," Mr. Hughes,
Why not call a spade a spade, Mr. Hughes.
Do you think you'd win applause,
If you'd say the tariff laws,
Should be back to where they was? Mr. Hughes.

Would you win the nation's thanks, Mr. Hughes,
By restoring to the banks, Mr. Hughes
All the power and some more,
That they had in days of yore,
When your party had the floor, Mr. Hughes.

Will you dare to put the ban, Mr. Hughes,
On the Democratic plan, Mr. Hughes,
Of making armor plate,
And potassium nitrate,
In a place owned by the state, Mr. Hughes.

And "deserving Democrats," Mr. Hughes,
Won't you kick them in the slats, Mr. Hughes—
If this contest you have won,
Won't you have a lot of fun,
In displacing every one, Mr. Hughes?

You orate like all creation, Mr. Hughes,
Of the "Honor of the Nation," Mr. Hughes.
Would you make her fight with John or Kaiser William just for "honor"
And bring woe and grief upon her, Mr. Hughes?

Do you think you'd have been wiser, Mr. Hughes,
In handling King or Kaiser, Mr. Hughes?
Would Bernstorff have packed his trunk,
When the Lusitania sunk,
Or is your talk all bunk, Mr. Hughes?

At the Majestic

"The Pretenders."
Emmy Whelen, one of the most beautiful and talented young women now appearing in the silent drama, will be seen at the Majestic Theatre, Monday, Oct. 9, in "The Pretenders," an elaborate Metro production.
The story of "The Pretenders" presents a vivid picture of the simple life in a Middle West town before the family of Pettigills became wealthy, and after they come to live in a Fifth Avenue mansion, with a country home in the Adirondacks. An interesting glimpse of English customs is also given in the situations, where a real Earl and a counterfeit Earl figure. Miss Whelen, who is counted one of the best dressed women of the stage or screen, wears many wonderful gowns in "The Pretenders." In a word, this Metro feature has every requisite found in the best class of screen productions.

"Under Cover"

"Under Cover," has been chosen by the Famous Players Co. as an ideal vehicle for Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore. This remarkable drama will be shown at the Majestic, on Tuesday, Oct. 10th.

There are two great reasons for the success of "Under Cover" on the stage—the fact that it was a play of ceaseless action and that it was one of the first plays ever written which centered around the United States Customs. These same two factors apply with even more force to the importance of the story as a screen production. It makes no difference how great a success a play may score on the stage if that success is not based upon the amount of action in the story, for it cannot make a good photoplay if the chief point of interest lies in the cleverness of the lines.

"The Footlights of Fate."

A number of remarkable scenes are contained in "The Footlights of Fate," the Blue Ribbon feature to be seen at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, October 11. One scene shows the interior of a cabaret—the diners are chatting merrily at the many tables while the professional dancers render entertainment.

Another interesting view is that of a large theatre lobby in New York City. The interior of the theatre is equally well portrayed as we see the large audience intently watching the players in the stage.

The rehearsal scenes, also, are worthy of special mention. A true theatrical atmosphere is evident as the popular star, Naomi Childers, unable to please the manager, sinks to the floor in despair.

In fact, throughout the entire production, the details have been recognized and worked up in an extraordinary manner.

"Salvation Joan"

Salvation Joan, which will be seen at the Majestic Thursday and Friday, Oct. 12-13, is a picture of the romance of a society girl. It is a vivid story of life in the slums and the work of the Salvation Army and of adventure with the United States Secret Service.

Salvation Joan has received more notice in the newspapers and magazines of the country than any other picture in a year.
Edna May, who plays the title role, was the queen of musical comedy in New York 12 years ago, and is now the wife of a multi-millionaire banker. Her theatrical triumphs and her active work in the Salvation Army in New York and London have made her a figure of international interest.

Until her performance of Salvation Joan, Edna May had been seen only once in public since her wealthy husband married her out of "The Belle of New York," and this was at a charity benefit in London, where she appeared as the guest of Queen Mary and her fame and beauty were the attraction for thousands.

Her salary of $100,000 for playing Salvation Joan, the largest ever paid any one for participation in a single feature, will be given to the Red Cross to help it carry on its great work.

"An International Marriage"

"An International Marriage" is an almost every-day newspaper headline. The prominence given the event and the participants shows it is a subject of much interest to the public. What their after-marriage life is like is usually a point of ignorance with most people. The supposition being that they live happy ever after.

The best possible insight into the true conditions—so different from American home life—is in this Morosco-Paramount photoplay, starring Rita Jolivet.

This quality photodrama under the Paramount label, is the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, Saturday, October 14th.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Almighty Dollar"
For the feature attraction to be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, on Monday, Oct. 9th, the management offers the three-star feature made under the supervision of William A. Brady, "The Almighty Dollar." Frances Nelson, E. K. Lincoln and June Elvidge are co-starred in a story of love and adventure directed by Robert Thornby. It's a thrilling five-reeler that will please local photoplay "fans."

"The Eternal Question"

Mme. Petrova, the foremost emotional actress, will be seen at the Colonial, on Wednesday, Oct. 11th, in "The Eternal Question," a gripping five-part Metro production. In this production Mme. Petrova is surrounded by an exceptionally strong cast.

The feature abounds with big and striking scenes, among them an aviator dropping from his aeroplane to the deck of a transatlantic steamship and the subsequent rescue of the aviator and the girl he saved, by the crew of a United States torpedo boat. There are also some interesting situations along Fifth Avenue and on the famous bridge path in Central Park.

"The Footlights of Fate."

A number of remarkable scenes are contained in "The Footlights of Fate," the Blue Ribbon feature to be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday, Oct. 12th. Another view is that of a large theatre lobby in New York City. The interior of the theatre is equally well portrayed. In fact, throughout the entire production, the details have been recognized and worked up in an extraordinary manner.

"The Love Girl"

Ella Hall and Harry Depp will bring delight to votaries of motion pictures when "The Love Girl" is exhibited at the Colonial Theatre on Friday, Oct. 13th, with Miss Hall in the stellar role. Robert Z. Leonard has directed the production and a capable company of Bluebird Photoplays have been cast in congenial roles. Hindu mysticism forms a novel theme of the motive, and Miss Hall and Master Depp cleverly unravel a tangled situation and bring happiness out of impending disaster. There are elements of sensationalism to attract and entertain those who require excitement and for the admirers of good acting and interesting plot, there will be an abundance of good cheer.

BEAVER FALLS TO SEE "FALL OF A NATION"

Manager Goodman of the Colonial Theatre, books Big Attraction for October 16-17.

"The Fall of a Nation," Thomas Dixon's great motion picture spectacle, which deals with the origin and destiny of the Republic, will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on two nights, Monday and Tuesday, October 17-18.

Its peculiar distinction among the great war films is in its imaginative prophecy of America's future against the background of the European struggle and in the full view of all the besetting national problems. The author faces the welter of all the forces working in our national life—liberty foreign ties, peace propaganda, militarism, suffragism, imperialism—and pictures their combination in a world shaking cataclysm. The outcome forms a surprising denouement, in which women assume the leading part in the country's emancipation.

The ten reels were filmed in Los Angeles at an expense of nearly a million dollars and with all the model equipment of modern scientific war fare.

SEASON'S COATS SHOW NOVELTY

Two Distinct Styles Have Been Featured by the Parisian
"Big Houses."

SLEEVES MADE A FEATURE

Decree Is That They Must Be Tight
From the Elbow Down—Directoire and First Empire Effects
Copied—Embroidery Used
in Profusion.

New York. The coats of the season may be roughly summed up in two parts: the short, capelike shapes with sleeves that ripple over the top of a high-waisted, embroidered belt attached to the skirt—these are in the minority, but very smart—and the mantish directoire coat featured by Chanel, Bernier, Douillet, Callot and most of the other big Paris houses.

This latter coat will probably be the shape seen on more than half the women this season. It has a slim top that fits the figure, a small belt that draws attention to itself through button or buckles in front, and an extra tail skirt which convulses around the figure and in which are exploited several of the newest features. They are difficult to describe in detail; the general idea is that the material is brought back and twisted over in many curious ways, as if the designer had been trying out an experiment with the cloth and had pinned it up into pockets, loose straps and revers and then left them all there.

Coat Has Novel Features.

The novelty in the top part of the coat consists in radiating lines from neck to waist by gussets of the same material inserted and corded or stitched at the edges. It is probable that this idea was evolved from what is known as the delta decollete, which was exploited by the Duchess de Vendôme in Paris last winter, but which was never taken up in this country. These gussets inserted from neck to waist make a deep delta effect.

The sleeves are gathered at the top, sometimes made after the genuine leg-of-mutton shape which is not approved by American dressmakers and which has been altered by many of them into a more graceful shape which is buttoned tightly from the knuckles of the hand to just below the elbow, then flaring to the armhole, where its fullness is slight enough to be put into a few well-streaked gathers at the back.

Whatever else sleeves are, they are tight from the elbow down. Cuffs of fur are frequent, but they fit the wrist and flare upward and outward to hold the fullness of the sleeve as it mounts toward the bend of the elbow.

Fur collars are made in this shape, often pointed in front, fitted tightly to the shoulders and flaring upward and outward to the ears. Satin, velvet, jersey and velvet are the choice of materials for these suits.

Inclined to the Directoire.

The prophecies for directoire and first empire styles have come good. There are gowns of dull blue satin that have small jacket effects attached to the skirt, half covered with gray soutache embroidery, which are cut in a straight line just under the bust and then dipped to long points of braiding over the hips.

The street coats that have been described might have been worn in France under the directoire. The three-quarter topcoats, which are the strongest feature of the new fashions, are belted so high under the bust and have such narrow shoulders that they instantly suggest a costume worn by Tosca. The skirts of these coats are full, cling to the figure and are covered with soutache or embroidery. There is a band of fur on the outside of the hem—this is a novelty borrowed from the Russians—and a deeper band on the inside.

Coats of Heavy Blue Satin.

Heavy satin is used as frequently for coats as velvet, and a bright dark blue seems to be the choice of the French designers. Both of them are heaped with fur. Nutria is used, rabbit, brown, gray and white, but not many of the coarse, long-haired peltry. The fur this season must be flat and pliable, so that it can lend itself to all the soft curves of the material.

Bernard has turned out a black satin coat with brown fur that the American dressmakers think will have a long run of popularity. It follows the fashion of last year, in that it has wide, distended openings at the side, exactly below the waist, that are heavily corded at the edges. There is a black gown that goes with this, with a deep renaissance yoke of gold lace, but the majority of women will buy the coat, probably, without the gown.

Miles of Embroidery.

It would be terrifying to have a statistician measure in miles the embroidery used on the new gowns. It would make a new burden for our minds to carry, which are already feeling the burden of this departure in clothes.

If there is one thing that France knows how to do better than any other place in the world, it is needlework. She has called up all her resources in this line today. All her needleworkers are not under the colors, but they are under orders to cover every piece of material that goes out of Paris with the most complicated embroidery.

The designs are drawn from several sources of inspiration. China, Japan and Russia are the nations which are represented. The majority of the designs, however, are reminiscent of the moyen age—those sumptuous and exquisite patterns that were produced from the twelfth to the fifteenth century.

There are bits of embroidery on street suits that look as though they were copied from altar cloths. Entire coats have their surfaces plastered with soutache braiding, which incorporates hundreds of flat disks, wonderfully done.

All Colors Seemingly Used.

Oyster gray soutache is the color chosen for the largest amount of braiding done, and every color is used in the embroidery, as well as every stitch and design that the world has ever produced.

Jet and colored beads are profusely used. A black silk house gown is almost covered with a design in jet.

Metal thread is lavishly employed and usually several metals are combined. One of the most effective evening gowns has its mass of embroidery done in gold, silver, red and blue metal threads.

The blouse illustrated is in biscuit color, with a double collar and cuffs of chiffon edged with narrow bands of brown rabbit. The sash is of brown chiffon, tied at the side and finished with gold fringe.

PLAN CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

Employing Printers Join in Comprehensive Scheme to Standardize Industry.

LARGE SUM TO BE EXPENDED

Competition From Abroad at the Close of the War, It Is Feared, Will Have Bad Effect—Puddlers Get Advance in Wages—General Labor News.

A three-year campaign of education in an effort to unify and standardize the printing business, was planned at the session of the United Typothetae and Franklin clubs of America, in an annual convention at Atlantic City. Plans for the campaign, which, it is estimated, will cost more than $1,000,000, were submitted to Albert W. Finlay of Boston, president of the association. President Finlay's plans provide for enlisting the financial and moral support of the machine manufacturers, type foundries, paper manufacturers and dealers. The movement is also undertaken to minimize the competition which is feared from abroad at the close of the war.

Puddlers employed in mills governed by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tinplate workers will get during the next two months $9.20 a ton, the highest price ever paid ironworkers in the history of the trade. This rate was established for the Western Bar Iron association, and indirectly will result in an increase in wages in mills classed as nonunion.

The increase in wages demanded by the coal miners of Oklahoma was granted at a meeting of the Oklahoma Coal Operators' association. It was the first meeting of the organization since the association withdrew from the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' association in Kansas City.

Between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 wage earners of the 30,000,000 engaged in gainful occupations in the United States work eight hours a day, according to John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, New York city.

General von Bissing, the German governor general of Belgium, recently issued an order making more stringent the laws against Belgian workmen who refuse to work to meet the needs of the army of occupation. Workmen refusing to work are liable to imprisonment from a fortnight to a year; all persons, communes, associations or other groups giving relief to those who refuse to work are liable to a fine of not more than $2,500 and imprisonment for not more than two years.

Before the war women were employed only in the selling departments and as clerks at Krupp's. How the hard work in the cannon factory affects the women is shown by the report of the sick benefit fund for 1915, which gives the number of cases of illness among the woman workers at 75,000 per 100, compared with 62.31 per 100 among the men.

The labor office of Austria, having made an investigation of the extent of lead poisoning in the manufacture of clay and related products, conducted hearings in order to secure the opinions of experts on the subject for the purpose of drafting regulations to secure safety and health in the industry.

A "sleeper" has been discovered in the Ohio law regulating hours of labor for women. The word "clerk" excludes villages and Attorney General Turner rules that the law limiting the hours of woman workers under twenty-one years of age does not apply to mercantile establishments in villages.

In Pennsylvania during the period from January 1 to June 1, 1916, 954 workers were killed and 100,287 injured, and on an average 191 workers were killed every month during the first five months of the year and an average of 20,248 were injured each month.

Representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and employers have agreed that the wages for 1916-17, governing the scales for the holding and finishing division, will be advanced 5 per cent for certain classes of work.

The Electrical Workers' union of Chattanooga, Tenn., has signed a five-year agreement with employers. During the first year rates shall be $3 a day, with an increase of 25 cents per day each year until the amount reaches $4 a day.

Derbyshire (England) school for training in the domestic arts will have to be closed, as nearly all its girl pupils are now engaged in war work.

Most employees in Germany of female labor refuse to recognize the principle of equal pay for equal work. Half a million is a conservative estimate of the number of maid in American industries every year.

England reports a shortage of labor in the munition trades, including engineering and shipbuilding.

The Painters' International union has 957 local unions and a total membership of 81,570.

Birmingham is the only city in England where women are licensed as taxicab drivers.

The Denver (Colo.) Housing Engineers' union has raised wages $1 a day. South Carolina has a legal 12-hour day for street railway employees.

LARGE OUTPUT OF PRINTING

Statistics for Missouri Show Remarkable Growth Has Taken Place Within the Last Decade.

If the volume of business done by publishers and printers of Missouri is any criterion as to the intelligence of its inhabitants, then the fact that the value of the output of 1353 of such establishments was $34,831,050 for the fiscal year which closed June 30, 1916, as compared to the value of $24,412,000 for 1,253 establishments in 1904, shows Missouri has made huge strides in culture and general enlightenment in the last 11 years, a bulletin of the bureau of labor statistics, issued by Commissioner John T. Fitzpatrick, announced. The gain in a little more than a decade is $10,419,050, or nearly 43 per cent. If literacy has advanced throughout the state in proportion in the same period, this commonwealth now must hold high rank in this respect among all states.

At the Fore River Shipbuilding corporation's plant, caps, gloves, handkerchiefs, jumpers, overalls, overshirts, khaki trousers, rubbers, rubber boots, rulers, shirts, soap, stockings, suspenders and sweaters are sold to the workmen at cost. The men may pay cash or have the price of goods deducted from their wages.

Salaries paid by the manufacturing establishments of Wisconsin increased 48 per cent in total amount between 1902 and 1914, according to a statement issued by the United States bureau of the census. Salaries and wages together increased 25.2 per cent. The capital invested in manufacturing in 1914 was $754,287,000, compared with $605,657,000 in 1900.

Since the Pennsylvania state workmen's compensation law became effective on January 1, more than 1,200 children have been spared the humiliation of seeking charity, and with their mothers and other woman relatives have been benefited to the extent of $1,800,000. Besides these benefits, the law has provided official medical attention for nearly 150,000 bread winners who have suffered because of industrial accidents.

Plans for establishing federal labor clearing houses in every state are announced by Commissioner General Cammelt of the Immigration bureau, who directs the federal department of labor's employment service. These state headquarters will work in cooperation with existing state and municipal bodies.

The 1,887 local labor unions in Canada have contributed 11,972 recruits and 439 reservists to the overseas force, according to figures made public recently. The war has affected unions' returns for 1915, which show a loss of 120 local branches and 22,820 members.

The Saturday half-holiday act does not appeal to the Japanese population of Stevenson, Canada. The Japanese Merchants' union there has drafted a resolution and taken action asking that Wednesday half holiday be enforced for six months of the year only.

For the thirty-fourth consecutive term Timothy A. Reardon, president of the board of public works, has been chosen to represent the Steamfitters and Helpers' union as a delegate to the San Francisco Labor council.

Representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men and the Canadian Northern railroad have signed a new schedule which raises wages about 10 per cent and provides for better working conditions.

Operation of mines in the anthracite region grows more difficult daily, due to the scarcity of men. Managers say they fear that the famine of laborers will be worse as winter approaches.

Dunbarton (Scotland) Tramways company has commenced to train female car drivers, and has run its first car with woman driver and woman conductor.

During the first six months of this year the International Molders' union has paid in sick benefits $87,000. This makes a grand total paid in sick benefits since June 1, 1916, of $2,740,101.

Washington State Federation of Labor is in the thick of a fight to repeal the anti-picketing law rushed through the state legislature.

Rochester (N. Y.) Retail Clerks' union is conducting an agitation to close all retail stores at six o'clock on Saturday nights.

BAD HOUSING CAUSES MISERY

New York Tenement Expert Describes Evil Conditions—Living in Small Place Best After All.

The three great scourges of mankind, disease, poverty and crime, are largely due to bad housing, according to John J. Murphy, New York's tenement house commissioner, whose official task it is to study and remedy as far as possible improper housing conditions in New York city. Mr. Murphy, who is the only tenement house commissioner in the United States, recently had published an article on housing conditions, based on his investigations in large centers of population, in which he said:

"There can be no question that the three great scourges of mankind, disease, poverty and crime, are in a large measure due to bad housing, in its broadest sense. Intemperance in many of its most repugnant forms may be traced to the fact that so many citizens are obliged to live in homes in which they can take neither pride nor comfort and which make the saloon seem desirable by contrast.

"Bad housing is especially detrimental in its consequences to the children reared under its influence. In many cases the evil influences of environment can never be eradicated. The need for the erection of institutions for the blind and hospitals for the child victims of tuberculosis, spinal meningitis and other diseases of like character is greatly intensified by bad home conditions. The employee living in a house inadequately lighted and ventilated is unable to perform his task with proper energy and intelligence. Women compelled to live in such houses develop tendencies to irritability, which frequently lead to family disruption.

"Bad housing tends to increase the tax burdens of a community by requiring larger expenditures for remedial service, which might otherwise be eliminated. The lack of proper cleanliness and decency in the exterior and interior of houses tends to reduce the self-respect of the occupants. Note how eagerly the family which has even slightly improved its financial standing seeks buildings with more attractive exteriors and better decorated rooms. It will also be found that as families descend in the social scale one of the pains most keenly felt is the necessity for the occupancy of quarters in buildings whose general appearance indicates that they are occupied by the miserably poor."

WATCH THE PAINTER AT WORK

Poor Economy in Using Shoddy Material and Cheap Labor Where Looks of Home Are Concerned.

In no branch of the building game is poor material and workmanship so common as in exterior painting, says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. The architect's specifications for painting generally set forth that the painting contractor must provide all the materials of every description, including ladders, scaffolding, ropes, brushes, etc., for the proper performance of the work in a substantial and workmanlike manner; all the materials to be of the best of their respective kinds, and all woodwork to be thoroughly cleaned before being painted; all nail holes, joints, cracks and defects in materials to be filled with putty; all jointed work to be sanded smooth before applying the second coat.

The specifications then itemize what work is to be done, and how, as follows: All outside woodwork to be given a certain number of coats of good white lead and linseed oil paint, mixed to correspond with the color selected by the owner on outside blinds or shutters, exterior of sink, window screens, door screens, outside doors, tin and galvanized ironwork, ironwork, roofs and cement work.

The homebuilder should know whether his specifications are rightly drawn and whether they are being followed by the painting contractor.

Undoubtedly the best way of knowing if the work is being rightly done, is to know how to do it.

Wordless Traffic Signs.

Unlettered road signs are being used to regulate motor-car traffic on the driveways of a Fargo, N. D., park. Although they do not give a motorist a single word of instruction or warning, they have served their purposes efficiently. At best, road signs detract more or less from the appearance of a parkway or boulevard, especially when they are literally signboards. While those used in Fargo are only a small improvement in this respect, they hold a good suggestion. One of these signs was recently erected to direct traffic into a new artery branching from an old and much-traveled one. It consists of a white post, at the top of which are two arms, the right one pointing in the direction to be pursued, while the other hangs down. Although this means a reversal of the accustomed direction of travel, from the beginning motorists turned in to the new road without hesitation. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Work for Unemployed Men.

In Town Planning, James F. Crutten tells how a number of unemployed men were put to work last winter cleaning out private alleys, vacant lots and mosquito-breeding places, fashion similar to that used in Chicago during the recent period of industrial depression. The aim was to fix payment on such a basis that a man would continue in the work only as long as he was unable to find other employment.

In every large community insanitary conditions exist on a considerable amount of property belonging to city itself which is unimproved upon and the owners of which are inaccessible or the title of which is in dispute. Thousands of cubic yards of refuse and filth were gathered and lected from vacant lots throughout city. In many cases the lots, after being cleaned, were turned into neighborhood recreation centers, tennis courts and other places of amusement.

MUST NOW REALIZE THEIR MORAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Not Until Then Will the Workers
Understand the Duty They Owe Each Other.

When Workingmen and women realize more fully their moral responsibilities, then, and not until then, can they be made to understand the duty they owe each other, as an exchange.

The honest, sincere worker, be he man or woman, organized or unorganized, will not attempt to perpetuate an outrage on any class of wage-earners who are contending for better or improved working conditions and a living wage, sufficient at least to keep body and soul together and live respectably, when they realize fully their moral responsibility to each other.

Workers Should Stick Together.

Any wage-earner who knowingly assists a corporation to defeat the objects of its employees who are seeking relief from unbearable conditions is encouraging social evil in its worst form, whether he or she so understands it or not, and is, to say the least, placing himself or herself in a position where he will be shunned and despised, not alone by every honest, earnest workman, but by society in general.

Such a one is exacting, if not directly, at least indirectly, blood money from the brow of the toilers, and is more to blame for the shameful and disgraceful conditions of the wage-earners than are the corporations themselves.

Corporations Ungrateful.

We find, too, that special agents in the employ of some corporations are classed as officials by these corporations when the occasion and the necessity therefor suit the convenience of these companies, but not otherwise. Officials are all listed under the head of officials and so classified, and all others not so listed are part and parcel of the vast army of the rank and file.

Only recently our attention had been called to certain ungrateful acts which were perpetrated upon the working girls of one of our large cities who are in the employ of a public service corporation.

Ordered to Act as Strikebreakers.

These girls were ordered to leave their home town for the purpose of taking the places of the girls in another town (who were also residents of that town) who went on strike for better conditions. The girls employed by this company in the first town were sent to the other town to act as strikebreakers and take the places of those who were not only fighting their own battle, but the battle of the strikebreakers also, had they only known it.

These strikebreakers were given free transportation, were housed and fed in a first-class hotel, were placed under a chaperon, with a herder or special agent in charge of all and at the company's expense.

The added expense would more than compensate the employees were it added to the salaries they were receiving, and there would have been no necessity for them to withdraw from the company's service, but through the efforts of one set of employees the company has succeeded for a time at least, in defeating the objects of the energetic workers, but right will in the end prevail and justice will some day come into its own.

Those who have taken part in that lowly undertaking, who have by their every act cooperated with the corporation for the purpose of keeping down the standard of living for all of the seeds of the harvest they have sown.

Women Martyrs to Principle.

Just think of it! Close your eyes for a moment and ask yourself in all sincerity what would have been the attitude of those noble girls whose places you attempted to occupy had the conditions and the circumstances in order that the corporation might sacrifice their womanly principles in order that the corporation might succeed and exact its pound of flesh from an ounce of energy? No, not at all; those noble women and girls have made a reputation for themselves for fair and honest dealing; their names will go down in history as martyrs to the cause in defense of noble, pure and lovely womanhood; theirs is a heritage that neither time nor space can blot out, while the records of those who have allowed themselves to be enslaved by corporations will be preserved only in the minds of those who may have occasion to refer to them when dealing with the great question.

Contempt for Traitors.

The labor movement can only pity those who have so far forgotten themselves and turned traitors to their co-workers; the index finger of contempt will always point towards them, and all advocates of fair dealing will shun and walk around them.

Even their prestige with the corporations will in time be a thing of the past, because they, too, are not anxious to retain in their employ one who has been a traitor to his fellow-workers, because it is to be presumed that a man who will commit an act against his fellow-employees will do the same identical thing against the company he seeks to serve if the conditions warranted it, and such a one cannot be treated or respected by the employer or the employed.

PEARSON'S MAGAZINE ON TRADE UNIONISM

In August of this year Pearson's Magazine featured its first of a series of articles on trade unions. The August story was on the International Association of Machinists. In October appeared the Postal Employees, in November the Street Car Men, and in December we will have the "Typos." When this series of articles is finished—and they are to run a year or more—they will be published in book form under the title "Labor's Struggle for Life and Leisure."

For the information of many union men who have inquired about shop conditions, the union label, etc., I will say that Pearson's is printed in a union shop and is entitled to use the typographical label. So far as I am concerned I can state frankly that I want union support. In arranging for the series of trade union articles I had two things in mind:

First: The series will go a great deal of propaganda good.

Second: It will be the means of getting a great many union men to read the magazine who are not now reading it.

Every intelligent, wide-awake workman in the United States ought to be a reader of Pearson's. Buy a copy of the magazine, read it, and see for yourself.

SEASON'S COATS SHOW NOVELTY

Two Distinct Styles Have Been
Featured by the Parisian
"Big Houses."

SLEEVES MADE A FEATURE

Decorative Is That They Must Be Tight
From the Elbow Down—Directorate
and First Empire Effects
Copied—Embroidery Used
in Profusion.

New York. The coats of the season may be roughly summed up in two parts. The short, capelike shapes with sleeves that ripple over the top of a high waisted, embroidered belt attached to the skirt—these are in the minority, but very smart—and the manish directorate coat featured by Chanel, Bernard, Douillet, Gallot and most of the other big Paris houses.

This latter coat will probably be the shape seen on more than half the women this season. It has a slim top that fits the figure, a small belt that draws attention to itself through buttons or buckles in front, and an extra tail-skirt which convolutes around the figure and in which are exploited several of the newest features. They are difficult to describe in detail; the general idea is that the material is brought back and twisted over in many various ways, as if the designer had been trying out an experiment with the cloth and had pinned it up into pockets, loose straps and revers and then left them all there.

Coat Has Novel Features.

The novelty in the top part of the coat consists in radiating lines from neck to waist by gussets of the same material inserted and corded or stitched at the edges. It is probable that this idea was evolved from what is known as the delta decollete, which was exploited by the Duchess de Vendome in Paris last winter, but which was never taken up in this country. These gussets inserted from neck to waist make a deep delta effect.

The sleeves are gathered at the top, sometimes made after the genuine top button shape which is not approved by American dressmakers and which has been altered by many of them into a more graceful shape which is buttoned tightly from the shoulders of the hand to just below the elbow, then flaring to the armhole, where its fullness is slight enough to be put into a few well-streaked gathers at the back.

Whatever else sleeves are, they are tight from the elbow down. Cuffs of fur are frequent, but they fit the wrist and flare upward and outward to hold the fullness of the sleeve as it mounts toward the bend of the elbow.

Fur collars are made in this shape, often pointed in front, fitted tightly to the shoulders and flaring upward and outward to the ears. Satin, velvet, jersey and velvet are the choice of materials for these suits.

Inclined to the Directorate.

The prophecies for directorate and first empire styles have come good. There are gowns of dull blue satin that have small jacket effects attached to the skirt, half covered with gray soutache embroidery, which are cut in a straight line just under the bust and then dipped to long points of braiding over the hips.

The street coats that have been described might have been worn in France under the directorate. The three-quarter topcoats, which are the strongest feature of the new fashions, are belted so high under the bust and have such narrow shoulders that they instantly suggest a costume worn by Tosca. The skirts of these coats are full, cling to the figure and are covered with soutache or embroidery. There is a band of fur on the outside of the hem—this is a novelty borrowed from the Russians—and a deeper band on the inside.

Coats of Heavy Blue Satin.

Heavy satin is used as frequently for coats as velvet, and a bright dark blue seems to be the choice of the French designers. Both of them are heaped with fur. Nutria is used, rabbit, brown, gray and white, but not many of the coarse, long-haired peltry. The fur this season must be flat and pliable, so that it can lend itself to all the soft curves of the material.

Bernard has turned out a black satin coat with brown fur that the American dressmakers think will have a long run of popularity. It follows the fashion of last year, in that it has wide, distended openings at the side, exactly below the waist, that are heavily corded at the edges. There is a black gown that goes with this, with a deep renaissance yoke of gold lace, but the majority of women will buy the coat, probably, without the gown.

Miles of Embroidery.

It would be terrifying to have a statistician measure in miles the embroidery used on the new gowns. It would make a new burden for our minds to carry, which are already feeling the burden of this departure in clothes.

If there is one thing that France knows how to do better than any other place in the world, it is needlework. She has called up all her resources in this line today. All her needleworkers are not under the colors, but they are under orders to cover every piece of material that goes out of Paris with the most complicated embroidery.

The designs are drawn from several sources of inspiration. China, Japan and Russia are the nations which are represented. The majority of the designs, however, are reminiscent of the moyen age—those sumptuous and exquisite patterns that were produced from the twelfth to the fifteenth century.

There are bits of embroidery on street suits that look as though they were copied from altar cloths. Entire coats have their surfaces plastered with soutache braiding, which incorporate hundreds of flat disks, wonderfully done.

All Colors Seemingly Used.

Oyster gray soutache is the color chosen for the largest amount of braiding done, and every color is used in the embroidery, as well as every stitch and design that the world has ever produced.

Jet and colored beads are profusely used. A black silk house gown is almost covered with a design in jet.

Metal thread is lavishly employed and usually several metals are combined. One of the most effective evening gowns has its mass of embroidery done in gold, silver, red and blue metal threads.

The blouse illustrated is in biscuit color, with a double collar and cuffs of chiffon edged with narrow bands of brown rabbit. The skirt is of brown chiffon, tied at the side and finished with gold fringe.

PLAN CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

Employing Printers Join in Comprehensive Scheme to Standardize Industry.

LARGE SUM TO BE EXPENDED

Competition From Abroad at the Close of the War, It Is Feared, Will Have Bad Effect—Puddlers Get Advance in Wages—General Labor News.

A three-year campaign of education in the effort to unify and standardize the printing business, was planned at the session of the United Typothetae and Franklin clubs of America, in annual convention at Atlantic City. Plans for the campaign, which, it is estimated, will cost more than $1,000,000, were submitted to Albert W. Finlay of Boston, president of the association. President Finlay's plans provide for enlisting the financial and moral supports of the machine manufacturers, type foundries, paper manufacturers and dealers. The movement is also undertaken to minimize the competition which is feared from abroad at the close of the war.

Puddlers employed in mills governed by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tinplate workers will get during the next two months $9.30 a ton, the highest price ever paid ironworkers in the history of the trade. This rate was established for the Western Bar Iron association, and indirectly will result in an increase in wages in mills classed as nonunion.

The increase in wages demanded by the coal miners of Oklahoma was granted at a meeting of the Oklahoma Coal Operators' association. It was the first meeting of the organization since the association withdrew from the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' association in Kansas City.

Between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 wage earners of the 30,000,000 engaged in gainful occupations in the United States work eight hours a day, according to John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, New York city.

General von Bissing, the German governor general of Belgium, recently issued an order making more stringent the laws against Belgian workmen who refuse to work to meet the needs of the army of occupation. Workmen refusing to work are liable to imprisonment from a fortnight to a year; all persons, communes, associations or other groups giving relief to those who refuse to work are liable to a fine of not more than $2,500 and imprisonment for not more than two years.

Before the war women were employed only in the selling departments and as cleaners at Krupp's. How the hard work in the munition factory affects the women is shown by the report of the sick benefit fund for 1915, which gives the number of cases of illness among the women workers at 70.00 per 100, compared with 62.31 per 100 among the men.

The labor office of Austria, having made an investigation of the extent of lead poisoning in the manufacture of lead and related products, conducted hearings in order to secure the opinions of experts on the subject for the purpose of drafting regulations to secure safety and health in the industry.

A "sleeper" has been discovered in the Ohio law regulating hours of labor for women. The word "cities" excludes villages and Attorney General Turner rules that the law limiting the hours of woman workers under twenty-one years of age does not apply to mercantile establishments in villages.

In Pennsylvania during the period from January 1 to June 1, 1916, 954 workers were killed and 100,287 injured, and on an average 191 workers were killed every month during the first five months of the year and an average of 20,248 were injured each month.

Representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and employers have agreed that the wages for 1916-17, governing the scales for the boiling and finishing division, will be advanced 5 per cent for certain classes of work.

The Electrical Workers' union of Chattanooga, Tenn., has signed a five-year agreement with employers. During the first year rates shall be $3 a day, with an increase of 25 cents per day each year until the amount reaches $4 a day.

Derbyshire (England) school for training in the domestic arts will have to be closed, as nearly all its girl pupils are now engaged in war work.

Most employers in Germany of female labor refuse to recognize the principle of equal pay for equal work. Half a million is a conservative estimate of the number of maidens in American industries every year.

England reports a shortage of labor in the munition trades, including engineering and shipbuilding.

The Painters' International union has 957 local unions and a total membership of 81,579. Birmingham is the only city in England where women are licensed as taxi-drivers.

The Denver (Colo.) Heating Engineers' union has raised wages $1 a day. South Carolina has a legal 24-hour day for street railway employees.

LARGE OUTPUT OF PRINTING

Statistics for Missouri Show Remarkable Growth Has Taken Place Within the Last Decade.

If the volume of business done by publishers and printers of Missouri is any criterion as to the intelligence of its inhabitants, then the fact that the value of the output of 1933 of such establishments was $34,831,050 for the fiscal year which closed June 30, 1910, as compared to the value of $24,412,000 for 1253 establishments in 1904, shows Missouri has made huge strides in culture and general enlightenment in the last 11 years, a bulletin of the bureau of labor statistics, issued by Commissioner John T. Fitzpatrick, announced. The gain in a little more than a decade is $10,419,050, or nearly 43 per cent. If literacy has advanced throughout the state in proportion in the same period, this commonwealth now must hold high rank in this respect among all states.

At the Fore River Shipbuilding corporation's plant, caps, gloves, handkerchiefs, jumpers, overalls, overshoes, khaki trousers, rubbers, rubber boots, rulers, shirts, soap, stockings, suspenders and sweaters are sold to the workmen at cost. The men may pay cash or have the price of goods deducted from their wages.

Salaries paid by the manufacturing establishments of Wisconsin increased 45 per cent in total amount between 1903 and 1914, according to a statement issued by the United States bureau of the census. Salaries and wages together increased 25.2 per cent. The capital invested in manufacturing in 1914 was $754,287,000, compared with $365,657,000 in 1900.

Since the Pennsylvania state workmen's compensation law became effective on January 1, more than 1,200 children have been spared the humiliation of seeking charity, and with their mothers and other woman relatives have been benefited to the extent of $3,800,000. Besides these benefits the law has provided official medical attention for nearly 150,000 bread winners who have suffered because of industrial accidents.

Plans for establishing federal labor clearing houses in every state are announced by Commissioner General Carmichael of the Immigration bureau, who directs the federal department of labor's employment service. These state headquarters will work in co-operation with existing state and municipal bodies.

The 1,887 local labor unions in Canada have contributed 11,972 recruits and 430 reservists to the overseas force, according to figures made public recently. The war has affected unions' returns for 1915, which show a loss of 120 local branches and 22,820 members.

The Saturday half-holiday act does not appeal to the Japanese population of Stevenson, Canada. The Japanese Merchants' union there has drafted a resolution and taken action asking that Wednesday half holiday be enforced for six months of the year only.

For the thirty-fourth consecutive term Timothy A. Reardon, president of the board of public works, has been chosen to represent the Steamfitters and Helpers' union as a delegate to the San Francisco Labor council.

Representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men and the Canadian Northern railroad have signed a new schedule which raises wages about 10 per cent and provides for better working conditions.

Operation of mines in the anthracite region grows more difficult daily, due to the scarcity of men. Managers say they fear that the famine of laborers will be worse as winter approaches.

Dumbarton (Scotland) Tramways company has commenced to train female car drivers, and has run its first car with woman driver and woman conductor.

During the first six months of this year the International Molders' union has paid in sick benefits $87,400. This makes a grand total paid in sick benefits since June 1, 1896, of $2,740,101.

Washington State Federation of Labor is in the thick of a fight to repeal the Mullocke law rushed through the state legislature.

Rochester (N. Y.) Retail Clerks' union is conducting an agitation to close all retail stores at six o'clock on Saturday nights.

Notts (England) education committee has decided to embark upon a large scheme for the training of women for farm work.

An agreement between the Canadian Northern and the employees of the federated trades of the system has been signed.

Germany is calling to arms miners and surface workers as well as others connected with the Westphalia collieries.

Carpenters in the employ of the Canadian government on the old and new Welland canals demand higher wages.

Scottish miners are asking for an advance of 24 cents a day in view of the increased price obtained for coal.

Of 14,121,035 engaged in agriculture in Austria-Hungary almost 6,000,000 are women.

The Virginia Federation of Labor will demand free schoolbooks for children.

The Frisco Milkmen's union will secure an eight-hour day January 1, 1917.

Street railway employees of Montreal and Quebec, Canada, will organize.

Nearly half of our woman workers in factories earn less than $5 a week. The British National Union of Railwaymen has over 200,000 members.

HOME TOWN HELPS

BAD HOUSING CAUSES MISERY

New York Tenement Expert Describes Evil Conditions—Living in Small Place Best After All.

The three great scourges of mankind, disease, poverty and crime, are largely due to bad housing, according to John J. Murphy, New York's tenement house commissioner, whose official task it is to study and remedy as far as possible improper housing conditions in New York city. Mr. Murphy, who is the only tenement house commissioner in the United States, recently had published an article on housing conditions, based on his investigations in large centers of population, in which he said:

"There can be no question that the three great scourges of mankind, disease, poverty and crime, are in a large measure due to bad housing. In its broadest sense, intemperance in many of its most repugnant forms may be traced to the fact that so many citizens are obliged to live in homes in which they can take neither pride nor comfort and which make the saloon seem desirable by contrast.

"Bad housing is especially detrimental in its consequences to the child reared under its influence. In many cases the evil influences of environment can never be eradicated. The need for the erection of institutions for the blind and hospitals for the child victims of tuberculosis, spinal meningitis and other diseases of like character is greatly intensified by bad home conditions. The employee living in a house inadequately lighted and ventilated is unable to perform his task with proper energy and intelligence. Women compelled to live in such houses develop tendencies to irritability, which frequently lead to family disruption.

"Bad housing tends to increase the tax burdens of a community by requiring larger expenditures for remedial service, which might otherwise be eliminated. The lack of proper cleanliness and decency in the exterior and interior of houses tends to reduce the respect of the occupants. Note how eagerly the family which has even slightly improved its financial standing seeks buildings with more attractive exteriors and better decorated rooms. It will also be found that as families descend in the social scale one of the pang most keenly felt is the necessity for the occupancy of quarters in buildings whose general appearance indicates that they are occupied by the miserably poor."

WATCH THE PAINTER AT WORK

Poor Economy in Using Shoddy Material and Cheap Labor Where Looks of Home Are Concerned.

In no branch of the building game is poor material and workmanship so common as in exterior painting, says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. The architects' specifications for painting generally set forth that the painting contractor must provide all the materials of every description, including ladders, scaffolding, ropes, brushes, etc., for the proper performance of the work in a substantial and workmanlike manner; all the materials to be of the best of their respective kinds, and all woodwork to be thoroughly cleaned before being painted; all nail holes, joints, cracks and defects in materials to be filled with putty; all jointed work to be sanded smooth before applying the second coat.

The specifications then itemize what work is to be done, and how, as follows: "All outside woodwork to be given a certain number of coats of good white lead and linseed oil paint, mixed to correspond with the color selected by the owner on outside blinds or shutters, exterior of sash, window screens, door screens, outside doors, tin and galvanized ironwork, ironwork, roofs and cement work.

The homebuilder should know whether his specifications are rightly drawn and whether they are being followed by the painting contractor.

Undoubtedly the best way of knowing if the work is being rightly done, is to know how to do it.

Wordless Traffic Signs.

Unlettered road signs are being used to regulate motor-car traffic on the driveways of a Fargo, N. D., park. Although they do not give a motorist a single word of instruction or warning, they have served their purposes efficiently. At best, road signs detract more or less from the appearance of a parkway or boulevard, especially when they are literally signboards. While those used in Fargo are only a small improvement in this respect, they hold a good suggestion. One of these signs was recently erected to direct traffic into a new artery branching from an old and much-traveled one. It consists of a white post, at the top of which are two arms, the right one pointing in the direction to be pursued, while the other hangs down. Although this means a reversal of the accustomed direction of travel, from the beginning motorists turned in to the new road without hesitation. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Thousands Tell It

Why daily along with backache and kidney or bladder troubles? Thousands tell you how to find relief. Here's a case to guide you. And it's only one of thousands. Forty thousand American people are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills. Surely it is worth the while of any one who has a bad back, who feels tired, nervous and run-down, who endures distressing urinary disorders, to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

A Pennsylvania Case

Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, 225 W. Fifth St., Chester, Pa., says: "My health broke down, as the result of kidney trouble and I was in misery. My back ached constantly and I had splitting headaches, along with dizzy spells. I couldn't rest a night and mornings I was nervous and unstrung. My feet and hands swelled and my appetite was poor. When I had almost given up hope, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored me to good health."

Work for Unemployed Men.

In Town Planning, James F. McCrudden tells how a number of unemployed men were put to work last winter cleaning out private alleys, vacant lots and mosquito-breeding places in fashion similar to that used in Chicago during the recent period of industrial depression. The aim was to fix payment on such a basis that a man would continue in the work only as long as he was unable to find other employment.

In every large community insanitary conditions exist on a considerable amount of property belonging to the city itself which is unimproved and upon land the owners of which are inaccessible or the title of which is in dispute. Thousands of cubic yards of refuse and filth were gathered and collected from vacant lots throughout the city. In many cases the lots, after being cleaned, were turned into neighborhood recreation centers, tennis courts and other places of amusement.

MUST NOW REALIZE THEIR MORAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Not Until Then Will the Workers
Understand the Duty They Owe Each Other.

When Workingmen and women realize more fully their moral responsibilities, then, and not until then, can they be made to understand the duty they owe each other, as an exchange.

The honest, sincere worker, be he man or woman, organized or unorganized, will not attempt to perpetuate an outrage on any class of wage-earners who are contending for better or improved working conditions and a living wage, sufficient at least to keep body and soul together and live respectably, when they realize fully their moral responsibility to each other.

Workers Should Stick Together.

Any wage-earner who knowingly assists a corporation to defeat the objects of its employees who are seeking relief from unbearable conditions is encouraging social evil in its worst form, whether he or she so understands it or not, and is, to say the least, placing himself or herself in a position where he will be shunned and despised, not alone by every honest, earnest workman, but by society in general.

Such a one is exacting, if not directly, at least indirectly, blood money from the brow of the toilers, and is more to blame for the shameful and disgraceful conditions of the wage-earners than are the corporations themselves.

Corporations Ungrateful.

We find, too, that special agents in the employ of some corporations are classed as officials by these corporations when the occasion and the necessity therefor suit the convenience of these companies, but not otherwise. Officials are all listed under the head of officials and so classified, and all others not so listed are part and parcel of the vast army of the rank and file.

Only recently our attention had been called to certain ungrateful acts which were perpetrated upon the working girls of one of our large cities who are in the employ of a public service corporation.

Ordered to Act as Strikebreakers.

These girls were ordered to leave their home town for the purpose of taking the places of the girls in another town (who were also residents of that town) who went on strike for better conditions. The girls employed by this company in the first town were sent to the other town to act as strikebreakers and take the places of those who were not only fighting their own battle, but the battle of the strikebreakers also, had they only known it.

These strikebreakers were given free transportation, were housed and fed in a first-class hotel, were placed under a chaperon, with a herder or special agent in charge of all and at the company's expense.

The added expense would more than compensate the employees were it added to the salaries they were receiving, and there would have been no necessity for them to withdraw from the company's service, but through the efforts of one set of employees the company has succeeded for a time at least, in defeating the objects of the energetic workers, but right will in the end prevail and justice will some day come into its own.

Those who have taken part in that lowly undertaking, who have by their every act cooperated with the corporation for the purpose of keeping down the standard of living for all of the seeds of the harvest they have sown.

Women Martyrs to Principle.

Just think of it! Close your eyes for a moment and ask yourself in all sincerity what would have been the attitude of those noble girls whose places you attempted to occupy had the conditions and the circumstances in order that the corporation might sacrifice their womanly principles in order that the corporation might succeed and exact its pound of flesh from an ounce of energy? No, not at all; those noble women and girls have made a reputation for themselves for fair and honest dealing; their names will go down in history as martyrs to the cause in defense of noble, pure and lovely womanhood; theirs is a heritage that neither time nor space can blot out, while the records of those who have allowed themselves to be enslaved by corporations will be preserved only in the minds of those who may have occasion to refer to them when dealing with the great question:

Contempt for Traitors.

The labor movement can only pity those who have so far forgotten themselves and turned traitors to their co-workers; the index finger of contempt will always point towards them, and all advocates of fair dealing will shun and walk around them.

Even their prestige with the corporations will in time be a thing of the past, because they, too, are not anxious to retain in their employ one who has been a traitor to his fellow-workers, because it is to be presumed that a man who will commit an act against his fellow-employees will do the same identical thing against the company he seeks to serve if the conditions warranted it, and such a one cannot be treated or respected by the employer or the employed.

PEARSON'S MAGAZINE ON TRADE UNIONISM

In August of this year Pearson's Magazine featured its first of a series of articles on trade unions. The August story was on the International Association of Machinists. In October appeared the Street Car Men, and in December we will have the "Typos." When this series of articles is finished—and they are to run a year or more—they will be published in book form under the title "Labor's Struggle for Life and Leisure."

For the information of many union men who have inquired about shop conditions, the union label, etc., I will say that Pearson's is printed in a union shop and is entitled to use the typographical label. So far as I am concerned I can state frankly that I want union support. In arranging for the series of trade union articles I had two things in mind:

First: The series will go a great deal of propaganda good.

Second: It will be the means of getting a great many union men to read the magazine who are not now reading it.

Every intelligent, wide-awake working man in the United States ought to be a reader of Pearson's. Buy a copy of the magazine, read it, and see for yourself.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

WHAT THE PRESIDENT ACTUALLY DID TO AVERT STRIKE DISASTER

Before I consulted with them (the railway executives and the representatives of the employees) I made myself acquainted with the points at controversy.

The first thing I told both sides was that I stood for the eight-hour day. We believe in the eight-hour day because a man does better work within eight hours than he does in a more extended day. I said to the railroad executives: "You are asking that the result of the eight-hour day be predicted and the prediction be arbitrated. The reasonable thing to do is to grant the eight-hour day not because the men demand it, but because it is right and let me get authority from Congress to appoint a commission to observe the results and report in order that justice may be done the railroads in respect of the cost of the experiment."

That was the proposal which they rejected and which Congress put into law, a proposal which I made to them before I conferred with it, which I urged upon them at every conference, and which when the one side rejected and the other accepted I went to Congress and asked Congress to enact. I did not ask either side whether it suited them, and I requested my friends in Congress not to ask either side whether it suited them. I learned before the controversy began that the whole temper of the legislative body was in favor of the eight-hour day.

In the House of Representatives the plan was passed, was sanctioned, by a vote which included seventy Republicans as against fifty-four Republicans. In the Senate the Republican members held a conference in which they determined to put no obstacle in the way of the passage of the bill. Now, this was because the proposal was reasonable and was based upon right.—From President Wilson's speech to New Jersey business men at Shadow Lawn, N. J., Sept. 23.

EIGHT-HOUR ATTACK IGNOBLE, SAYS OLNEY

Hughes "Hadn't the Nerve" to Demand Filibuster in the Senate Against the Law.

WILSON'S ACT COURAGEDUS

Member of Cleveland's Cabinet Praised President's Domestic Achievements and Policy of Averting War.

No American can speak with higher authority on the issues of this campaign than Richard Olney, who was President Cleveland's Attorney General during the railroad strike of 1894, and President Cleveland's Secretary of State when the Venezuelan message was sent to the British Government. He should know whether President Wilson's action in averting the railroad strike was a "surrender to force"; whether the Wilson foreign policy has been "timid and vacillating."

Mr. Olney seeks no political preferment; his interest is that of a retired statesman, of a wise, experienced, dispassionate patriot, who is concerned only with the welfare of his country.

Mr. Olney has written for the New York World a signed article in which he warns the American people against the danger sure to result from turning over their affairs to Mr. Hughes and the interests which would dictate his policies, foreign and domestic.

Where Was Hughes' Nerve?

Discussing the passage of the Adamson eight-hour law, Mr. Olney points out that the Republicans of the Senate, if they had really wished more time for consideration of the bill, could have obtained it by means of a filibuster, as a recognized Senatorial weapon, and adds:

"Why did not the Republican Senators resort to it and get all the time for deliberation they wanted? What was Candidate Hughes doing that he did not make the wisest use of his messages to Washington—warning against the law the seventy-four Republican Representatives who voted for it and urging the twenty-eight Republican Senators to filibuster to the last ditch?"

"But neither he nor the Republican leaders generally had the nerve to face the situation. With ample means in their hands to prevent legislation until after its due consideration, they deliberately elected that it should appear to be enacted under coercion in order that, after the great national deliverance had been effected, they might object to the mode of its accomplishment."

"A pettier and more ignoble game of politics never was conceived. In comparison, and in view of the sudden and extraordinary exigency sprung upon the country, President Wilson's course was characterized by both courage and common sense."

Of Candidate Hughes' conduct in the campaign, Mr. Olney remarks:

"No sooner was the nomination assured than the robes and ermine of the Judge fell from the candidate as if by magic, and there appeared in their place the motley wear of the ordinary office seeker—a transformation as sudden as that made by the wand of Harlequin in the pantomime, and a transformation showing how thin is the judicial veneer, and for ever discrediting the United States Supreme Court as a training camp for high political office."

PRESIDENT UNITED MINE WORKERS FOR WILSON

Tells Wage Earners They Should Look With Fear on Success of Hughes.

CONCURRED AGAINST DANBURY HATTERS

The following statement, made recently by John P. White, President of the United Mine Workers, will prove interesting reading to Labor News patrons, in view of the approaching election.

As president of the largest labor organization in the world—the United Mine Workers with 400,000 members—Mr. White has given a statement pointing out the rights of the working man are at stake in this campaign and will be endangered by the election of Hughes.

Mr. White tells why wage earners should look with grave fears on the success of the Republican candidate. It is a significant and remarkable statement that should be read by every man interested in the welfare of working men and women. He says:

"For every working man and woman, the paramount issue in this campaign is the right of wage earners to organize and act together for their own protection and advancement.

"Every big corporation and labor exploiter in the country, intent on defeating organization and keeping their workers divided and dependent on the election of Hughes. They know that he concurred in the Danbury Hatters' decision, and they count on him to repeat his performance whenever the issue of the right to organize comes before him.

"The Clayton act establishes the freedom of labor so far as it can be established by Congress. But the fight has only begun. Both Mr. Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt have shown that they are not in sympathy with the purposes of that act. Mr. Roosevelt while President, violently assailed a similar measure and the labor men who sponsored it. He could not tolerate any limitation on the power of judges to send men to jail for long terms, without trials, for striking and thus interfering with the 'right' of an unfair employer to do business.

"Recently the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has handed down a decision at St. Paul intimating that in the belief of these judges a strike may be a conspiracy in restraint of trade, regardless of the Clayton act. The United States Supreme Court has yet to pass on labor's bill of rights, and there was never a time when labor had greater need of public officials at Washington, who will give more than lip service to the ideals of freedom and democracy.

"When Confidential Agent Bowers, in charge of the Rockefeller mining interest in Colorado, wrote his chief in 1913: 'Now for 1916 and the campaign for the open shop,' he foresaw what has come to pass. From New York to San Francisco the powerful hostile interests to labor's emancipation have marshalled their forces for a smashing drive, on both the industrial and the political field, against the right of wage earners to organize.

"Under the circumstances, with the issue clearly and sharply drawn, the wage earner who does not see his duty clear before him, must be blind indeed both to his own interests and to the interests of human freedom."

AN OVERSIGHT

Through an oversight the advertisement of John P. Thompson, Beaver Falls clothing and gent's furnisher, was left out of the Labor Day edition of The Labor News. Mr. Thompson numbers among his customers a great many union men and in justice to him this item is published. For some time Mr. Thompson has been a steady advertiser and enjoys the reputation among union men throughout the valley of being a firm friend of organized labor.

Twenty-five hundred coal miners of the Butler Mercer field have been granted an increase aggregating ten per cent.

TO INVESTIGATE CASSACKS.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—The state police is to be investigated as a result of the riot in this city on the night of September 11, when these cassacks rode down Wilkes-Barre citizens. Brutality charges have been laid before Governor Brumbaugh by President Maurer of the state federation of labor.

UNION 36, A. F. C. W. U. INSTALLS OFFICERS

There was a good attendance of members, and considerable routine business disposed of.

"THE FALL OF THE OPPRESSOR" FILM

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Written by George A. Howe, Produced By Beaver Valley Film Co.

Reel No. 1

"Worthy Master and Brothers, this is probably the greatest day of my life, it certainly does my heart good to be among you. I have lived in hopes for the past year that this day would come and that I would be a member of this grand and glorious organization (applause by the members). I have watched with profound interest the progress you and your union have made with reference to building up a strong and substantial organization. I have been in the year overcome with grief and my heart has bled with remorse when I saw good men, members of this organization, discharged for trivial things, and often I have said to myself how much I would like to be on your grievance committee, so that I could tell that Hollowhead a thing or two (great applause by the members). Why, do you know, if I were on your grievance committee, I would take that Hollowhead by the neck and I'd choke a whole lot of sense down his throat (long and loud applause by the members). He would hand me the same like he does some of the committeemen—no sense at all. I'd soon give him to understand who I was. Now, I don't intend to say anything when I get up, except to express my appreciation at being a member of this organization, but when I think of the poor boob on the committee and think of the good men who have been discharged, really it makes my blood boil, and if ever you want a GOOD man on the committee, why, I would be glad to serve you. It's not that I want the job, but I know that you are justly entitled to a better committeeman than you have been having. There is one more thing that I wish to call your attention to before I quit, and that is—I have noticed some of the members of this organization are afraid to wear their Brotherhood pins on their coats. Why, as soon as I was notified that I had been elected a member of this union, I went and bought this pin (taking a pin from his pocket, he shows it to the members) and I am going to wear it and I don't care who sees it (great applause by the members). That's me, Brothers, and I thank you."

As soon as the applauding ceased, there were about a dozen members who wanted to speak, and the Worthy Master recognized Brother G. L. Hopper, who arose and said: "Worthy Master and brothers—that's the way I like to hear a brother talk; a fellow that's not afraid, and as this Brother is such a daredevil, I am going to suggest that from now on we call him 'Daredevil Mike' because he sure is a 'Hard Man' (great applause by the members)."

The lodge closed with a new spirit that night and at next meeting is to be election of officers, it is needless to say that "Daredevil Mike" is being considered for the grievance committee.

The scene changes. It is the Village of Conway in the year 1895. It consists principally of farm land and farmers, but away down in the left-hand corner the Pennsylvania had laid a few tracks and called it a yard, but you couldn't see it for corn fields. However, we see a freight train going past and out of an empty stock car jumped two coal diggers, i. e., they were supposed to be coal diggers because they were from Burgettstown, and the way the little fellows got off the car proved that they knew very little about the railroad, as John was heard to say: "Did you get hurt, Tommy?" Tommy, in waiting for his wind to come back, felt all his bones to make sure that he wouldn't tell a lie, and then said: "I guess not." In telling this, it is not intended to humiliate Tommy, but to show the beginning of John, in Conway, because he later became Sheriff, and is an important factor in "The Fall of the Oppressor."

Going back to the Village of Conway—we see the Old Wayside Inn, the General Merchandise store, and the barber shop—it is absolutely necessary to mention the barber shop, because it is at this shop that Hanson Howard, as a boy, starts his career

REEL NO. 2.

It is election of officers at the meeting of Good Will Lodge. Daredevil Mike has on a new suit and is all shaved up slick and clean, and he must have had 20 cents' worth of tobacco in his pocket, the way he gave them away. The lodge proceeded with its business down to election of officers and Daredevil Mike and J. B. King were nominated for the position of chairman of the grievance committee. The tellers are ready to count the vote.

BEAVER FALLS TO SEE "FALL OF A NATION"

Manager Goodman of the Colonial Theatre, Books Big Attraction for October 16-17.

"The Fall of a Nation," Thomas Dixon's great motion picture spectacle, which deals with the origin and destiny of the Republic, will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on two nights, Monday and Tuesday, October 17-18.

Its peculiar distinction among the great war films is in its imaginative prophecy of America's future against the background of the European struggle and in the full view of all the besting national problems. The author faces the welter of all the forces working in our national life—liberty, foreign ties, peace propaganda, militarism, suffragism, imperialism—and pictures their combination in a world shaking cataclysm. The outcome forms a surprising denouement, in which women assume the leading part in the country's emancipation.

The ten reels were filmed in Los Angeles at an expense of nearly a million dollars and with all the model equipment of modern scientific war

The Canadian Trades and Labor Congress has gone on record as being opposed to the Lemieux act, passed in 1907. They claim this industrial disputes investigation law is so elastic that the employer can always escape its provisions and that employees are tied to their jobs and employers can use the thirty days' time allowed before a strike can be called under the law to defeat their demands.

Must Recharter All Suspended Unions and Create a New District Council.

NUMBER OF LOCALS IS LIMITED TO TWENTY-FIVE

Discipline, cold and hard, was used by the convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners against 61 local unions of that craft in Greater New York, who were found guilty of violating the laws of the Brotherhood, of insubordination to legally constituted authority and of securing an injunction against the officers of the Brotherhood, which debarred them from carrying out the constitution in New York City.

The convention dates from last May when these locals, through the New York Carpenters' District Council, ordered a strike to increase wages. Later President Hutchison, of the Brotherhood, secured a settlement, under authority granted him by the constitution, and which was rejected by the strikers, and who later secured an injunction against this official and associates. The suspended carpenters sent a large delegation to the biennial convention in this city to plead their case, which was considered by a committee elected by the convention.

This committee found that on April 20 General Secretary structed him to notify them that no agreement was reached before May 1, "our members must not be called on strike until the general president (Hutchison) has an opportunity, through a representative, to bring about a settlement."

This letter was not read in the New York Carpenters' District Council until May 8, eight days after the strike occurred, and 18 days after it had been forwarded from the general office at Indianapolis.

The committee's recommendations, which were concurred in by the convention, included an immediate withdrawal by the New York carpenters of all injunction proceedings and the rechartering of the suspended locals by the Brotherhood and the creation of a new District Council under supervision of the Brotherhood's executive board. The recommendations also provided that the number of locals in New York City should not exceed twenty-five.

BEAVER HAS SET-TO WITH POLLY PARROT

Chesterfield Has Nothing on "Joe" When it Comes to Gallantry

It was another occasion of a man having laid his patience on some place and forgetting just where he put it. So it happened to Joe Beaver, a member of the Electrical Workers, one day during the past week. It seems that Joe had just returned home in this particular day, when a neighbor lady called to him, saying:

"Mr. Beaver, my parrot has gotten out and is up in that tree, how will I ever get it down?"

Joe, with his customary gallantry offered his services, and was soon shinning up the tree after Mr. Parrot. Just as Joe was preparing to lay to and capture the prize, the bird took up its quarters in an adjoining tree, and the job was to do all over again.

This second attempt, however, was more successful than the first, and when the crucial moment arrived, Joe grabbed the bird and the bird grabbed Joe—just below the first joint of his thumb—and, believe us, it was some hold that bird took. Finally he persuaded it to let go, and with one hand "lovingly" clutching the parrot around the neck and the other assisting him in his efforts, he again reached terra firma; the parrot meanwhile making frantic efforts to connect Joe's arm with its claws.

With about all his reserve supply of evil thoughts exhausted, Beaver "tenderly" put the bird in its cage and meandered home to dress his wounds, swearing "Never again, for anybody's parrot."

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry on Dieting

I WAS complaining to some of my friends in the Club the other evening because a germ General Villa was storming the outposts of my digestive tract when a Nut in the party began to slip me a line of talk about a vegetable diet.

I didn't fall for it until he proved, to me that Kid Methuselah had prolonged an otherwise uneventful life and was enabled to make funny faces at the undertakers until he reached the age of 969 simply because he ate nothing but dandelion salad, mashed potatoes and stewed prunes.

Then I went home and told friend wife about it. She approved eagerly because she felt that it might solve the servant problem.

Since we started housekeeping about eight months ago we've averaged two cooks a week. Tuesdays and Fridays are our days for changing chefs. The old cook leaves Monday evening and the new cook arrives Tuesday morning. Then the new cook leaves on Thursday evening and the newest cook arrives on Friday, and so on, world without end.

Friend wife decided she could dip a few parsnips in boiling water without the aid of a European kitchen mechanic.

Vegetarians! What a great idea! Now she could get out into the sunlight once in a while instead of standing forever at the hall door as a perpetual reception committee to frowny-headed Slavonian exiles demanding $35 per and nix on the washing.

But it was Friday and our latest cook was at that moment annoying the gas range in the kitchen, so why not experiment and find out what merit there is in a vegetarian menu?

The eyes have it—send for the Duchess of Dishwater.

Enter the Duchess, so proud and haughty, with a rolling pin in one hand and a guide to the City of New York in the other. During her idle moments she studied the Guide. Even now, and only three weeks from Ellis Island, she knew the city so well that she could go from one situation to another with her eyes closed.

"Ollie," said friend wife, "do you cook vegetables in an appetizing manner?"

"Of course," answered Ollie, her lips curling disdainfully.

Then I chimed in with: "Very well, Ollie. The members of this household

When I got back, Ollie was standing near the table with a sweet smile on each side of her face waiting for the applause of those present.

"Have you anything else?" I inquired, hungrily.

"Oh, yes!" said Ollie. "I have some potato pudding for dessert."

When I got through awaring, Ollie was under the stove, my wife was under the table, the dog was under the bed and I was under the influence of liquor.

I'm cured.

After this my digestive tract will have to fight a sizzling steak every time I get hungry.

Besides, I don't want to live as long as Methuselah. If I did I'd have to learn to Tango some time in the 900 years to come—then I'd be just the same as everybody else in the world.

Can you get a flash of Methuselah at the age of sixty-four taking Tango lessons from Baldy Sloane up at Welsenfeffer's pedal parlors? And then having to survive for 905 years with the dance bug in his dome!

Close the door, Della; there's a draft.

When Peaches recovered from the shock of my outburst over the potato pudding she said the only way I could square myself was to take her to the very latest-to-date hotel in New York for dinner.

That is some task if you live up town, believe me, because they open new hotels in New York now the same as they open oysters—by the dozen.

However, after stuffing my pockets with all my earthly possessions, we hiked forth and started for the Builtfast—the very latest thing in expensive beaveries.

Directly we entered its polished portals we could see from the faces of the clerks and the clocks that a lot of money changed hands before the Builtfast finally became an assessment center.

In the lobby the furniture was covered with men about town, who sat around with a checkbook in each hand and made faces at the cash register.

There are more bellboys than bed-rooms in the hotel. They use them for change. Every time you give the cashier $15 he hands you back $1.50 and six bellboys.

We took a peep at the diamond-backed dining room, and when I saw know, Bo; just suggest some little thing that looks better than it tastes, but is not too expensive to keep down."

"Que souhaitez-vous?" said he back at me. "Un diner confortable doit se composer de potage, de volaille bouillie ou rotie, chaude ou froide, de gibier, de plats rares et distingués, de sucreries, de pâtisseries et de fruits!"

I looked at my wife, and she looked at me; then we both looked out the window and wished we had never been born.

"Say, Garson," I said, after we came to, "my wife is a daughter of the American Revolution and she's so patriotic she eats only in United States; so cut out the Moulin Rouge lyrics and let's get down to cases. How much will it set me back if I order a plain steak—just enough to flirt with two very polite appetites?"

"Nine dollars and seventy cents," said Joan of Arc's brother Bill. "The seventy cents is for the steak and the nine dollars will help to pay for the Looey the Fifteenth furniture in the bridal chamber."

"Save the money, John, whispered Peaches; 'and we'll buy a planola with it."

"How about a sliver of roast beef with some simple vegetable," I said to the waiter. "Is it a bull market for an order like that?"

A Flash of Methuselah at the Age of Sixty-Four Taking Tango Lessons From Baldy Sloane.

"Three dollars and forty-two cents," answered Henri of Navarre. "Forty-two cents for the order and three dollars for the waiter's tip for the French waiter, certainly in the golden suite on the second floor."

"Keep on guessing, John; you'll wear him out," Peaches whispered.

"Possibly a little cold lamb with a suggestion of potato salad, as a side might satisfy us," I said. "What an estimate."

"Four dollars and eighteen cents," replied Patey Boulanger. "Eighteen cents for the lamb and salad and the four dollars for the Looey the Fifteenth draperies in the drawing room."

"Ask him if there's a bargain counter anywhere in the dining room," whispered Peaches.

"My dear," I said to friend wife, "we have already displaced about sixty dollars worth of space in this dyspepsia emporium, and we must, therefore, behave like gentlemen and order something, no matter what the cost. What are the savings of a lifetime compared with our honor?"

The waiter bowed so low that his shoulder blades cracked like a whip. "Bring us," I said, "a plain omelet and one dish of prunes."

I waited till Peter Giorra translated this into French and then I added: "And on the side, please, two glasses of water and three toothpicks. Have the prunes fricasseed, wash the water on both corners and bring the toothpicks rare."

The waiter rushed away and all around us we could hear money talking to itself.

Pair women sat at the tables picking dishes out of the bill of fare which brought the blush of sorrow to the faces of their escorts. It was a wonderful sight, especially for those who have a nervous chill every time the gas bill comes in.

When we ate our modest little dinner the waiter presented a check which called for three dollars and thirty-three cents.

"The thirty-three cents is for what you ordered," Alexander J. Dumas explained, "and the three dollars is for the French hangings in the parlor."

"Holy Smoke!" I cried, "That fellow Looey the Fifteenth has been doing a lot of work around here, hasn't he?" But the waiter was so busy watching the finish of the change he handed me that he didn't crack a smile.

Then I got reckless and handed him a fifty-cent tip.

The waiter looked at the fifty cents and turned pale.

Then he looked at me and turned paler.

Then he tried to thank me, but he caught another flash of that plebeian fifty and it choked him.

Then he took a long look at the half-dollar and with a low moan he passed away.

In the excitement I grabbed Peaches and we flew for home.

The next time I go to one of those expensive abodes it will be just after I've had a hearty dinner.

Even at that I may change my mind and go to a moving picture show.

For Those Who Can See. See deep enough and you see most of the heart of nature being everywhere made, if you can only reach it.—Caryle

HOME TOWN HELPS

FIELD STONES FOR BUILDINGS

These Bowlders Are Used Extensively in Constructing Homes in Many Sections of California.

Cobblestones combined with cement are used extensively in the West for all kinds of ornamental and utilitarian construction. From ornamental urns and corner markers to foundations, bandstands, bridges, and even such large structures as two-story houses, churches, and even an observatory, may all be found in California, built of the cobbles that are removed in clearing.

The resulting edifices are of remarkably artistic appearance. The economy of this type of building is well shown by the fact that in the citrus belt near Los Angeles thousands of tons of cobbles are dug up by the Hindu laborers and piled in great heaps between the groves. These cobble piles are often fifteen feet high and twenty feet broad, and extend for many rods between the cleared fields. They are literally cheaper than dirt.

It is but natural that many of the best specimens of cobble construction are found in that district. The rounded stones merely encumber the ground, and most owners are willing to help pay for their removal to a building site.

In the citrus section may be found an observatory in the grounds of Pomona college, which is a splendid bit of architecture.

Near by is one of the most attractive homes in the West, a great, rambling bungalow of field stones which has for its main interior feature a sun parlor or glass-roofed patio. This is a most attractive detail of a charming home, with ferns and flowers growing as in a conservatory, but in a temperature suited for its use as a general living room.

In Arizona may be found a decidedly artistic cobblestone church, with only a few roughly squared stones used in connection with the natural-shaped bowlders and field stones. San Diego has two large two-story houses formed of this material, and the suggestion of permanence as well as rustic charm is made by the utilization of the big pebbles.

In the larger cities there are countless specimens of public as well as private construction formed of this rugged and ready material. The parks contain splendid examples of the decorative possibilities of cobblestones. The bridge in Ganesha park is far more in keeping with its surroundings of trees and shrubs than a more formal structure would be, and this applies to the bandstand in the same park and to the drinking fountain in Eastlake park, Los Angeles.—Popular Science Monthly.

BE CAREFUL OF HOME PLANS

Don't Forget That Slight Details, Now Overlooked, May Cause Much Dissatisfaction Later On.

When planning the new house, as much attention should be given to the things which should not be done as to those which should be done. Unless thought is given to many details apparently slight, but which may cause much trouble and annoyance later, if not properly planned at the start, dissatisfaction is sure to result when the home is completed and occupied.

Some of the things which should not be done, if future convenience is desired, may be avoided by carefully observing the following "don'ts":

Don't set your house too low. Better have it a foot high than an inch too low. The street grade may be raised at any time, and if the house sets low this will make it look squat.

Don't fail to provide proper drainage under the cellar wall and through the center of the cellar, under the concrete floor. This may easily be accomplished by constructing a dry drain or trenches filled with small stone. If this precaution is omitted, a damp cellar will be the result in nine cases out of ten, unless there is a very abrupt slope to the land on which the house stands.

What Baltimore Did. Which would you rather have, a dirty lot in the rear of your home or a beautiful green garden that produces vegetables, fruit and pretty flowers each year? It is not a hard matter to decide, yet when this question was put up to the people living in a part of Baltimore some few years ago there were many who preferred the dirty back lot. Of course, there were others who desired the pretty garden, and now that the garden is a reality not one person in that neighborhood would take 20 lots for one small section of the green spot.

It was through the efforts of the Woman's Civic league that dirty lots in all sections of that city have been transformed into pretty Vegetable and fruit gardens. On the very same spots where boys played ball and people threw all kinds of rubbish, one finds beds of beautiful flowers and rows of potatoes, tomatoes, peas, beans, carrots, onions and corn every summer. Berries of all descriptions in season and peach, apple and other fruit trees are also to be found there.

Japan's Rising Cotton Trade. Japan's exports of cotton yarn have shown a large increase since the latter part of last year. According to the Japan Chronicle, report of investigations made by the Spinning association, exports of various cotton cloths amounted in value to $23,415,072. This figure is unprecedentedly large and shows an increase of $4,123,467 over the amount for the preceding six months and $10,000,488 over that of the corresponding period last year. The highest rate of increase was seen in the exports to India, followed by the exports to Siberia, while the exports to the Philippines decreased by about one-half, as compared with the preceding half year.

are vegetarians for the time being. All of us are vegetarians, including the dog, so please govern yourself accordingly."

Ollie smiled in a broad Hungarian manner and whispered that vegetarians was where she lived.

She confided to us that she could cook vegetables so artistically that the palate would believe them to be flic Mignon with champagne sauce.

Then she shook the rolling pin at a picture of friend wife's grandfather, and started in to fool the Beef Trust who put all the butchers out of business.

Dinnertime came and we were all expectancy.

The first course was potato soup. Filling but not fascinating.

The second course was potato chips, which we nibbled slightly while we looked eagerly at the butler's pantry.

The next course was French fried potatoes with some shoestring potatoes on the side, and I began to get nervous.

This was followed by a dish of German fried potatoes, some hash-browned potatoes and some potato saute, whereupon my appetite got up and left the room.

The next course was plain boiled potatoes with the jackets on and baked potatoes with the jackets open at the throat and then some roasted potatoes with Bolero jackets.

I was beginning to see that a man must have in his veins the blood of manatees and of horses to be a vegetarian and at the same time I could feel myself firing my fingers to choke Ollie.

The next course was a plate of potato salad, and then I flunked.

the waiters refusing everything but certified checks in the way of a tip, I said to Peaches, "This is no place for us!" But she wouldn't let go, and we fled in to the appetite killery.

A very polite lieutenant-waiter, with a sergeant-waiter and two corporal-waiters, greeted us and we gave the countersign, "Abandon wealth, all ye who enter here."

Then the lieutenant-waiter and his army corps deployed by columns of four and escorted us to the most expensive looking trough I ever saw in a dining room.

"Peaches," I said to friend wife, "I'm doing this to please you, but after I pay the check, it's me to file a petition in bankruptcy."

She just grinned, picked up the point-lace napkin and began to admire the onyx furniture.

"Qu souhaitez-vous?" said the waiter, bowing so low that I could feel a chill running through my little back account.

"I guess he means you," I whispered to Peaches, but she looked very solemnly at the menu card and began to bite her lips.

"Je suis tout a votre service," the waiter crosscountered before I could recover and he had me gasping. It never struck me that I had to take a course in French before entering the Builtfast hungry foundry, and there I sat making funny faces at the tablecloth, while friend wife blushed crimson and the waiter kept on bowing like an animated jack-knife.

"Say, Mike!" I ventured after a bit; "tip us off to a quiet bunch of eating that will fit a couple of appetites just out seeing the sights. Nothing that will put a kink in a year's income, you

THE MERCHANT'S BEST FRIEND.

The organized labor movement has helped the retail merchant everywhere, but little credit has been given the unions for this work, and they have never tried to make capital because of it.

The fact is easily proved that, as the unions became better organized and more numerous in any one community, just so has the merchant prospered and waxed great in that community.

It is within the memory of many men when every merchant worked hard and long, spending all his time, except Sundays, at his business, and he was happy if, at the end of the year, his inventory showed a fair percentage of profit.

These older men will recollect, too, that the workers toiled long hours for small wages, that they had few amusements, and very little luxury of any sort. Those were days of simple living and plain dressing, when most of our people were "plain folk," owing to the conditions of the times.

With the growth and spread of unionism came a demand for higher wages and shorter hours of labor, which resulted in better meals, improved living conditions, and an extra suit of clothes. To these were added some new pleasures—an evening at the theatre now and then, or a trip to one of the larger cities, with a still more expensive wardrobe all of which put money into the merchant's pocket, and made it possible for him to make larger profits in his business, with less labor on his part. He established an early closing movement with a full holiday every week of the summer months thus giving rest and recreation both to himself and to his employees.

Articles which had formerly been looked upon as luxuries gradually evolved into necessities, and the workingman's table was more generously spread, his wife and children were better dressed, and his home was more comfortably furnished than it had ever been.

As the average wage earner is no hoarder, he made use of his higher wages and increased leisure to take more recreation, and treated the good wife to a dress or bonnet so frequently that the neighbors no longer stared at her when she appeared in a new garment, or raised their hands in astonishment when the whole family, dressed in their best, went in a body to the theatre.

The advance in wages meant only one thing to the average workingman, and that was the procuring of more comforts for his family, which naturally brought an increase of business to the merchant.

Therefore, if we concede, as concede we must, that organized unionism has increased wages and shortened the hours of work for all, then we establish the fact that the merchant's best friend is the union laboring man.

RESOLUTION NO. 112.

A Resolution ratifying, confirming and approving Ordinance No. 100, entitled: "An Ordinance extending Tenth Street from Railroad Lane, the southern end thereof, to the State Road."

Whereas, at a meeting of Council held the seventeenth day of April, 1916, an Ordinance No. 100, being an Ordinance extending Tenth Street from Railroad Lane to the State Road, and providing for the opening and grading of the same for public travel, from Midland Avenue to said State Road, was finally passed, approved by the Burgess, entered upon the Ordinance Book, and duly advertised.

And whereas, at said meeting of Council, there were but four members of Council present, all of whom voted affirmatively on the passage of said ordinance.

And whereas, the general borough law requires the affirmative vote of three-fourths of the whole number of councilmen, to pass an ordinance opening or extending streets.

And whereas, the whole number of councilmen is seven and the number present and voting affirmatively on the passage of said Ordinance at said meeting is less than three-fourths of the whole number.

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that said Ordinance be ratified, confirmed and approved, and that the same be and remain valid and with as full force and effect as if the same had been passed by the affirmative vote of three-fourths of the whole number of councilmen.

At the Majestic

"The Upheaval"

Lionel Barrymore supported by Marguerite Skirvin and an exceptionally strong cast, in the five-part feature, "The Upheaval," will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, on Monday, Oct. 16. The story is one of unusual power and the scenes are laid in a small city and in a picturesque camp in the Adirondacks. There is plenty of action, many thrilling situations and a goodly number of portions of comedy, skillfully handled by the versatile Mr. Barrymore and an excellent cast. Charles Moran directed this production for Metro, and like all his features, it rings true and carries suspense with a smashing climax at the end.

"Common Ground"

Marie Doro will be seen at the Majestic Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 17, in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "Common Ground."

This picture shows the mental and spiritual awakening through love, of a child of the slums, employed in an artificial flower factory.

How she meets, falls in love with, and eventually saves from ruin, at the hands of political grafters, a young judge, is the basis of this most unusual play. The methods of the army of parasites connected with the city institution, and their dealings with the underworld, are vividly exposed.

How these grafters, to further their own ends, manufacture false conditions to harm their enemies, is brought out through a series of most unusual scenes.

"The Combat"

While "The Combat," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature starring Anita Stewart, which is the attraction at the Majestic, Wednesday, Oct. 18, would come under the class of a society drama, it contains a number of flashes of the north woods where dog-fights, snow squalls and rough log cabins form the center of interest.

Aiming to have these scenes all that perfection means, Director Ince took his entire company up into the woods during the winter months and besides using the log cabins which they erected for the picture, they used them for shelter during their two weeks' stay.

The players were forced to learn how to use snow shoes, for without this knowledge, living in the snow covered woods could never have been accomplished.

Nevertheless the scenes produced more than repay the players for any inconvenience they may have suffered.

"Fires of Conscience"

Two fights, one against himself, the other against those who are breaking the laws of mankind, give William Farnum opportunity to display his remarkable histrionic ability in William Fox's new photoplay, "Fires of Conscience," which appears at the Majestic Theatre on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 19-20.

In Arizona, Baxter meets Nell Blythe (the Nell Shipman), a good woman, who makes her living by singing in the dance halls and saloons. She realizes that some influence is spoiling the life of the big man she loves, and she begs him to go back east and face justice. He goes.

In his native city he is tried before a judge (Wm. Burress) who is father of the man he had killed. But the Judge knows that his son's death was deserved, and instructs the jury to bring in a verdict of "Not Guilty."

Freed from the shadow that has cast its gloom over his life, George Baxter returns to the West, and finds Nell waiting for him.

"Hulda from Holland"

Mary Pickford has been starred in characterizations of many picturesque nationalities, but her interpretation of "Hulda from Holland," which comes to the Majestic Theatre, on Saturday, Oct. 21, has never been surpassed in humor and genuine heart appeal. Though there is a great deal of tender pathos in Miss Pickford's little Dutch girl, there is so much that is comic in her interpretation of the role, and there are so many delightful little episodes in which three adorable children ably assist the star, that "Hulda from Holland" will undoubtedly rank as one of the Famous Players' greatest contributions to motion picture humor. Of course there is a love story interwoven with Hulda's joys and sorrows, which before the picture is completed, becomes a very serious affair.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Quitter"

Lionel Barrymore, one of the most popular and versatile artists of the screen, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Wednesday, October 18th, in the starring role of "The Quitter." Marguerite Skirvin, a charming and talented young woman, new to the Metro program, will be seen in support of Mr. Barrymore.

The story of "The Quitter" is laid in a southwestern mining town, where scores of thrilling scenes are enacted. It was originally planned to photograph the scenes on the American-Mexican border, but when the company arrived there they were advised to leave on account of the disturbance in that quarter. They came north and found the locale they wanted near the Delaware Water Gap, Pa., and there a mining town was constructed.

Many real western types were used, including Indians, cowboys, half-breeds and Chinese. These genuine types were brought from the southwest by the director. Mr. Barrymore has one of the best parts of his career in "The Quitter."

"The Velvet Paw"

House Peters was originally cast for a wild and woolly westerner, but he came East and became an actor. Since that time he has traveled extensively all over the face of the globe, playing in some of the biggest stage productions which toured Europe. He has also had a varied motion picture career, but he scored the most of his success with the World Film Corporation. His next film production will be "The Velvet Paw," in which he is starred with Gail Kane. This is a political play dealing with the child labor question which occupied the attention of Congress recently, and is chock full of emotion and nerve-racking situations. It will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Thursday, October 19th.

"The Fires of Conscience," which comes to the Colonial Friday, October 20, gives William Farnum full sway to display his wonderful versatility. A fugitive from justice, impelled by the pangs of conscience and his faith in a woman, returns to the scene of his crime and is tried and acquitted. See how realization of guilt drove a man to repentance in the Fox photoplay, "The Fires of Conscience."

"The Grasp of Greed"

Cast away on a barren island, hoping against hope for succor, two sailors, a small boy, a miser who is stricken unto death, and a young girl comprise a party of subjects for the conclusion of this photoplay. The miser, who has fallen in love with the girl before the shipwrecked unfortunate took passage from London. With death staring him in the face, the miser would alter his will—but barren islands have no stationery shops, hence earth and sea are called upon to give forth the means. The sack of a cuttle fish supplies its inky substance, a sharp bone serves as a pen, and, as one of the sailors is a first class hand at tattooing, the smooth, white and splendidly broad back of the girl finishes off the plot of "The Grasp of Greed," the Bluebird photoplay to be exhibited at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, October 21, with Louise Lovely's lovely lead, the parchment that records the imperishable will of the miser with a change of heart and a shortage of breath.

FIGURES SHOWING GROWTH OF UNIONS

Important Phase of Economic Life That Is Neglected by the Government.

BIG INCREASE IN 17 YEARS

Statistics of 207 Organized Trades, Gathered From All Available Sources of Information, Show Great Growth From 1897 to 1914.

Students of the history and growth of American trade unions are greatly handicapped, according to a writer in the Quarterly Journal of Economics, by the fact that the United States government has never felt called upon to collect statistics of trade union membership. The national board of trade in England, the German labor department, and the French ministry of labor all make regular reports embracing complete statistics on the membership and activity of labor organizations. In the United States the American Federation of Labor has kept account of its own affairs, but there is practically no way of finding out about the membership of unions not affiliated with the federation. The federation figures also fail to give an accurate idea of the growth of trade unions in the United States because they fail to mention the membership in affiliated unions until these unions come into the federation. For instance, the Western Federation of Miners was organized in 1892, but did not affiliate with the American Federation of Labor until 1911. The federation figures show this increase in a single year, and are therefore incorrect.

One state, New York, has tried to collect statistics on all unions in the United States, but until 1910 little effort was made to record the growth of unaffiliated unions. Since then, however, this part of the work has been extended to embrace many independent unions. But the New York state statistics are far from reliable. This indifference to an important phase of the economic life of America has led to a great deal of confusion. Authorities have taken to making estimates which, after being quoted a few times, are called accurate statistics. This has caused the unions some trouble, and has led to an erroneous belief in many minds that the fault really lies with the American Federation of Labor, when as a matter of fact, it lies with the federal government. In such statistics as are available are included, in many cases, the Canadian members of the unions, for they are members of the unions that exist mainly in the United States, and separate figures on their membership are not kept by all unions.

For convenience, the period between 1897 and 1914 was selected to show the growth of various unions. All sources of information were exhausted and in every case the most authoritative set of figures was used. A total of 207 unions reported, varying in membership in 1915 from 339,000 in the United Mine Workers to fewer than 1,000 in the Sawmillers' union. In the following list the number of members in 1897 follows the name, and then comes the membership in 1914, the larger unions only being named: Western Federation of Miners, 8,000 to 30,000; United Mine Workers, 3,700 to 339,000; bricklayers and masons, 23,300 to 82,500; bridge and iron workers, none to 13,200; carpenters, 28,200 to 212,200; electrical workers, 1,700 to 80,800; painters, 5,000 to 74,400; hodcarriers, none to 25,000; plasterers, 2,000 to 18,000; plumbers, 4,000 to 20,700; boiler-makers, 1,100 to 16,700; machinists, 14,000 to 75,400; molders, 12,000 to 50,000; railway carmen, 1,300 to 28,700; textile workers, 2,700 to 18,000; garment workers, 4,000 to 60,700; boot and shoe workers, 12,500 to 38,100; locomotive engineers, 30,300 to 73,800; locomotive firemen, 24,300 to 86,300; railroad trainmen, 25,400 to 120,100; street and electric railway employees, 2,800 to 54,500; printing pressmen, 5,000 to 19,300; typographical, 28,100 to 58,500; brewery workers, 10,000 to 67,000; musicians, 4,000 to 60,000; letter carriers, 11,100 to 32,200; and barbers, 2,200 to 34,300. ## SEES GOOD YEAR FOR STEEL

President Farrell Says Works Will Be Operating at Capacity in 1917.

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, speaking in Pittsburgh at a banquet, predicted a prosperous year for the steel industry.

"The year 1916 will probably go down in history as one of the most remarkable years that the iron and steel industry has ever known," he declared. "Without the necessity of resorting to prophecy, we can assume that the year 1917 will see the blast furnace and steel works of this country operating at capacity."

That the time is coming when the labor unions of the United States may let down the bars and admit to membership Asiatics was intimated by Paul Scharrnberg, secretary treasurer of the California State Federation of Labor, at a recent meeting of the San Francisco Labor council.

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees reports that during the first six months of 1916, 85 locals, representing a membership of 54,651, secured $3,500,000 in wage increases. This vast sum is the direct result of trade-union methods.

Quiet Distinction in a Street Suit.

Your street suit may be plain, or it may be elaborate with plaatings and shirrings. Machine stitching or hand needlework may embellish it and for bandings add to its interest. Your coat may be three-quarter length or longer, or shorter. Your skirt is apt to be plain and your collar is sure to be high. Choose as you will among the styles—if your choice achieves distinction your suit is a success.

For the woman whose figure is something to be proud of, plain suits, like that shown in the picture, make her the envy of her sisters and the admiration of masculine eyes. She need resort to no tricks in construction or adornment to make her street suit interesting or to conceal defects in herself. The business of her suit is merely the matter of clothing a good figure to the best advantage.

The suit pictured goes about this affair in the most businesslike way. It is of serge, made with a plain, moderately full skirt, fitted about the hips and cut to shoe-top length. The coat is semi-fitted, a little more than half length and machine stitching provides the finish for both garments. By way of deference to the style features of today the coat adopts a high collar and simulated pockets in the hips. But it asserts its independence with velvet covered buttons and there is a velvet band across the front of the neck, under the turn-over collar.

There is plenty of authority for more flare in the bottom of the coat and closer fit in the body of it. The skirt is cut in the correct length for all street suits which is just a little longer than shoe-top length. A suit of this kind if perfectly fitted and tailored, is full of quiet distinction, and a standard of good style.

Autumn Blouses Sheer and Dainty.

Autumn blouses might be spring blouses or summer blouses, for they are made of the same sheer and filmy materials as those designed for the warmest weather. Therefore it is to be inferred that coats must carry all the responsibility in standing between the lady of fashion and freezing weather. And coats, reinforced with high collars of fur or helped out with capes and scarfs, look quite able to do their part. Therefore the blouse concerns itself only with being dainty and beautiful.

For those who must have something more substantial for indoor wear, there are many one-piece frocks of satin and cloth, and there are strictly tailored shirtwaists of silk shirtings that are smartly practical. But the majority of blouses are made of crepe georgette, crepe de chine, chiffon cloth, rayon and other novelty silk laces, net and the sheer cottons like batiste and organdy.

The combination of two colors in the fabric, which proved popular in the summer is still featured in blouses now displayed for the new season. Hemstitching and picot edges also remain and in some models satin charmeuse is combined with chiffon cloth or crepe. Occasionally the very sheer blouse has a net foundation.

A new model is shown in the picture above. It is made of georgette crepe with open throat and sailor collar deepened by a plaited flounce of the crepe. The sleeves are gathered into very deep cuffs and these are finished about the hand with a plaited frill of the crepe. A soft tie of silk or crepe adds a bit of color contrast to this and to many other models.

ALONG FASHION'S CHANGING TRACK

Will the Directorate Become the Choice of the Important Minority?

IS AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Skirts Will Be Ankle, Instead of Shoe-Top, Length, But Narrower—Lafayette and Robespierre Colors to the Front.

New York.—One of the interesting phases of American fashions is to stand by the side of the racetrack and watch a few fashions in the contest for the blue ribbon of popularity.

This race usually occurs in September and March. The observer considers it as a species of sartorial sport, but the men behind these fashions regard it with anxiety and deep concern.

They have brought these models from Paris and they have probably risked a great deal of their money on them, and some force outside of themselves seems to put certain gowns and hats on this racetrack of fashion and bring them into a sharp contest.

Probably the manufacturer makes his money out of this race. If he does, he is quite content, for by the time December comes he is ready to put another set of models on the track.

The high-priced dressmakers regard this race in September and March as a blessing not in disguise. Through it they are enabled to make their discard of certain gowns before the actual season opens. Women of fashion rarely get their autumn and winter clothes until October. If they buy early models before then, their wisdom and experience teach them that these clothes are merely stock-gaps which tide over the interim between the faded summer finery and the new winter equipment.

Will the Directorate Come? Now the puzzling question before the people who buy and sell is this: Will the Moyaen-age, which was so speedily carried to popularity, become a drug in the market, and will the directorate loom up as the choice of the minority? Will the smart women who really lead the affairs of dress decide that the high waistline, slim hips, tight shoulders and long sleeves will be the fashion of their choice, making a direct contrast to the wrapper-like frock that is gridded around the hips?

In France the tendency is toward the directorate and first empire. It is believed that the smart women over there have gone in for the newer line and that the waistline dropped to the hips was a follow-on of French styles that had been taken up in May and June.

The belief of the experts is that the directorate will win before Thanksgiving. They believed that in Paris, and this belief has been strengthened by the action of the multitudinous masses in America in taking up the Moyaen-age and not looking at the directorate. However, it's all a gamble. That's what makes clothes and the discussion of them exceedingly interesting to those who are behind the scenes or standing at the side of the racetrack.

It is not probable that the extreme, or rather pure, directorate will be inaugurated before February, although it may flicker over here before that time among the exclusive models that are sent over to women who keep their orders in French houses and to those shops whose buyers send over something different every month.

Skirts to Be Longer. There would be no cause for surprise if one saw, at some time not far away, a return to the tight, narrow skirt and the long-tailed coat with its short, ornamented front and striped waistcoats. We must turn somewhere:

we have had the fashion of the moment with us for so long a time that in things sartorial, a break is sure to come. There is no doubt about the fact that we will consider ankle length rather than shoe-top length, the more correct way to cut a skirt. We may really come into the long, full, straight skirt that falls on the floor when we are dressed for the evening, but the united hopes of a nation should be out the long skirt for the street; the accepted length is more graceful and in far better taste than that which we have exploited for a year.

Long, full skirts are excessively awkward, and for that reason it is believed that the longer skirts got, the narrower they will grow at the hem.

New Colors to the Front. It is evidently not to be a season of black, although it remains as a color in first fashion and will be chosen by those who like it. But the colors of Lafayette and Robespierre are coming to the front.

Our coat suits of soft velvet, with their deep revers, are to be of plum color, of deep Burgundy, of bottle green and of that brown that is like snuff with a golden tinge in it.

It is not given to every woman to wear brown, and in choosing it she must be excessively careful. If she has not artistic perceptions of her own, she should call them in from the outside.

That bright mustard yellow that is offered everywhere in smart suits, especially in the new satin Jersey, is most monstrous color on the wrong woman, and it should be avoided as the plague unless one is quite sure beyond peradventure, of its success.

There is something pleasing in the thought of plum color and bottle green. They are rich, warm colors, quite suitable to our sharp winters. The milliners have joined with the dressmakers to create an excellent ensemble by introducing the eighteenth-century hat with its small sloping brim and its high, soft crown.

There is every reason to believe the women can be turned out in excellent manner this winter; there is nothing capricious about the styles, and there is much that is eminently artistic.

STRIPE ON ALL NEW MODEL

Have So Much to Be Said in Their Favor That They Are Generally Welcomed.

Stripes are in striking evidence wherever one notes new models. Not only do they dominate all the fabrics and styles in sports clothes, but they have invaded the conservative territory of street costumes, afternoon dresses and dainty evening frocks.

It must be said in their favor that they lend a certain dash and verve to the season's fashions. Perhaps this is due to the fact that the striped materials are associated mostly with monotone fabrics; and in this way a balance is struck which serves to maintain a sense of proportion in color and to preserve a degree of sanity in dress which otherwise might not be possible.

In silks there are charmingly striped rajahs and other varieties of pongee weaves. Taffetas are accepted as matter of course in their flounced striped patterns as well as in those more daintily lined with pastel tones or with colors that revive the patterns of early eighteenth century looms.

Among the newest dresses are models made of georgette crepe striped with dark blue, Belgian blue, flax color, green, orchid and black. Ordinarily the color is imposed on a white ground, and the present scheme of fashion calls for the upper part of the frock to be developed in all white by way of a striking foil for the lower section of the striped material.

ALLIES CAN NOT MAKE SEA RULES

WASHINGTON REPLIES TO FOREIGN NOTE

WILL EXPECT ACCOUNTING

Will Follow Course of Long-Standing Traditions and Deal Impartially
With Craft of All Nations.
Some Surprise Expressed.

Washington.—The reply to the allied governments regarding treatment of belligerent submarines in neutral ports, says:

The Government of the United States has received the identical memoranda of the governments of France, Great Britain, Russia and Japan, in which neutral governments are exhorted "to take efficacious measures tending to prevent belligerent submarines, regardless of their use, to avail themselves of neutral waters, roadsteads and harbors." These governments point out the facility possessed by such craft to avoid supervision or surveillance or determination of their national character and their power "to do injury that is inherent in their very nature," as well as the "additional facilities" afforded by having at their disposal places where they can rest and replenish their supplies.

Surprise Expressed.

Apparently on these grounds the allied governments hold that "submarine vessels must be excluded from the benefit of the rules heretofore accepted under international law regarding the admission and sojourn of war and merchant vessels in neutral waters, roadsteads or harbors; any submarine of a belligerent that once enters a neutral harbor must be held there," and, therefore, the allied governments warn neutral powers of the great danger to neutral submarines attending the navigation of waters visited by the submarines of belligerents.

In reply the Government of the United States must express its surprise that there appears to be an endeavor of the allied powers to determine the rule of action governing what they regard as a "novel situation" in respect to the use of submarines in time of war and to enforce acceptance of that rule, at least in part.

In the opinion of the Government of the United States the allied powers have not set forth any circumstances, nor is the Government of the United States at present aware of any circumstances, concerning the use of war or merchant submarines which would render the existing rules of international law inapplicable to them.

Position Stated.

The Government of the United States reserves its liberty of action in all respects and will treat such vessels as, in its opinion, becomes the action of a power which may be said to have taken the first steps toward establishing the principles of neutrality and which for over a century has maintained those principles in the traditional spirit and with the high sense of impartiality in which they were conceived.

In order, however, that there should be no misunderstanding as to the attitude of the United States, the Government of the United States announces to the allied powers that it holds it to be the duty of belligerent powers to distinguish between submarines of neutral and belligerent nationality, and that responsibility for any conflict that may arise between belligerent warships and neutral submarines on account of the neglect of a belligerent to so distinguish between these classes of submarines must rest entirely upon the negligent power.

Episcopal Convention Opens.

St. Louis, Mo.—Approximately 3,000 Protestant Episcopal bishops, clergymen and laymen, representing about 4,000,000 adherents in the United States and its possessions, gathered in St. Louis for the forty-fourth triennial convention of the church. With them were about as many women, here to attend sessions of the woman's auxiliary.

Mayor's Office Raided.

Chicago.—Armed with subpoenas authorizing search and seizure, detectives conducted a spectacular raid on the offices of Mayor Thompson, Chief of Police Healey and L. C. Funkhouser, deputy superintendent of police, and appropriated files of correspondence to determine if vice and gambling have existed here with the knowledge and consent of the city officials.

Sunday Funerals Opposed.

Clarkburg, W. Va.—In resolutions passed by the Clarkburg Ministers' Union and made public the people of the community are urged to discontinue Sunday funerals and to discontinue the habit of having more than one minister at a funeral.

Bare Bull Fight.

Mexico City.—A decree signed by Gen. Carranza, prohibiting bull fighting and announcing a death penalty against bandits and highway robbers, was published in newspapers.

FRENCH CAPTURE CHAULNES WOODS

Italians Effect Capture of German Soldiers and Equipment.

Paris.—In the fighting south of the Somme the French troops captured the village of Bevent, the north and west outskirts of Abiaucourt, and also the greater part of the Chaulnes wood. Prisoners to the number of 1,200 were taken in the operation, according to the official communication. Five more villages have been occupied by the allied troops operating east of the Struma.

Italians Storm Fox Trenches.

Rome.—On Monte Pasubio, after artillery preparation, our troops stormed and took enemy entrenchments in the sector of Cosmagnon and Sette Croci and captured 176 men of the Kaiser-Jäger, including six officers and one machine gun. In the Travinolo valley the enemy attacked our positions on the second peak of Colbricon. They were driven off with heavy losses. An attack against our advanced line on the northern slopes of Monte Sief also was decisively repulsed.

Committee May Discuss War.

Berlin.—The budget committee of the Reichstag, after a long discussion, rejected the motions of the National Liberals and Progressives for the appointment of a committee of the Reichstag with the right to sit during recesses, but adopted a clerical substitute, giving the budget committee that right. A significant fact is that the clerical motion includes the right of the committee to discuss the war.

BROOKLYN WINS ONE

Each Team Worked Two Pitchers—
Brooklyn Errorless.

New York.—Entrenched within their own grounds, the Brooklyn Nationals turned upon the Boston Americans, and wrested victory from the Red Sox by a score of 4 to 2 in the third game of the world's series. Ivan Olson covered himself with glory by batting the deciding runs across, with a three-base hit.

True to their predictions, the Superbas, playing at Ebbets field, proved proved far more formidable than when under the spell of Boston's cold disdain.

Hits rang off their bats with the snap and deadliness of exploding shrapnel, and while the invaders made a determined resistance, they were forced to bow to the superior playing of the winners.

The Score.

University Damaged By Blaze.

Madison, Wis.—Fire, fanned by a high wind, virtually destroyed the University of Wisconsin, with a loss estimated at $250,000. Five hundred students marched out of the building in safety and assisted in saving the old records of the institution.

DOES NOT BRING HOPE OF PEACE

MINISTER GERARD COMES WITH UNDERSEA WARNING

GERMANY TO STATE POSITION

Kaiser Sending Communication Bearing on Ending War, But With No Hope That Peace Acceptable is in Prospect.

New York.—Ambassador Gerard, on board the Friedrich VIII, carries no message from Germany to President Wilson requesting his good offices to make peace.

Mr. Gerard is making his first visit to America in three years to report to President Wilson in person on a matter more important to America than the subject of peace, important as that is.

He comes to describe the heavy black cloud hanging over German-American relations in the form of the submarine menace, and which even the most friendly German statesmen agree may break open unless the unexpected occurs and peace intervenes.

Mr. Gerard will report that Germany is maturing no false hopes of delusion on this point. She does not believe peace is a likelihood or will be a probability for a long time, so she is concerning herself with means of war, ignoring the plans for peace.

Hope to Satisfy America.

Those few German statesmen who helped the Ambassador in his effort to have the President's restriction on submarine warfare accepted by Germany, are now casting about for some means of permitting the resumption of the interdicted method, but at the same time changing it in some way to meet the limits laid down by the United States. They confess themselves unable to discover such plans, and they have been made to understand that no subterfuge will be permitted by Washington.

In the Ambassador's opinion, it would be doing Germany a great injustice to say she is ready to sue for peace, as such thoughts are far from the German mind. She is ready, even anxious—for "honorable peace," but her ideas on that point are so far removed from those of the allies it is proper to conclude she is not permitting peace thoughts to enter her present calculations.

Ready for Ruthless Warfare.

"Barchalten" is her motto, and included in the word is her intention of employing the most ruthless forms of warfare, which she justifies on the ground that her existence as a nation is threatened.

SEEKING MAIL CONTRACT

The only requisite is that the aviator be properly equipped for the mails will not be lost or damaged.

CLINTONVILLE HAS FIRE

Eighteen Buildings Burned—Loss Estimated at $75,000.

Clintonville, Pa.—Eighteen buildings, including seven residences, which comprised four blocks in the heart of the business center, were swept by fire that started in the livery stables of E. W. Shaffer, entailing a loss estimated at $75,000 to $80,000. Local volunteer firemen, assisted by the Oil City and Franklin firemen, battled with the flames all night. Many firemen had narrow escapes from injury, but no person was reported injured.

Must Withdraw Men, Says Chief.

WILL CONFER ON U-BOAT RAIDING

Attacks of German Submarines Present Serious Questions to Administration.

Long Branch, N. J.—The announcement that the Secretary of State would confer with the President confirmed the impression that the American government considered the attacks on vessels off the American coast by German submarines as serious. At the same time it was made clear that there is nothing in reports so far received to show that international law or the earlier promises of Germany have been violated. Concern over the situation centered chiefly about the possibility of what might happen if submarine attacks are continued.

Wilson Declares Policy.

The position of the American government and its determination to make a full investigation before acting was made clear in the following statement given out by the President:

BOSTON WINS SECOND GAME

Contest Goes 14 Innings—Was a Pitchers' Duel.

Boston.—Breaking world's series records and tearing traditions to shreds, the Boston Americans defeated the Brooklyn Nationals by a score of 3 to 1 in a 14-inning game. It was the second contest for the championship and was decided only after a struggle that surpassed in situations any ever evolved in the fertile brain of a baseball fiction writer.

For more than two hours the teams battled with almost superhuman skill and courage through a one-run tie. Then, with the stage set as if for the thrilling climax, a pinch-hitter and a pinch-runner won victory for the Red Sox just as twilight threw its mantle.

LIBRARIES FAIL CONTRACTS.

No More Will Be Formed Until Record Is Cleared.

Cincinnati.—Twenty-seven Carnegie libraries in Ohio out of $2 have fallen short of their pledged annual income for maintenance, and thus broken their contracts with the Carnegie Foundation of Pennsylvania, declared Clyde W. Parks, University of Cincinnati, in addressing delegates to the twenty-second annual session of the Ohio Library Association.

The speaker added that 21 of the 27 delinquents made some effort at reparation.

No more Carnegie libraries will be established in this state until the record of Ohio is cleared.

Parliament Opened.

London.—The British parliament reassembled for the autumn session, which will deal almost entirely with matters pertaining to the war, there being virtually no legislation program. Premier Asquith is expected to move a new vote of credit and review the war situation and the nation's ability to bear the financial strain.

Missouri Pacific to Be Reorganized.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Plans for the reorganization of the Missouri Pacific system were filed with the Missouri Public Service Commission. This action was taken as a step toward ending the receivership. The plan provides for the formation of a new corporation with a capitalization of $370,000,000.

HUMAN LIFE SPARED SO FAR

German U-Boat Begins Orgy of Destruction After Calling at Newport—May Be More Than One in the Raid.

Boston.—The submarine arm of the Imperial German Navy ravaged shipping off the eastern coast of the United States.

Four British, one Dutch and one Norwegian steamers and one whose identity has not yet been established were sent to the bottom or left crippled derelicts off Nantucket shoals.

So far as known, there was no loss of life, though the crew of the British steamer Kingston has not been accounted for.

Total value of the shipping destroyed is placed at $6,000,000.

A submarine held up the American steamer Kansas, bound from New York for Genoa, with steel for the Italian government, but later, on establishing her identity, allowed the American to proceed.

Several U-Boats May Be in Raid.

The hostile submarine is believed to be the U-53. Some naval men, however, declared that at least two submarines are operating close to the American shore, though outside the three-mile limit.

It was reported that a seventh ship had been sunk. Her identity was unknown, but destroyers were searching for her crew.

216 Refugees at Newport.

Newport, R. I.—Four destroyers of the American flotilla came into harbor, bringing 216 persons rescued from ships torpedoed off Nantucket Sunday by a German submarine.

Open Mine in City Center.

Huntington, W. Va.—A copper mine is to be opened in the very heart of this city. Thirty-five years ago two men employed to dig a well struck a hard substance at a depth of 20 feet, which at first was thought to be gold, but which analysis showed to be a high grade of copper. A company has been organized to develop the mine.

GERMAN U-BOAT LANDS IN NEWPORT

U-53 Man of War Carrier Came Mounted on Deck—Searching For Bremen.

Newport, R. I.—Seventeen days from Wilhelmshaven, the Imperial German submarine U-53 dropped anchor in Newport harbor.

Almost before the officers of the American fleet of warships, through which the stranger had nosed her way, had recovered from their astonishment, the undersize fighter had delivered a message for the German Ambassador, and, weighing anchor, disappeared beneath the waves just inside the three-mile limit.

As she came and went, she flew the black and white colors of the German navy, a gun was mounted on the forward deck and another aft, while eight torpedoes gave mute assurance that the warship was ready for a fight at the drop of the hat. Lieutenant Captain Hans Rose, who hung up a new world's record in bringing an armed submarine in battle array across the Atlantic, said that he had called at Newport simply to mail a letter to Count von Bernstorff. He required neither provisions nor fuel.

Here Three Hours.

The submarine was in American waters a little more than three hours, assuming that she continued to sea after submerging.

There were rumors, without apparent basis, that the German merchant submarine Bremen, long overdue, might be expected in the wake of the warship. Some naval officers expressed the opinion that the fighter had escorted the Bremen across the ocean, and others that she was searching for the merchant ship. The first question asked by Captain Rose when a motorboat came alongside was: "Have you heard from the Bremen?"

When he was told that there was no news of the missing craft, his face became grave, but he made no comment.

BOSTON TAKES THE FIRST

By Score of 6 to 5 Red Sox Win
From Dodgers.

Boston.—The year's baseball peripatians, the Boston Red Sox champions of the American League, and the Brooklynals, champions of the National League, met in the first game of the post-season series, and the Red Sox won, 6 to 5. There were 35,137 persons present.

Marquard pitched capably for the Brooklynals and did no faltering for his part. It was his support, however, which made his pitching of no avail. Conditions on the Boston side were just the reverse—Shore did well for eight innings, but toppled in the ninth and had to be dethroned to save the game.

AGED MEN DIE IN FLAMES.

Monastery Burned and Bedridden Priests Are Trapped—Walls
Fall on Firemen.

St. Louis.—Nine men are known to have perished as the result of a fire that destroyed the central portion of the main building of Christian Brothers College. Two of the dead are aged members of the Christian brothers order, who were trapped on the fifth floor by the flames.

Five of the known dead were firemen, who were carried to the basement from the third floor when a wall collapsed. Seven firemen were taken out alive, badly hurt.

The loss is estimated at more than $300,000, partially covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained.

Fake Advertising Penalized.

Washington.—In the first case brought under the new false advertising law of the District of Columbia, Henry C. Southwick, secretary and treasurer of the Southwick Shops, incorporated, selling clothing and haberdashery, was found guilty. A $300 fine was imposed on the corporation and a 60-day jail sentence on Mr. Southwick. The sentence was suspended.

People Want Sale Made.

St. Thomas, D. W. I.—The sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States was unanimously favored by acclamation at a meeting attended chiefly by workmen. The transfer was held to be the only means of remedying existing unsatisfactory conditions. A memorial to that effect was handed delegates who are to go to Copenhagen to present the views of the islanders.

The action of the National suffrage Association at Atlantic City, N. J., in rejecting by an overwhelming vote the proposal to make the suffrage movement a partisan annex of the Republican campaign, was further emphasized by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, "the sage of suffrage," in an interview published in the Philadelphia Press, a staunch Republican organ.

"The President, in his speech to the convention, promised all he could carry out," said Dr. Shaw. "If he had promised more we would have known that he could not carry it out."

"Not the Republicans alone, nor the Democrats alone, can bring suffrage. If it could be done that way I would favor it. But it can't. We must get enough Democrats and Republicans to do it."

LABOR NOTES

The State Compensation Board recently ruled that a carpenter was entitled to compensation who sustained a bruise that later developed into an abscess and an operation was necessary.

Attorney General Farrar of Colorado, has dismissed a score of indictments, growing out of the strike of miners in Las Animas County. Now one of the hundreds of miners who were in jail are now held there. The case of John R. Lawson, who was found guilty of murder in the first degree, in Judge Hillyer's court, is pending because of the action of the State Supreme Court in setting aside the verdict and ordering Lawson's release on bail.

Large advertisements of a speech made by Charles E. Hughes, in which he condemns the passage of the recent federal eight-hour law, are appearing in the papers. The criticism compares favorably with the action of Chief Justice Hughes in the famous case of the Danbury Hatters.

In a public letter, signed by a score of prominent citizens, addressed to President Shonta, of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York, they charge the company with forcing its employees to work 365 days a year and have a system of coercion and espionage, subject their employees to the degradation of the spy system, and that the men have not been at liberty according to the concepts of a free people.

CANDIDATE FERGUSON STATES HIS POSITION

Tells Workingmen Where He Stands on Matters Which May Come Up.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS PUT BY STATE F. OF L.

Owing to the numerous inquiries received by the management of The Labor News, from union men throughout the valley, relative to the position taken by candidates for State Legislative positions on matters affecting labor, which will be brought up at the next session of the State Legislature, it has been decided to publish, as far as obtainable, the views of candidates.

Hugh Ferguson, of College Hill borough, Democratic candidate for election to the State Senate on the Democratic ticket, makes answer to a set of questions placed before him by the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor. The object of the questions is to inform the labor organizations where legislative candidates stand on matters which are expected to come up before the next State Legislature, directly affecting labor. The questions and Mr. Ferguson's answers to the same, as sent The Labor News by Secretary C. F. Quinn, of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, are as follows:

Question 1. Do you favor the Full Crew Bill?

Answer: Yes.

Question 2. Would you be likely to vote against an Attachment of Wages (Garnishee) bill?

Answer: I would vote against such a bill.

Question 3. Do you favor the idea of holding a State Constitutional Convention on a non-partisan basis?

Answer: Yes.

Question 4. Would you be opposed to an increase in the number of the State Constabulary and the salaries of its officers?

Answer: Yes.

Question 5. What would be your probable position on the subject of Old Age Pensions, to be paid to persons having reached the age of sixty-five years?

Answer: I heartily favor such a measure.

Question 6. Would you be in favor of an adequate appropriation for the Mothers' Assistance Fund, so as to make the fund more advantageous to widows and abandoned mothers, and of making it compulsory on County Commissioners to adopt it?

Answer: Yes.

Question 7. Would you support a bill to prevent the use of machines in the working out of stumps and pillars in the bituminous mines?

Note—Working out the stumps and pillars is dangerous to an extraordinary degree, because, during the operation, the coal supporting the roof is all being taken away. Usually, before it is, the rock, immediately above the coal, gives out warning sounds and the miners take extra precautions. With the running noise of the machine, the preliminary disturbance in the rock cannot be heard and the unfortunate miner remains at his task in ignorance of his danger, till death comes to him. To prevent the use of machines in such work, is the purpose of the proposed bill to which Question 7 applies.

Answer: I do not know much about anthracite mines, but from what you say of the use of such machines and the dangers incident thereto, I would favor a bill to prevent their use.

Question 8. How do you feel toward the passage of an Anti-Injunction bill, providing that what may be done legally by one person, shall not be illegal if done by two, or more, persons?

Answer: I would favor such a bill.

Question 9. Would you help to pass a Compulsory Compensation Act, making it obligatory on all employers to insure their employees in the State Workmen's Insurance Fund; raising the Compensation scale to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of wages; paying to widows and dependent widowers, the sum of thirty dollars per month (as in New York State) till death, or remarriage, and increasing the period of payments for disability by at least twenty-five weeks?

Answer: Yes.

The above-given answers fairly represent my attitude of mind toward the questions submitted.

Signed, HUGH FERGUSON, Candidate for Senate. Forty-seventh Senatorial District of Beaver and Lawrence Counties.

WORLD'S LABOR MEET WILL BE DISCUSSED

American Federation of Labor to Renew Proposals to British—Eight Hour Day in Prospect

Washington, Oct. 18.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has taken up the question of renewing at an early date a proposal to the British Trade Union Council for a world's labor congress, at the time and place of the peace council at the end of the war. Members of the council practically were unanimous in the opinion that the executive council would again urge the presentation of such a proposal at the next annual convention of the federation, which begins in Baltimore on November 18th.

The suggestion, first presented to the British labor organization at Birmingham, Eng., last August, was rejected on the ground that the state of public feeling in the British empire then would not countenance peace overtures of any sort.

The British were willing to enter into the negotiations if Central powers were excluded and officials of the American Federation believe that eventually the world organization can be effected.

The executive council today is working on other recommendations to be made at the national convention, including proposals for furthering the efforts to obtain a general eight-hour day. Strong efforts will be made to have the Federation demand a national eight hours work day law.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES ENDORSE MR. WILSON

New Castle R. R. Employees' Political Association Votes to Support President Wilson.

That the statement made by Congressman Henry W. Temple, during his speech at the Republican mass meeting in New Brighton on Tuesday evening and at a previous meeting at New Castle, to the effect that the railway men had been "gold bricked" by the passage of the eight-hour law, does not set very well with railway men, was evidenced by the action taken last evening at a meeting in New Castle, of the Railway Employees' Political Association of Lawrence County. It was the opinion of those present, as expressed by various speakers, that the men resented the imputation that their Grand Officers had "gold bricked" them, and the recommendation of the executive committee, which had been instructed to draw up statements relative to the best men to vote for in the cause of labor, and which committee reported that President Wilson was the best man, was unanimously adopted.

LOCAL NO. 7, BRICKLAYERS AND MASONS IN SESSION

A regular meeting of Bricklayers' and Masons' Local No. 7, of Rochester, was held on Friday evening last. Considerable routine business was disposed of and it was decided to leave the matter of the election of a new Business Agent with the delegates to the Building Trades Council.

Several matters of a private nature were also taken up and disposed of.

Nearly 50,000 awards of compensation have been made in this State in the first nine months of its operation.

IS CANDIDATE FOR BUSINESS AGENT

Colonel Reed, of Beaver, Seeks Position Made Vacant by Resignation of S. S. Bowser.

Colonel W. Reed, of Beaver, Secretary of Local 1033, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, has announced his candidacy for the office of Business Agent of the Building Trades of Beaver county, made vacant by the resignation of S. S. Bowser.

Mr. Reed has been a union carpenter for the past twenty-four years, is a member of the Carpenters' District Council and the Central Labor Union, and a man of unquestioned integrity. That he possesses the qualifications essential to the proper conduct of the office which he seeks is not doubted by his scores of friends.

"THE FALL OF THE OPPRESSOR" ENDED

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Written by George A. Howe, Produced by Beaver Valley Film Co.

Reel No. 1 (Continued from last week)

The tellers were ready to count the votes and the Worthy Master directed the members present. There are members present entitled to vote, and the candidate receiving 14 of more votes will be declared elected Local Chairman. The Worthy Master directs the tellers to begin the count. They draw one ballot and announce the name of Messenger. Another, and again it's Messenger. The next three, are all for Messenger, and the secretary said, Messenger tally. Mike is seen with a smile as broad as the American continent, it looks like a walk-away for Mike. The tellers draw again, Messenger, they announce. The next ballot is for King. The next is for Messenger. The next and it's King, also the next three are for King and the secretary said, King tally. They draw three more all for Messenger, and the secretary said, Messenger tally. The next two they announce for Messenger. Mike has crossed his legs and is chewing his toby as if it were a tough piece of beefsteak. He realizes that with two more ballots he will go over the plate. Again the clear voice of the tellers rang out the name of King, four more ballots and they were all for King, and the secretary said, King, tally. We look at Mike and the smile has disappeared. The tellers have drawn another ballot and the lodge room is as quiet as a grave. King, they announce. Out comes another, and it's King. This time the vote, and we see the big drops of cold sweat standing out on Mike's forehead. The toby has disappeared, he evidently having swallowed it, for he is as white as a ghost. Another ballot and the clear voice called out the name of King. Mike is just about to get up and denounce the organization and all its members when the clear voice of the tellers rang out the name of Messenger. Again the candidates are tie with but one ballot remaining in the hat. Mike is ready to throw a fit. Another toby, and he rams it half way down his throat. The tellers are a little slow in getting out the last ballot, as it has been rolled up by its voter; again we look and the toby is gone. He never stopped to light it, but ate it without a light. The tellers arose and with the last ballot held aloft announce the name of Messenger. The secretary counted and announced the vote as being: Messenger, 14; King, 18. Mike had won by one vote, so they called on him for a speech, and he arose and said: "Worthy Master and Brothers: I really don't feel much like talking, but I do wish to congratulate you and the members on their wise election. I have always said that you men with your 'horny hands' of toll use more wisdom in the selection of the best man than any other set of men on earth, and it has been proven here tonight by your good judgment in this election."

Three years elapsed with very little doing, except that the Brotherhoods were gaining in number and the company was powerless to prevent them.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION ENDORSES R. F. KROSS

For the Office of Factory Inspector. Man is Badly Needed in the Beaver Valley

At the meeting of Central Labor Union in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton, Monday night, several matters of importance to local workers came up and were discussed at length. There was a good attendance and much interest shown.

A communication was received and read by Secretary Kross from the Butchers' Organization, of St. Louis, regarding recent trouble; also one from the Legislative Committee of the American Federation of Labor, relative to the political situation at large, and giving a resume of matters as they exist in the Presidential campaign. The letter pointed out the matters in which President Wilson has shown his attitude towards labor, and comparing them with the stand which Mr. Hughes had taken in the numerous opportunities afforded him while he was governor of New York, and in his various other official capacities.

Acting on a matter of the pressing need of a factory inspector in Beaver valley, the Central Labor Union went on record as endorsing R. F. Kross, a prominent local labor leader, of Beaver Falls, and secretary of the Central Body, for the position. Mr. Kross also has the endorsement of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, which was given him at the convention recently held in the Lyceum Theatre, Beaver Falls.

Other routine matters were taken up, discussed and disposed of in the usual manner.

because they needed men and it was impossible for them to discharge all the Brotherhood men, as it would cripple the service. The Brotherhoods were planning to make a demand on the company for an increase in wages. Mike in one of his reports to Mr. Hollohead, told him of the intentions of the men, and it was only a short time until the company posted notices on the bulletin boards that a 10% increase in wages would take effect the first of the following year, and of course, this being about what the men wanted, the move was postponed.

At this time "Down went the Maine and Up Sprung the Demand for War With Spain." President McKinley called for volunteers. Mike saw a grand opportunity to get rid of some good men, so he began to shout, "Remember the Maine," "Your Country's honor is at stake," and we see the boys in blue march away. Mike was there (to see them go) but, as the bitter struggle goes on in Cuba and the Philippines, a struggle far worse than war is on at home. The great trusts took advantage of the war, the meat trust made a fortune with rotten "canned beef," prices went sky-high; the wives and children of the boys in blue were forced into the mills and factories, and at last the war was over. Yes, the war with Spain was over, but the industrial war at home had just begun, when the boys in blue went to take their jobs back they found they had been displaced by their wives and children, and could only get work at the lowest possible figure.

The scene changes back to Conway. It is the year of 1904. After three years of tramping on the look for work, a number of Spanish-American boys are able to obtain work for the Pennsylvania Wagon Road. They join the Brotherhoods and again they form a demand for an increase in wages, and again the company beats them to it with a 10% increase. Some of the men were of the opinion that the Brotherhoods were useless, as their company was always there with an increase when it was necessary, and the unions lost a number of "short sighted" members. Mike had proven to be such a worthless committeeman that he was badly beaten by H. A. Pressel, who insisted that the demand of the men should be continued instead of permitting the company's 10% to block the move. So he came to Conway to tell the membership there just what the percentage increase would mean.

It is the lodge room of Local 328, Brother Pressel was called on to speak, and he arose and said: (To be continued next week.)

Twenty-three new unions were formed, recently, by the Belframers' International Union.

NOTED O. R. C. MAN TO SPEAK AT B. FALLS

Samuel R. Tarnier, Chairman of State Legislative Board of O. R. C. to Speak Before Club.

Samuel R. Tarnier, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the State Legislative Board of the Order of Railway Conductors, will speak at a meeting to be held on Saturday evening at eight o'clock, of this week, at the headquarters of the Woodrow Wilson Club, 1025 Seventh avenue, Beaver Falls. Mr. Tarnier, more than any other man, was responsible for the enactment of the Full Crew Bill in 1911, and is a man thoroughly versed in railway matters. He enjoys the reputation of being the best posted man in the state on matters of railway legislation, and he will tell those present at Saturday evening's meeting just exactly where the railway men stand on the eight-hour law and on other matters affecting labor.

Hon. W. H. Griffith, a prominent Pittsburgh attorney, will also speak at the meeting. Mr. Griffith is well known all over the state as an orator of exceptional ability, and his remarks will be well worth listening to.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Mrs. Foster Burges, of Rochester, wife of the recording secretary of the Bricklayers' and Masons' Local No. 7, is at home, following a week's confinement at the Rochester General hospital on account of illness.

Joe Beamer, president of Electrical Workers' Local No. 712, is spending the week hunting squirrels. It is expected Joe will bring home a number of "tails."

Wm. Frazier, secretary of Plumbers' Local No. 115, who was recently married, has removed from Ambridge to New Brighton.

E. M. Standley, of Beaver, is having a Minneapolis heat regulator installed in his residence at the corner of Third and East End avenues. Frederick Webster, of New Brighton, is doing the work.

To whom it may concern: A certain bricklayer has talked of making cider, but has evidently failed to do so. If he has, we are none the wiser. Hurry up "Bill."

Howard S. Jones, son of Alfred T. Jones, of Beaver, member of Plumbers' Local No. 115, is expected home from State College on Friday, to spend the week end with his parents.

J. H. Osborne, a brakeman of the Pennsylvania Company, who was injured when caught between two cars of his train at Homewood, was able to leave Providence hospital Wednesday for his home in Pittsburgh.

There will be no use for hunters to go over to the south side to hunt squirrels this season, "Bill" Florence and a crowd of friends were over there this week, and as a consequence game in that section is very scarce.

President S. Kemp, of the Painters' & Decorators' Union, recently issued warning against attempts to pass legislation, regulating or restricting strikes and compulsory arbitration. In Canada, Colorado, New Zealand or Australia, or wherever such laws were enacted, they proved destructive to the workers.

N. E. Ghrist Made Temporary Agent Until the Regular Election Is Held

LOCAL UNIONS MADE SEVERAL COMPLAINTS

A regular session of the Beaver County Building Trades Council was held on Thursday evening, October 12, with a good attendance of delegates present, all of whom made most favorable reports regarding working conditions in their crafts.

Several complaints from local unions were made at the meeting, relative to the manner in which Business Agent S. S. Bowser was handling his work. Following a brief discussion, Mr. Bowser tendered his resignation, to take effect immediately, the same being accepted on motion.

The question of electing a new Secretary and Business Agent was taken up, a motion that the matter be held up pending the arrival of the By-Laws from headquarters, was carried. N. E. Ghrist was elected to fill the office of Business Agent until further notice.

CLARENCE DARROW IS OUT FOR WILSON

Tells Why Wage Earners Should Support Wilson in the Coming Election.

Clarence S. Darrow, noted attorney and friend of labor, gives the following reasons why the wage earners of America should support President Wilson in the present campaign. He says:

President Wilson has shown a broad and deep sympathy for his fellow man. He is human. He talks less of markets than of men. Trade and industry are not his first concern. With Hughes, we hear about the tariff, about business, about the strict rules of law, about the inundation of foreign goods. In short, about money and his desire to save the country by being elected President.

Few men in high places have ever been moved by such sympathies as Wilson, and at the same time had the wide wisdom, historical knowledge and good judgment to know what could be accomplished.

If Hughes is to be elected, there should be some reason for present dissatisfaction and some hope in a change. Shall Mr. Wilson's foreign policy be changed? If so, how? It is dishonest for Mr. Hughes or Mr. Roosevelt to criticize Wilson's policy without showing what they would do. They dare not announce a policy of their own, different from the one that Mr. Wilson has followed with rare patience, fine judgment and self control.

Is Mr. Hughes against an eight-hour day? He says not. He is only against an eight-hour law. He dare not say he would go back—back to what? The road in that direction is long and ends in the slavery of the working man.

Who wants a change? Is it the farmer, the working man, the student, the man of letters, the lover of his country? Or is it the great interests with their swollen fortunes, their bloated arrogance, their impudent, unholy and everlasting demand for money.

ANOTHER TEST CASE FOR THE DANBURY HATTERS

Washington, Oct. 18.—Payment of $20,000 interest on the $252,000 judgment secured in the "Danbury hatters" case against members of the United Hatters' Union for boycotting the firm of D. E. Loewe & Co. in 1903, is contested in a test case appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States by the Savings Bank of Danbury, Conn. This institution holds savings of the union members attached to satisfy the judgment. The lower federal court held that the Loewe Co. was entitled to the interest.

The Supreme Court is now in session. It is not known whether the case will be passed on at an early date or not.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO UNION WORKERS

Interesting Data Gleaned By State Federation From All Points in the Country.

Butler—We are trying to bring the car workers into the union; they are on strike for more wages. Employment is steady in all plants. One new union is under way. All members are working for the labels.

Harrisburg—Machinists, painters, boot and shoe workers, bartenders, tailors and other crafts are forming locals. A textile union is under way.
Labeled goods can now be bought from three of the largest firms in this city.

Lancaster—Labeled goods are little known here because of no demand for them. Merchants have promised to lay in a full stock provided the demand is made and lived up to.

McKeesport—An organization of meatcutters was consummated during the past month, and a union of retail clerks is under way.

Pottsville—Bricklayers and plaster-ers have the eight hour day in many places. Other crafts have eight and nine hour day with Saturday half-holiday. Employment is steady about nine months in the year. Progress is being made in our work for the label.
Unions of sheet metal workers and car sho prepairmen are under way.

Wilkes-Barre—A city ordinance, requiring that all jitney drivers must give a bond to the extent of $2,500 to $5,000, has been passed by council and approved by the Luzerne County Court. Effort is now being made to force all those not bonded off the streets. A street car strike is on here.
If the jitney is ordered off the streets it may have some effect on the street car strike. Bakery workers are thinking of organizing. Employment is steady.

Coal Miners to Demand A 7-Hour Working Day

Bellaire, Ohio, Oct. 18.—Demands for a seven-hour day will be made by coal miners of the country at coming wage conferences, according to John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, speaking at the Miners' Day celebration held here. Such a move is necessary, he said, in order to conserve the economic and social welfare of members of the miners' organization and results from the increase in the use of mining machines.

President White viewed the progress made by the miners' union, declaring that the men by their collective efforts have caused themselves practically from the condition of serfdom to that "of respect in the eyes of the whole community."

"The persecution of our people in some sections where our organization has engaged in industrial strife, is without parallel," he added. "Particularly do I refer to the great strikes of Colorado, West Virginia and certain sections of Pennsylvania. But the steady entry of our movement into these citadels of opposition is bearing fruit and the opposition to the establishment of our union is gradually yielding to the enlightening influences of the organization and wage increases and reduction in hours of labor are being accomplished in the interest of these deserving fellow workers."

Thousands of miners from all parts of eastern Ohio attended the celebration and participated in a parade which preceded the address of President White. Other speakers were William Green, international secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America; John Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, and John Moore, president of the organization of miners of Ohio.

Miners' Day was celebrated generally throughout eastern Ohio, with a big picnic dinner and speechmaking.

Buffalo, N.Y.—"My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it."—Mrs. ANITA KURTZWEIG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs help, ask her to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letters, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

CITY IS OLD, YET MODERN

Rouen Has Double Charm for the Visitor Who Has a Proper Eye for Civic Beauty.

Rouen, the old capital of Normandy, whence William the Conqueror planned his wars against England, is a city which persists in keeping up to date through the centuries. It is a bustling modern town today in spite of its long and strenuous past. You can buy the oldest of antiques and the most modern of manufactures in Rouen, both strictly local products.

Like many American cities, Rouen makes its poorest impression from the railway station. No matter which train you pass through on, if you were to take what you see through the carriage window as a fair sample of the old city, you would never alight and investigate. It is necessary to have faith in Rouen, to believe in more beautiful things around the corner, and as is often the case, he who has faith is rewarded.

There are few places where the contrast between the medieval and the modern stands out more clearly than in this old-new city of France. The broad and handsome boulevards, the brightly lighted shops, the bustling cafes are very much of the twentieth century; and the grim old stone houses, the time blackened cavern walls seem to look down on the pageant of modern life flowing past them with a dignified puritanical disapproval. Leading off from some broad new boulevard you often find one of the old-time narrow streets, just wide enough for foot traffic, that was laid out in the days when Rouen was a walled city and the needs of the pedestrian, or at most the horseman, were the only ones to be considered.

The traditional idol of Rouen is Joan of Arc. They have named a street and a square for her, the best of her statues are found here, and there is a museum given over to relics of her strange career. Here is the tower where the unfortunate maiden was tried and condemned. Through these same streets she rode in her bright armor, and here she died at the stake.

WORKING TIME TO BE REDUCED

Important Concessions Made to Their Employees by Chicago Clothiers.

OTHER PAY ROLLS INCREASE

Government Statistics Show That Workers Are Receiving Greater Sums for Labor Than Ever Before—General News of Interest to Workers.

The Wholesale Clothiers' Association of Chicago announced it would reduce the working time for its 2,000 employees from 50 to 48 hours a week, but that the pay would remain the same and time and a half would be paid for overtime. The action will place more than $1,000,000 a year extra in the pay envelopes of the men and women employed in the garment manufacturing industry, according to Jacob Abt, president of the association, because of the great amount of extra work during the busy seasons. The change, which goes into effect December 1, is voluntary on the part of the employees.

Government figures show labor is increasing demand at advancing wages. The gains over a year back are very great, but the upward course in amount of employment held even during July, which is nominally a month of narrowed industrial activity. The data tabulated by the bureau of labor are for a large number of establishments in ten leading industries. For eight of these the increase in the number of employees on the pay rolls ranged from 4.2 per cent up to 27.1 per cent, comparing July of this year with the same month last year. The wage payment increased in larger measure, ranging from 0.2 to 49.5 per cent more, gains being in all ten of the industries under observation. The largest gains are in the iron and steel and kindred industries in boots and shoes, woollens, silk and men's clothing manufacture.

At the end of the first five years of the Wisconsin compensation law the state industrial commission will show that injured employees and the dependents of men killed in industry in that state since 1911 have been paid more than $3,000,000 in compensation. In the five years preceding 1911 a scant $600,000 was paid and much of this sum did not go to the injured persons, but to lawyers, doctors, ambulance chasers and others. The cost to the state through court proceedings is not included in the $300,000.

WOMAN'S PLACE IN INDUSTRY

World's War Has Made Conditions With Which Future Generations Will Have to Deal.

A Scotch munition factory is in the future to employ women only. This is one sign of the industrial conditions which are to confront the various nations at the end of the war. In some of the more autocratic governments there may be a temporary settlement of these conditions by force, but this will simply be postponing the inevitable, or perhaps still worse, be hastening an industrial revolution. The woman question involved in the industrial problems brought about by the war is bound to bring about radical changes.

Owing to the scarcity of labor the vicar of Bourne, Lincolnshire, England, Rev. H. Cotton Smith, and the curate, Rev. H. O. Henderson, assisted by the reverend, emptied a truck of coal at the railway station and delivered it by hand truck to various customers in the town.

Headgear in War. The German army was equipped with steel helmets long before the war was begun. After the conflict was well under way the French discovered that the percentage of head wounds sustained by their soldiers was much greater than the percentage in the German army. The French adopted the steel helmet. The British followed suit, and now even the slow-moving Russians have equipped a small part of their force with the best form of protection against head wounds. After Russia comes the United States with an announcement through the war department that steel helmets for American soldiers are being "considered."—Washington Herald.

Don't Neglect Kidneys Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Prescription, Overcomes Kidney Trouble

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood. The kidneys should receive some assistance when needed. We take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, yellow complexion, rheumatism, maybe weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. There is nothing else like it. It is Dr. Kilmer's prescription used in private practice and it is sure to benefit you. Get a bottle from your druggist. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Adv.

PRICES FOR NECESSITIES MUST BE STEADIED.

It is certain that labor will be restive, if for no other reason than the high cost of living, and will continue in this condition just as long as the prices of the necessities of life keep on soaring. The large shipments sent abroad of wheat and meats, of cloths and leather, and other products of the farm and mills, because of a greater need and lesser production in those countries which are now at war, leaves less for home consumption, and naturally causes an increase in the price of what is left for use here. This is one reason for the high cost of everything we buy.

But this is not the whole story. To these increases must be added a sum fixed by gentlemen's agreements, butter boards, packers' associations, transportation combinations, and other groups of exploiters.

The men who make up these combines are prosperous and undisturbed. They advise us to eat less and practice small economies, and be happy though hungry.

These men form part of the civic, commerce and merchants' associations throughout the country, and consequently we see no great activity or agitation on the part of these powerful bodies, that could apply the ways and means of eliminating the parasites who prey upon the public. They seem quite different to one of the greatest problems of our time, and one which should be dealt with immediately.

No hint has been given by the national government that it will take any action. If we start with the speculator, and limit his activities, we shall learn our true situation, and shall be able to make provision to meet it. This, then, should be the first step.

The problem is a difficult one, we admit. Workingmen will have to demand more and still more pay for their labor in order to meet the continually rising prices, and keep themselves and their families in the common necessities.

The high scale of wages is one of the results of the increased prices of food and clothing, but it is not the cause.

WILLIAM J. MELLON
Candidate for Congress from the Twenty-Fourth District.

"Pledged to the support of the policies of President Wilson," is the platform on which William J. Mellon is making his campaign for representative in Congress from the Twenty-fourth District, and is it winning a host of independent voters to his standard. Mr. Mellon is a life-long Democrat who, as he says, believes in the leadership of President Wilson as representative of the best elements of America and the world today. He is basing his plea for votes on the belief that all persons, regardless of party, who believe in the administration of President Wilson should support men for Congress who will follow his leadership and help complete his program of legislation for the benefit of all the people.

Mr. Mellon cites the Rural Credits bill, Agricultural Education bill, the Federal Trade Commission, the Tariff Commission, Workmen's Compensation, the Child Labor bill, the Clayton Anti-Trust Law, the Seamen's Act, the Federal Reserve Banking Law, the Sherwood Pension, the Income Tax, the creation of the Department of Labor and the Eight-hour Law, which alone, prevented a nation-wide strike of railroad men, and actually a state of civil war—achievements for four years that make it the duty of the masses of America to return the present national leadership November 7.

In referring to the Eight-hour Law Mr. Mellon said: "I consider it (the Eight-hour Law) nothing less than undebatable justice."

Mr. Mellon is a well known member of the Beaver Bar. He was raised to manhood on a farm near the town of Monaca, and has lived the greater part of his life since in that town. During his later life, as an attorney, he has continued to take an active interest in farm life and farm affairs, and today takes an active interest in the management of a large farm which he owns in Marion township, Beaver county.

He has taken an active interest in county affairs and town government, and for many years has been solicitor for the Borough of Monaca. Two years ago, with his family, he moved to Beaver, where he now resides.—adv.

RESOLUTION NO. 112.

A Resolution ratifying, confirming and approving Ordinance No. 100, entitled: "An Ordinance extending Tenth Street from Railroad Lane, the southern end thereof, to the State Road."

Whereas, at a meeting of Council held the seventeenth day of April, 1916, an Ordinance No. 100, being an Ordinance extending Tenth Street from Railroad Lane to the State Road, and providing for the opening and grading of the same for public travel, from Midland Avenue to said State Road, was finally passed, approved by the Burgess, entered upon the Ordinance Book, and duly advertised.

And whereas, at said meeting of Council, there were but four members of Council present, all of whom voted affirmatively on the passage of said ordinance.

And whereas, the general borough law requires the affirmative vote of three-fourths of the whole number of councilmen, to pass an ordinance opening or extending streets.

And whereas, the whole number of councilmen is seven and the number present and voting affirmatively on the passage of said Ordinance at said meeting is less than three-fourths of the whole number.

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that said Ordinance be ratified, confirmed and approved, and that the same be and remain valid and with as full force and effect as if the same had been passed by the affirmative vote of three-fourths of the whole number of councilmen.

Passed this second day of October, A. D. 1916.

J. J. O'NEILL,
President of Council.

M. C. DONOHUE,

At the Majestic

"Through the Wall"
"Through the Wall," the Vitagraph feature released through the V-L-S-E, comes to the Majestic on Monday, October 23. In this photoplay we find a number of views of a village of India. The straw-roofed huts are much in evidence as are the natives carrying their burdens. The means of transportation is an elephant which obscures the entire background when he stands in front of the camera. It also has a great number of scenes of the underworld which are worthy of the Blue Ribbon trade-mark and Rollin S. Sturgeon's direction. The play which is woven about a master criminal by that famed writer, Cleveland Moffet, is replete in the smallest details and rebounds with interest throughout.

"The House of the Golden Windows"
The appearance of Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely in a new Lasky feature is always a signal for pleasant anticipation. These two stars will be seen in their fourth co-starring photoplay produced by the Lasky Company, entitled "The House of the Golden Windows," at the Majestic, on Tuesday, October 24.

"The House of the Golden Windows" contains a story quite different from what they have done before as there is a delicate touch of fantasy intertwined with a plot of tense human emotion, love, excitement and happiness. It is what has come to be known as a picture of happiness. The photoplay will also mark the first appearance with these two stars, of Master Billy Jacobs and Victor Moore.

"The Alibi"

No detail in the atmosphere of "The Alibi," to be shown at the Majestic on Wednesday, Oct. 25, has been neglected. The large court room scene is correct to the minutest detail—the lawyers and the jury perform in the proper manner and the tension on the part of the audience is evident.

The interior of the house-boat is also worthy of commendation. The scene from the window is typical, too, and furthermore is not scenery, for this entire scene was taken on an old tug boat in Sheephead Bay. The scenes in the prison are also well staged.

"Where Love Leads"

All the seriousness which college men go about their athletics is depicted with unusual accuracy in the early reels of the new William Fox photodrama "Where Love Leads," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 26-27. Richard Warren falls in love with Marion Barstow, a dainty school girl. He is lured upon as the hops of winning the Thanksgiving game.

A few days before the game, Fred Mason (Royal Byron) substitute on the eleven for Warren, is approached by Duke Canton (Hayden Stevenson) and a plan hatched to throw the game, but it miscarries and Warren wins the game and is the hero of the hour.

At a dance given by Marion's father for the football men, Warren proposes to Marion, she admits her love but tells him he must first get the consent of her parents. Barstow looks with favor on Sir Rankin Chatsworth and refuses Warren, who leaves heartbroken, and obtains a position as reporter on a local paper, but is not much of a success. Warren tries to write but can think only of Marion.

At the home of Marion, Sir Rankin just proposed to her father that he give him Marion's hand in marriage. At her father's bidding Marion consents. Warren overhears and leaves without seeing her. After the marriage, the bridal pair sail for England. Just as the boat is leaving the dock, Marion sees Warren on the pier waving good-bye to her. But the story ends happily and in a surprising manner.

"The Woman in the Case"

Pauline Frederick will be seen at the Majestic Theatre, Saturday, Oct. 28th in the Famous Players adaptation of "The Woman in the Case." In this film the great emotional actress appears not only as the Woman, but as the devoted wife who risks her name and her personal safety in the struggle which she wages against the infuriated woman who is attempting to have Julian Rolfe condemned on the charge of murder in revenge for his having robbed her of a victim, his best friend.

Colonial, Beaver Falls.

"Friday, the Thirteenth"
Robert Warwick, the popular matinee idol, will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Monday, Oct. 23, in the World Film presentation of "Friday, the Thirteenth," by Thomas W. Lawson. Of all his stories, "Friday the Thirteenth," stands out prominently as the most vivid, fascinating and interest absorbing ever written. In the film play, made under the direction of Emile Chautard, William A. Brady and Mr. Lawson collaborated in making it a film masterpiece. It has already created quite a furore wherever shown, and will positively make the biggest hit of the season when shown here.

"The River of Romance"

Harold Lockwood and May Allison will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Oct. 25th, in "The River of Romance," a five-part Metro wonderplay produced by the Yorke Film Corporation. In this production Mr. Lockwood is seen in the role of a wealthy young man who decides to make his own way in the world. Not finding anything better to do he buys a broken-down motor boat, which he uses to ferry passengers among the islands in the St. Lawrence River.

There he meets the beautiful daughter of a rich New Yorker, on a visit to the Thousand Islands. He falls in love with her, but she rebuffs him. The girl is struck by his manner, nevertheless, but on account of his station in life, refuses at first to consider him seriously.

How he finally carries her away against her wishes in his boat and forces her into an elopement, when she thinks he is a burglar, forms a story of thrills and stirring situations.

"The Silent Battle"

With nature providing most of the settings plus several "interiors" of great beauty, "The Silent Battle" has been produced in a manner consonant with the record established by Bluebird Photoplays that have already passed in review and those who attend the exhibition of this feature at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Saturday, Oct. 28th, are sure to enjoy the settings and photography that will embellish the interesting story. J. Warren Kerrigan, Lois Wilson and Maud George will lead a clever company in presenting a picture-story replete with stirring events and fraught with a love story of keen interest.

STRAIGHT LINE IS THE FEATURE

Dominates in the Latest Importations From the French Masters.

DIRECTOIRE TO THE FRONT

Grecian Styles as Used Under the Directoire Are Also Revived—All Skirts Remain Full, But Cling to the Figure.

New York.—The dominating feature of the French gowns which recently arrived in this city is the straight line from the head to heels, which all the Paris masters seem to have adopted.

One of the best gowns from the house of Callot is called Vision, and is built of anathist velvet with Grecian bodice girdled with a narrow band of gold braid. A scatter flower is placed at the side of the waist. The tulle over one shoulder hangs across the back and follows the long, pointed train. The skirt is very short in front and the train reached out from the side.

An already famous gown resembles a mummy case. It is called Chrysis. The front is a straight panel with the bodice part of black chiffon, and the rest of black satin thickly embroidered with metal threads and green beads in blocks. A box plait of satin at the back is also embroidered. A gray one that has been greatly admired is called Sacre Feu. The bodice is of net embroidered in oxidized silver with a panel of the same down back and front. A gray tulle cape goes over the shoulders and begins at the middle of the neck in the back under a small narrow cravat of fire colored velvet ribbon, the ends drooping to the knees. Around the waist is a narrow belt of the same.

Bullox Strikes a New Note.
The moment the buyers arrived they saw that Bullox was going to make a sensation. In a way, this house took its pattern after Callot, but it has done brilliant things, and there is a feeling among the experts that the lines of Bullox will lead in a few weeks among the really smartly dressed, exclusive set.

A frock called Empress Josephine is of black velvet made in a straight line from the bust, with a pointed ornament of green and silver in front and back, a little to one side. The skirt is narrow, with a long train, and the small sleeves are of black tulle. There is an unlined band of gold lace below the hem. The skirt is longer at the right side and is laid in plaits at the hips.

There is also a jade green brocade gown with stamped silver flowers which are very vague in outline. It is called Lucree. There are two straight panels in front and back, also a long train and a half bodice of white tulle and rhinestones. There are long, medieval sleeves.

A marked deviation from the medieval style is in a gown by Bullox called "Watteau." It is of flowered silk, with many groups of roses, and open paniers edged with gold lace.

Cheruit has sent over a coat gown of black panne velvet, which is distinguished. The plain skirt has a train, slight fullness and is unusually long in front. The jacket blouse reaches the knees, is shaped in an austere, medieval manner, and is fastened down the front with three large gold ornaments. There is a narrow black velvet girdle slipped down over the hips, fastened in front with another gold ornament. There are straight, short elbow sleeves. The plating of the girdle has created a good deal of discussion on this side of the water. Some designers put it around a normal waistline; others insist that Cheruit intends it to be dropped well below the waistline.

There is also a medieval gown of taffeta skirt, which reverts to the barrel effect that Callot exploited last winter. It is trimmed with many irregular rows of black sequins run around the hips. There is a square, medieval cuirass of heavy silver lace over white tulle. It is loosely belted at the normal waistline. The bodice is quite short and full and there is a large, drooping silver rose at the side. The half-low neck in front is outlined by a straight collar of white tulle which grows much larger in the back, and it and the silver lace droop together in the back, hoodlike, nearly to the waistline. Beneath this hood is passed a straight piece of flesh-pink chiffon. Loose, straight sleeves of the silver hang to the elbow.

Worth and His Rhinestones.

One of the most popular and high-priced evening models by Worth called Kubis, has an extra full skirt of gathered ruby tulle hanging straight from a high waistline. The bodice is cut to a low V in the back, ornamented with a spreading butterfly of red beads, which holds in place the court train of red velvet. The edges of this train are attached to the back of the full tulle skirt, which serves as a lining to the train, and while not holding it closely to the body, does not allow it to turn over on itself. The entire front of the bodice is a butterfly arrangement of ruby rhinestones, in the well-known Worth manner.

There is also a sumptuous evening coat, quite significant of Worth, made of ruby-colored velvet, its wide sleeves finished with a deep fringe of ostrich tips, to match the immense collar which is entirely made of these feathers.

Georgette Exploits the Grecian.

Georgette has sent over a gown called Phryne, which is quite Greek. It is of flesh-pink crepe de chine. There is a draped surplice at the back, but it is straight across the front below the collar-bone. The loose armholes are edged with braid and there is a loose gilt bracelet across the top of the arm. The skirt has long, drooping folds at the hips. There is a loose, gold girdle tied at the back, ending in red and pink roses, and a wreath of red and pink roses thrown over one shoulder at the back. There is a petticoat of satin, with a deep tucked ruffle of flesh pink chiffon.

Another gown by Georgette called Groselle is of black satin, the skirt placed on the bodice with Elizabethan plaits at the sides and back. It is a trifle long waisted. The bodice and high, loose collar are fastened down the back with black buttons, and there is much fancy braiding in oyster gray.

The Directoire Hat Today.

The milliners and the dressmakers go hand in hand in emphasizing the directoire and the middle ages. So quickly has the fashion spread in America that the conservatives are wondering where they can get exclusive hats. The blessed part of it is that variety has been the keynote of French originality this season.

The dominating feature is the high crown, no matter what the brim. Of ornamentation, there is very little. Metal threads are conspicuously used, as they are in gowns. The crowns are soft and can be pulled in and out of shape as the wearer will. While the wide brim remains, the low, round crown has vanished.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry on Human Nature

SAY! Did you ever sit around in the Pullman Car and study a few paragraphs from the world's most famous text book—human nature? Go after it the first chance you get—you'll learn a lot.

For instance, during a trip recently on one of Mr. Pullman's sleep-wagons I soon learned that the brisk and breezy crew in the seats around me were commercial travelers, and they were fanning each other with fairy tales about the goods they sold.

I learned that the one who looked like a human apple was affectionately known as Slim because he's so fat that every time he turns around he meets himself coming back.

And it wasn't hard to learn that the tall one with the sandy hair was Nick Dalrymple, who goes after the orders for a hardware house in Columbus and knows everybody in the world—bar one family living in Yonkers.

Then there was Tod Gilpin, who cuts ice for a match factory in Newark, and he's the life of a small party.

Tod's main hold is to creep into the "reading room" of a Rube hotel after the chores are done of an evening and throw a salvo at the come-ons. Tod tells them that their town is the brightest spot on the map, and they warm up to him and want to buy him sarsaparilla and root beer. Then when he gets them stuck on themselves he sells them matches.

Presently I learned that the party with the mauve forehead and the magenta mustache was Mutt Dawson—the most reckless spendthrift with his words and the meanest man to the English language I ever listened to.

The Dream Builders' Association was in full session when Wedge Murray came over and weighed-in with the party.

Wedge is a saucy little party, five foot four, with three foot shoulders. I learned that Wedge sells cleaned shirt waists for the Shine Brothers, and if he's ever let into the firm it will be as a brother.

Wedge is one of those goose-headed ginks who scratch gravel and start in to make a killing every time they see a pretty girl.

Across the aisle sat two pot ca-

He sat on the arm of the seat and steamed up.

In less than a minute he crowded the information on them that he was a millionaire who had escaped from Los Angeles, California, and he was just going to put them both in grand opera, when Slim toddled over to him and said: "Next stop Erie! You told me to remind you to send that telegram to your wife in Logansport."

Curtain.

Of course the fact that Wedge didn't have a wife in Logansport or elsewhere made no difference. He couldn't prove an alibi, so he faded out into the day coach and became as one who isn't.

The Roast-Beef Sisters seemed to be all carved up about something or other.

While these more or less grin-producing incidents were occurring there was ever present in my own noodle the grim reality that bedtime was approaching and I had drawn an upper berth.

SAY! I'll be one of a party of six to go before Congress and tell all I know about an upper berth.

As a place to tie up a small bundle of sleep a boiler factory has it beat to a whimper.

Strong men weep every time the ticket agent says, "Nothing left but an upper," and lovely women have hysterics and begin to make faces at the general public when the colored porter points up in the air and says, "Madam, your eagle's nest is ready far up the mountainside."

While the porter was cooking up my attack of insomnia I went out in the smoking room to drown my sorrow, but I found such a bunch of sorrow killers out there ahead of me that I had to hold the comb and brush in my lap and sit up on the towel rack while I took a little smoke.

Did you ever notice on your travels that peculiar hog on the train who pays two dollars for a berth and always displaces eight dollars' worth of space in the smoking car?

If he would bite the end of a piece of rope and light up occasionally he wouldn't be so bad, but six on the smoke for him.

He simply sits there with a face like a fish and keeps George Nicotine bucket car on the train, so he offered to buy the drinks.

"Don't you believe that all men are born equal?" inquired the Kansas Cityite.

"Yes, but some of them have pull enough to get over it," responded the Providence philosopher; whereupon the smokeless hog by the window took out a flask and began to dampen his conscience.

Just then the towel rack fell with a crash, and after I picked up the comb and brush and myself I decided to retire to my bracket on the wall and try to sleep.

When I left the smoker the smokeless hog was occupying two and a half seats and was now busy breathing in some second-hand cigarette smoke which nobody seemed to care for.

"How do I reach my Alpine bungalow?" I said to the porter, whereupon he laughed toothfully and hit me on the shins with a stepladder.

The spectacular gent who occupied the star chamber beneath my garret

"Their Names Were Millie and Tillie," was sleeping as noisily as possible, and when I started up the stepladder he began to render Mendelssohn's obligato for the trombone in the key of G.

Above the roar of the train from away off in lower No. 2 faintly I could hear an answering bugle call.

I climbed up prepared for the worst and in the twinkling of an eye the porter removed the stepladder and there I was, sitting on the perilous edge of my pantry shelf with nothing to comfort me save the exhaust of a professional snorer.

After about five minutes devoted to a parade of all my sins, I began to try to extract my personality from my coat, but when I pushed my arm up in the air to get the sleeve loose my knuckle struck the hardwood finish and I fell backward on the cast-iron pillows, breathing hoarsely like a busy jackrabbit.

I waited about ten minutes while my brain was bobbing back and forth with the excitement of running fifty miles an hour over a careless part of the country, and then I cautiously tried to approach my shoe laces.

SAY! If you're a man and you weigh in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, most of which is in the region of the equator, you will appreciate what it means to lie on your back in an upper berth and try to get your shoes off.

And this goes double for the man who weighs more than 200 pounds. Every time I reached for my feet to get my shoes off I bumped my head off; so I decided that in order to keep my head on I had better keep my shoes on also.

Then I tried to divorce my suspenders from my shoulders but just as I got the suspenders half way over my head I struck my crazy bone on the rafters, and there I was, suspended between heaven and earth, but praying with all my heart for a bottle of arnica.

Finally I decided to sleep as nature made me, with all my clothes on, including my rubbers.

So I stretched out, but just then the train struck a curve and I went up in the air till the ceiling hit me, and then I bounced over to the edge of the precipice and hung there, trembling on the verge.

Below me all was dark and gloomy, and only by the hoarse groans of the snorers could I tell that the Pullman company was still making money.

Luck was with me, however, for just then the train struck an in-shoot curve which pushed me to the wall, and I bumped my head so completely that I fell asleep.

When I woke up a small package of daylight was peeping into the car, so I decided to descend from my cupboard shelf at once.

I peeped out through the aluminum curtains, but there was no sign of the colored porter and the stepladder was invisible to the naked eye.

The car was peaceful now, with the exception of a gent in lower No. 4, who had a strange hold on a Beethoven sonata and was beating the cadence out of it.

I made a short prayer and concluded to fall out, but just then one of my feet rested on something solid; so I put both feet on it and began to step down.

Alas, however, the moment I got my weight on it my stepping stone gave way and I fell overboard with a splash.

"How dare you put your feet on my head?" yelled the man on the ground near my berth.

"Excuse me, it was like something wooden," I whispered while I dashed madly for the smokeless car.

From that day to this I have never been able to look a Pullman car in the face, and whenever anybody mentions an upper berth to me I lose my presence of mind and get peevish.

If you have ever been there, you will know you don't blame me!

Do you?

Life today brings many worries and worrying brings on kidney troubles, as the doctors say. Kidney weakness reveals itself in backache, pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy headaches and urinary disorders. Be cheerful. Stop worrying. And, to strengthen weak kidneys, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the kidney remedy that is used and recommended the world over.

MOVIE "SUPERS" IN PROTEST

Claim Salaries Do Not Fit Increased Duties and Responsibilities of the Work.

The "supers" of the moving pictures to the number of ten thousand have appealed to the American Federation of Labor to help them. The days when in the "legitimate" they could get several dollars a night for looking the part have given place to long hours of exposure to bumps and thumps and thrilling manning and falling, for a wage scale seriously reduced, they maintain, by the exorbitant commissions demanded by the agents. The public is no longer satisfied to let a dummy fall from a cliff or jump from a motor car to a train, or stab a man-eating shark, or poison the cube of a she-bear in her den. It expects the "super" himself to be an "inflammable idiot," blithe and resilient, whether he is dropped from a house roof or smothered under a haystack. He must be a glutton for punishment, and unto the indurated symmetry of a marble faun the lungs of a Ted Meredith and the muscles of a Howard Berry.

Yet for all this he is to have the pay of a steevedore or a station porter. He thinks he deserves the wages of a Mexican bullfighter, at least. He suffers from competition. He is a "supermerary." He gets the wages paid in callings that put little or no premium on mentality. Bruises, sprains and gashes, in a world dripping with gore, have a lessened market value since they have become part of the accepted order. The trivial wounds of civilians are little noted for the real and widespread suffering among the soldiers. The "super" would win at once as a warrior the sympathy that is denied to his cinematographic trials and sufferings.

Motion Picture Industry.

The motion picture is more than fifty years old if we understand by that term any device for producing the optical illusion of moving objects. These toys were called by various names, such as thaumatope, zoetrope, stroboscope, phenakistoscope, stereoscopic cabinet, kinematograph, etc. The first exhibition of photographic motion pictures was made by Henry Hoyt, in Philadelphia, in 1867.

Youngstown, O., now has 21,000 public school pupils, an increase of 2,000 over 1915.

Their names were Millie and Tillie, and they wore Feather Duster hats. Millie was fully aware that she could back Duse off the map, and Tillie was ready to bet a week's salary that she could make Barnhardt feel like she was out in the storm we had day before yesterday.

Tod called them the Roast-Beef Sisters, Rare and Well-done.

In a minute the castors on Wedge's neck began to turn.

Nick put the others wise with a wink, so they lit the fire and began to cook it up.

Wedge's heart was warming for the birds in the gilded cage.

"Nothing into it!" said Slim. "It's a plain case of Appomattox. The war is over and they are yours, Wedge!"

Wedge turned a few more volte into his twinkling lamp.

"Lower your mauls, Wedge, and drop alongside; you've made the landing," suggested Nick.

Wedge began to feel his necktie and play patty-cake with the little bald spot on the top of his head.

"Stop the hamson and get out; you're at your corner," said Tod.

The Sweet Dreams across the way were giving Wedge the glorious eye-roll, and he felt that dinner was ready.

Two busy gazabes were discussing politics when I squeezed into the smoker on this particular occasion, and I judge they both had lower berths; otherwise their minds would have been busy with dark and personal fears of the future.

"Well," exclaimed the gabby one from Kansas City, "what is politics? Well, what is it?"

"Politics," replied Wise Willie from Providence, "politics is where we get it—sometimes in the bank, sometimes in the neck!"

Everybody present peered the cover off a loud laugh and the smokeless hog at the window stole four inches extra space so that he could shake more when he giggled.

"Well," resumed the inquisitive person from Kansas City, "what is a politician? Do you know? Eh, well, what is a politician?"

"A politician," replied the fat man from Providence, "a politician is the reason we have so much politics."

Much applause left the hands of those present, and the smokeless hog turned sideways so that he could make the others more uncomfortable.

"Perhaps," intimated gabby Jim from Kansas City, "perhaps you know what a statesman is, eh?"

"A statesman is a politician in good luck," was the comeback from our fat friend from Providence, and in the enthusiasm which followed the smokeless hog found out there was no

SCIENTIFIC MANAGEMENT REJECTED BY CONGRESS

Hon. Clyde H. Tavenner Presents Some Vital Points Of the System.

WOULD THROW MANY MEN ON SCRAP HEAP

The following is a number of excerpts from the remarks of Hon. Clyde H. Tavenner, of Illinois, regarding this pernicious system, and its effect on the men who come under its relentless sway:

"What is the basis of the much-discussed Taylor system of 'scientific' shop management?"

Will it really enable a workman, without wearing him out prematurely, to earn more wages while putting in less time than he is now putting in per day, as Frederick W. Taylor, the originator of the system contended? Or is the basis of the system in actual practice merely the "scientific" overworking of men for the purpose of increasing dividends regardless of whether the speeding up is injurious to the health and happiness of the victim?"

It may be stated at the outset that the Taylor propaganda contains many excellent features of systematization and standardization. To these the workmen have not objected, could not object. It has been intimated the labor organizations oppose these reasonable and sensible features of the Taylor system, but there is not a word to substantiate it in the hearings of five investigations of the system—four by Congress and one by the Commission on Industrial Relations.

Many well-meaning employers and many men who are sincere in their desire to see the conditions of workingmen improved, have been misled as to what the Taylor system is and as to the motive behind it. I will mention, for instance, Mr. Supreme Court Justice Brandeis, a man who more than once has served the public and that, too, without being on the payroll of the public. Justice Brandeis has spoken approvingly of the Taylor system methods. But with all respect to Justice Brandeis, I believe he is honestly mistaken in his idea that the Taylor system was conceived in the interests of man. It was not. It was conceived in the interests of greed, and in operation it exploits man and does not benefit him.

I do not believe the man lives who can successfully defend before an audience of average American citizens the Taylor system as Mr. Taylor himself described it.

Imagine Justice Brandeis, or any other man, confronted on the public platform with Mr. Taylor's own words, used in describing how he installed the Taylor system at the plant of the Bethlehem Steel Co.: "The tasks were all purposely made so severe that not more than one out of five laborers (perhaps even a smaller percentage than this) could keep up."

I desire to repeat that the motive behind the stop watch and other speeding up features of Taylorism is not efficiency, as the average man understands the meaning of the word, but an inordinate desire for a greater profit from the toil of man, and back of that desire is greed.

In its last analysis the Taylor system is simply the "scientific" grinding down of the spirit, the hopes, the ambitions, as well as the physical bodies of those who toil, and for what? In order that dividends may be increased. The thing is too inhuman and too murderous to be imposed on beasts of burden, to say nothing of imposing it upon fellow human beings. It may be said to the credit of the average American employer that he has refused to go to anything like the extremes that Mr. Taylor recommended.

This legislation is of importance to all workingmen, whether they are employed in Government establishments or not, because the Taylor system could have been installed in Government plants, the fact could have been made use of to the disadvantage of employees in private plants where the installation of the system is contemplated. Private employers would be in the strategic position of being able to assert to their protesting employees that the Taylor system had been endorsed by the United States Government, and that if it was an inhuman and bad system Uncle Sam would not be putting his official stamp of approval upon it by introducing it in the Government arsenal and navy yards.

Let us analyze this theory a little further: A man is born into the world. He discovers that title to the coal, timber and other natural resources of the earth that were unquestionably intended by the Creator for all His children have rightfully or wrongfully been acquired by a comparatively few persons; that these sources of life, intended for the use of man, have been taken possession of by a mere handful of men. Our subject finds, too, that practically all wealth and industry are also controlled by a comparatively few.

Therefore, with practically all of the natural resources gobbled up, and with wealth and industry controlled by the few, about the only chance for life remaining to the worker is the privilege of obtaining employment. If even this should be denied him he would have to perish, which, however, was not nature's intention with respect to man. Nature intended that man should live, and therefore, it is man's right to labor to obtain the necessities of life with which to live.

And having the right to labor somewhere, for some one, man has the right, also, to treat with his employers as to the conditions under which he shall labor.

To say that if a workman is dissatisfied with the Taylor system his proper course is to leave that particular employer is not in any sense a solution of the problem, because the problem would still exist in the next plant in which he might find work, and the next, and the next, and so on. It is not practical for a workman to be wandering about from shop to shop, and under such a method of solving labor problems the employers would invariably win, as the necessities of the workman and those dependent upon him would ultimately force him to accept employment at any wage offered and under any conditions that the employer might decide upon.

Under the Taylor system the man is of secondary importance to the machine. Here is the "science" of it: Be careful of the machinery, because if it breaks down or wears out it costs money to repair it. But if a workman breaks down or wears out, it costs the employer nothing to replace him. There are always fresh men waiting at the door to be employed. So as long as the supply of men holds out the Taylor system can go on.

But, whether Mr. Taylor took it into consideration or not, it is a fact that if a workman, because of long-continued overexertion, is finally thrown prematurely on the scrap heap, some one has to stand the loss even if the employer does not, and where the workman is the head of a family it is the family that must bear the burden.

General William Crozier, Chief of Ordnance of the War Department, admitted frequently that under the speeding-up process workmen had increased their output over 200 per cent, and that the wages of some of the men had been increased as much as 33 per cent. The increased profit to the employer, therefore, is the difference between 200 per cent and 33 per cent, and even considerably more than this, because where there is an increase in the output of this proportion there is a considerable decrease in the overhead charges per unit, and tuncate enough to receive anything like 33 per cent increase.

And this is the milk of the coconut! It reveals the motive behind the introduction of the Taylor system. Its sole object and purpose is to induce the workman to perform more work for less pay per unit. Its operation in the end is to decrease instead of increase wages.

That the system increases dividends for the employer there is no doubt. In fact, it is a get-rich-quick scheme for the employer who is heartless enough to use it to its final analysis, but there are very few employers who will resort to its use.

RAILROAD SHOP MEN RECEIVE AN INCREASE

Du Bois, Pa.—Over 1,000 Buffalo Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad shop men organized, but were almost immediately forced to strike because of discrimination. After a two-days' suspension of work, the management agreed that all men would be reinstated in their former positions and that there would be no discrimination because of union affiliation. Wages were increased 15 per cent for day workers and 10 per cent for piece workers. Improved shop conditions were also agreed to. The shop men of the same road at Salamanca, N. Y., and Punxsutawney, Pa., were then organized. These workers were successful in securing the same agreement as at Du Bois.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO UNION WORKERS

Interesting Data Gleaned By State Federation From All Points in the Country.

Farm laborers, in the vicinity of Fowler, Ind., are organizing with the object of demanding four cents per bushel for husking corn.

The trolley strike, at Allany, Troy and nearby cities has been called off, pending a settlement by arbitration.

Asbestos workers and street laborers, of DuBois, and bartenders and laborers, of Falls Creek, have organized and secured more pay.

Compensation must be paid if a man is killed by lightning, while at work, according to a ruling made last week by the State Board.

The jitney and bus drivers, of Baltimore, are organizing.

Officers of the New York Transit systems, last week, acknowledged that the strike of their employees had already cost the companies $5,000,000, because of double pay for strike-breakers, double overtime, private detectives, strike-breaking agencies and other outlays, including the stolen fares.

Coal miners, in Southern Colorado, all are joining the United Mine Workers' Union and the civil war precipitated by the coal operators in that section has been in vain. Unions have been formed in a score of camps with, in some cases, one hundred per cent organization.

Wages, ranging from $15 to $20, have been increased in the Spinners' trade, according to reports received at the annual convention of that trade.

John I. Nolan, San Francisco's Union Labor Congressman, has again been re-nominated at the primaries, receiving both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

Teachers of Pueblo, Colorado, are organizing.

Toledo, Ohio, Plumbers and Gasfitters have secured an eight-hour day, at $5.00 per day and a two-year contract.

Chicago Broommakers have signed agreements with 31 local factories, increasing wages from $3.00 to $4.00 per week and reducing the hours from nine to eight.

The tailors, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Sharon, Pa., have secured an increase in wages.

The Board of Aldermen, of Yonkers, New York, refuse to repeal an ordinance, requiring motormen to have 15 days' local experience before operating street cars. This action prevents the use of imported thugs to operate cars and endanger the lives of passengers.

The adoption of the joint arbitration agreement by the Baltimore Convention of the I. T. U., and the representatives of the Newspaper Publishers' Association, is considered the greatest move for permanent peace in the printing trades that has ever been made.

"The eight-hour day has increased our earnings by millions and made our men better off," said Henry Ford, in an interview with a New York newspaper reporter. The automobile man declared, without reserve, in favor of the eight-hour day. When asked how about the railroads, he replied, "They don't run their locomotives eight hours at a stretch. Why do they work their men more? It is because men are more plentiful and easier to get. Tell them to diminish the weight of their rolling stock, use better and lighter steel, cut the weight of their cars, carry more freight and passengers, use less fuel and avoid wear and tear of the roadbeds."

Attorney-General Gregory is attempting to secure the Saturday half-holiday for federal government employees.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COUNCIL OF CARPENTERS

Holds Session at Wilkes-Barre—
Has 72 Locals Affiliated.
Big Attendance.

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE WAS IN ATTENDANCE

D. S. Leighty, of Beaver, Second Vice President of the Pennsylvania State Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, has returned home from a meeting of the Board, held on Monday and Tuesday, October 16th and 17th, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. A full quota of Board members was present including the following:

D. A. Post, president; Thomas Hickey, first vice president; D. S. Leighty, second vice president; George A. Wuenschel, third vice president; Eugene B. Strunk, fifth vice president; Levi L. Hamaker, fourth vice president; P. S. Bowman, seventh vice president, and James A. Ryan, secretary-treasurer.

With the full Board present, a great amount of business was transacted during the two-day meeting. The proposed change in the General Constitution, submitted from the General Convention, was taken up and discussed. The main issue before the Board, which was left over from the last convention of the State Council, held at Erie, was a proposition to draft a bill requiring State inspection of all buildings. This was done, the of the State Federation of Labor, will present the bill to the lawmakers at Harrisburg, and work to have the same enacted into a law. A copy of the Texas state law relative to the inspection referred to, will be secured in order that the sponsors of the bill may familiarize themselves with the best features in the Texas law.

A discussion as to the best means to secure all locals of the state to affiliate with the State Council was held, the Board members being instructed to thoroughly canvass all districts and urge the various locals to come in. At the present time the State Board has 72 locals affiliated, as well as five district councils, making a total membership of 12,800. In the state there are 149 locals, with an estimated membership of 18,000. While the following ruling provides for an enforced membership of the various locals with the State Council, it was decided by the board to urge the matter with the locals, in preference to using force, with the hope and expectation that they will be made to see the advantages to be gained by affiliation and will come in without the necessity of resorting to the enforcement of the law, which reads as follows:

"When State Councils or Provincial Councils are organized and are composed of as many as five (5) Local Unions of the State or Province, representing 55 per cent, of the membership, it shall be obligatory on all local unions to affiliate with said Council."

One of the main objects of the State Council is to have a complete organization of all locals in the State of Pennsylvania, with sufficient support to allow of the placing of a State Organizer in the field for all Brotherhood purposes of organization and matters of an urgent nature, in such cases where it might be impossible to get a national organizer on the ground in time to cope with any difficulties that may arise.

The question of the New York carpenters' strike was taken up and a free and full discussion of the matter was had. The board sanctioned the action taken by the Grand Officers in their disposition of the affair. Practically every district in the State will support the old officers of the International for re-election.

On Monday evening, after the conclusion of the session, the delegates paid a visit to the Old Fell House, the same having been operated as a hotel since 1823, at which time Judge Jesse Fell was granted a license, which cost the munificent sum of $9.30, and was not paid for until the following year. The building was erected in 1787 and is a place of great historic interest. The delegates toasted their shins before the first grate in which anthracite coal was burned in the state, the late Judge Fell having started the fire in 1808. Also in the same room the first court ever held in Luzerne county was convened, and the Lodge of Free Masons was organized there in 1794. That the delegates were interestingly entertained by the visit, goes without saying.

On Tuesday evening the delegates were entertained with a lunch and smoker in their honor by Local No. 514, of Wilkes-Barre, the occasion being an unusually pleasant one. There were good things to eat and good things to smoke and good speeches were made by a host of good fellows. Building Inspector Held was chairman of the entertainment committee, and he proved a right royal entertainer, the visitors being greatly impressed by his ability to see that everybody had a good time and had all they could eat and smoke.

CONVENTION NOTES

Arthur A. Quinn, former vice president of the U. B. of C. & J. of A., was present and met with the board. Mr. Quinn is now president of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor.

Needless to say, the delegates will never forget John Schneider's Hotel. It is said of this particular hostelry that when it opened John threw the key away, and said key has never been found up to the present time, therefore the hotel never closes.

Sombody proposed that Delegate Leighty would be more or less of a success if he were a paying teller in some bank, but when it was discovered that he did not possess the ability to do so, the proposition was dropped.

as a financier he was a flat failure. Tuesday morning Secretary Ryan went in search of General Organizer Hickey. Encountering a chambermaid on his quest, Ryan asked her if she had recently seen a little sawed-off runt of a fellow in the room occupied by Hickey. The maid replied that the man who answered that description had just gone down stairs. Whereupon, Ryan proceeded to tell the maid that the "runt" was "nutty." The result of the joke was that the maid passed the word around among the hotel help and whenever Hickey showed up in the dining room, there was a scrap to see which one was compelled to wait upon him. It is reported that Bro. Hickey had to remain in town several hours after the meeting adjourned, endeavoring to impress the fact upon the hotel help that he was in reality, a sane man.

When President D. A. Post arrived home Tuesday morning, about 6:30 a. m., from the meeting of Monday night, his better half informed him that he had better return whence he had come, and closed the door.

Sombody said Wuenschel of Erie, swiped the Dutch song from Schneider's place. How about it George?

The street car strike in Wilkes-Barre is still on. The jitney owners, who were required by council and the court to file bonds of $2,500 to $5,000 each, have appealed their case and will continue to do business until the decision of the higher court is made on the case.

THE NEW BRIGHTON CARPENTERS MEET

Carpenters' Local No. 246, of New Brighton, held a regular meeting on Wednesday evening. Routine business was transacted and five new members were received: A. P. Reed and C. E. Warfield on Clearance Cards, and John E. Hill, of New Brighton, and C. G. Wick and J. S. Patterson, of Beaver Falls.

A representative of the Atkins Saw Co., a former organizer for the Brotherhood, was present at the meeting and gave the members an interesting talk on the election of the officers at the next International election.

By a popular vote, Detroit voters approved a charter amendment which provides that common labor, employed by the city, shall not receive less than $2.50 per day, and that no mechanics, at any trade, shall receive less than the highest rate paid in his trade in the same class of work.

CARPENTERS' DISTRICT COUNCIL IN SESSION

Much Business Transacted and Excitingly Favorable Reports Were Received.

A regular meeting of the Carpenters' District Council was held Monday evening at the headquarters in the Kramer block, New Brighton. A communication was presented from Fred Marquart of Rochester, who had been placed on the unfair list, requesting that the Council take action to have his name removed from said list. The matter was turned over to Carpenters' Business Agent J. A. Krox, who will investigate and report at the next meeting. A communication from the Legislative Committee of the American Federation of Labor was received, read and filed.

Reports of delegates from the Building Trades Council were heard. The Council concurred with Local 246 in the issuance of permits to the following members to work under shop and factory rules: Ralph Coleman, E. O. Hughes, J. W. Bristol, Harry Anderson, G. F. Herman Wm. Thomas, C. D. Holmes and John D. Wick.

The report of the Business Agent was read and filed. Bro. Hershberger was seated as a delegate from Local 246. The committee on the new constitution reported, the matter being held over until the next meeting. In case there is too much business to be transacted at this meeting, a special meeting will be called.

The report of the auditors was received and filed, the same showing most satisfactory financial condition. Business Agent Kronk of the Carpenters, made his report, the same being duly received and filed.

CONTRACTING FIRM MEETS OFFICIALS

Wells & Carley, of Sharon, Visited By Representatives of the Carpenters' Locals.

D. A. Post, Board Member of the Carpenters' International Union and President of the Pennsylvania State Council of Carpenters, and D. S. Leighty, vice president of this district, visited the Sharon Local on Tuesday night, in relation to the Wallis & Carley Co., of that city, working open shop in the Beaver Valley District.

The Sharon carpenters are willing to assist this district in any way that they can in making this work union, and the visitors were received with much cordiality, their local appointing a committee which, with Brothers Post and Leighty, called on the Wallis & Carley Co., and had a lengthy conference with Mr. Wallis and Mr. Carley in person.

Brother Post stated that the laws of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, did not permit our men working for any firm in any district, when that firm employs non-union men in another district, and for that reason this conference was held in order that there might be some solution arrived at.

The committee being unable to come to any satisfactory conclusion, decided to visit the Woodlawn job and endeavor to meet Mr. Taylor, whom they were informed had full supervision of these matters. Brothers Post, Leighty and Kronk will endeavor to meet Mr. Taylor in Woodlawn this evening, after noon.

Brother Taylor is a member of the teachers of Missions, Monday evening organizing.

O. R. C. Official Praises Wilson at Beaver Falls

Samuel R. Turner, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Legislative Board of the Order of Railway Conductors, delivered an address at the Woodrow Wilson headquarters, in Beaver Falls, Saturday evening last. The speaker, who, more than any other man, was responsible for the placing on the statute books of the Full Crew Bill, was listened to by a crowd which packed the hall to the doors. His arguments as to why it was the duty of workmen, as well as others, to vote for President Wilson's re-election, were well received, was evidenced by the applause which followed each telling point. Mr. Turner spoke in part as follows:

Having the honor to be the chairman of the Pennsylvania State Legislative Board, Order of Railway Conductors, I have had a great deal of experience dealing with legislative matters and I suppose that no real understanding can be had of the attitude of these transportation brotherhoods toward legislative enactments without a brief sketch of what has led up to them.

Generally speaking, these brotherhoods are a principle of union labor organized for the purpose of protecting their members industrially, and not until recent years have they deemed it wise to enter into the congressional and legislative halls to settle their differences by legislation, believing that it was infinitely better that the settlement of these questions which arose between themselves and their employers should be settled by direct negotiations between the two parties; but as time has gone on, they have been adopting the latter methods of settling many of their grievances by appealing to the legislative bodies and to the congress of the United States.

One of the pathetic things of this campaign is that Mr. Hughes has been meandering around the country from one end to the other, trying to find an issue. Finally he came to the conclusion that he found one and then he charged the president of the United States, Mr. Woodrow Wilson, with surrendering to the brotherhoods. It must have been a surprising thing for Mr. Hughes to imagine that the President of the United States would surrender to a body of the working class, in order that he might play a political card and I can assure you that if he was playing a political card, it was a mighty good one, and we brotherhood men hope that he will play lots more such cards. It makes no difference what kind of a game he was playing, the results of his efforts show for themselves, and today we find ourselves blessed with splendid prosperous conditions in which every man can secure employment.

Speaking of the Eight Hour Day, I might say that it is not a new thing. As far back as 1907, three of these brotherhoods brought exactly the same demands to a concerted committee of western managers, as was brought to this nation-wide conference of managers. In every movement of these brotherhoods for the bettering of the condition of the trainmen, the shortening of the hours of service has been the paramount issue, and we believe that the Eight Hour Day is fundamentally right and a necessary part of the economic and industrial law of the United States, and the President pronounces the law higher than the constitution when he thus declared the extra local judgment of the whole people. With reference to the constitutionality of the law, that is not a thing that is of much concern to the railroad trainmen for the reason that the law having the stamp of approval of the United States Congress, the President and the whole people, we are satisfied that this law will stand and serve the purpose for which it was intended.

You will understand that there are two kinds of laws; 1st, a criminal law upon which there is no other interpretation except the exact reading of the law. 2nd, there is a remedial law upon which the court must place a reasonable construction in order that the purpose and object in view shall be remedied; therefore, this Adamson law must be interpreted in accord with the purpose and intent of the law. Of course, it altogether depends upon the membership of the court and the influence that can be brought to bear upon the court, in many cases, as to what construction they will place upon a law. I have every reason to believe that if Mr. Wilson is re-elected president, the law will serve fully the purpose for which it is intended. On the other hand, if Mr. Hughes is elected to the presidency, the law will surely be repealed, and if it is not repealed, and if should come before the United States Supreme Court, it is a question as to what interpretation the court may make of the law if they are under the influence of Mr. Hughes, and his Wall Street followers.

When we consider the records of Mr. Hughes, we can not help but recognize the fact that he always has been partial to the interests of Wall

ARE MANUFACTURERS RAISING ELECTION FUND?

LEIGHTY ELECTED BUSINESS AGENT

D. S. Leighty, of Beaver, member of Carpenters' Local No. 1033, of Monaca, was elected Business Agent of the Building Trades Council at a meeting held Thursday evening. Mr. Leighty was Business Agent for the organization until the last election, when he withdrew from the ticket, S. S. Bowers being elected. The latter resigned at the last meeting of the Building Trades Council.

SECURES CONTRACT

Harry Shaffner, a New Brighton contractor, has secured the contract for the erection of Mrs. Crawford's new house. The contract price is in the neighborhood of $4,000.

The State Workmen's Compensation Board ruled, last week, that a workman cannot be refused compensation simply because he wishes to leave one hospital and go to another.

U. S. OFFICIAL WILL SPEAK AT ROCHESTER

United States Marshal Joseph Howley Will Address the Wilson and Marshall Club Saturday.

Arrangements have been perfected for a big Democratic meeting at the Wilson and Marshall headquarters, in Rochester, on Saturday evening, opening at 8 o'clock. The principal speaker will be United States Marshal Joseph Howley, of Pittsburgh, who has a state-wide reputation as an exceptionally convincing orator. Several local speakers will also expound the principles of Democracy and those attending are certain to leave with a thorough understanding of the issues.

William H. Lacey, of Pittsburgh, a prominent attorney and orator, will deliver a speech at the Woodrow Wilson headquarters, 1025 Seventh avenue, Beaver Falls, Saturday evening, October 28th, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Lacey has been a prominent figure in the mass meetings recently held in Pittsburgh, Youngstown and other cities, held to protest against the execution of the Irish patriots. He is an unusually brilliant speaker and those who are fortunate enough to hear him discuss the issues of the present campaign in his Beaver Falls speech will be well repaid.

Street and the corporations, and in almost every instance where the workers had passed laws by the New York State Legislature, he as Governor vetoed them. On the other hand, we find the records of Mr. Wilson as Governor of New Jersey, and we find that they were just the reverse. He always stood for and approved labor legislation and this same policy applies to him as President of the United States.

There is one thing that pictures itself most beautifully to the workers, and that is that he has kept us out of war by his principle of settling our international disputes by the peaceful methods of commission and arbitration. The inconsistent thing is that the opponents of Mr. Wilson have been criticising and condemning him for settling our international disputes by those peaceful methods, and on the other hand condemn him for settling the Eight Hour Question of the railroad men by the same peaceful method, and not standing out for the arbitration of the intelligence of life of the human body and the time that it should be exercised.

If we wish to preserve the peace of our nation, the Eight Hour Law and the good prosperous times, I believe there is no better way to do it than to return Mr. Wilson to the presidency; therefore, I hope that when the ballot is counted on election day, the result will show that Mr. Woodrow Wilson's good and faithful services has the stamp of the approval of the whole people of the United States.

HEARS FRY AND DENTON ARE THE SOLICITORS

The Labor News is in receipt of the following communication from J. Dugan, of Conway, a member of the Order of Railroad Trainmen. Any person possessing any information on the matter, which might enlighten Mr. Dugan, can reach him by addressing him at Conway:

Conway, Pa., October 25, 1916.
Editor, Labor News,
Beaver, Pa.

Dear Sir: As a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, I would like to know if you could give me some information regarding a report that I have heard, to the effect, that the Manufacturers of Beaver valley are raising a fund to conduct an extensive campaign in the interest of W. D. Craig and others.

I have been told that J. Howard Fry and David Denton are soliciting contributions from the manufacturers of this county for the purpose of conducting an extensive campaign for Craig and others. I have also been told that Mr. Craig has denied that he is receiving any support from the manufacturers, so I am writing to you in hopes that you may be in a position to give me some information regarding this matter, in order that we may know the truth. If you have information on this matter, will you permit me to suggest that you publish this letter in this week's issue, and possibly, some person could furnish me with the information that I desire before the coming election; because, if they are lined up with the manufacturers, they must be against the working man.

Thanking you in advance for this favor, and with very best wishes for the success of the paper, I am,

Yours truly,
J. DUGAN.

BRICKLAYERS ARE NOW AFFILIATED

Charter Is Issued to Organization by
A. F. of L.—70,000 Members in International.

The American Federation of Labor has issued a charter to the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America.

While an agitation for affiliation has been conducted for years among the bricklayers, definite action was taken at their recent convention, held in Toronto, Canada, when the international executives were empowered to act.

In the charter application, signed by President Bowen and Secretary Dolson, it is stated that there are 972 local unions, with a membership of 70,000 affiliated with the international.

In a telegram to President Bowen of the bricklayers, President Gompers says: "The charter for your international union has been issued today. I welcome your organization into the family of trade unions of America under the banner of the American Federation of Labor."

The A. F. of L. executive supplemented these fraternal expressions with a letter in which he said in part: "It is gratifying beyond measure to know that due to the efforts of many of us, continued over a long period of years, that your international union has finally come into the family of trade unions under the banner of the American Federation of Labor. I am confident that that action will have great influence with the few international unions still unaffiliated, and that the day is near at hand when it can be truthfully said that every bona fide international and local trade union of America will be banded together in the bonds of unity, fraternity and solidarity in the most beneficial voluntary association of the workers existing anywhere in the world—the American Federation of Labor."

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

REEL NO. 2

"Worthy Master and Brothers: We are in the heart of another wage movement. It appears that every time a movement is started, the Company finds out our intentions and they are able to block our move with a small increase in wages. Wages are not the only thing that we want. Conditions of labor are paramount to wages. Wages relieve the situation only for the time being. Just long enough for the landlords, butchers, milkmen, grocers and others we are compelled to deal with to adjust their rates to consume the 10 per cent, therefore, conditions of employment are paramount to rates per hour, and the intention of your company is not to pay you what you are justly entitled to, but to keep you from realizing your strength; they don't want you to know that you are strong enough to force them to yield to your demands. They are trying to buy you away from your organizations; every time you see an increase in wages, or adopt a plan to better your working conditions, they block the move with a 'horizontal' percentage increase, which only means that the high paid men will receive the greatest increase, and the lowest paid men the smallest increase. Brothers, this is not what we want; what we want is a greater security of life and limb by installing better safety devices, foot boards on our switching engines, instead of pilots. Grab irons where grab irons ought to be. Close clearances removed, and a limit to the hours of service in order that we may enjoy some of the pleasures of life. If we don't stick together and stand up for our rights, we will all be crippled or killed, and for that reason I am in favor of going along with our demands and sticking to the bitter finish. (Great applause by the members).

The scene changes to the General Manager's office—the general committee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen are there to receive answer to their demands. The General Manager arose and addressed the committee, saying: "Gentlemen: I am more than pleased to greet you; it does my heart good to meet with my employees; it proves conclusively to me the interests of Capital and Labor are identical; remember I am an employee of this company the same as you are; I don't own a spike in it; you and I are both interested in the successful operation of the road, and, unless the road is prosperous, neither you nor I will receive any money on pay day, and that is why our interests are identical. After receiving your request some time ago, I took it and gave it considerable thought. I wanted to give you just exactly what you have requested, but the financial condition of the company will not permit. I will keep your request in mind, and if things develop as I think they will, I will be only too glad to see just what I can do for you. At the present time it is impossible, but, however, you may return home and rest assured that I will give this my constant attention and right as many of the things as possible mentioned in this request. Now, gentlemen, if you will let me get to work I will see what I can do for you as you are a very fine set of men, and I hope you will see the situation as it is; so good-bye, and I hope that I will have the pleasure of meeting you all again." And the committee left the office.

The scene changes to the Seventh Avenue Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa. The General Committee has just returned from the General Manager's office and they meet in their committee room to consider what the General Manager had said. Some of the more radical members wanted to prosecute the strike, pointing out that if the 10 per cent increase was permitted to satisfy them, that it would only be a matter of time until the organization would lose its prestige, its members would lose confidence in the union, drop out and then they would be at the mercy of the company, and instead of a percentage increase, it would be a percentage reduction. But the more conservative members took sides with the General Manager and said that they should be satisfied with a half a loaf without a struggle, instead of striking for the other half. So they agreed to settle on the General Manager's terms.

The scene changes to the Brake-men's shanty on No. 5 hump, at Conway. The crew is eating dinner. The Old Miser was talking to the constable and he said: "I was in Murphy's 5 & 10c store today, to buy one of those $1.50 saws for 10 cents, when a woman came in and said she wanted a 5c mouse trap, and hurry up please, as she wanted to catch a train. Do you suppose she thought she could catch a train in a 5c mouse trap?" Pat to Jim—"Say Jih, is a man born in Poland a pole?"

"Yes, Pat."

"Well Jim, then is a man born in Holland, a hole?" Just then a boat was seen going down the Ohio with its smoke stacks lowered, and Pat asked Jim if he knew why that was done, and he said, that's so they can go under a bridge; he

Statement Made by Labor Representation Committee

To Officers of All Organized Labor:

Greeting: Never at any time with in the last 50 years have the workers had more at stake in any political campaign than in the one that is to be decided in the election November 7.

During the present administration and particularly in this campaign there has been developed a clear-cut issue between the workers—the producers—and those who manipulate the products of others—the exploiters.

The issue is represented in the campaign by the conflicting interests represented by Labor and Wall Street. Labor represents the masses of the nation, their rights as human beings, the possibilities and the ideals of human development. Wall Street represents the powers of greed and exploitation that have mercilessly used human beings in order to pile up vast unearned fortunes and to carry out their purposes of restricting the rights and opportunities for men to work and enjoy the products of their toil.

During the present administration the organized labor movement has been able to secure recognition for the rights of human beings and opportunities for all to participate in the affairs of the nation in a degree that has never before been accomplished.

The dignity of human life and the value of the co-operation of those whose work are necessary to the processes of industry and commerce have been given an important place in considering all problems that concern the nation. This recognition has taken the form of legislation necessary to protect the interests of wage-earners and in the ideals of humanity that have guided and directed national policies both at home and in our relations with other nations.

Though half of the world has been involved in a terrific conflict and it seemed at times as though our nation must be drawn into the vortex of human slaughter, yet the chief executive of our land has been able to manage the affairs of the nation and the interests of our citizens so that without the horrors of war he has established and maintained protection of human life and human rights in the somewhat vague domain of international law. Without involving the nation in war, he has secured for us all of the protection and all of the benefits that would have accrued from a successful international war and by diplomatic correspondence, he has achieved the victory of embodying concepts of humanity in international activity at least in so far as America is concerned.

What has been true in the case of the European war is also true in the case with the relations between our country and Mexico. Mexico had been engaged in a convulsive effort to secure freedom and to shake off the despotic control of personal rule and exploitation to benefit those who have been granted special privileges. In their vague uncertain efforts to free themselves the people of Mexico may have made mistakes. Have the people of the United States always been free from error? Mexico is trying to work out its ideals of rights and justice.

The interests that have been seeking to plunge our country into war, not only with European countries, but also with Mexico, are the interests that are represented by the most selfish and most conscienceless element of Wall Street. These elements have not stopped with an effort to use existing mistakes and wrongs as an excuse for war, and have not hesitated to endeavor to create situations that brought the nation to the very brink of war. It was only by the determined resistance of the citizens who understood that an element of reasonableness was injected into the situation and action prevented until the true facts could be discovered and the will of the masses of the citizens could prevent the evil purposes and designs.

So far as the internal affairs of our country are concerned, the organized labor movement, as the authorized representative of the wage-earners, has demanded for them the right of participation in all the affairs of the nation and has secured recognition of that demand to a degree never before realized. Men from among those who do the nation's work have occupied high places in the councils of the nation and have had a hearing and an influence when matters were under consideration that affected the interests and the welfare of the masses.

During the past four years there has been enacted by Congress and signed by President Wilson, humanitarian protective legislation unprecedented in amount and scope. Legislative enactment has secured to wage-earners fundamental rights necessary for the very existence of the organizations of labor without which wage-earners would have nothing of freedom and no real opportunity for self-betterment. Not only have labor organizations been given the right to exist, but the activities necessary to make those organizations effective have been declared legitimate and not contrary to any law of the United States.

The American seamen, the last group of workers who could, under the law, be compelled to perform compulsory service, have been made free men and given the right to quit their ships when in safe harbors.

After many years of effort a child labor law has been secured, due directly to the influence and intervention of President Wilson. The law is fundamental, for it protects the children—the future citizens of the country—and secures for them an opportunity to develop into manhood and womanhood, without being stunted and dwarfed in mind and body by work unsuited to their development and strength.

Due to the initiative of President Wilson, the congress extended the eight-hour law to include the workmen engaged in the operation of the railroad train service of the country, and a great national strike was thus averted.

It is impossible to give the full list of remedial and protective legislation that carries its beneficial influences into the homes of millions of America's workers. We can only refer to that change in the spirit of the nation that is of more consequence than statutory enactment, with broader appreciation of the rights of humanity and the value of the human relationship necessary in the co-ordination which is the basis for industry and commerce. It is as if the national thought and the national spirit had been humanized and had become more sensitive, not only to injustice, but to the rights and opportunities that ought to be accorded to all human beings. The issue is clear-cut.

On November 7th—election day—a decision will be made which will determine the future development of our country and the spirit of our national life for years to come.

As representatives of the organized labor movement, which is the militant protective organization of all the workers and which stands primarily for human rights, WE URGE THAT THE ISSUES BE CONSIDERED AT A REGULAR OR SPECIAL MEETING HELD BY YOUR ORGANIZATION.

The meeting should be a general one, and, if necessary, called specially for the purpose of seeing that those who have so much at stake should go to the polls to protect their interests.

There is no doubt that the interests of Wall Street and their satellites all over the country are and will continue their activity to retain the special privileges and power that they have secretly and corruptly stolen from the people.

While property must be protected and respected, men—men, women and children, human beings—must have the first consideration.

Wage-earners can not afford to lose their rights and opportunities through negligence and inaction.

Meet, discuss the great issues to be decided on election day, November 7th, and then go to the polls, cast your vote as your conscience directs for Labor, justice, freedom and humanity.

Fraternalty yours,

NOTICE OF RULE.

In a Court of Common Pleas of Beaver County held October 2nd, 1916, James L. Hogan presented his petition, to No. 131 December Term, 1916, setting forth:

That the Sheriff of Beaver County, by virtue of a writ of levary facias, issued upon a judgment entered in said Court for unpaid taxes, wherein the County of Beaver, is plaintiff, and J. Burik is defendant, set on September 14th, 1914, to December two lots of land in the Borough of Midland in said County of Beaver, being lots numbered 618 and 619 in Midland Plan "A", and that in pursuance of said sale executed a deed to the petitioner for said lots.

And praying the said Court to grant a rule upon Joseph Burik and all other persons, who may, or claim to have any right, title, or interest in or claim against the said lots of land, to appear within sixty days from the service of the rule to show cause why the title of the petitioner to said lots of land should not be adjudicated and decreed valid, and infeasible as against all rights or claims whatsoever, whereupon the Court granted the following rule:

Now, Oct. 2, 1916, the foregoing petition having been presented and read in open Court, on due consideration the Court grant the rule as prayed for, returnable the First Monday of December next and directed, inter alia, notice thereof be given by one advertisement in a newspaper having a general circulation in the County of Beaver at least sixty days before the return day.

When the worker cheats, he is a knave; when the capitalist cheats, he is a shrewd business man. Ever notice it?

The destiny of Labor depends upon labor itself. Your power lies in your own brains and bodies. You must work out your own salvation.—Frank P. Walsh.

The union label is a constant reminder of the common interest and common duty of all trade unionists in and toward each other, and a certain guide in the discharge of that duty.

A good way to increase the membership of your local union is to make the acquaintance, and cultivate the friendship of non-union workmen. Create a desire in their hearts to be associated with you in your local union; tell them the many advantages to be gained by banding themselves together with their fellow craftsmen—results will follow.

Forget yourself and work for the "Good of the Order." That will build your organization. Give the fault finder and belittler a wide berth; he is a bully with his mouth, only. He only cares for the Union so far as monetary interests are concerned; his pocket is his first consideration, the Union becomes a secondary consideration. He is not a Union man, but a sheep in wolf's clothing. Look out for him.

The merchant who does not advertise at all may or may not be a friend of union wage earners, but the merchant who liberally advertises in all other papers and refuses to advertise in The Labor News, evidently is not looking for, and does not wish, union people's patronage. The merchant or business man who does advertise in The Labor News shows his friendliness to the union cause and asks for a share of the union people's patronage. Remember this when purchasing. It should be a pleasure to patronize your friends, who respectfully ask a share of your trade, in preference to spending your money with those who ignore you and your cause and The Labor News.

CANDIDATES ARE MOST EFFICIENTLY SUPPORTED

Democrats Working Hard to Elect Entire Ticket in County and District

Candidates in Beaver county on the Democratic ticket for both county and district offices, are waging a warm contest and are being ably supported by members of the party, who are also seeking to carry the county for President Wilson and Vice President Marshall. With the organization of the Wilson and Marshall Club in Rochester, the campaign has taken on an added interest and a warm campaign is in prospect.

Attorney William J. Mellon, of Beaver, who is opposing Dr. Henry W. Temple, of Washington, Pa., in the Twenty-fourth district, for re-election to Congress, just ended a week's campaigning in Washington county. He has been a supporter of the Democratic party throughout his life and is one of the well-known lawyers of the Beaver county bar. Attorney Mellon resided for many years in Monaca, but for several years has been a resident of Beaver.

Hugh Ferguson, of College Hill, a well-known oil producer, is seeking election to the State Senate in the Beaver-Lawrence district. While never having held state or county office, Mr. Ferguson has been a member of council and school director in College Hill, where he has resided for 20 years. He was born in Ohio township, where his father, Hugh Ferguson, was a leading citizen and farmer for more than half a century.

Both legislative candidates, Jesse W. Hunter, of Rochester, and Attorney Joseph A. Tritschler, of Rochester township, are well known. Mr. Hunter came to the Junction City when a boy and has resided there ever since, with the exception of 10 years spent in East Liverpool, O. For the last 10 years he has been in charge of the interests of the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company. Attorney Tritschler, is a son of Joseph Tritschler, a well-known glassworker, the latter for more than 30 years being at the old McKee factory in Pittsburgh. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh law school and was admitted to practice three years ago.

A resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Wilson & Marshall Club, in Rochester, on Saturday, Oct. 14, the tenets of which, intelligently discussed, would knock into a cocked hat the books on economics written by Dr. Henry W. Temple, the Republican Congressional candidate, in which he still holds the ancient and long since repudiated theory that the foreigner pays the tariff tax:

The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved; that, since the most fundamental measure of preparedness is to break up the monopoly of land and all natural resources therein and thereon, and to give the people of the country the opportunity to produce freely, by restoring to them equal access to all such natural resources, of which they have been deprived by the folly or the corruption of legislative bodies, we strongly urge the voters of this country to repudiate those candidates for any public office who think of preparedness only in terms of armies and armaments, and to endeavor to commit every candidate according to the office he seeks to support:

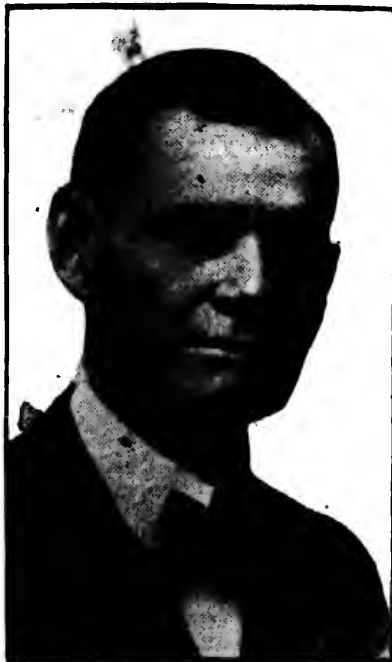

"First—The untaxing of improvements and all other products of labor and heavier taxation of land values to maintain local and state governments;

"Second—A rapidly progressive tax on large incomes—especially in unearned incomes—

ROOSEVELT SHIFTS ON THE EIGHT-HOUR ISSUE

Attacks Adamson Law Now, But Advocated a Similar Measure When President.

"O, What a Difference Ten Years Makes!"

This might properly be the title of a campaign skit comparing the utterances by Theodore Roosevelt as President in 1906, with his utterances as pleader-in-chief for Candidate Hughes in 1916.

In 1906, in his annual message to Congress, under the heading, "Railroad Employees' Hours and Eight-Hour Laws," President Roosevelt said:

I call your attention to the need of passing the bill limiting the number of hours of employment of railroad employees. The measure is a very moderate one, and I can conceive of no serious objection to it. Indeed, so far as it lies in our power, it should be our aim steadily to reduce the number of hours of labor with as a goal the general introduction of the eight-hour day."

In 1916, Colonel Roosevelt, stumping in the cause of "Anything to beat Wilson," said: "We have seen in this country few things more discreditable to our representatives and more ominous to the future of the nation" than the passage of the Adamson Eight-Hour Law for railway trainmen.

He said the justice of the request of the railway brotherhoods had not been sufficiently investigated; but in his message to Congress of December 3, 1907, he said:

"The general introduction of the 8-hour day should be the goal towards which we should steadily tend."

In 1916, Colonel Roosevelt, straining to injure President Wilson, intimates that railway men are not entitled to the eight-hour day because "they do nothing but sit around" during a part of their time on duty. On this point, his Battle Creek, Mich., speech of September 30 last, reads:

"Eight hours may be the outside limit of proper work time in Mr. Ford's factory, where the man is all the time working at just one thing, intensively, and without vacation; but eight hours that includes doing nothing but sit around, and also change of occupation, may be long enough."

for the federal government, and reducing taxes on consumption—such as traffic on the necessities of life;

"Third—A rapidly progressive tax on inheritances for the state and federal governments;

"Fourth—Federal acquisition of natural monopolies, since privileged monopoly is un-American, the present owners to be paid only the value they have given to these monopolies, plus the present value of improvements therein and thereon made by them;

"Fifth—Termination of perpetual franchises, and municipal ownership and operation of public utilities, the present owners to be paid only the values they have given such utilities, plus the present value of improvements therein and thereon made by them;

"Sixth—Social insurance against sickness and accidents;

"Seventh—The enforcement by all State Governments of the Keating Child Labor bill recently passed by congress and enforcement and adoption by all state governments of the uniform child labor law;

"Eight—The adoption by congress of Warren Worth Bailey's bill for free intercourse between all the countries of North, Central and South America."

At the Majestic

"Phantom Fortunes"
Barney Bernard, starring in the Vitaphone Blue Ribbon feature, "Phantom Fortunes," to be shown at the Majestic, Monday, Oct. 30, had an amusing experience during the taking of the picture. While one of the interiors was being made, it was found convenient to go outside of the studio to take what is called a "location" scene. In this case, Bernard wore one of the overcoats which was later, according to the story to be shown as part of the stock.

While Bernard was on the location, one of the men who had brought the clothes to the studio, saw him in the coat and called a policeman.

It was only after a violent argument that the situation was made clear, when the cautious salesman informed him of the situation, that they could make sure that they were not in trouble.

"Little Lady Eileen"

Do you believe in fairies. Now, Marguerite Clark, herself the fairy incarnation of the elf spirit, is starred by the Famous Players in a delightful romance that answers this question better than any verbiage reply could. Strangely enough, it is only the little Lady Eileen who believes in fairies at the beginning of the story. The others about her are entirely too practical for that, but after we have seen the people of elf-land lead the trusting little girl to her true lover, and destroy the imposter who attempted to get possession of her fortune, as shown at the Majestic on Tuesday, Oct. 31, there can be no doubt at all that the fairies reward her faith in them. The irresistible Marguerite Clark makes of "Little Lady Eileen" an exquisite, mischievous, charming characterization, that will live in your memory as long as did the fairy tales your mother told.

"The Blue Envelope Mystery"

In the filming of the Blue Ribbon feature which is to be shown at the Majestic, Wednesday, Nov. 1, Miss Walker is forced to run after and jump upon a fast moving train.

The officials of the Vitaphone Co. found it impossible to hire a train conductor for this scene, so it was decided that an actor in the uniform of a conductor board the train and stand on the rear platform. Then Miss Walker was to run after the train and jump upon the gate and help her. Everything went as planned until the train pulled off. The motorman was already two minutes late. Therefore he opened the throttle and it appeared impossible for the little star to carry out the instructions, but they did not know Miss Lillian.

Away she flew after the disappearing train—she made it too—even if the poor fellow on the platform did become so nervous at her daring that he forgot to help her until she called: "Give me your hand or this will be the end of this picture as far as I'm concerned."

"The Straight Way"

A motive of revenge, which leads a woman to seek the unhappiness of her husband by humiliating her own unknown daughter, gives a startling and vivid background to the work which Valeska Suratt does for William Fox in her new picture, "The Straight Way," at the Majestic, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 2-3. Miss Suratt plays Mary Madison, a woman who has been wronged by her husband, and cannot forgive.

When the story begins, Mary's relations with another man are unjustly suspected. Her husband casts her off and she leaves her baby in care of a sister. Later the husband hears she has been killed in a railroad accident and takes the daughter home.

Years later Mary learns Madison has been elected Governor. She makes a plot with Dan Walters, a former convict to marry Madison's daughter, Marion, not knowing it is her own child. After the marriage she informs Madison and learns that Marion is her own daughter. The situation finally is cleared when subsequent events show that Walters had been innocent of the crime for which he was punished, and had gone to prison for a friend.

"The Stronger Love"

The latest Morosco-Paramount photoplay coming to the Majestic on Saturday, Oct. 4, brings up the interesting question, Which life will be the stronger, bigger and accomplish the most? Will the boy who leaves his backwoods surroundings and is refined by culture of the university be the one? Or will the greater man be the one, who born and raised a Kentucky "mountain Johnnie," prove by his life that he has attained the finer qualities of manhood in the rough school of experience?

A difficult decision for a professor of psychology to decide but seemingly Nell Serviss' heart leads her to the best decision in the charmingly sweet mountain love story "The Stronger Love," a thrilling photoplay.

WILL HOLD FISH FRY

The members of the Bridgewater K. of P. Basketball team are arranging for a fish fry on Thursday evening, November 9th, to be held in the gymnasium. The cause is a worthy one, and will no doubt be well patronized by lovers of the sport and friends.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Dark Silence"

Clara Kimball Young, considered by many as the most advertised star in pictures, will be the attraction at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Monday, Oct. 30, when she will be seen in "The Dark Silence," a five-part World picture. It is a play in which Miss Young is first a poor artist, and later a Red Cross nurse. It is timely, having a few high-class battle scenes, and the emotion in the hospital following an engagement, is the most gripping ever filmed. Throughout Miss Young plays with all the depth of expression which has made her former successes, and is the center of a picture that will appeal to all her friends.

"Davy Crockett"

The new Pathic-Paramount photoplay "Davy Crockett" contains scenes which were taken in the forest during a blizzard and the depth of the snow and ice-covered trees show a Southern California that few people know about. After taking these snow scenes the actors motored down to the seashore to an estate with an old colonial mansion, surrounded by blossoming flowers and golden fruit, where the summer-like warmth made the frontier costumes seem too heavy. This production will be at attraction at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, October 31.

"The Child of Destiny"

Irene Fenwick, the charming and gifted dramatic artist, will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Nov. 1, in "The Child of Destiny," a five-part Metro-Columbia wonderplay. This will mark Miss Fenwick's debut on the Metro program, and the vehicle provided for her is an exceptionally strong one. There are many striking contrasts, and Miss Fenwick is supported by an unusually strong cast.

"The Dream Girl"

Mae Murray, the beautiful Lasky star, will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday, Oct. 2, in the production of "The Dream Girl," a thrilling story. It is a Paramount release.

Meg Dugan, a waif of the slums, discovers in an ash barrel a dilapidated volume of "King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table," and Sir Galahad at once becomes the hero of her dreams.

Dugan and "English Hal," a black sheep of an old English family, run a club that is raided, but they escape and together pose Hal as "Lord Henry Trevor." He kisses Meg and in the fight that ensues, the latter's father is shot and left for dead. Meg is sent to the Detention Home.

The story tells of how Hal meets Merton's daughter and proposes to marry her to replenish his fortunes. How Meg exposes him and frustrates his plans are shown and in the latter chapters old Merton's heart is touched when he sees the home Meg has left, and he slowly opens his arms to receive the little waif who has proved herself so worthy.

Lina Cavalieri, the most beautiful woman in the world, has again been lured out by the silent drama. It is understood that the Pathe people paid $75,000 for her appearance in the Gold Rooster Play, "The Shadow of Her Past."

This production is booked for the Colonial, Beaver Falls, for Friday, November 3.

"The Secret of the Swamp"

The newer art of photoplaying will be typified in "The Secret of the Swamp," a Bluebird subject that will be the attraction at the Colonial on Saturday, Nov. 4, with Val Paul, Myrtle Gonzales, Frank McGuire, Lule Warrenton and George Hernandez principals in a specially selected company. Right up to the very last few feet of the 5-reel feature the story runs through the gamut of intense emotions, incorporating true love in a maze of sensationalism, and reflecting the homely life of rural communities with great faithfulness—then at the very end the plot takes a sudden turn and ends in one of the "biggest laughs" ever created by photoplaying.

BEAVER VALLEY LABOR NEWS

OFFICIAL LABOR PAPER ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY

NUMBER 12.

BEAVER, PA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1916

ONE DOLLAR THE YEAR.

WILSON'S LABOR RECORD COMPARED TO HUGHES'

What the Two Men Did As Governors of New York and New Jersey.

SHOWS WILSON IS MAN FOR WORKER

The Labor News has been requested by various union men throughout the Beaver valley, to publish the labor records of both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes during their terms as Governors of New Jersey and New York States, respectively. The American Federation of Labor has issued a booklet containing the records asked for and they are herewith reproduced:

"GOVERNOR" WILSON'S RECORD

Fire escape law, amending factory laws and placing New Jersey in the vanguard of States in the protection of workers in factories and workshops. Regulating employment agencies and licensing the same.

Making a misdemeanor the improper influencing of labor representatives or foremen.

Employers' Liability and Compensation Act.

Prohibiting the employment of children in mercantile establishments during school hours; providing for a 58-hour week and prohibiting children under 16 years to work between the hours of 7 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Appointment of Commissioners on Old Age Pensions and Old Age Insurance.

Providing for the safety and health of foundry workers by minimizing drafts and doing away with noxious gases, etc., by exhaust fans in foundries.

Increasing factory inspectors to the number of six (making a total of 17). (Continued on Page Six.)

ADVOCATES FEDERAL CONTROL OF RAILROADS AND THE EMPLOYEES

In a speech in Philadelphia, A. J. County, Pennsylvania railroad official, advocated federal control of railroads. In his opposition to the recent eight-hour movement of railroad employees, he indicated that there workers, also, should be "regulated" by the same commission that would regulate the issuance of stocks and bonds.

The speaker voiced his approval of "orderly government procedure," which he insisted should never be abolished. This statement is of especial interest when it is recalled that, at the hearings before the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, another official of the Pennsylvania railroad declared that this corporation had a perfect right to maintain private armies.

LABOR NEWS WANTS TO SERVE UNION MEN

We wish to serve you.

This may best be done by sending to The Labor News office, not later than Wednesday afternoon of each week, items of particular interest to your members. Tell us what has happened at your meetings, the work done by your officers and committees, and give us social and personal paragraphs pertaining to your members.

Most items of general interest to organized labor are crowded out of the daily papers of the valley, although such news is eagerly sought by the union men and women.

It needs no argument to demonstrate that through the medium of a newspaper, specializing in labor news, the labor forward movement is enthused, strengthened and solidified.

Wake up, union officers, and give us the live items your members wish to see in print.

Let the other unions know that you are alive and active, and doing your part in the great work.

Address your communications to:
THE LABOR NEWS,
Beaver, Pa.

Subscribe for The Labor News.

Guides Have Organized

The Gettysburg Battlefield Guides have joined a local union affiliated with the A. F. of L. They are regulated and controlled by a commission created by a special act of Congress. To promote efficiency and protect themselves against local legislation interfering with their work, the action of some of the guides has brought about some stringent rulings and they hope to control, if not entirely eliminate, this action through their organization.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR WOMEN SAYS FORD

Big Manufacturer Raises the Pay of Female Employees to Men's Wage Scale.

The Labor News is in receipt of the following communication relative to the recent action of Henry Ford, Detroit manufacturer, in raising the wages of his female employees to the same scale as the male employees receive:

To the Editor of The Labor News:

In inducing Mr. Ford to adopt the principle of equal pay for women for equal work, and to pay to his female employees the same wages as to his male employees, $5.00 per day, Mr. Wilson has done more for the equality of the sexes, for equal rights, for the forward movement among women, progressiveness, than Mr. Hughes has done in his lifetime.

Mr. Wilson believes not only in equal suffrage, but in the greater principle of equal rights for all, male and female.

FRANKLIN COUCH,
Oct. 28, 1916. Peckskill, N. Y.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Frank Cable, of Rochester township, member of Bricklayers' No. 7, left for Youngstown Monday, where he expects to locate.

Joe Beener "beat it" to the wilds for another hunting trip as soon as the rabbit season came in Wednesday. Joe seems to be somewhat of a "nut" on this hunting stuff.

Russel Flasher, of College Hill, a Member of No. 7, Bricklayers, is in Huntingdon, Pa., on a hunting trip. His many friends are hoping that his conveyance, a motor-cycle, does not break down before he reaches his destination.

The S. O. S. call has been sent out for bricklayers on the Beaver school building. About ten or twelve union men could be used there.

Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes, of Beaver, are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter at their home. "Bill," who is a member of Bricklayers' No. 7, smiling states that his family is now complete, as he has a boy and a girl.

The Midland Improvement Company has started work on the new theatre building at Ninth and Midland avenues.

Shoe Factory Organized

The Regal Shoe Factory of Toronto, Canada, has been unionized and granted the use of the union label.

Union Factory Inspectors

W. J. Boylan, of Philadelphia, and Robert Davidson, recently appointed State Deputy Factory Inspectors, are trade unionists.

COMPLETE CONTRACT.

Kountz Brothers, of Rochester, have completed the house of C. E. Kramer, in Water street, Bridgewater, and Mr. Kramer has taken possession of his new home.

FERGUSON'S STAND APPROVED BY UNIONS

Secretary of State Federation of Labor Advises Candidate his Answers Are Satisfactory.

That Hugh Ferguson, of College Hill Borough, candidate on the Democratic ticket for election to the State Senate, would be a satisfactory Senator to union men in case of his election, is evidenced by the following communication, received by Mr. Ferguson from C. F. Quinn, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor. This letter was written by Mr. Quinn at the time he acknowledged receipt of Mr. Ferguson's answers to a list of questions, submitted by the Federation, relative to where he stood on matters affecting labor, which would come up at the next session of the legislature. The letter follows:

Hon. Hugh Ferguson,

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your letter replying to the "Questions," submitted to you, under directions from our Executive Council.

MOLDERS WILL HOLD 4TH ANNUAL DANCE

Friday Evening, Nov. 3rd is the Date And Junction Park Pavilion The Place.

A social event which is looked forward to each year with a great deal of pleasure by hundreds of valley residents, is the annual dance of International Molders' Union No. 219, of Rochester. The fourth annual dance will take place this year at Junction Park pavilion, being held on Friday evening, November 3rd, Sepp's orchestra of seven pieces having been secured, a guarantee that the music will be most satisfactory.

An interesting feature of the evening's program, will be the raffling off of the Olive gas range, which has been on exhibition in Butler's show window, at Rochester for several days past. A large number of tickets on the range have been disposed of, and hundreds of holders of the same are looking forward to the raffle the night of the dance.

Increase in Accidents

There was an increase of sixty-four per cent in the number of accident cases handled by the Industrial Commission this year, as compared with 1915, in the State of Wisconsin, according to figures compiled by Commissioner G. P. Humberg.

State Hospital employees, of Madison, Ohio, have organized.

Local R. R. Brotherhood Man Gives Election Views

This is the first presidential election in which I have taken any particular interest, and I believe that all American citizens should, above all things, get the truth and go to the polls next Tuesday, and vote. I have been doing my best for the past five weeks to learn who were the proper candidates to support. I have attended two Republican meetings and three Democratic meetings, and these are my impressions:

At a Republican meeting in the Harris Theatre, Pittsburgh, on last Thursday, a speaker whose name I did not learn, but I did learn that he was a clothing manufacturer from New York state, appealed to the American laborer to vote the Republican ticket next November, as he wanted "protection." He criticised the Wilson administration on its attitude towards labor, the Adamson bill, the tariff, and everything in general, bringing out very forcibly that he hoped to see Hughes elected, in order that he could furnish work at all times for the workers in his mills.

Do you get that—he is just dying to have work for his workers. The speaker went on to say that the prosperity that we are now enjoying is due to the war; that we prosper while all Europe suffers, and so on, along the same line. His point was to the effect that if it were not for the war, America would be undergoing one of the worst panics in her history, owing to the tariff. Let us stop just for a moment and consider that very point. In 1907 under a protective tariff, with Roosevelt as president, was it a panic or was it just a slight business depression that took possession of our Americans? In 1908 Taft was elected, on a "protective tariff" platform, and during his entire stay in the White House, business only once, for a short time during 1910, showed some sign of activity, only to go back to where it was again in 1911-12.

No, this eminent manufacturer from New York said nothing about what happened under the so-called protective tariff. He was in hopes that you have forgotten that.

I hold that if President Wilson does not get more votes this election than he did last election, that it will be (Continued on Page Seven.)

R. R. Y. M. C. A. Endeavoring to Secure 30,000 New Members

The Labor News is in receipt of the following letter from a McKees Rocks railroader, the same being in reference to the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association's endeavor to secure 30,000 new members within a period of ten days, from November 14th to 24th:

The Railroad Y. M. C. A. is trying to secure 30,000 new members in ten days, not in one city or district, but in the United States. Looks like a big job, don't it? Well, they will succeed for it is a good work. Every union man should get into this work for many reasons, and one of the most important ones is this, that very few "scabs" are recruited from Y. M. C. A. members. Is this not a fact? Next is, that it is a foe, and an unrelenting one, of the booze interests. "Booze makes scabs," remember this, you may find now and then an employed officer of these associations doing things that should not be done by a man in his position, but the association cannot always prevent that, and when one does a thing of this kind, he seldom lasts long.

The Y. M. C. A. has saved many a railroad man's life and position by providing a place where he is not tempted. In most cases it provides wholesome amusement at a moderate cost, a clean place to eat and sleep.

The dormitories are clean and well kept up; the officers are courteous and considerate, always willing to assist one that may be in trouble or ill. Most of them provide entertainment that costs little and is clean and wholesome, to which you can take your wife, mother, sister or daughter without danger of bringing a blush of shame to their faces. Every one of them is, or should be, managed by a board of directors, and every one of them should have union men on these boards, so that when questions relating to labor are brought before the board they can defend or explain the unions' side of it. It is the desire of these associations to better conditions of the men, and many times good work is done by them in various ways. It is good influence and association that helps many a man to keep himself respectful when temptations are set before him. It is good work, not only for the men who join and assist in the work, but for the companies that spend money to erect buildings for the various associations.

A RAILROADER.

JUDGE CRAWFORD TO SPEAK AT B. FALLS

Eminent Jurist Will Talk Before the Woodrow Wilson Club on Saturday Evening.

Judge R. S. Crawford, of Green county, one of the most forcible and convincing speakers in the state, will appear before the voters at the Saturday night meeting at the Woodrow Wilson Club, 1925 Twenty-ninth Avenue, Beaver Falls. Judge Crawford has gained an enviable reputation as an orator by his work on the platform in years past and he is taking great interest in the present campaign. The meeting will be called to order at 8 o'clock.

ROCHESTER MEETING.

Good speakers will be present at the Saturday night meeting of the Wilson & Marshall club in Rochester. Owing to the inability of a prominent orator to advise the club officials as to whether he will be able to be present until Friday, the name of the leading speaker cannot be given in this issue of The Labor News.

Interest Charges Reduced

A peculiar strike occurred recently in Montana. In anticipation of loans at five per cent, under the rural credits act, the farmers refused to borrow money from the county banks, which resulted in a reduction of the interest rate on money.

LABOR NOTES

Stone makers of Wheeling, W. Va., voted to increase the pay one dollar per thousand for their work. They are affiliated with the Cigarmakers' Union.

MONACA CARPENTERS MOVE HEADQUARTERS

At the last meeting of Monaca, Union 1023, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, at Bank Hall, Monaca, after 30 days' notice had been given of the proposed change of meeting place, the matter was taken up and upon vote of the members present it was decided to change the place of meeting to the Odd Fellows' Hall, Opera House building, Rochester, at which place the next meeting of the local will be held. Others matters of importance were taken up and disposed of. There was a good attendance present.

PAINTERS' LOCAL 530 HAS SMALL MEETING

At the regular weekly session of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers' Local, No. 530, there was but a small attendance present, owing to the numerous other events in the valley towns. Nevertheless, considerable business of a routine nature was disposed of and a number of important questions were discussed, but action was deferred until a later meeting.

BRICKLAYERS MEET IN REGULAR SESSION

The regular Friday night meeting of the Bricklayers' Local No. 7, was held in Socialist Hall, Rochester, with a good attendance present. Only routine matters were taken up and disposed of. Business in this branch of the building trades seems to be without precedent, as bricklayers are in constant demand. A call has been sent to the business agent for 10 or 12 men to work on the new Beaver school building.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Central Labor Union will be held in Eagle's Hall, New Brighton, on Monday evening. It behooves all local unions to see that their delegates are in attendance at this meeting, as it is one of importance. Election day being the day following the meeting it would be well for all delegates to be there for whatever instructions the Central Body may wish to give.

"THE FALL OF THE OPPRESSOR" - FILM

Thrilling Photoplay Written by Member of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Written by George A. Howe, Produced By Beaver Valley Film Co.

"Hanson Howard" is seen in the barber shop at Conway, where he is thinking about the "Big Money" some of the Wagon Road men tell about making when in the shop. He sees a vision of himself getting the job, also his promotion to flagman, conductor, yardmaster, general superintendent, general manager and finally president. He was awakened by the barber pulling his ear, and telling him that if he didn't wake up and get busy cleaning up the shop, he would be discharged. Howard being in the proper spirit, threw down the "scrub brush" and said that he would quit, which he did, and went down to the yard office and got a job baking. He was called for 2:15 p. m., to go to Crestline. He answered the call, bought himself a new suit of overalls, a nice pair of good gauntlet gloves, a leather cap, drew a new lump and was ready for the trip. The engine was over an hour late getting out of the round house, and then, when they went to get the train it was not made up, causing a delay of two more hours. After they got on the train there was another delay in getting things ready for the start, and at 12 o'clock, mid-night, they were ready to go. But another train is out on the switches and they are delayed again. Before that train cleared the switches the "air pump" on Howard's engine broke down, and the engineer said they would have to take the engine back to the house to have said air pump fixed. They were gone four hours and when they returned another crew had taken the train, so it was up to them to get another one ready, and with the usual delay it was dinner time of the next day before they got started on their run to Crestline. They were delayed all along the line, and it was three days from the time "Hanson Howard" was called at Conway, until he reached Crestline. 72 hours on duty with only a "cat nap" now and then during that time. The crew marked up for 10 hours' rest and the officials just raised particular need. To think that they wanted so much time, but they got it and then were called for home. The return trip was about the same as the run out, they were three more days getting home, so Howard was about a week away from home. He figured that he had been away from home almost seven whole days, he had worked 144 hours out of 154 that he was away from home, and at 21 6-10 cents per hour he had made all told $31.10. This looked pretty good to Howard, who figured that there are only 168 hours in seven days, and that he had worked 144 of those hours to earn his $31.10. Then he figured that if he worked 10 hours per day, six days per week, he would only make $12.96 per week, but even this small amount was more than he had been making in the barber shop, so he decided to stick with the road. He felt as if he had just gone to bed when he was called again for Crestline, and again the trip was a hard one, long hours with but very little rest is what Howard found his road job to be, and he realized that the big money spoken of by the road men was earned by long hours and tiresome work, irregular sleep, irregular eating and irregular work, and that made him think that the company should not be permitted to work their men longer than a given number of hours in any one day, so he advocated the "Sixteen-Hour Law." Yes, he was satisfied that 16 hours was long enough for any man to work, so he joined the "noisy Cross-tie Orators" and openly, where nobody could hear him, demanded that 16 hours was long enough for any man to work. The Brotherhoods, after years of hard labor, and without the assistance of Hanson Howard, were successful in having written on the Statute Books of this Government a law prohibiting companies engaged in interstate commerce from working their men longer than 16 hours, Howard gave himself credit for winning one "hard fought battle." This was victory number one.

The scene changes—it is at Allegheny. Daredevil Mike was called to the trainmaster's office and Mr. Hollowhead said that he was figuring on making him a yardmaster, for two reasons; first, "because you are a man of marked ability," he said, "and I can feel sure at all times that if you are in charge, that things will go all right, and I will not be wearing my brain out wondering if things are going right." Mike swelled up so large that you would have thought he was going to burst, really thinking that Hollowhead meant what he said. Then Hollowhead continued, "I want to establish a precedent on this road. I want to make a yardmaster out of you and I want you to drop the Trackmen. I want it distinctly understood that no yardmaster can belong to the trackmen and at the same time hold his job. There are a number of good men that I want out of the Trackmen and the way I intend to get them out is by making yardmasters out of them and then tell them to withdraw from the Trackmen or quit their jobs. Do you get the points," and Mike answered, "Yes, and I will withdraw next meeting night," and he did. The scene changes; it is in Good Will Lodge 106. Mike's request for a withdrawal card was read by the secretary, and "Brother Gladheddit" arose and said:

"Figures Don't Lie" These are FACTS

"Balance Sheet" of Wilson Administration

Facts and Figures Showing the Scope and Permanence of Our Unparalleled Prosperity

(Abstract made by Lee Francis Lybarger, Member of the Philadelphia Bar and author of "The Tariff.")

As Compared With Four Years Ago

There are 1,600,000 more men who have employment.

There is $1,835,000,000 more money being paid out in wages.

The American farmer has made an average gain of a billion a year.

Railroad earnings have increased from 25 per cent to 30 per cent.

Bank clearings for the first 6 months increased 40 per cent.

Our total bank deposits for May 1, 1916, were over $ 11,135,000,000
An increase in 4 years of over . . . . . 3,119,000,000
Representing an increase of $47 per capita.

The Wealth of the United States has increased $410 per capita.

It is now estimated at . . . . . $228,000,000,000
That is 12 billions more than the combined wealth of England, Germany and France.

OUR FOREIGN COMMERCE NOW LEADS THE WORLD!

Total exports and imports to July 1 . . . . . $ 6,500,000,000
England's total commerce for 1913 . . . . . 5,700,000,000
Germany's total commerce for 1912 . . . . . 4,600,000,000
Exports and imports under President Taft . . . . . 3,857,000,000
Increase of foreign commerce in four years 72 per cent.

Prices have not advanced as much in this country as in Europe.

Under the Underwood tariff American manufacturers have sold from 10 to 50 per cent higher in Europe than here.

Under the Payne Aldrich tariff they compelled us to pay them from 10 to 50 per cent more than they could get in Europe.

Under Taft, 1912, our exports exceeded our imports by . . . . . $ 551,057,475

This year our excess of exports over imports is . . . . . 2,236,775,375
This is an increase in "trade balance" of 287 per cent.

Our exports of iron and steel have increased . . . . . 105 per cent

Cotton manufactures . . . . . 108 per cent
Leather and manufactures . . . . . 128 per cent
Automobiles and parts . . . . . 248 per cent
Chemicals, drugs, etc. . . . . 350 per cent
Wool manufactures . . . . . 1,400 per cent

Unfilled orders for United States steel now double those of 1915.

Our production of iron and steel has increased 35 per cent.

Manufactured products have increased 45 per cent.

Estimated value of manufactured products $ 30,000,000,000
Estimated total wealth production . . . . . 45,000,000,000

That this is a permanent prosperity, due to wise legislation and not to the war, is shown by all the facts in the case.

We export less than 10 per cent of our total wealth production.

Over 90 per cent of it is consumed at home—war or no war.

Much of our foreign trade is with nations not at war.

Our exports of farm products alone, for the 23 months of the war, down to July 1, 1916, were . . . . . $ 2,000,000,000

Total exports of munitions for same period . . . . . 535,000,000
Our exports of manufactures are seven times our munitions.

Our total exportations during the 33 months of the war reached the colossal sum of . . . . . $ 6,837,616,569
More than 12 times our exportation of munitions.

OUR PRODUCTION OF MUNITIONS IS LESS THAN 1 PER CENT OF OUR TOTAL WEALTH PRODUCTION.

Our total loss in exports of cotton and tobacco alone, due to the war, is greater than our gain from munitions.

Our exports for year ending July 1, 1916, were . . . $ 4,333,656,665
Exports for 1912, under Taft, were . . . . . 2,204,322,409
That is an increase of 96 per cent, or . . . . . 2,129,336,456

Our wealth has increased during the last four years . . . . . $ 41,000,000,000
That is 20 times our excess of exports.

Were our excess of exports over imports pure profit, there still remains to be accounted for . . . $ 39,000,000,000

Woodrow Wilson inherited a debt to Europe of . . . $ 5,000,000,000
That indebtedness has now all been paid.

The Federal Reserve Banking system, together with our general prosperity, enabled us to loan the allies . . . . . $ 500,000,000

Four German loans have been floated in this country.

Another loan to the allies is now pending of . . . $ 250,000,000

There is still more money left in New York, and in the country at large, than ever before.

For years we have exported more gold than we imported, because we have been a debtor nation—debtor to Europe.

This year our imports of gold exceed our exports . . . . . $ 368,103,695

In two years we have added to our supply of gold . . . . . $ 660,000,000

Our total gold supply is now double that of France.

It is greater than that of Germany and England combined.

No country ever had such a foundation for its business.

July 1 our exports of both gold and goods exceeded our imports of gold and goods by $ 1,752,652,750

That huge sum stands as a credit against Europe!

It is daily increasing—and at a colossal rate.

THE CLOSE OF THE WAR WILL SEE THE UNITED STATES A CREDITOR NATION instead of a debtor nation; and New York instead of London THE FINANCIAL CAPITAL OF THE WORLD.

If you want to return to the "good old days" of Republican panics, strikes, lockouts, industrial depressions, labor wars, bank failures, Pinkerton detectives and the starving millions of unemployed, vote for Hughes.

But if you prefer peace to war, creation of wealth to destruction of life, credit to debt, opportunity to monopoly, equality of rights to special privilege, protection of labor by law to the despoiling of labor by law, and the continuance of the most abounding prosperity ever enjoyed by this or any other country, VOTE FOR WOODROW WILSON and WILLIAM J. MELLON.

N. Y. STATE UNION MEN STRONG FOR WILSON

He Has Fulfilled Every Expectation Aroused by His Career as Governor.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The only conspicuous representative of labor on whom Mr. Hughes has been able to rely in his effort to alienate wage earners from President Wilson, today gave out a statement declaring for President Wilson's re-election. He is John M. O'Hanlon, editor of the Legislative Labor News of New York State, whose editorial endorsing Mr. Hughes' record as Governor, has been widely circulated by the Republican managers, and repeatedly read from the platform by Mr. Hughes himself.

Mr. O'Hanlon said: "I have been supporting President Wilson for re-election, both in the columns of my paper and wherever I had the opportunity to express by convictions orally, ever since he has accepted a renomination. Mr. Wilson has earned the unstinted support of every wage-earner of the country by the splendid program of humanitarian legislation he has championed and put into effect at the national capitol.

"The quoted article in the issue of The Legislative Labor News of October, 1910, giving credit to Governor Hughes for his approval of labor laws while Governor of this state, is based on fact. A similar appreciation could have been issued of the work of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. Since that period both have occupied national spheres of action. Mr. Wilson as President, has fulfilled every expectation aroused by his career as Governor. Mr. Hughes has not. As a candidate for President, Mr. Hughes has declared his opposition to the Wilson program of legislation and seized upon the eight-hour law for railroad men to emphasize that opposition. In discussing it he has attacked the sincerity and intelligence of organized labor, and charged it with greed by declaring that it intimidated Congress into enacting a 'wage law' designated to create extra wages for more than eight hours of work a day. The chief object of the railroad men and all other workers is to prevent more than eight hours' work a day by exacting higher prices for extra hours.

"The entire labor movement of the State of New York almost without exception, is in favor of the re-election of President Wilson. The record of his achievement in Congress is such that no wage earner, whether a member of organized labor or not, should fail to support him for re-election."

ILLINOIS LABOR PAPER IS OUT FOR WILSON

Bellefonte, Ill., Oct. 30.—The Illinois Labor Press, the organ in this section of Organized Labor, indorses President Wilson as follows:

"The Illinois Labor Press has no dealings whatever in politics, taken in the sense that the newspapers affiliated with the respective parties deal with politics. However, we feel, deep down in our hearts, the same as every other laboring man feels, that President Woodrow Wilson has done everything possible for the laboring men of the country. We feel that his policy has been correct. We also feel that he has done everything within his power and ability to maintain the dignity of organized labor, and to preserve the equity of the laboring classes through proper legislation and business-like management."

Tuesday, November 7th, will be election day. It behooves every member of organized labor to go to the polls on that day and cast his ballot for the men whom his conscience tells him will best represent the tenets of labor. All the local candidates have answered affirmatively the questions propounded by the Legislative Committee of the State Federation of Labor, but it will be impossible to vote for all of them, they being in direct opposition to each other. Each voter should go over the situation thoroughly and canvass the ground covered by each candidate for office—then in the wisdom of his own deduction, vote for his choice.

In the presidential field there are but two leading candidates, Wilson and Hughes. Each claims to be a friend of labor, but the line has been closely drawn, and so fine are the threads that all voters from the ranks of labor should look well in to the records of these candidates for, "by their records ye shall know them."

A Union man is very proud of himself when he contributes a dollar a month to his Union for dues and thinks he has contributed to charity, he thinks that miserable little dollar will build up a powerful Labor movement, but we want to inform him that it will never be able to do very much good as long as he digs out the foundation from under the dollar by buying scab made stogies, cigars and chewing tobacco, to say nothing of his clothing, bread and other commodities. Every dollar that is spent for non-union made goods tears down the Labor Movement more than ten times the amount your dollar has done good.

THE POLICY OF THE LABOR NEWS

Whenever and wherever it will be found possible to do so, efforts will be made to bring about a better understanding between the employer and his workmen, and to encourage a feeling of good fellowship towards one another. Our columns will not be used at any time for the inciting of malice or hatred of man to man, or to stir up class feeling. We shall stand, however unqualifiedly for those who labor.

Such news as will be of interest to working people and to their families will be found here, but murders, scandals and all matters of an offensive or injurious nature, will be rigorously eliminated from these pages, which will contain only that which can be read in the home by every member of the family.

Any plan that may be suggested for bettering the conditions of laboring men and women will receive encouragement and support from The Labor News, while law and order will be upheld and respected at all times.

The loyal support of The Labor News will be given to our government officials, regardless of their party affiliations, and with the unbiased view of preserving our national traditions and honoring our Constitution, while the best interests of labor will be considered first, foremost, and all the time.

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

"The Revolt."

Would you sell your soul for clothes and jewels? Among the most tempting allurements held out to a young girl can be named her great desire for smart clothes and flashy jewelry. Anna, an innocent young shop girl, is urged by her disreputable stepmother, Mrs. Biddle, not to be so particular—to live up and get presents from rich young fellows. What would you do in her place? See what Anna, as played by Frances Nelson in "The Revolt," will do. And, besides, Arthur Ashley, the manly hero, will be there to help her. Don't miss this World picture when it comes to the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, November 6.

"Under Cover"

In all the mass of plays which are produced every season on Broadway, "Under Cover" was conspicuous as a tremendous success, nor did it require very careful study on the part of the producers to discover the reason for its popularity.

It was swift action, the never ending suspense, the mystery, the fascinating battle between a man and a woman who are in love but are forced to battle with each other by powers which they cannot resist, thrills which come in quick succession and the humor which pervades many scenes. Since all these elements are ideal for presentation on the screen, the Famous Players were quick to obtain the screen rights for "Under Cover," which is to be at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Tuesday, Nov. 7th, with Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore in the stellar roles.

"The Devil at His Elbow"

This five-part Metro wonderplay in which Clifford Bruce and Dorothy Green are seen in the stellar roles, will be the feature attraction at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Nov. 8. This production contains scores of big situations. It deals with the subject of drink and its evil influence when taken by a mechanical engineer as a stimulant to continue in an almost superhuman endeavor to complete plans for a new submarine.

"An International Marriage."

This production comes to the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday. It seems to be more than a coincidence that beautiful and vivacious Rita Jolivet, the star, should have been married to an Italian nobleman, Count Cippico, a renowned horseman.

This may have been considered when the selection was made. At any rate the combination was with the excellent cast of Morosco players and portrays a very interesting story of international social life—that ends with a punch.

"The Fugitive"

Inner workings of New York's police Department are graphically shown in the Pathe Gold Rooster play produced by Thanhouse, entitled "The Fugitive," which Manager Goodman, of the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls has announced for Friday, Nov. 10.

Beautiful Florence LaBadie, in the title role, in order to save her sister from prison, takes upon herself suspicion for a crime committed by the other girl in defence of her honor. The relentless strength of the long arm of the law is shown when luck plays into the hands of the police inspector after a number of years, and he arrests her. Does she escape? If so, how? That is the question audiences will ask up to the last few scenes.

"The Grasp of Greed."

Now comes the announcement that "The Grasp of Greed" will be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, Nov. 11, with Louise Lovely again starring in a Bluebird masterpiece. Lon Chaney and Jay Belasco will head her supporting company. The big point of interest will be to discover how a man may make a valid will, while cast away on a barren island with a girl and little boy and two half-drunken sailors, as his companions.

MAJESTIC (Continued)

enlists. Before he leaves, he marries Jean secretly. Later the girl hears that Colin has been killed. She realizes that she must have a father for the child for whom she has already begun to make clothes, so she marries Robin Gray.

When the child is born, the wealthy farmer thinks it is his own, but when Colin returns, he learns the truth and he leaves her with her real husband.

"Rolling Stones"

One of the many funny scenes in the Famous Players adaptation of the stage success "Rolling Stones," shows Dave Fulton and Buck Ryder wrestling with a wine bottle. These two have surreptitiously entered the kitchen of Mrs. Branigan's boarding house and have discovered the wine bottle on the table. They proceed to have a little war dance of joy over the discovery of the bottle, and they shake it up so violently that it explodes.

"Rolling Stones" will be the Paramount attraction at the Majestic Theatre on Saturday, November 11th.

SATURDAY, NOV. 11—Daniel Frohman presents Owen Moore and Marguerite Courtot in a picturization of "Rolling Stones," by Edgar Selwyn.

At the Majestic

"His Wife's Good Name"
This V-L-S-E release, which is the attraction at the Majestic, Monday, Nov. 6th, gives both Lucille Lee Stewart and Huntly Gordon, manifold opportunities to demonstrate their ability, which they do not fail to use. They work together admirably well and one is sure to remark upon the attractive combination throughout the film.

Mr. Gordon is a trifle taller than Miss Stewart and his features in direct contrast to hers. They act as a foil to one another—one bringing out the best qualities of the other in every instance.

"Public Opinion."

Hazel Gray (Blanche Sweet), a beautiful young nurse, is in love with Phillip Carson, son of a wealthy philanthropist, who quarrels with his stepfather and leaves home. His mother is taken ill and sends for him and he has Hazel called on the case. Mrs. Morgan dies suddenly from arsenic poisoning and Hazel is held for the crime. One jurymen is impressed with her innocence and helps to secure a verdict of not guilty. Public opinion however, condemns her, and she finally has no place to stay. It is then that Gordon Graham, the jurymen, makes known to her his love and his unshakable belief in her innocence. The Doctor is finally exposed who have the powders with arsenic in and Hazel's innocence is established.

"A Prince in a Pawnshop"

"A Prince in a Pawnshop" which is the attraction at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, Nov. 8, is the second Vitagraph Blue Ribbon release featuring the renowned Hebrew comedian, Barney Bernard.

The title role in this feature is a trifle different from Mr. Bernard's general type inasmuch as he demands tears from his audience mingled between laughs.

"The War Bride's Secret."

Humor and pathos of Scotch life on the plains has its part in the unfolding of the story of "The War Bride's Secret," which will be the attraction at the Majestic, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 9-10, the new William Fox production in which Virginia Pearson is starred. The story of the film tells how Jean MacDougal (Miss Pearson), a dairymaid on the extensive farm of Robin Gray (Walter Law), is loved by Gray and by Colin Douglas (Glen White). Jean's father (Henry Hallam) encourages the love of Gray, and tries to force his daughter to marry him.

"GOVERNOR" HUGHES' RECORD

Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for President, has eagerly seized on the President Wilson's avowed establishment of an eight-hour working day on the railroads of the United States as an issue. In Kentucky, in Ohio, and in other states he has denounced this new law, and declares that if he were President it would never have been enacted. He would have vetoed it. This is the first specific declaration he has made of what he would do if he were in President Wilson's place, and it means that if he were still a United States Supreme Court Judge he would vote to annul the law and that if he is elected President he will demand its repeal.

Mr. Hughes thus discloses to the nation a fact well developed during his term as Governor of New York State: That he is a zealous friend of the railroad corporations, and opposed to any legislation to regulate conditions on their lines.

His chief act as Governor was to force through a law taking away from the legislature supervising power over the management of state railroads. This power he located exclusively in a commission, to which he appointed "high class" lawyers, agreeable to the railroad corporations. The four railroad brotherhoods and Street Railwaymen's Unions asked for one member on this commission and were flatly refused. These commissioners were each paid $5,000 a year more than the Governor, and this fact alone was given as a reason why a "simple workman" could not be considered for a commissionership.

With this commission erected, Mr. Hughes utilized its existence as a blockade to all legislation passed by the legislature to improve the conditions of railroad workers, using his veto pen with such diligence as to eventually discourage the consideration of bills offered by the railroad men's brotherhoods at Albany. A few samples of these vetoes will serve to illustrate the Hughes attitude toward railroad workers vs. railroad corporations.

In 1907, his first year as Governor he vetoed Assembly bill No. 466, to provide a full train crew on freight trains of more than 20 cars; first he had the bill recalled from him to avoid a direct veto, but the legislature re-passed it, and he then vetoed it after the legislature had adjourned and the opportunity to enact it over his veto was removed.

The same year he vetoed Assembly bill No. 682 to compel the surface railways of Kings and Queens counties to provide vestibules on their cars in the winter months for the protection of employees and passengers. At the same time he vetoed Senate bill No. 1172 to prohibit employment of non-residents of the state as attached strike-breakers by railroad and other corporations.

In 1908 he vetoed the McGloughery Assembly bill to prevent rear-end collisions by requiring an extra man by side engineer and fireman on light engines running ten miles outside of the yard limits. The same year he vetoed the Wagner Assembly bill to establish a five-cent fare to Coney Island, the New York City breathing resort of the mass of the wage-earning population, whose homes are in congested 6 to 10 story tenements.

In 1909 he vetoed the Spurless-Gledhill bill to compel street railway companies to have vestibules on cars operating in the city and suburbs of Brooklyn during the winter months.

As a sidelight on his idea of what seizes workmen on public work should get as compared with "high class" lawyers in public service commissions, he in 1910 vetoed Assembly bill No. 1296, which raised the pay of axemen and laborers on state highway and canal construction from $2 a day to $6.5 a month.

So, it will be observed, that the Governor Charles Hughes of 1907-1910 does not differ in the least from the Presidential Candidate Charles Evans Hughes of 1916. He is running true to form.

Dr. Rucker, of the federal public health service, in a recent address, declared that good health is possible for all and is "purchasable," not from the standpoint of buying medicine, but through the purchase of food, clothing, housing and all that goes with them.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO UNION WORKERS

Interesting Data Gleaned By State Federation From All Points in the Country.

School teachers of Pueblo, Col., are effecting an organization.

Nearly 500 employees of the Poole Engineering Company, of Baltimore, are on strike against the bonus system.

Upholsterers, of Baltimore, won an important victory, after a strike of four weeks.

The citizens of West Newberry, Mass., are perfecting a plan to operate a municipal jitney service as a protest against recently established six-cent trolley fares. Three towns are affected.

Judge H. J. Austin, of Fresno, Cal., handed down a decision against K. S. Cashin, who sued the Moving Picture Operators' Union for boycotting his establishment.

Telegraph operators of Hagerstown, Md., and printers of Boston, Mass., received increases in wages during the past week.

President Arthur T. Money, of the National Safety Council, in addressing the annual session of that body, declared that safeguarding workingmen pays in time and labor saved, but the work is so humanitarian that he believes that it would go forward even if that were not true.

Gives Election Views

the greatest "slap-in-the-face" labor has received for a number of years. Regardless of what has been done, Wilson has proved to be the best friend of labor in the White House, since the beginning of my recollection. There is still a greater reason for Wilson to get your vote, and that is the defeat of Hughes. Take his record as Governor of New York, which appears in another column, and it will serve as a warning.

I attended a meeting in the Grand Opera House, Rochester, last Friday evening and heard Hon. H. W. Temple tell all about the Democratic administration, i. e., the bad points only. No, they have done nothing good according to the Doctor, and besides that, everything that he has done was absolutely right, especially his vote on the Adamson bill. He voted against it. Temple claims that he is for an eight-hour bill for every workman, and had such a bill been presented he would have voted for it. The Doctor only stultifies himself when he makes such an assertion, when he (with all his learning) knows that Congress could not pass a bill giving eight hours to all railroad employees, but only to employees in roads doing an interstate business and engaged in interstate traffic. To go further along this line, it would be necessary to call attention to Dr. Temple's remarks that he prepared and delivered in Congress on September 6th, also, his speech last Friday evening, to the effect that the President was playing politics in the passage of the bill, and goes further and brands the four chief executives of the four Brotherhoods as being traitors, and the 640 general committeemen as being incompetent and "gold bricked."

Last week's issue of The Labor News contained a letter from J. Dugan, of Conway, requesting information regarding J. Howard Fry and David W. Denton soliciting contributions from the manufacturers of the Beaver valley to carry on an extensive campaign for W. D. Craig and others. I can say that I have reliable information that the above mentioned gentlemen called on a manufacturing man of East Rochester and requested $50.00 to spend in the interest of Temple and Craig, and were refused.

There is another peculiar situation in the election of W. D. Craig. It appears that the temperance and liquor people of the valley have joined hands by the endorsement of Mr. Craig. In answer to the question, "Are all the license holders of Beaver county for you?" Mr. Craig answered by saying that he had not seen all of them; but he could say three of them were for him. I saw in Saturday evening's Daily Times that Craig had answered the temperance people's questions all satisfactorily.

Two years ago W. D. Craig denounced the Republican organization, saying, "A decent man would be ashamed to run on the Republican ticket, as the Republican party was rotten and corrupt." Two weeks ago he was asked what he thought of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Temple, and he said "That it was not fair to ask him to criticize men running on the same ticket as himself." Now Mr. Craig is in the same crowd, and is not this crowd in control of the Republican party in this State as it was at the time he attempted Beaver County for Vance McCormick against Brumbaugh?

These are the facts most prominently brought out in these meetings, which impressed me most.

Rochester, Pa.

Either plain or with fur collar. Ordinarily this wouldn't be a great offer, but when another local store misrepresents inferior velvet coats as real plush coats and sells them for $15.00 and $18.00, it's time to call your attention to it. We don't handle any velvet coats or any other cheap make, that will get shabby looking as quickly as these. ### STATE OF TRADE WAS REPORTED EXCELLENT

Much business was transacted at the regular meeting of the Central Labor Union, held Monday evening. Delegates seated were Alex McKinney, representing Bartenders' Local No. 276, of New Brighton; Oscar Ekstedt and George Cadley, from A. F. G. W. U., No. 25, and J. A. Kause from A. F. G. W. U., No. 38.

Communications were read as follows, one having a local interest coming from the secretary of Division 85, Street and Electric Railway employees:

Beaver, Pa., Nov. 5, 1916.
To Whom It May Concern:

We, the members of Division 85, Street and Electric Railway Employees, were very much insulted by the Beaver Falls Tribune, and we would like to have them apologize to us in the public press, as we believe they have slandered us. It was regularly moved and seconded that we bring the matter before the Central Labor Union and request their aid in securing justice in this matter.

The facts are that they slandered us about carrying paper copy past Fifth street, and about how some of the conductors treat the passengers. We wrote to the manager, but instead of his writing to our local, he wrote one in each of the following places: Sidney, Wapakoneta, St. Marys, Toledo, Findlay, Delphos, Fostoria, Van Wert, Bellefontaine—all in Ohio, and who make the following named brands of goods: One cent—San Felice, American Star, Ceredo, John Morton, White Bros, Little Havana. Ten cent—Elmer, small, medium and large sizes. Fifteen cent—Ambassador; have been trying to organize for an increase in pay and an eight-hour day.

When the superintendents of these factories learned that we were organizing, he stated on the floor of the north side factory at Lima that the union would not be recognized and that they "would let their tobacco rot in the warehouse" before raising the pay of a single employee. Two weeks later when he learned of the hundreds who had joined the Cigarmakers International Union, in order to stop organization, he increased the pay of the women on part of the work, and reduced the pay of the men on five-cent goods.

On five-cent goods, such as the San Felice, women are paid $1.20 per thousand and less than men. Men are paid $2.20 per 1,000 less than the union scale and women $3.40 less. Compared with the union scale, men have a loss of $5 or $6 per week, while women suffer a loss of $7 or $8 per week.

On ten cent goods the loss is much greater in proportion, women getting $5 per thousand less than men. Packers are paid less than one-half the union scale, with a corresponding difference in the prices paid to women.

A general report of the controversy was given by a delegate, detailing the situation at length and also stating what conclusion they had reached. It has developed that the members of Division 85 are in earnest in this matter and they will brook no half-way measures. They have placed this paper on the "we don't patronize list."

A communication was received from the State Department of Labor and Industry, acknowledging the receipt of lists containing names and addresses of members of Safety Committees, and assuring the Department's support in the matter. The Committee will be kept advised by the Department of matters of interest to the organization.

From Local No. 261, Collar Workers' Union, came the following communication, the contents of the same being worthy of consideration by the union men in Beaver valley, as well as in all parts of the country:

The Union Label Collar Co.
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir and Bros:—The above local has repeatedly asked for your moral support and from all appearances it seems as though you have disregarded all respect for the emblem of your labor as well as ours.

As we have mentioned in several of our appeals, we do not ask for money, all we beg of you is to assist us in earning our living as Union Girls and entitled to your support as union men, by purchasing the only collar which bears the union label in the country today, namely: the Bell Brand, made in 54 styles, which some dealers tell you are made in a few styles.

We again ask if you would see a small factory employing a handful of union girls, go out of business on account of the inconsistency of union men, by not purchasing Bell Brand collars which are equal to any non-union collar on the market today. If you would kindly give this matter your consideration and increase the sale of Bell Brand collars in order to retain our position in the ranks of Organized Labor we will appreciate same.

Fraternalty yours,

Cigar workers employed by the Deisel-Wemmer cigar factories, located in various Ohio towns, are fighting for the eight-hour day, their position being explained in the following letter:

Lima, Ohio, October 31, 1916.
To Organized Labor, Greeting:

Fellow Workers:—For some time past the cigarmakers and packers employed by the Deisel-Wemmer cigar factories, located—two in Lima, and that these women workers are of equal skill with men, and that therefore women should receive the same price as men.

In order to make up a part of the difference between the union scale and the scale paid by this company, we must work ten hours per day, or two hours more than union hours.

Our simple request of you is that your organizations write the Deisel-Wemmer Co., Cigar Manufacturers, Lima, Ohio, demanding that the union label be placed on all their cigars, and that the hours of labor be reduced to eight per day, and that the wages of women workers be raised to equal that paid the men.

If you will do this, there can be no question but what we will get those demands.

Thanking you in advance for this favor, we remain,

Fraternalty yours,
EDWARD TYHURST,
President.

WOODROW WILSON

Re-elected President of the United States

By Vote of the People.

PRESIDENT WILSON DECLARED ELEGED

California Finally Swings to President Giving Him the Necessary Electors' Votes.

On the face of the partial returns already counted Friday morning, President Wilson has been re-elected. Figures from the five states which have been in doubt many hours, make it appear that President Wilson has received 272 electoral votes, and Chas. E. Hughes 259, with 266 votes necessary to elect.

California proved to be the state which President Wilson needed to insure his election, and at one o'clock Friday morning, with but 56 districts missing, he had a reported total of 464,904 votes, and Hughes had 461,995, a Wilson plurality of 2,909.

In North Dakota, with 33 districts missing, Wilson had a plurality of 1,500, while New Mexico with 158 districts missing, gave Wilson a plurality of 1,961.

Minnesota, with 121 districts missing, gave Hughes a plurality of 1,034 and New Hampshire, with 25 towns missing, gave Hughes a plurality of 131.

Of President Wilson's electoral vote he receives 147 from the solid South and 125 from the west.

Latest Congressional returns, which were practically complete, assure a Democratic Senate, but with five districts still undecided, the best that the Democrats could claim at midnight, Thursday, was a plurality of four votes in the House. Upon the basis of revised returns the Democrats have elected 215 members of the House and the Republicans 211. In addition there have been elected one Independent, one Socialist, one Progressive and one Roosevelt Progressive.

The prizes offered will be raffled off following the demonstration and the holders of the first ten tickets drawn from the hat will carry away the articles called for, which, it is safe to say, will be of use to the lucky carpenters in their trade.

Mr. Scott, the Atkins representative, is a member of Carpenters' Local No. 331, of Norfolk, Va., and for a number of years was business agent for the Carpenters' District Council of Norfolk.

RANGE DRAWING HELD

The dance was well attended and proved most enjoyable.

Mr. Scott told the men that the carpenters employed at the Atkins works received the same wages for both inside and outside work, a rather unusual condition.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry Goes Sleighriding

SAY! Isn't it great to get all wrapped up in fur robes in a fine old sleigh and let a fine old horse drag you over the fine old snow on a fine old country road?

Answer: It is. It's great if all the ingredients are properly proportioned, but nine times out of ten something goes wrong with the horse or the sleigh or the snow or the road and you find yourself four miles from nowhere, sitting on an ice hammock and screaming for transportation, while the harsh winds of winter are biting their initials on your southern exposure.

Peaches and I went to visit Uncle Peter and Aunt Martha upstate, and when friend wife found the ground covered with snow, right away she began to sit up and beg a sleigh ride. She said that the sweet jingle-jangle of the bells would bring rest to her nerves after a season of trying to cross the streets in New York without being struck by a taxicab, so Uncle Peter told me where to find a livery stable and off I hiked.

Anyone who has never lived in a semi-rural town will doubtless recall that handsome specimens of equine perfection may be found in the local livery stable—not.

The liveryman in the town where Uncle Peter lives is named Henlopen Laffenwell, and he looks the part. I judged from the excited manner in which he grabbed my deposit money that he had a note falling due next day.

Then Henlopen shut his eyes, counted six, turned around twice, multiplied the day of the week by 19, subtracted 7, and the answer was a cream-colored horse with four pink feet and a frightened face.

The gargoyle gazed at me sadly, sighed deeply and then backed up into the shafts of a sleigh that looked something like a barber's chair and something like the tumbler Marie Antoinette used the afternoon she went to the guillotine.

The liveryman said that the name of the horse was Lohengrin, because it seemed to go better in German.

I drove Lohengrin up to Uncle Peter's residence and all the way there we ran neck to neck with a coal cart. Lohengrin used to be a fast horse, but quite some time ago he stopped eating his wild oats and now leads a

When I reached the gate I whistled for Peaches, because I was afraid to get out and leave Lohengrin alone. He might go to sleep and fall down.

Friend wife came out, looked at the rig and then went back in the house and bade everybody an affecting farewell.

There were tears in her eyes when she came out and climbed into the sleigh. She said she was crying because Aunt Martha wasn't there to see us driving away and have the laugh of her life.

We started off and we were rushing along the road, passing a fence and aised hunk of ice which was to be my argument. Lohengrin came out of his trance and started off, but Peaches forgot her instructions and spoke above a whisper and he stopped again.

Then I took the reins, cracked the whip, shouted a few paragraphs of the language General Villa uses in Mexico when he captures a Federal soldier, and away we rushed like the wind—when it wasn't blowing hard.

The hours flew by and we must have gone at least half a mile, when another Kerosene Wagon came bouncing toward us from the opposite direction.

In it was a happy party of ladies and gentlemen, who were laughing and chatting about some people they had just run over.

Lohengrin saw them coming and stopped still in the middle of the road. Then he hung his head as low as he could, and I believe if that horse had been supplied with hands he would have put them over his ears.

The people in the Hubble began to shout at us, and I began to shout at the horse, and friend wife began to shout at me, while Lohengrin stood there and scratched his left ankle with his right heel.

Then the machine made a sudden jump to the right and hiked by us at the rate of about a $100 fine, while the lady passengers in the cabin de luxe stood up and began to hand out medals to each other because they didn't run us down.

Ten minutes later Lohengrin came to and looked over his shoulder at us with a smile as serene as the morning and once more resumed his mad career onward, ever onward.

We were now about two miles from home, and suddenly we came across a big red touring car which stood in front of a roadhouse, sneezing inwardly and sobbing with all its corrugated heart.

Lohengrin saw the machine before we did.

He knew there must be an automobile somewhere near, because he stopped still and quietly passed away.

I jumped out and tried to lead him by the Coroner's Delight, but he planted his four feet in the middle of the road and refused to be coaxed.

I took the horse by the ear, and whispered therein just what I thought of his behavior. He couldn't talk back.

I told him my wife's honor was at stake, but he looked my wife over and his lips curled up an expression which seemed to say, "Impossible."

It was all off with us. Lohengrin simply wouldn't move until that sobbing Choc Choc Wagon had left the neighborhood, so I went inside the roadhouse to find the owner.

I found him. He consisted of a German chauffeur and eight bottles of beer.

When I explained the pitiful situation to him the chauffeur swallowed two bottles of beer and began to cry.

Then he told the waiter to call him at 7:30, and he put his head down on meets an accident. Lohengrin to sleep and tries to say that that better than running. Lohengrin to a hospital. Lohengrin to something about the fact that affects Lohengrin's health. It is the gasoline. The gasoline is the gasoline. Lohengrin to the region of his mind. Lohengrin to move. Lohengrin to the horse, with a most lovable expression, but when the air becomes saturated with gasoline he forgets his own name and asleep at the switch.

I went out and looked at my wife that Lohengrin was victim of the gasoline habit. Lohengrin he would never leave that machine. The Hubble went away, and the Hubble couldn't go away. The chauffeur woke up, and that the chauffeur couldn't wake up. Lohengrin he digested a lot of words, so she jumped out of the Hubble for the purpose of telling Lohengrin just what she thought about him.

At that moment somebody opened the folding door in the barn just ahead of us, and Lohengrin, with a withering glance at my wife and a shrug of his shoulders in my direction, tippy-toed to cover and left us flat.

Ostler Joe, the chauffeur's assistant, the barn, tried to stop Lohengrin and ask for his credentials, but the equine onion brushed right by and planted himself and the Hubble in the middle of the barn floor, where he promptly went to sleep again.

Just as we hurried away to flag an approaching trolley car, I heard Ostler Joe say to the slumbering Lohengrin:

The Gargoyle Gazed at Me!

"Wake up, you doggone ol' rabbit, wake up and get out'n our barn. I know you, dag gone you, even if you be disguised by hidin' behind that four-poster bed on runners. Wake up, you ol' H! You be Henlopen Laffenwell's accomplice in crime, bein' ye? Waal, you git right out'n our barn an' do your sleppin' where you belong. Dag gone! You H! You H! You H! Come on now, git!"

When we finally reached home Aunt Martha asked us how we enjoyed the sleighride.

"The scenery was perfectly lovely—it was so stationary," Peaches answered, with charming teeth.

"One of the best walks I ever had," I said as I put both feet in the fireplace to warm up.

Lohengrin, eh? To make him go Mr. Wagner would have to set him to ragtime.

Don't Dodge. Do not dodge. Whatever the difficulties to be met, they are not made easier by trying to dodge them. In trying to dodge a missile from one direction you may come in line with one from a different direction. When we dodge trouble we are more than likely to get into other trouble no less easy to endure. Look with courage on what must be met. Faced with courage difficulties are half conquered. Better to meet and conquer difficulties than to dodge them. Do not dodge duties that devolve on you. Duties performed add strength and dignity to character. It matters little what these duties are; though they may be of the simplest and humblest, well and truly done, they acquire dignity. Stand up bravely and squarely to meet the difficulties of life. With courage you will conquer. You will come through life with fewer scars than by trying to dodge duty or difficulty. Trying to evade boogies in a man a cringing spirit. He gets a habit of truckling, and upright, self-respecting manhood is gone. Don't dodge if you would hold yourself above meanness.—Milwaukee Journal.

But He Understood. The artist was painting—sunset, red, with blue streaks and green dots. The old rustic, at a respectful distance, was watching.

"Ah," said the artist, looking up suddenly, "perhaps to you, too, nature has opened her sky-pictures page by page? Have you seen the lambent flame of dawn leaping across the livid east; the red-stained, vaporous sheets floating in the lake of the west; the ragged clouds of midnight, black as a raven's wing, blotting out the shuddering moon?"

"No," replied the rustic, shortly; "but since I signed the pledge,"—Tit-Bits.

Idle Motograph. "What is the title of that book you are reading?"

"The Sea of Mistrust,"

"Hm! Any submarine about?"

"Oh, yes, but the particular ship whose tortures I am describing is in no danger. It is covered by a dreadnaught."

"Meaning?"

"The bride's mother."

Home Town Helps

GOOD CITIZENSHIP IN THIS

Every Community Would Be Bettered If All Would Subscribe to the Following Creed.

The man who loves his city—its people, its institutions, its churches, schools and parks, its flowers, trees and vine-clad homes—that man is the good citizen. He can, in good faith, subscribe to this creed, the author of which is now unknown: "I believe in her people, in her boys and girls. I will make myself a committee of one to make my town a good place in which to live and a mighty hard place to leave. I believe in my town. I believe in her schools; in her churches; in her stores. I believe in the street broom, and the street cleaner and the paint pot. I do not believe in empty cans on vacant lots; never again will I throw waste paper or trash in its streets. I believe in trees; grass instead of mud heaps, flowers instead of weeds. God bless the tongues that give honest praise and may he doubly bless the ear that is deaf to scandal and gossip. If we cannot speak good of our neighbors, let's hold our peace! When it costs me nothing, at least, I will spend my money at home and by so doing leave a part of the purchase price to circulate in channels where its equivalent in wealth was originally created; and to do good among the folk who are a part of the community of which I am a part in the place that I call home." And if every man would live according to the terms of this creed, how much more desirable his world be.—Houston Post.

KEEPING UP RURAL SCHOOLS

Important Matter That Is Just Now Engaging the Attention of Illinois Educational Authorities.

"Many good school people are viewing with alarm the new campaign for better school buildings," says a bulletin issued by the Illinois department of public instruction. "They fear that every dollar put into new buildings and equipment fixes more firmly the position of the small district and consequently postpones the time for consolidation."

"It must be admitted that there is some ground for this fear. Every improvement in the local one-teacher school district will constitute an argument against its discontinuance. However, it is manifestly unjust to the 500,000 children in these rural schools today to keep them living and working under unfit and insanitary conditions in order that children of a later generation may enjoy a better school opportunity. Everyone will agree, no doubt, that, where the people of several adjoining districts are practically agreed upon consolidation, a delay in the large improvement of existing buildings for a year may be advisable."

AIM TO HAVE MODEL TOWN

Founders of Hopewell, Va., Are Men Who Recognize the Spirit of the Times.

Hopewell, Va., is the youngest industrial city in the United States. A year ago its site was a peaceful Virginia farm a few miles from Petersburg. Then industry with its magic wand and planted a great factory in the solitude. Now it has a population of 25,000 and is growing daily. So metropolitan is Hopewell that municipal information is printed in five different languages. A liberal percentage of native Americans in the professional and commercial class, however, are enthusiastically aiding in planning a city capable of ideal civic attainment.

Hopewell was founded as the permanent center for a large manufacturing plant supplying munitions of war to European nations. Its plans were based upon the full recognition of the fact that the highest efficiency of the worker can only be expected under the best living conditions.

Arrangement of Home.

No more important question confronts the home builder than the exposure of the rooms in his prospective home, for no matter how charming a house may be, nor how convenient its interior arrangement, it cannot be entirely successful unless each room has a favorable exposure.

A living room having windows on its east and west sides may capture both the morning and afternoon sun, and if in addition it opens out on a porch facing the south, no more satisfactory arrangement is possible.

A porch facing the south makes a pleasant open-air living room in warm weather, and a cheery, glassed-in sun parlor in the winter.

For the dining room an easterly exposure is desirable, thus giving one a cheerful amount of sunshine for what is apt to be in many households the most trying meal of the day.

The model kitchen will have windows facing both north and south. This makes for comfort in summer, and admits the late afternoon sun, which considerably lengthens the hours of day light.

South and west for the chambers is the correct exposure, with windows facing both ways if possible.

KNOCKOUT FOR MR. BROWN

His Better Half's Story of Experience With Lottery Certainly Not Flattering to Him.

Mrs. Brown has a special knowledge of lotteries, and at all times and places she embraces every opportunity of holding forth with vehemence concerning this pet abomination. Her indignation will therefore be imagined when, one evening, her worthy spouse came home and proudly announced that he had joined a goose club. For something like an hour she poured the vials of wrath at her unfortunate husband's head, while he endeavored weakly to bear it all.

At last the wrath of the attack proved quite too much for the long-enduring John, and he decided that the time had come for him to fire up in return.

"I suppose, my dear," said he, endeavoring to be sarcastic, "you were never in a lottery, were you?"

But, alas for the speaker! Mrs. Brown turned upon him with withering scorn.

"Once, John, and only once," said she. "They say, as you know, that marriage is a lottery. Well, I went in for that, and I myself won a goose!"—London Tit-Bits.

Surprised Dinner Party.

In a recently published book Sir Henry Lucy has a charming story of the late Canon Alinger. The canon was very fond of children, and set out one night to attend a party given "by children for children."

"Don't announce me," he said to the servant.

Leaving his coat and hat downstairs he quietly opened the drawing-room door, where the buzz of voices announced the presence of company. Dropping on his hands and knees he entered, making "strange noises distinctly resembling the neighing of a horse. Aware of a dead silence, he looked up and found the guests assembled for an eight-o'clock dinner regarding him with disgust not unmingled with alarm. The children's party was next door.—Youth's Companion.

overtaking a telegraph pole every once in a while, when suddenly we heard behind us a very insistent choof-choof-choof!

"It's one of those Careless Wagons," I whispered to Peaches, and then we both looked at Lohengrin to see if there was a mental struggle going on in his forehead, but he was rushing onward with his head down, watching his feet to make sure they didn't step on each other.

Choof-choof-choof came the Torpedo Destroyer behind us, and I wrapped the reins around my wrist, in case Lohengrin should get uneasy and want to print horseshoes all over the automobile.

The next minute the machine passed us, going at the rate of 14 constables an hour, and as it did so Lohengrin stopped still and seemed to be biting his lips with suppressed emotion.

I ceased him to proceed in English, in Spanish and Italian, and then in a pale blue language of my own, but he just stood there and bit his lips.

I believe if he had possessed finger nails he would have bitten them too. I gave the reins to friend wife with instructions how to act if the horse started, and I jumped out to argue with him.

Just when I had picked out a good the table and went to sleep with his face in a cute little nest of hard-boiled cigarettes.

I rushed to the telephone and called up the liveryman, but before I could think of a word strong enough to fit the occasion he whispered over the wire: "I know your voice, Mr. Henry. I suppose Lohengrin is waiting for you outside."

Forthwith I tried to tell that liveryman just what I thought about him and Lohengrin, but the telephone girl short-circuited my remarks and they came back and set fire to the woodwork.

"My, my!" I could hear the liveryman saying. "Lohengrin's hesitation must be the result of the epidemic of automobiles which is now raging over our country roads. The automobile has a strange effect on Lohengrin. It seems to cover him with a pause and gives him inflammation of the speed."

I thought of poor Peaches shivering out there in that comedy sleigh staring at a dreaming horse, while in front of her a Red Devil Wagon complained internally and shook its tonneau at her, and once more I jolted that liveryman with a few verbal twisters.

"Don't get excited," he whispered back over the phone. "Lohengrin is a new idea in horses. Whenever he meets an accident, Lohengrin to sleep and tries to say that that better than running. Lohengrin to a hospital. Lohengrin to something about the fact that affects Lohengrin's health. It is the gasoline. The gasoline is the gasoline. Lohengrin to the region of his mind. Lohengrin to move. Lohengrin to the horse, with a most lovable expression, but when the air becomes saturated with gasoline he forgets his own name and asleep at the switch."

I went out and looked at my wife that Lohengrin was victim of the gasoline habit. Lohengrin he would never leave that machine. The Hubble went away, and the Hubble couldn't go away. The chauffeur woke up, and that the chauffeur couldn't wake up. Lohengrin he digested a lot of words, so she jumped out of the Hubble for the purpose of telling Lohengrin just what she thought about him."

At that moment somebody opened the folding door in the barn just ahead of us, and Lohengrin, with a withering glance at my wife and a shrug of his shoulders in my direction, tippy-toed to cover and left us flat."

Ostler Joe, the chauffeur's assistant, the barn, tried to stop Lohengrin and ask for his credentials, but the equine onion brushed right by and planted himself and the Hubble in the middle of the barn floor, where he promptly went to sleep again."

Just as we hurried away to flag an approaching trolley car, I heard Ostler Joe say to the slumbering Lohengrin:

"Wake up, you doggone ol' rabbit, wake up and get out'n our barn. I know you, dag gone you, even if you be disguised by hidin' behind that four-poster bed on runners. Wake up, you ol' H! You be Henlopen Laffenwell's accomplice in crime, bein' ye? Waal, you git right out'n our barn an' do your sleppin' where you belong. Dag gone! You H! You H! You H! Come on now, git!"

When we finally reached home Aunt Martha asked us how we enjoyed the sleighride.

"The scenery was perfectly lovely—it was so stationary," Peaches answered, with charming teeth.

"One of the best walks I ever had," I said as I put both feet in the fireplace to warm up.

Lohengrin, eh? To make him go Mr. Wagner would have to set him to ragtime.

Don't Dodge. Do not dodge. Whatever the difficulties to be met, they are not made easier by trying to dodge them. In trying to dodge a missile from one direction you may come in line with one from a different direction. When we dodge trouble we are more than likely to get into other trouble no less easy to endure. Look with courage on what must be met. Faced with courage difficulties are half conquered. Better to meet and conquer difficulties than to dodge them. Do not dodge duties that devolve on you. Duties performed add strength and dignity to character. It matters little what these duties are; though they may be of the simplest and humblest, well and truly done, they acquire dignity. Stand up bravely and squarely to meet the difficulties of life. With courage you will conquer. You will come through life with fewer scars than by trying to dodge duty or difficulty. Trying to evade boogies in a man a cringing spirit. He gets a habit of truckling, and upright, self-respecting manhood is gone. Don't dodge if you would hold yourself above meanness.—Milwaukee Journal.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

Preparedness for Parents Lies in Their Own Memory.

CHILDISH MOODS ARE QUEER

Recall Your Own Youthful Misdeeds and Peculiar Desires When Called On to Judge the Little Person in Your Family.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

"WHEN I was your age," said mother, or father, or uncle, or even an older brother or sister, "I ate everything placed before me without a word."

"I obeyed first and asked why afterward."

Or, at best, "I wouldn't have thought of doing anything like that."

These things are not said for the sake of completing the historical record. You will have guessed that they are said for the purpose of impressing the young person with the abnormality of his wishes or conduct and thus with the unreasonableness or even wickedness of his ways. But there are two serious defects in the method. Statements made in this form are likely to be untrue. And they generally fail to produce the desired effect.

When father was son's age he really did want a latchkey for weeks or months before he had the courage to ask for it; and if he now thinks it preposterous for Jack to ask for a latchkey it may be that his judgment has mellowed. But to say to Jack, "When I was your age"—is hardly to the point. If the truth were known or remembered the parent would not say that. But when he does say it Jack is likely to think to himself that father must have been rather dull in those days. His mother forgotten the time when she preferred considerations of dress and parties to the humdrum of the household? Or was she really the kind of girl that never cared?

When we are inclined to lose patience because the child objects to wearing the clothes we have selected for him, let us search the dusty crannies of our memory attics for the days when we thought that everybody must be watching our absurd blouse or outlandish hat. When we are tempted to lose our temper because the child intimates that we are unjust in our treatment of him, let us recall the days of our own childhood when we wished to get even, or when we wished we had never been born.

Every child passes through these experiences, and most of these same children grow up to be unseeing and unfeeling parents, because they forget. Of course, we are not to be blamed for forgetting; that seems to be the nature of the species. But we might at least make an effort to find out just what we have a right to expect and to demand of the children of those forgotten ages.

It is not alone the parents who forget. All who get safely past childhood are liable to detach themselves from the interests and the outlook of children. In a normal school the young women who are the next year to be entrusted with the care of young children will be found very often to show the same attitude of indifference and antagonism toward their instructors as younger children do so commonly. Yet these same young women when they are placed in front of a class will resent inattention as if it were a wanton and malicious affront to their authority. The normal school student will very often shirk work and avoid responsibility; but in a short while, when confronted with similar conduct on the part of her pupils, she finds it difficult, if not impossible, to understand "how children can do such things." The college student will "bluff" through his recitations in the manner characteristic of the particular institution, and the following year he will be outraged because some sharp boys try to play the same trick upon him.

If we did somehow manage to remember our own moods and our various misdeeds and our youthful escapades it is still quite likely that we should not approve of the parallel manifestations in our children. But however much we disapprove of them, we could gain a great deal from the bare realization that the children are not wicked or malicious. Understanding their moods and their impulses does not mean indifference to the consequences or to the habits that they are forming. It means ability to help them over their difficulties, to guide them because of our superior wisdom and larger experience.

It is for these reasons that those of us who have forgotten our own youth need to study what is known about the child of today. We are taken unawares by a little child begins some day to cry from our side. He is too young to cry and to keep within bounds before very long he is out of bounds and we shudder to think what might have happened if a vehicle had then come along.

Or the next child surprises us by coming home with soiled clothes, and we wonder whether it was not one of the neighbors' children that brought him to his home. We know, of course, that other people's children are disobedient, but they are untidy, that they are "wild," and when it comes Harold's turn we are caught unprepared.

Yet it is possible for parents to be prepared to a degree. It is possible for us to find out the general course of the child's development and to know what we have to look forward to. It is possible to find out the distinctive characteristics of each important stage and to accept them without losing our poise.

The individual forgets, but the race remembers. If we have forgotten the peculiarities of our own seventh year, let us study the present-day children who are still in the seventh year, and we shall know what is proper for our own child in his seventh year. If we have forgotten how we crossed the bridge of the "teens," let us watch the adolescents of today, and we shall be prepared in spite of our short memories.

ABSENTMINDED MR. JONES

Although He Hadn't Forgotten the Favors, He Might Almost as Well Have Done So.

Mr. Jones' wife says that he is the most absentminded man in the world. She finds it necessary to look him over every morning before he leaves for his office, lest he should appear there in his pajamas some day.

On the day that she entertained the members of her club, Mrs. Jones took great pains to purchase the bridge favors, according to the New York Times.

"Now," she said in the morning, as he was about to leave for the day, "do please remember to go to the store next door to your office and get for me the handkerchiefs in the store and send them up to the house with a boy this afternoon."

Jones promised faithfully to remember and promptly forgot all about the matter until he reached the office. Then his eyes lighted on the string his wife had tied about his finger.

"Great Scott!" he cried, "those favors!" Half an hour later, as he was opening his mail, he came across a letter from his wife.

"Don't forget those favors," it read, "and be sure to pay for them."

"Hm, that's right," muttered Jones abstractedly. "I did nearly forget them."

Shortly after receiving the letter, his wife called him up on the telephone.

"Have you bought those favors?" she inquired.

"By Jove!" answered the husband, "I did almost forget them!"

At noon he left the office, to be gone the remainder of the day. At six o'clock he walked up the stoop of his house, tired but happy in the consciousness that his day's work was over.

At the door of the house his wife met him, in a plainly wrathful mood.

"Wretched man!" she cried.

Jones surveyed her in amazement for a moment. Then an awful thought pierced his mind.

"Why," he stammered, "I didn't forget those favors after all, did I?"

"No," she cried. "But three times this afternoon you sent a boy here with 25 of them each time."

Wonder of the Rose.

What service has the rose rendered to our ancestors that we should admire it beyond all rational measure? Did it feed them, clothe them, warm them, or serve to deck some otherwise unattractive maid and win for her a wooer? Did our ancestors, whether beasts or human progenitors of retreating skull and beaklike teeth, breathe in its beauty and take fresh courage for the battle of life? Can it be by chance that man has come to find in a flower the great symbol of beauty? Why is not the fruit more beautiful to him than the flower? Why not the vegetable than the fruit? Why not the fish than the vegetable, or a lamb chop most beautiful of all?—Henry Dwight Sedgwick, in the Atlantic.

Vineyards of Argentina.

Mendoza is the southern California of Argentina. Irrigation has long been successfully applied to its vineyards, which produce more wine than the combined vineyards of the entire United States of North America, according to the National Geographic Magazine. The whole of the province lies at an altitude of more than two thousand feet. Irrigation is, for the most part, employed in the cultivation of the grapes, the whole family accompanying husband and father to the field and assisting in tending the vines. The babies are put to sleep in improvised tents while their elders work.

Educated Rooster.

"Spizzierinkum" is an odd name even for a rooster, but this rooster is no ordinary fowl. The bird comes from a strain of Barred Plymouth rocks, was hatched last May and weighs six pounds. He is owned by E. E. Bennett of Hartford City, who refuses to part with his prize-winner at any price. Judges at various fairs where he has been shown have told the owner that he is a most promising bird, and this is borne out by the fact that $100 has been offered for him.

"Spizzierinkum" is also an educated fowl. One of his chief delights is riding the seat of a specially constructed wagon and holding the reins over eight boys who act as steeds for him. He drove this team in the centennial parade at Hartford City, Indianapolis News.

Health for Sick Women

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

Pinkham remedies.—Mrs. MAYME ASABACH, North Crandon, Wis.

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old, got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep going and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcer, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ASABACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 600 Havens St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSOOD, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

Her suitor flushed. Then he replied in a low voice:

"Oh, John, forgive me!" exclaimed the young girl. "How truly noble you are!"

Kidney Disorder

(BY DR. V. M. PIERCE.)

"The most simple methods are usually the most effective ones when treating any disorder of the human system." The mere drinking a cup of hot water each morning, plenty of pure water all day, and a little Anuric before every meal has been found the most effective means of overcoming kidney trouble. Death would occur if the kidneys did not work day and night in separating poisons and uric acid from the blood. The danger signals are backache, depression, pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness, rheumatic twinges, swollen joints or gout.

Since it is such a simple matter to step into your favorite drug store and obtain Anuric, anyone who earnestly desires to regain health and new life will waste no time in beginning this treatment.

C. L. GILBERT.....ADVERTISING & CIRCULATION MGR.

What about the old hatters. Have the members of your local given an hour's pay to help the old hatters? Frank Morrison reports that there is still over a hundred thousand dollars needed. Give your mite to help save the homes of the old and loyal hatters who have served our cause so well. Give an hour.

The labor movement is not a perfect institution. We have our faults the same as any other movement, but we are trying all the time to better our organizations and put them on a solid business basis. While not a commodity our labor is for sale, and the labor union is our clearing house to dispose of it.

Brothers, do not forget while you are making good money to save a little. We know you will cry high cost of living, but forget the good-fellow business, remember when you are broke friends and good-fellows are scarce. Sympathy will never buy you eats, and those depending upon you. The good-fellow is yourself and family, look out for them.

When a man turns out to be a scab or strike-breaker he loses all the manhood that was in him; he realizes that he is a traitor to his fellow working men, and that he has sold himself, and again he well knows that the bosses he is serving do not even respect him for what he has done; they would not trust him with their business secrets, because they know that if he has sold his fellow men he will do them likewise, so down the scab goes until finally he becomes a bum, even professional tramps will not lower themselves to the level of strike-breakers. Think what a man with children has to answer to, when his children learn that their father was a traitor to his fellow union brothers. There is nothing quite so low as a traitor.

There is no such thing as an open shop. A shop or factory is either union or non-union shop or factory. Milk and vinegar do not mix well together. The man that favors an open shop is always opposed to organized labor, conducts a non-union establishment, and is not honest enough to admit it, hence wants to call it an open shop.

As labor becomes more intelligent its demands become greater; they demand their rights and the sooner that the employing class in this county realize the fact and treat with their employees in a business-like manner, the sooner strikes and lock-outs will be abolished. Labor unions were created to treat with the employing class on a business basis and correspond with employers' associations.

LABOR PAPERS PROGRESSING

It should be and no doubt is a source of gratification to all members of organized labor to note the progress and prosperity of our labor papers; and that they have materially progressed and prospered is attested by the fact that many of them have recently published comprehensive special editions. No such extensive enterprise was ever before attempted by any of these papers, and it should be a source of gratification to know their efforts met with success. Outside of the official organs of the National and International Unions and Federations, they are the only means the workers have for giving publicity to their side of questions and controversies. They are the only papers to espouse organized labor's cause before the bar of public opinion, and when the members neglect to properly support and sustain them they are neglecting their own best interest.

We are glad to see the Central bodies throughout the country abandoning the souvenir Labor Day programme and instead helping their local papers to get out a Labor Day edition of their paper, and this is one of the causes for the great success of the latter.

The labor press has not been sustained or developed to anything like what it should; and no doubt will be in the future. There is a need at the present time, for a daily paper, run on a high plane and as the mouthpiece of the labor movement, and devoted entirely to its success; such an institution would be a potent factor in breaking down all serious opposition to the labor movement and its complete success.

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

IMPORTANT CHANGES AT JUNCTION PARK

Location of Track and Buildings To Be Changed and Many Improvements Made.

Manager Chas. Shetterly, of Junction Park, before leaving Sunday night for Franklin, Indiana, whither he went to vote, advised The Labor News reporter of some changes which are to be made at the park before next season opens.

According to Mr. Shetterly, four acres of ground, adjoining the park on the north, have been purchased, thus enlarging the park and allowing a much needed addition to the fair grounds. The race track will be moved in a northeasterly direction; the dancing pavilion will be moved so that it will occupy a space close to the roller coaster. The pavilion will then be raised and a big room beneath will be utilized for amusements; such as pool and billiard tables, bowling alleys, skee ball, etc. The theatre building will be reconstructed into an up-to-date roller skating rink.

The grandstand will be removed to a more convenient location, as will the stables, stock pens, etc. These changes will permit of much more room in the front of the park, and make it one of the most complete and convenient in the western part of the state. The estimated cost of the proposed improvements approximates $48,000.

Since taking charge of Junction Park last spring, Manager Shetterly has worked unceasingly to bring back the popularity which the resort enjoyed in years gone by, but which, prior to his taking hold, had fallen off considerably. That he has succeeded admirably allows of no argument.

MEETING OF LOCAL 712, ELECTRICAL WORKERS

Local Union No. 712, Electrical Workers, met on Monday evening at their headquarters in the Kramer block, New Brighton. Routine business was transacted and the application of Marian Dydynski was received. Brother Morris, of Electrical Workers' Local No. 5, of Pittsburgh, was present and gave the members an interesting talk.

Important Decision

The Circuit Court in Erie, Pa., has rendered a decision of vast importance. The decision in effect says, that the compensation of Edward Brown shall be based on his gross earnings, instead of the net earnings. By net earnings, is meant the earnings after the cost of powder, tools and fuses, which are charged to the miner, are deducted from his pay.

At the Majestic

"The Last Man"

"The Last Man," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature, in five parts, will be shown at the Majestic, Monday, Nov. 13. The story calls for William Duncan to carry Jack Mower on his back in order to escape from the Indians who are on the war-path. Corinne Griffith, too, is in the party.

The only means of escape is to cross a certain hand-made bridge which spans a deep chasm in which the turbulent waters of a mountain stream flow. This bridge is suspended from two trees and is high in the air. It is constructed from rope and narrow slats and, as the players cross, it can be seen to shake dangerously from side to side. It is a well-known fact that such bridges have a tendency to overturn, and it was only through the greatest courage on the part of the players that this bridge was used.

The first party crossed over in safety—then the story called for the pursuing Indians, to follow, Duncan cuts the rope and the half-dozen men are thrown into the strong current. The fall is one of the most thrilling ever filmed. This is only one of the many thrills contained in this picture.

"The Honorable Friend"

Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor, will be seen at the Majestic on Tuesday, Nov. 14, in the Lasky production of "The Honorable Friend," a thrilling photodrama.

In "The Honorable Friend," Hayakawa is seen as a young Japanese gardener working for a wealthy and unscrupulous Japanese, curio dealer. The old man is desirous of a bride and sends Hayakawa's picture, as his own, to Japan, and Hayakawa is sent to the dock to marry the Japanese girl, having been told that she is to be his own wife. When he brings her before the wealthy old curio dealer, his ideals are shattered, as he is informed that she is to be taken away from him. How affairs are finally adjusted, and the two lovers are reunited, is presented in an unusual and most dramatic manner.

"The Devil's Prize"

Dust to dust, based on life's creed—"your skin before mine,"—never missing an opportunity to shift responsibility onto others less fortunate, this polished peer whose life has been a mass of lies, intrigues and schemes, receives in full measure the toll which nature's law deals out to sinners. His ilk are the Devil's Prizes, and the Devil guards his treasures jealously. Different in theme, treatment and pace, "The Devil's Prize" will be shown at the Majestic on Wednesday, Nov. 15th, bristles with "live" punch and genuine human thrills.

"Romeo and Juliet"

The sweetest love story ever told, "Romeo and Juliet," which is to be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, Thursday and Friday, November 16-17, is the subject of the new William Fox master film production which stars Theda Bara.

In the title of Romeo, Harry Hilliard is superbly cast. He plays admirably the young lover who cannot brook separation from his wife, even in death.

The story of the play tells how the two lovers are married secretly, because of a feud which has long existed between their families. Just after the ceremony Romeo becomes embroiled in a duel with Tybalt (John Webb Dillion), cousin of Juliet, and kills him. The result is that the bridegroom is banished from Verona.

Juliet's father tries to force her to marry Count Paris (Einar Linden), and the girl, in desperation, takes a heavy sleeping potion, which makes her parents think her dead. Romeo also gets tidings of the supposed death of his wife, and hurries back to Verona.

There (in the tomb of the Capulets, he takes poison, and falls dead beside Juliet's bier. The unhappy girl, on awakening from the effects of the potion, finds him there, and kills herself with his dagger.

"The Victory of Conscience"

Lou Tellegen, the distinguished romantic actor, will be seen at the Majestic, Saturday, Nov. 18, in "The Victory of Conscience," an unusual Lasky photoplay.

The story has to do with the spiritual and mental re-awakening of Louis, Count de Tavennes. The count and his handsome adventurous companion, Prince Dimitri, steal a little dancer girl from a French tavern. The girl falls in love with Louis but he calls her aside and is nearly killed in a fight with a former sweetheart of the girl. Upon recovering, the former sinner enters the priesthood. He

"The Gilded Cage"

These were rumors of an uprising. The young queen had not brought about much change in the conduct of the official household. These rumors reached the girl queen. Clad in the garb of a peasant she went among her people during their big fair and found—

Interested? You'll be more so when you see Alice Brady as the queen and with your own eyes are able to view all the suffering she has to endure merely because she was born to wear a crown. The title of the play is "The Gilded Cage," and will be shown at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Monday, November 13.

"Common Ground"

Maria Doro, the Lasky star, will be seen at the Colonial, Tuesday, Nov. 14, in "Common Ground," a gripping Paramount photoplay. Miss Doro is seen this time as an expert "slipper-on" in an artificial flower factory—a victim of the underworld conditions, and is used as a tool to carry out the plans of the city parasites. How she eventually throws off the yoke and saves the man she loves, from ruin, is told in a graphic manner.

"God's Half Acre"

Mabel Taliaferro will be the attraction at the Colonial on Wednesday, Nov. 15, in "God's Half Acre," a five-part Metro wonderplay. Since going into the silent drama, Miss Taliaferro has more than duplicated her great success upon the speaking stage, where she will be remembered as the star of phenomenal successes.

"God's Half Acre" was directed by Edwin Carewe, one of the foremost directors in the country, and is one of the best features of the season.

"Hulda From Holland"

Mary Pickford, in wooden shoes, will be seen on the screen at the Colonial Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 16th, when she appears in the Famous Players' production "Hulda From Holland." For the scenes in this picture, which transpire in Holland, was selected a Dutch village, and transported thereto were hundreds of "villagers." When Hulda and her three little brothers leave Holland and come to America the action is transferred to Pennsylvania, where Hulda's uncle resides. Of course he is a typical Pennsylvania Dutchman and there is only one place where they are to be found. So John B. O'Brien took his company to the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch colony in order to get just the proper flavor.

"The Shine Girl"

Ethelmary Oakland, who plays the part of the little daughter in "The Shine Girl," starring Gladys Houllette, the Pathe Gold Rooster play which Manager Goodman will present at the Colonial on Friday, Nov. 17, is only 7 years old, yet she has all the stage presence of an older actress. Ethelmary has had comparatively long experience in stock in Mount Vernon, N. Y., and in Broadway productions. She rides well and dances beautifully. She knows no fear and never hesitates to play any precarious part assigned her by her director. Her home is in New York.

"Bettina Loved a Soldier"

When two American heiresses fluttered into Paris the broken-down scions of nobility added more bandoline to the ends of their whiskers and scented them odoriferously. When the choles narrowed down to the younger girl of the couplet (because the other was already married) Bettina had all sorts of Parisian pressure brought to bear upon her. But "Bettina Loved a Soldier," and when the Bluebird Photoplay of that title is exhibited at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, November 11th, you will be immensely pleased with the simplicity and honesty of its characters, the sweetness of its sentiment and the convincingness of its plot. And when you behold the beautiful and blonde Louise Lovely working in the same scenes with the brilliantly brunette Francisca Billington you will understand why, in the long run, Rupert Julian, as the modest French cavalierman, had to leave the decision to Bettina herself.

again meets the dancer and through his embezzling influence she is induced to enter a monastery. Cleo Ridgely appears in the role of the dancer and renders a most appealing interpretation of the character.

POTTERS TO GET WAGE INCREASE

National Association Voluntarily Raises the Scale in All Its Factories.

SEVEN THOUSAND TO BENEFIT

Big New York Company Reduces Hours of Labor Without Cutting Salaries—Head of Concern Expects Benefits From Move—General Labor News.

As the result of a voluntary move by the United States Pottery Association, 7,000 pottery workers in the United States and Canada who are members of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters were granted wage increases varying from 5 to 10 per cent. The increases are effective November 15. Workers in plants in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem, East Palestine, Steubenville, Carrollton, Crooksville, Ohio; Newell, Chester, Wheeling, Clarksburg, Huntington, Mannington and Grafton, W. Va.; New Castle, Canonsburg and Beaver Falls, Pa.; Kokomo and Evansville, Ind.; Trenton, N. J., and St. Johns, Canada, are affected by the decision.

The Day Lighting Fixture company of New York has announced its decision to shorten its working day to eight hours while continuing the ten-hour wage scale. John H. Dale, president of the company, summed up the reasons for the innovation in these words: "We adopted the shorter day because we believe it is the right thing to do for our men. We expect those two hours a day to benefit our people greatly and to pay us good dividends in increased good will and efficiency. Those who oppose the new spirit that is springing up between employers and employees will soon find the results of their futile opposition recorded on the wrong side of their ledger."

In a decision handed down at Des Moines, Iowa, in the federal district court Judge Martin J. Wade fined the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad $1,000 for violation of the law prohibiting railroads from allowing their employees to work more than sixteen consecutive hours. The government asked that a fine of $9,500 be assessed following the indictment of the railroad on nineteen separate counts. The court held that the amount of fine asked was excessive, but held that the railroad was guilty and the law valid.

Officials of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad announced all employees receiving less than a standard rate of pay in their class, will be advanced to the standard rate. This will mean an increase of 5 to 7 cents per hour for a large number of men. The company also agreed to establish the eight-hour day except in roundhouses. A new union of retail clerks has been organized at Beaumont, Tex., with more than 100 members, more than half of whom are women.

California's public employment bureau have secured positions for 26,914 men and women since February 1, when they were opened. These workers have earned approximately $1,000,000 in wages and have saved $54,000 in fees which they otherwise would have paid to private agencies. Every kind of labor, from bootblack to superintendent, is included in the list.

Conferees negotiating the district contracts between coal miners and operators for the states of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, embraced in mining districts 14, 21 and 25, announced that an agreement had been reached and the completion of the contracts, preparatory to signing them had been got under way.

Canadian Pacific trainmen from coast to coast will not strike, although 98 per cent of the men voted favoring a strike. James Murdoch, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced a satisfactory adjustment of disputed matters is almost certain.

Owing to the abnormal condition caused by the war, an advance of 72 cents a week has been given to three workers engaged as laborers and semi-skilled workers in engineering shops on the northeast coast of England.

The American Hardware Manufacturers' association in annual convention at Atlantic City, N. J., adopted a resolution urging the employment of arbitration in adjusting all disputes between capital and labor.

A thorough investigation of government ownership and control of railroads, telegraph lines, express companies, river and ocean transportation and other public utilities will begin November 20.

The wages paid Spanish miners are from 80 cents to $1.25 daily, according to the location of the mines, those of the northeast receiving less wages than those of central Spain.

Shopmen of 22 western railways have demanded an increase of five cents an hour and an eight-hour day. A city-wide campaign for increased pay and fewer hours for firemen has been launched in Philadelphia.

It is estimated that a million workers in this country have received wage increases this year.

Women are to be admitted to the medical classes at Edinburgh (Scotland) university.

Chicago, O., pays the standard rate of wages on all municipal work. About 15,000 persons earn a salary before the war.

REFUSE DEMANDS OF MINERS

Officials of Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Decline to Consider New Scale.

J. M. Clark, assistant to the president of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron company, Punxsutawney, Pa., issued a statement refusing the demands of the company's 4,000 miners for a scale to displace that agreed upon several months ago with the United Mine Workers of America. This was answered by the strikers' committee in a statement which said that they had never ratified the scale. The men demand an eight-hour day for all outside workers with time and a half for overtime; an increase of five cents a ton for all miners and extra compensation when certain classes of work is to be done. They also demand that where the company stipulates the use of electric lights the company shall provide them.

A dozen leaders of the striking negro employees in the Panama Canal zone were arrested charged with violation of the intimidation laws. The arrests took place after Lieut. Col. Harding, acting governor of Canal zone, had urged President Valdez that some action was necessary. About 10,000 of the 20,000 employees quit work. It is estimated that the number of strikers is 500, while the remainder of the 10,000 are said to have been intimidated. The activity of the strikers has been confined to the City of Panama.

Striking employees of the Standard Oil and several other companies operating plants at Bayonne, N. J., at a mass meeting voted to return to work. Earlier in the day John J. Moffitt and James A. Smyth, United States mediators, had assured a committee representing the men that the companies had expressed a willingness to negotiate demands for increased wages and better working conditions if the workers would return to their places. The strike was marked by rioting, during which three persons were killed and many wounded. While only about 3,500 of the men actually went on strike, it was said approximately 8,500 others were thrown out of work.

Employees of the Chicago surface and elevated railroads voted unanimously to endorse the strike of the carmen in New York city. They instructed their officers to send $15,000 to the strikers, and then placed an assessment of $1 per month on the 15,000 organized street railway employees in Cook county. Officers of the Chicago unions were also instructed to appeal to President Wilson, governor Whitman of New York and Mayor Mitchell of New York to use their good offices to bring about an honorable settlement of the strike.

There was a decrease in the number of men killed in metal mines of the United States during 1915, but an increase in the death rate of each 1,000 employed. Statistics announced by the bureau of mines show 553 men were killed out of 142,118 employees, compared with 550 killed out of 158,115 employed in 1914. The death rate was 3.84 for each 1,000 employed, compared with 3.54 the previous year.

The majority of rural schoolteachers in Wisconsin receive between $40 and $49 per month, according to the statistics just compiled by the state board of education. Of the 5,847 teachers listed, 4,339 get from $40 to $49 per month; 1,467 get between $50 and $59 monthly, four get from $60 to $69, and only two of them get salaries so low as to come under the $40 mark.

The Chicago & Alton railroad allowed an increase in pay in its Bloomington (Ill.) plant to all shopmen, of 2½ cents per hour. The increase will cost the company about $135,000 per annum and dates back to August 16. It affects 1,500. The original demand was for an increase of 5 cents per hour.

The Swiss government, in consequence of the economic arrangement with Germany, has prohibited Swiss factories to export ammunition to the entente allies if they are using German coal or steel. This order will make idle more than 50,000 men, among whom there is much discontent.

Owing to the high cost of living, the Millville (N. J.) police officers asked the city commission for an increase in wages. The police have been receiving $13.85 per week. As they did not state the increase desired, the commission tabled the petition.

Maintaining that there is plenty of labor if properly organized, the Scottish Council of the National Union of Dock Laborers protested against the formation of mobile transport battalions under military control.

Pleading conscientious objection, and that he was doing work of national importance, Councilor Kneeshaw, leader of the independent labor party in Birmingham, England, has been refused exemption.

Of the 900 Hamilton (Canada) union machinists who went out on strike June 12, there are only 15 men left without work.

Two of the New Long Coats.

Perhaps you are looking for a coat which you will enjoy wearing in the evening and expect to press into service for afternoon occasions. In this case you might turn attention to velvet which is the right quarter. Velvet stands midway between cloth and fur, having a restricted following of its own. At its best it is fur-trimmed or furred so that it can be conveniently worn with a fur set.

It almost goes without saying that "velvet" includes velveteen and that most of the coats made of either material are intended for evening wear. They are sumptuous affairs, in new or familiar colors, including sapphire, blue, moss, and light green, and color, chateau, sapphire, etc. Nearly all are trimmed with furs in the usual colors, or undyed, and white fox pees on coats in the lighter tones. For those who like eccentricities there are furs dyed in unusual colors.

A coat of velvet, trimmed with skunk fur, is pictured, and one of velveteen trimmed with silk braid, to be worn with a separate set of furs. In the fur-trimmed coat handsome buttons of dark mother-of-pearl and silver filigree accomplish the front fastening; one of them at the collar and one at the waistline. The coat fastens a little to one side. Except for a novel arrangement at the shoulders there is nothing unusual in the manner of constructing it. Here the back is extended, overlapping the front in rounded and corded edges. The skirt portion is set to the body with a heavy cord. The lining is of old-gold satin, but its color may be left to the discretion of the wearer.

The velvet description of the velveteen coat is given in the picture. It is full and straight hanging and its owner may or may not like to add to these entirely correct details a mention of plain bands of silk braid which would not be missed if they were not there.

Something New in Matched Sets.

Faille silk and no end of work, with yarn flowers and kinked fur combined to make a hat and muff. With a narrow scarf, or high collar, or bolinsky about the neck, the wearer may achieve a very original and elegant set that no amount of money can exceed for smartness.

There are many such sets, usually of two pieces (a neckpiece and muff) made by putting together fur and cloth, fur and velvet, or fur and silk. A hat is brought into the scheme of things by a collar of fur, or, as the set pictured, the hat is made to match the muff and the neckpiece. One of many varieties, and made of many materials, is the hat and muff shown in the picture. The hat is of a soft shape, although they may be made with extra pieces of fur for added enrichment.

The cloths used include velours, bolivia, and other colors in an important when one contemplates Linings are in contrasting colors, and soft; plain satin is used for them. Having disposed of the matter of cloth and lining, that of color must be considered. It will be determined partly by the kind of fur to be used.

These small sets offer a promising way to make the best of old style furs that show signs of wear or are too antiquated to be worn and too good to be discarded. And they hold out enticing possibilities to the clever woman who would add a smart asset to her winter wardrobe.

In the set shown here faille silk is closely skirted to make a covering for the hat crown and the muff. It is in a saffron shade and the decorative flowers and foliage are made of yarn in the same color. The hat is faced with fur and the ends of the muff finished with bands of it. The collar is the simplest imaginable—merely a straight, wide band fastened near the back of the neck, where two short tails finish this particular bit of fashion's history.

FEATURES OF NEW FASHIONS

Paris insists on Detached Trains of Velvet for the Frocks for Evening Wear.

AGAIN THE PLAITED SKIRT

Is a Favorite Worn With Long-Waisted Straight Bodies of Metal Embroidered Net—Draped Collars Will Be Largely Worn This Winter—Footwear.

New York.—All the French clothes of importance have arrived. From now on, the decision for failure or success will be left to the public.

The new gowns have detached trains of embroidered velvet lined with a contrasting color of satin, and sometimes partly lined with fur, in medieval fashion. Douillet has an immense attractive evening frock of oxidized gray net, heavily embroidered with tarnished silver roses dropped over flash pink satin, with a part of the bodice and the sides and back of the skirt which extends into a long train made of dahlia red velvet.

The balance of dignity in the new fashions is thrown on the side of the long evening skirt with the train, but a remnant of the present fashion is in a short line across the exact front of the skirt. No French designer seems to have considered whether the skirt was long or moderately short; however, in placing a train on it. When there is so much uniformity of opinion among the French houses as is shown in this, it is only fair to believe that America will accept skirts with trains.

Skirts Laid in Fine Plaids.

Not only Callot, but several others of the designers have indulged with enthusiasm the gown with the finely plaided skirt; above it is a long-waisted, straight bodice made of metal-embroidered net.

One of the best models built in this manner is of pearl gray satin cloth, the entire skirt of which is laid in eight-inch plaids and a glittering curlicue bodice made of gray net, heavily embroidered in silver threads and gray silk floss.

Mme. Paquin has herself created an exceedingly good-looking street suit of velour, in that rich, warm tone once known as dress of wine. The skirt is laid in two-inch plaids with a flatly ornamented hem, and the jacket is slipped in sharply in two places at the back to allow the material to sag over the hips. The front is carried well across the figure at neck and waist. This coat does not extend more than three or four inches below the normal waistline, and the top of it is finished with one of those new collars that wrap around the neck like a muffler; it is made of a bright, warm tone of red velvet edged with gray rabbit.

The New Draped Collars.

This story of clothes is too far advanced to go deeply into the subject of the draped collars of the hour, but just a word to put you on the sharp lookout for them. The American designers call them Guardsmen's capes; the French designers name them after the Revolution, but on neither continent have they ever been worn as they will be worn this winter. They will no longer remain over the shoulders, but will be pulled up to the brim of the hat in the back, and up and across the chin in front.

To see just such a collar at a smart fashion opening is like regarding a lightning-change artist. It hangs to the waist, it mounts to the crown of the head, it is thrown around the neck twice like a muffler, and it is sharply pointed at each ear and sedately drawn across the breast to form a kerchief.

The shops are well supplied with footwear and, on the whole, it is a most satisfactory sort of stock that is shown. It is not very much different from that of last year. The better sort of shoe dealers is not showing freakish models and there are few of the eccentricities, such as buck lacing and openwork over the instep, that marked some of last winter's footwear. On the whole, though, those oddities did not find favor with the better-dressed woman. For her, there is not much change in the footwear outlook.

High boots, between seven and eight inches high, and about the same in height as those of last year, will be used for street wear, although pumps and spats will be worn to some extent. The high boots will be largely buttoned, for dress wear, but, of course, for skating and other sports laced boots will be the rule.

The Flat Heel.

There is a new heel, and, although high heels for dress will be used, the new heel, which is only a little over an inch high, is used on many street shoes. It is an admirable heel for walking and doubtless we have the rage for sports clothes to thank for its appearance. It is used on shoes daintily cut, so that now it is no longer necessary to wear a rough, huge boot if we would get a low, straight heel. Just as sweaters are now made of silk and sports frocks of chiffon, so straight, low heels are put on boots with dainty toes and ankles.

As for the high heels, the incurved Louise heel to which we have become so accustomed, is used on all evening shoes and slippers, and on many for afternoon. But there is also a high Cuban heel on dress boots and shoes.

So those who round the shoe shops disconsolately last winter looking for a sensible heel will not be disappointed this year. The straight, high Cuban and the low, straight sports heel will both satisfy them.

Colored Shoes.

Although the highly elaborate shoe of last year has died a deserved death, shoes are by no means plain. We have grown fond of combinations of leather, of different colors and of novel effects in our footwear. So, of course, we get these things from the shoe manufacturers.

The bright colors, however, are no longer used. Brown, tan, gray, black and white are all much used, and they are often strikingly combined. The patent-leather vamp of black is smartly applied to the gray or tan cloth top. Heavy tan calves' skin is used with a washable tan kid top, and cloths tops of gray and tan suede tops and buckskin tops are all used with gilded kid vamps.

As for the evening slippers, brocade is to be the smartest material for them. And its characteristic mark of smartness will be a silver thread running through all its wealth of colors. Plain silver slippers, too, without other color, will be used, and both black and white satin slippers will also be worn.

Coats for Traveling.

Traveling coats are being made of very thick rough-surfaced materials, heavy rough serge, thick velours, de-laine or jersey cloth. The jersey cloths for winter wraps and suits appear under various names, such as winter jersey, "tricho double," and the like.

Almost all of the new coat models have a wide belt, catching in the fullness at the front, but leaving the back loose. They also have enormous pockets. In one of the shops was exhibited a smart garment of this description in velours de-laine with pockets placed quite high and coming from under the arms from these pockets started plaits, giving fullness to the coat, which had no belt.

Germany thinks seriously of developing the silkwork industry and thus making itself independent of outside supplies.

Campaign Managers of Each Party Claim the Election

HUGHES LOSES EARLY LEAD

WILSON HAS GOOD CHANCE

Whitman Will Govern New York State; Cox, Ohio; Sleeper, Michigan; Lowden, Illinois, and Goodrich, Indiana.

New York. — President Wilson gained as the returns from the Far West were compiled. Through Secretary Tumulty, at Ashbury Park, and Chairman Vance McCormick here, the claim was advanced that his re-election is now a certainty.

Both Chairmen Confident. "We are still certain we have won," said Chairman Willcox, "although our margin may be somewhat narrow."

"Ridiculous," was Democratic Chair-

Democrat in Maryland. Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, lost to Kennedy, Republican, and Martine, New Jersey, to Frelinghuysen, Republican. Sutherland, Republican, defeated the incumbent, William E. Chilton, in West Virginia. Hubbell, Republican, won in New Mexico, and William M. Calder, Republican, succeeds O'Gorman, Democrat, who was not re-nominated in New York.

Allegheny in Doubt

The closeness of the election in the nation finds a reflex in Allegheny county. There was a close contest for congress in the thirtieth congressional district, the latest returns showing Congressman Coleman, Republican, slightly behind. The vote was exceedingly close in the thirty-second congressional district. Congressman Barchfeld, Republican candidate for re-election, has a slight lead.

man McCormick's retort to this claim. Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, President Wilson's son-in-law, took charge of the Democratic headquarters. "President Wilson will have 272 votes in the electoral college," he said. "This estimate included the estimate in New Mexico and California. Returns are not yet sufficiently tabulated to permit a more detailed statement."

With both sides still claiming the election it was evident that the doubtful states in the western group and Delaware, where the count is very slow, will decide.

Republican National Chairman Willcox claimed 320 electoral votes for Mr. Hughes in a formal statement and cited the states which he said insured his election. Vance McCormick, the Democratic leader, claimed "at least 300," but said it was too early to make public the list.

There was a strong drift toward Wilson in Minnesota, North Dakota and Oregon. The Democrats also claimed they were gaining in California. Wilson's present total leaves 18 votes necessary for election.

Socialists Are Elected.

The result in the House of Representatives on the fact of scattering and meager returns seemed likely to prove a surprise to both of the major parties. Two and possibly three Socialists, a Prohibitionist and a Progressive seemed likely to hold the balance of power.

The Democrats, who now have a majority of 16 in the Senate, have a majority of four indicated in early returns. The Republicans apparently elected nine candidates to seats now held by Democratic senators, while they lost two of their wheel horses in the upper body. Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island was defeated by Peter Golet, the first Democratic senator to be elected from Rhode Island in 40 years. Senator Sutherland of Utah, a Republican leader, lost to William H. King, Democrat.

The Republicans apparently elected New and Watson in Indiana, defeating Senators Kern and Taggart. France, a Republican, succeeds Lea,

PARRAL EVACUATED

Passengers From Chihuahua City Say Town Has Been Abandoned.

El Paso, Texas.—Parral has been abandoned by the Carranza garrison, under the command of General Luis Herrera, according to passengers arriving in Juarez from Chihuahua City.

No Direct Word From City.

San Antonio, Tex.—All attempts of Southern department headquarters to obtain confirmation of Villa's reported capture of Parral, and to learn the fate of nine Americans known to have been in that place, proved unavailing. Reports received in Juarez and by American mining men have declared that Parral fell into the hands of Villa but even the unofficial rumors have failed to disclose the fate of the Americans.

Extreme doubt was expressed in army circles that Villa had actually taken Parral, or that he was in shape seriously to menace Torreon.

DRAW IS OPEN; 47 LIVES LOST

CROWDED BOSTON CAR GOES INTO CHANNEL

NO LIGHTS ON THE GATES

Passengers Were Electric Workers on Their Way Home—Several Women and Children Were Among Them—Others Still Missing.

Boston.—The lives of forty-seven persons were lost when a crowded passenger car of the Boston Elevated Street Railway plunged through an open drawbridge into Fort Point channel, just outside the South Station terminal.

Thirty bodies have been recovered. Twelve persons were rescued from the water by fireboats and tugs. One died after being brought to shore. The car rests on the bottom of the channel, 35 feet deep.

Avers No Light at Draw.

The motorman of the car, who jumped before it went over the edge of the draw, asserted the accident was due to the fact that there was no light on the gates protecting the opening. He and the conductor, who also leaped and saved his life, were arrested. The conductor was insensible and the police were unable to learn exactly the number of his passengers. Some of the rescued estimated the number of passengers at upwards of 50.

Western Electric Workers.

Most of the passengers were employees of the Western Electric Company's factory in South Boston, and were returning to their homes from work. Many women and children were included in the number. The car was of the closed type, with a narrow door at each end.

The drawtender, who was in charge of the bridge, disputed the statement of the motorman that there was no light at the draw. He said the usual signal lights were on the gate, to was not sure, he said, whether the red lamp on the bridge was lighted.

SEVEN DIE IN WRECK.

Airbrakes Fail and Train Runs Down Mountain Side.

Altoona, Pa.—Seven men were killed, six of them instantly, and three were injured, when a heavy freight train, rushing wildly down the 10-mile eastern slope of the Allegheny mountains, crashed into four "Snapper" engines at the foot of the mountain.

Inability of the airbrake to hold the 80 heavily loaded cars is said to have caused the wreck, and the train, becoming uncontrollable soon after leaving the summit of the mountain, and gaining momentum as it proceeded, could not be stopped by the trainmen who were risking their lives on the tops of the box cars in their efforts to set the brakes.

Piled up at the foot of the mountain the wreckage forming a barrier to traffic in both directions, caught fire.

25,000 in Prohibition Demonstration. Baltimore.—Twenty thousand women and children marched with 5,000 men in the rain here as a demonstration for prohibition. It required two hours for the parade to pass a given point.

EIGHT-HOUR PERIOD RATIONAL WORKDAY

Eminent New York Educator Tells Why Shorter Workday Increases Production.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—"The economic argument that industry can thrive only with a long day, and that any curtailment of it would be destructive can be met very effectively by the fact that shortening the work period, even to eight hours, almost invariably increases the quantity and improves the quality of output." Thus did Dr. Frederick S. Lee, professor of physiology in Columbia University, New York, answer the question: "Is the eight-hour working day rational?" before the American Public Health Association's annual meeting here.

Dr. Lee, in discussing this matter, made it plain that he was not in any sense considering the political aspects of the eight-hour problem. "The eight-hour problem is primarily a problem of physiology; if the physiological effects of any kind of labor are bad, its conditions ought to be changed," said Dr. Lee. "This is fundamental, and should precede any consideration of the economic and social effects of a change of conditions. Since the middle of the nineteenth century the eight-hour day has been the goal of labor. It has gradually been gained, and is doubtless destined to become very widespread. The duration of daily hours should be determined by the physiological effects of the work, and, secondarily, by its economic and social features. Labor produces, and, when continued further, exhausts. "In fatigue the physiological powers are weakened, and in exhaustion this may pass on to increased susceptibility to disease, neurasthenia, immorality, intemperance and even crime. Excessive industrial work is often responsible for these serious results."

Gathering Data

A special commission on Health Insurance, appointed by the Massachusetts legislature, has already gathered interesting information. More than $6,000,000 a year is paid out in sick benefits by Labor Unions, employers and their societies and, at a rough estimate, $2,000,000 by the simple method of passing the hat when an employee meets with hard luck. Hearings will be held later, in all parts of the State, at which Old Age Pensions and all other methods of assistance will be considered and given a hearing.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO FORCE NEW EIGHT-HOUR LAW

RAILWAYS BEGIN FIGHT TO NULLIFY ADAMSON LAW

Attorney General's Department Mobilizes to Oppose Attacks.

P. R. R. HAS FILED AN INJUNCTION SUIT

Washington, Nov. 15.—In anticipation of a wholesale attack by the railroads upon the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law, the administration is understood to have agreed upon a plan of passing additional legislation at the coming session of Congress in order to insure the chances of the law becoming effective. This new legislation will be framed to meet the constitutional objections to the law in its present form and will be a revision and strengthening of the Adamson act.

The President is said by his closest advisers to be thoroughly in earnest in his desire to have the principles embodied in the Adamson act become operative and all of the influence of the administration will be behind the proposed changes in the law, which will be introduced and passed while the Democrats still hold the majority in Congress.

In every judicial district in the country. This would mean such a multiplicity of suits that it would be practically impossible to have them disposed of before the first of the year, when the law is to become operative. It is also recognized that there will be conflicting opinions from the judges of the different districts which would further tend to muddle the situation and operate against the enforcement of the law.

Suits by railroads attacking the constitutionality of the eight-hour railroad law were begun today in many parts of the country, and the department of justice laid plans to defend them.

No offer has yet been made by the railroads to settle the question by one test case. It was stated officially that Attorney General Gregory has made no such proposition to the railroads, and the department is planning to contest each suit as it comes up for hearing. Assistant Attorney General Underwood will have the direct charge of the Government's defense, and Frank Hagerman of Kansas City, Mo., has been retained to assist him. Mr. Underwood expects to appear personally in most of the cases, but their number may make it necessary to employ other special counsel.

U. S. Attorneys Confer

The attorney general and Solicitor General Davis have been in conference with Mr. Underwood frequently since the first suits were filed, and the general lines of defense have been laid. Information so far reaching the department shows that the railroads base their prayers for temporary restraining orders against the law becoming effective on the ground that it is unconstitutional and incapable of enforcement. The Government will resist those contentions and assert that Congress had ample power to enact such legislation.

The department has issued this statement:

"A large number of suits attacking the constitutionality of the Adamson law have been instituted in various parts of the United States. The department of justice will take direct charge of these cases and Mr. Frank Hagerman of Kansas City, Mo., has been retained to assist in their preparation and trial."

Prompt Decision Expected

Prompt and final decision by the supreme court of constitutionality of the law is possible under Federal court practice, it was stated, by lawyers familiar with Federal procedure. Under accepted practice, it was explained in any of the district courts where test suits are brought, the district judge might call in one or two district or circuit judges to sit with him in the case. After a decision by such a court, it was stated that, as the con-

BRICKLAYERS' LOCAL NO. 7 MET ON FRIDAY EVENING

At the regular meeting of B. M. & P. I. U., No. 7, in Socialist's Hall, Rochester, Friday evening, Gerald Fleming, of J. J. Falls, was taken in as a full member of the craft. The meeting was well attended and considerable routine business was transacted.

HOLD REGULAR MEETING

Painters' Local No. 520, Transacted Considerable Business Wednesday Evening.

A regular meeting of Painters' Local No. 520, was held in the Kramer block, New Brighton, on Wednesday evening. A committee was appointed to revise the scale for the coming year. A committee was also appointed for the purpose of revising the paperhangers' scale, the members of this branch of the local having concluded that it was essential to get the scale in better shape.

stitutionality of an act of Congress is drawn in question, an appeal could be taken direct to the supreme court without delay for its consideration by a circuit court of appeals.

Should a test case or cases be appealed to the supreme court, it was believed here that, despite congestion of important cases on its docket, the court would advance the Adamson proceedings for early hearing and decision.

Big Four Leaders on Way

Some of the railroad brotherhood leaders are expected here within a day or two to prepare for their appearance before the congressional probers, and it is probable that they will see President Wilson.

The statement of Samuel Gompers that the law would go into effect, "injunction or no injunction," and the statement of W. S. Carter, head of the locomotive firemen and engineers, denying that a strike had been threatened if the law were not enforced, has attracted attention among Federal officials.

The Adamson eight-hour law commission, Major General Goethals, E. E. Clark of the interstate commerce commission, and George Rublee, former member of the Federal trade commission, will hold an informal conference here to determine upon a program for investigation of the law's operation. What the commission will do pending decisions by the Federal courts of the railroad suits to enjoin the law's enforcement probably will be considered.

Chairman Goethals was told by Assistant Secretary Newton of the treasury that the commission would be provided quarters in the New York customs house when it is ready to begin hearings.

Pennsylvania Joins Fight

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company on Thursday filed in the Federal district court at Philadelphia, a bill in equity asking for an injunction against three United States district attorneys in Pennsylvania, forbidding them from bringing prosecutions against the railroad company under the Adamson eight-hour law. The court is asked to declare that the eight-hour law is unconstitutional and void.

Gompers Belligerent

Commenting on the suits of the railroads to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law, President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, Wednesday, declared that "The eight-hour law will go into effect, injunction or no injunction." He said it was probable that representatives of the railroad brotherhoods would appear before the federation convention at Baltimore.

CARPENTERS' LOCAL, 1033, TO CELEBRATE

Will Entertain With Big Oyster Supper Tuesday Evening, Nov. 21. Last Meeting in Old Hall.

Members of Local No. 1033, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, together with their wives and sweethearts, will celebrate the last meeting to be held in Bala Hall, Monaca, by giving a big oyster supper in the hall on Tuesday evening November the 21st. All members of the local, their wives and families, and if you have neither of the above, your sweetheart—are invited to attend and enjoy a pleasant evening. There will be no expense to the individual, the local standing the expense of the entertainment.

Local 1033 has a reputation for doing itself proud on occasions of this nature, and it goes without saying that the stunt planned for Tuesday evening will be in line with the former entertainments.

The headquarters will be removed to Odd Fellows' Hall, Rochester, on Monday, December 4th, better accommodations and a more central location thus being assured.

UNIONS ENTER INTO AMICABLE AGREEMENT

The following, taken from a report of the Executive Board of the American Federation of Labor, submitted to the convention now being held in Baltimore, will prove of much interest to tile and slate roofers and carpenters, owing to the fact that the matter referred to has been in dispute among the organizations of the three trades mentioned:

The Slate and Tile Roofers requested the San Francisco Convention to direct the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners to refrain from transgressing upon their jurisdiction.

In conformity with your instructions a conference was held between the officers of these two organizations, and the following gives the result of that conference:

7, SHEET METAL WORKERS, BOOMING

Members Pull Together With Most Satisfactory Results—Two New Members Initiated.

Sheet Metal Workers' Local No. 357, had a regular meeting in Kramer's Hall, New Brighton, on Tuesday evening, November 14th. There was a good attendance and much interest manifested in the proceedings. The local is a growing one, the members, unlike many belonging to other locals, appreciating the fact that they are organized for the purpose of promoting the interests of the craft and the fact that they are all pulling together is responsible for the forward strides which they are making.

At the meeting Tuesday evening there were two initiations—Charles Hallies, of Freedom and George Feathers. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Derickson, Jackson, Powell, Hallies and Martin, was appointed to prepare a new set of by-laws.

MAKES BIG ADDITION TO FURNITURE STORE

The Martzoff Furniture Co., of Beaver Falls, Adds 10,000 Square Feet Floor Space.

With the new addition to its four-story building, the Martzoff Furniture Company at Beaver Falls, has one of the most complete furniture stores in Western Pennsylvania. The addition, which has just been completed, is of reinforced concrete, fire proof, and is 24x75 feet, extending to the alley on the east.

The new addition has enabled the company to make many advantageous changes in the arrangements of their big stock, as well as providing a number of commodious offices on the main floor. The rug department is on the second floor and is one-half larger than formerly; the new lighting system which has been installed, making it an ideal place in which to select rugs.

The basement, which was formerly occupied by the china, office furnishings, draperies and carpet departments, is now given over to linoleum, stoves and stock room, while the electric lighting plant, packing rooms, etc., are also in the basement.

The entire fourth floor is taken up with furniture, the same being arranged in a most pleasing and satisfying manner. A new passenger elevator is being installed and everything has been done to bring the store up to the highest point of excellence.

THREE LOCAL CARMEN ON HUNTING TRIP

WONDERFUL PICTURE COMING TO MAJESTIC

"Civilization" Heralded by the Press of the Country as the Greatest Play.

Unusual interest centers in the announcement of the forthcoming presentation of "Civilization," Thomas H. Ince's multiple reel cinema spectacle, which is booked for the Majestic Theatre, Rochester, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 22-23. This massive production comes heralded as the sensation of New York, and enjoyed a long run at the Pitt Theatre, Pittsburgh, a few weeks ago.

Aside from the many spectacular features with which "Civilization" is said to abound, there is said to be a sweet love story which aids in developing the action and builds up the theme which Producer Ince found in the work—the theme of world-wide peace, which is the propaganda which "Civilization" teaches.

Further announcements relative to this great picture will appear in The Labor News of next week.

A. F. OF L. ISSUES 120 CHARTERS IN 3 MONTHS

Record Number of Organizations Become Affiliated With National Body in Short Time.

Washington, Nov. 9.—During the period between July 15 and October 15 the American Federation of Labor has issued charters to 120 affiliated unions. This is the largest number that has probably ever been issued in a corresponding three months since its organization.

Of this number there were issued between July 15 and August 15, charters to the following unions: Two to central labor bodies, twenty-seven to trade unions and eight to Federal unions.

From August 15 to September 15 the increase was: Five central bodies, thirty-three trade unions and twelve Federal unions.

From September 15 to October 15 there were added ten central bodies, twenty-three trade unions and ten Federal unions.

In addition to these charters were issued to the International Jewelry Workers' Union and the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union.

There is no diminution in the number of applications for charters coming in, and unless some unforeseen condition develops, there is a strong probability that the number will increase rather than diminish for some time to come.

During the period of time under consideration the affiliated national and international unions have probably issued charters to an equal number of new unions.

Officials Declare Men Will Strike If Railroads Fail to Put Law Into Effect.

ACTION WILL BE TAKEN REGARDLESS OF COURT

New York, Nov. 14.—Regardless of what the supreme court of the United States may decide as to the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law, the 400,000 members of the "Big Four" brotherhoods will strike if the railroads of the country do not put an eight-hour day into effect by the last day of January.

This was the ultimatum of W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and spokesman of the railroad men's representatives at a meeting of the conference committee of railway managers and the brotherhoods here today. No agreement was reached and no date set for a resumption of the hearings between the roads and the men.

Strike Order Still Stands

The conference discussed the situation created by the men's demands and the action of several of the roads in bringing suit to test the constitutionality of the Adamson law, which President Wilson forced through Congress when the nation-wide railway strike was threatened to be called last Labor Day. The strike order is still in effect, Lee declared, and will be enforced if the roads fail to live up to the spirit of the law.

Garretson Is Ill

Those representing the brotherhoods at the conference today were: W. D. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers; W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; Warren Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and E. L. Sheppard, vice president of the railway conductors. The meeting was arranged at the suggestion of Elisha Lee, chairman of the managers' conference committee. A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, is in the city, but was too ill to attend the conference.

Wilson May Intervene

Learning that the railroads of the country were preparing to fight the Adamson eight-hour law in court and that the brotherhoods were determined to call their general strike of 400,000 men if the provisions of the law were not put into effect by January 1st, it was declared that the President would intervene if another crisis develops. The President is planning to place the railroad situation before his cabinet and will go before Congress again if serious trouble looms up.

HOW THEIR PROFITS INCREASE.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Reports from 124 out of 185 railways whose revenues exceed $1,000,000, issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission, show that their net revenue from railway operations for September ran up to $246,558,236, an increase of more than $40,000,000 over September of last year.

A complete report for July shows that all the roads of $1,000,000 revenue or more had a net revenue from railway operation of $107,558,005, a $20,000,000 increase over the previous July. The complete total railway operating revenues were $302,917,817, and total railway operating expenses $795,369,812.

CARPENTER'S APPRENTICE IS HAVING HARD LUCK

Mr. Brewer, apprentice from Carpenter's Local No. 1033, who had the misfortune to fall and break both wrists recently, while working for Mecklem Brothers, Rochester contractors, is still suffering severely from the effects of his accident and will be unable to work for several weeks. At the last meeting of Local 1033, a warrant for $5.00 was drawn in the injured man's favor, to aid in his relief.

At the Majestic

"Each Pearl a Tear"

Fannie Ward, the sensational screen star, whose extraordinary fame she has like a comet across the sky of the motion picture world by her wonderful performance in "The Cheat," has the principal feminine role in "Each Pearl a Tear," a Lasky production, by E. Lloyd Sheldon, which comes to the Majestic on Monday, Nov. 20.

This film drama treats with a theme universal in its appeal, without limitations in its emotional possibilities. The story has to do with a young girl who is led to believe, by an unscrupulous millionaire, that she has lost a valuable string of pearls. She is forced to work for him to repay this loss. How she discovers that he still has the pearls and how she uses them to wreck him financially at the same time bringing wealth to her sweet-heart, is brought about in an unusual and striking manner.

"The Common Law"

One of the most sensational box office attractions in point of drawing power ever offered to the public and exhibitors is the eight-reel production of "The Common Law," starring the celebrated dramatic actress, Clara Kimball Young, which is booked for the Majestic Theatre, Rochester, on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 21-22. Picturized from the famous novel of the same name by Robert W. Chambers, the picture follows the book so closely that it has caused a veritable sensation wherever shown and has drawn thousands of people to the few theatres in which it has been exhibited. Manager Goldberg, with his customary enterprise, and by reason of the fact that he was willing to pay the price to get an early showing of the film, again demonstrates that "the best is none too good for Majestic patrons," and in addition he has placed the price of admission within the reach of all. The main floor price is 25 cents, and balcony 15 cents, both afternoon and evening performances, two shows being given each day, matinees at 1 to 3 and 3 to 5, and evenings from 7 to 9 and 9 to 11. A full orchestra will be in attendance at all performances.

"The Ragged Princess"

Once there was a little girl who lived in an orphanage, and one day she ran away. That is the way it begins. "The Ragged Princess," which is the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 23-24, is the one who runs away, and June Caprice acts the ragged princess. It all happens in William Fox's new picture. After Alitta runs away from the home, she goes to Farmer Brown.

There she dresses up like a man and is hired to do the milking. She meets Harry Deigan and falls in love with him. When the farmer learns that she is a girl, she is forced to run away. She takes refuge beneath a rug in an automobile, and finally arrives in the city at the home of Thomas Deigan, a rich mine owner, a half-brother of Harry, who with Dr. Halpern, goes to the city to investigate. Harry discovers that Deigan's title to the mine is fraudulent. At last he learns that the property had belonged to a Mrs. Jones, who had been killed when her house was washed away by a flood. Her little daughter had been rescued and placed in an orphanage. And the daughter was Alicia! Harry confronts him with the truth and he acknowledges his crime.

"The Parson of Panamint"

Millions have read this wonderful story, published first in The Saturday Evening Post, and upon which the Pallas Pictures production of the same name is based. Dustin Farnum as "The Parson of Panamint," was literally immortalized by his screen characterization, one of the most interesting figures in the history of fiction of the great west. The story centers in one of the mushroom mining towns of Nevada of 40 years ago. The characters are lovable for their sincerity, their earnestness in trying to conform to the ethics of city government, one of which necessitates a parson. And Dustin Farnum, as Philip Pharo, is chosen to purge on Sundays the evils of the week.

The elements of human interest, of history, of tragedy and comedy, as related by "Chuckawalla" Bill form the foundation of a very unusual and wonderful story of the west, at the Majestic Saturday, Nov. 25.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Hidden Scar"

Right Janet's little girl, Ruth, is sick and Janet goes to the doctor for help. She and Dale meet for the first time and are immediately attracted to each other. When he tells her to be his wife she feels that he is unworthy, "The Hidden Scar" picks up and confronts her—finally after a long hard struggle, she decides to accept him and make up for the mistakes of the past by a life of goodness and charity.

Usually stories end when the wedding march is played. The most interesting part of this Brady-Made World picture just begins where others would be finished. Be at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, Nov. 20, when it is shown. The work of Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn will more than repay you.

"The House of the Golden Windows"

Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid, the brilliant Famous Players-Lasky stars, will be seen at the Colonial, Tuesday, Nov. 21, in "The House of the Golden Windows."

This story is founded on the old fairy tale of how two children living in a hut in the valley, see a beautiful house on the hill with golden windows. They decided to leave their own home, and struggle through the woods and brambles until they reach the top of the hill, and they find the big building to be nothing but a ramshackle old dwelling with the sunlight making the windows appear as if they were made of gold. When they look back at their own home, they see the golden windows of their own house as well.

"The Weakness of Strength"

An unusually strong cast will be seen in support of Edmund Breese, the eminent B. W. SHRIER, MWYP when "The Weakness of Strength" comes to the Colonial Theatre on Wednesday, November 22.

The story deals with the ruthless ambition of "Dan Gaynor," a Maine lumberman, and his rise to success at the expense of everything which most people hold dear. How he sacrifices the woman he loves and is hated by all who come in contact with him.

His final regeneration forms a novel climax to a story of unusual dramatic strength.

"The Woman in the Case"

Pauline Frederick, who is playing the devoted wife in "The Woman in the Case," says that it is a pleasant change to be defending her own husband against the machinations of another woman instead of being that Other Woman.

"Nobody loves me on the screen because I am always the wicked, alluring creature," declared Pauline Frederick, and forthwith requested that she be permitted to play the systematic wife in "The Woman in the Case," which appears at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Thursday, November 23.

"The Fear of Poverty"

Beautiful Florence LaBadie, who will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, on Friday, Nov. 24, in "The Fear of Poverty," made her first stage appearance with Chauncey Olcott in "Ragged Robin."

If she had not been a motion picture actress she would have been an artist. In what little spare time she has, she draws for relaxation. She has blue eyes and blond hair, and is one of the most beautiful girls on the screen. A Canadian by birth, she is an outdoor girl of grit and daring.

"Little Eva Edgarton"

She had never known a mother's love, or love of any type for the matter of that. Her father had raised her a botanist, like himself, and she had traveled the world over. When this girl met a flirtatious young man who had spent his young life making love to every pretty girl who would listen to him, their widely diverging natures awoke a strangely irresistible appeal. Turbulent nature then took a hand, lightning struck the flirtatious youth and the scientific maiden then brought him back to life under the most unusual circumstances imaginable. These points demonstrate only a few of the unusual elements that conspire to make "Little Eva Edgarton" one of the classics of photoplaying—which will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Saturday, November 25.

Beautiful Bust and Shoulders are possible if you will wear a scientifically constructed Bien Jolie Brassiere. The lagging weight of an unconfined bust so stretches the supporting muscles that the contour of the figure is spoiled.

BIEN JOLIE BRASSIERES

But the bust back where it belongs, prevent the full bust from having the appearance of a hump, eliminate the danger of dragging muscles and confine the flesh of the shoulder giving a graceful line to the entire upper body.

They are the daintiest and most serviceable garments imaginable—come in all materials and styles: Cream Back, Hook Front, Surplice, Bandeau, etc. Bound with "Washable" the ruthless bra—permitting washing without removal. By demanding the Union Label of sister organizations you can consistently ask others to demand the Union Label of your own organization—isn't that fair?

Now is the time to organize. If you cannot convince the non-unionists that they should join forces with us in the midst of the present unprecedented prosperity, you should turn them over to a specialist and have their mental faculties examined. Let us put forth a united effort to increase the membership of all locals by talking a little common sense to the non-unionists we meet.

Take a look at yourself in the mirror, and cease to wonder why there are not more Union Made goods on sale in the Beaver Valley. When we wake up and do our full duty in the purchase of only union made and union label goods, you will find the merchants with a full stock of goods in his store bearing the label, and while you are on the right track do not forget the Barber's shop card.

Suppose every man of the 3,000,000 trade unionists in this country considered it a crime to buy prison products or scab labor products; suppose the merchants knew every penny of the $1,500,000,000 spent by these trade unionists would be spent only for union goods, what would you see? Every store in this broad land patronized by workingmen, would have a big union label over its door. Merchants would themselves advertise the union label and manufacturers would produce union products and hire union labor or go bankrupt. If union men bought right, they would not have to strike so much.—Robert Hunter.

There are a number of lessons to be learned from the recent strike at Bayonne, N. J., one being the difficulty of securing any degree of industrial justice in a corporation-owned town, where the public officials are more or less connected with or controlled by the corporation or corporations who dominate.

The Standard Oil Company practically controls every public official in Bayonne, and the viewpoint of these officials is well expressed by the Mayor, who, when his attention was called to the necessity for having mediation between the strikers and the Standard Oil Company, said: "There is no necessity for mediation, we have the situation well in hand now, we can compel the observance of law and order."

And, let it be remembered, that a part of the forces to compel law and order were private armed guards, and that the police force from the beginning acted as strike breakers instead of impartial officers of the law.

Another lesson emphasized is that unorganized workers are unable to use their numbers effectively.

Men who have had no training as trade-unionists, those who have not learned the lessons of deliberate collective action, those who have had no experience in the organization which is required to enable the wage earners to act collectively and to take the necessary deliberate steps before they act, cannot, upon the spur of the moment, and when the workers' patience has passed the breaking point, apply those policies which are necessary to discipline and success.

The compact organization which the employers maintain, their strong control over the authorities, and the prompt assistance given to them by public officials, gives them a tremendous advantage over hastily organized strikers.

It is difficult for the non-union workman to secure the necessary education concerning the practical methods which he must adopt if he is to succeed in working out his industrial salvation.

It is only through organization and the opportunities for the necessary kind of education and discipline which organization presents, that the workers are placed in a position where they can with a greater degree of assurance, contest an issue with the employers.

The Bayonne strike again repeats the lessons taught by practically all other strikes of this character. That the workers are practically helpless because of their lack of knowledge and organization, and, even where temporary successes are won, that they soon lose the ground gained, because they cannot keep their forces intact through the necessary discipline, such as is maintained in the trade-union movement.—Iron Molders Journal.

FINNEGAN'S PHILOSOPHY

Pitiless Publicity

"I see Mr. Hughes wud like to know what's come to 'Pitiless Publicity.' Meself could tell him. 'Where's 'Pitiless Publicity?'" says Hughes. "In the Ash Can," says I. "I was all right on the stump, but in Washin'ton 'tis differ. The harp that wazat through Trenton's halls—I mane 'Tumulty' when he bursts into song now he picks his chime!"

"'Tis not that Prisdint Wilson is less public than candydote Wilson; he's less pitiless. 'Tis like the showman. He tells ye all, an' more, about th' illyfant, but he has mistal res-shune about the spotted baby."

"So it is wif Wilson. He's sofned the hard heart iv 'Pitiless Publicity.' 'How about the Postmasters?' axed the refawruners. 'We'll niver tell ye,' says the C'mishun. 'For why?' says the League. 'T'wld embar'ss th' Ad-ministhrashun,' says the C'mishun. And the people laughs. 'Ye fired th' Hld of the C'mshun,' says Hughes. 'Ye lie,' says Redfield. 'He raysined wld-out beln' axed,' says he. 'Ye lie yerself,' says Durand. 'Ye towld me ye'd fire me, an' ye gev me place to a politician,' says Durand. 'Izactly f'wath I said,' yells Pink Whiskers. 'I was golu to fire ye anyway, but I niver axed ye to raysine,' says Pinky. An' the people roars."

"Tell us about all thim Dishurvin' Dimmyvants," says the people. An' Washin'ton is swep' be a storm iv silence."

"But don't ye think there's no publicity at all. Teddy himself was none gunshy with the papers, but he cud be quiet too."

"We'll grab some laud in Vinzucely," says the Ambassadure. 'tem'prily,' says he. 'Ye'll not,' says Teddy. 'Ye'll agree to arbitrate,' says he. 'or,' he says, 'in tin days Dewey'll be there,' says Teddy."

"Me Ryle Mather will niver constint," says th' other. 'Thin,' says Teddy. 'I'll sind Dewey at wanst. There's no use waitin'.' Teddy says. 'Howld 'em,' says the Ambassadure. 'We agree,' says he, an' divil a bit did we know how it was for a dozen year."

"We'll have Ferdie Carey alive or the Bashl Bazook dead," says Teddy. An' back comes Ferdie. An' the papers says, 'On demand iv the State Department Ferdie Carey has been released.' An' that's all."

"How is it now? The greasers slaughters twinty at Sany Isabel. 'Another Mexican Crisis,' says the headlines. 'Twinty Americans killed,' they says. 'The Prisdint Calm,' says they. 'Ates Bacon and Eggs. Plays Goint,' says the headlines. An' the paper goes on:

"The Prisdint's appytite at breakfast was good. Th' leader iv the nashun gettin' outside iv grape fruit, bacon an' eggs, hot biscuit an' coffee. When Doother Grayson announced the bill iv fare the tinshun over Mexico was much relaved."

"The Prisdint is solvin' in privacy the fateful question, 'Will me throat last?' The answer is waited wif feverish anxiety."

"Mondah the papers says: 'Nashunal Disaster! Sore Throat Feared! Paule at the Capital! The Prisdint Calm!'"

"Consternation was spread among all classes today be the report that the Prisdint awoke with a sore throat. Strong men fainted before they cud reach the nearest saloon. There is talk iv aplytlin' a day iv prayer. It is hoped that Senor Arre-ye-on-though will claim that the dead Americans raysined ixenshun. A high authority states that this wud end the crisis. The Prisdint made but wan remark: 'Av they'd not been there they'd not iv been kilt.'"

"Choosdah, they says. 'Hope revives. No sore throat. Bitten by insect. Prisdint calm. All Phrases iv Mather to be considered."

"The anxiety in the Capital was relaved today be the followin' bulletin: "The Prisdint has a slight perforation in the cuticle over the inferiure maxillary caused by a insect bitin' him whin asleep. The patient was too proud to scratch. (Signed) Grayson." "It is reported also that General Scott will go to the border to bury the dead, and apologise to the insurgents. He will ax Carranz, whether he wud accept a loan if offered. This is considered the thrue s'lution iv the difficulty."

"Winesdah the Prisdint goes motor-in', Thursdah he writes a note and General Scott starts for the border. Fridah the headlines says 'Peace in Europe near. Prisdint studyin' terms. Will he stop the war? Another note expected. Capital excited over report.' "But we're comforted be beln' towld the Prisdint will not be betrayed into basti ackabun."

"Sundah, he's considerin' th' Argenyan question, an' Mondah he advises Grandmothers about suckin' eggs. And another crisis is past."

"So it goes ivry day. As I was sayin', there's a plenty publicity, but 'tis not the brand iv 1912."

Evidently Mr. Wilson has made to his mind about something. He's been in his acceptance speech to "the sovereign authority of Mexico." He may have decided to whom he was refering. Less than two years ago he was not sure whether it was the scab bandit Villa or the grocer-grater Carranza."

It's not to be wondered that Thomas A. Edison favors Wilson's re-election. The electrical wizard naturally wants anything that switches on and off."

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

to cooperate or to amalgamate, and that thereafter the joint action of the two roofers' organizations be taken up with the Carpenters, regarding the subject matter of roofing.

The undersigned representatives of the International Brotherhood of Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers, and the International Slate and Tile Roofers' Union of America, thereupon met and agreed upon the following:

"It is mutually agreed that the prevailing condition with regard to asphalt shingle existing between the two organizations named shall remain in force as it now exists; that is, in locations where either of the above organizations is doing that class of work, they are to continue to do the same.

"It is further agreed that the two organizations, that is, the International Brotherhood of Composition Workers, Damp and Waterproof Workers, and the International Slate and Tile Roofers' Union of America, parties to this agreement, request President Gompers of the A. F. of L. to take up with the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, the question of carrying into effect the intent and purposes of the San Francisco A. F. of L. Convention, and that a conference at a mutually convenient time and place be held for that purpose, and that in the meantime Secretary Gavlak, of the Slate and Tile Roofers, is to have a conference with President Hutcheson, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, for the purpose of helping to effect a better understanding and agreement.

That the International Slate and Tile Roofers' Union of America has jurisdiction over asbestos and asphalt shingles above eaves line.

That the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has jurisdiction over asbestos and asphalt shingles as applied to sides of buildings.

This agreement to apply to cities and districts where there are local unions of the International Slate and Tile Roofers' Union of America.

STATE WILL NOT PAY ENTIRE COST

River Regulation Plans Provide For National Aid

GOVERNMENT IS INTERESTED

Although plans are being formulated to ask the next legislature to take up the question of river regulation it is not the purpose to propose that the state shall entirely finance the construction of the necessary works. It is the intention to urge that the state take the initiative in bringing about the cooperation of the federal government with the state and local committees affected and to lead in the preparation of a comprehensive plan of stream control.

It is looked upon as important at this time for the state to take a firm stand upon its water problems. Transportation, flood prevention, reclamation, water supply and other incidents of stream now are questions of extreme importance to the commonwealth. These questions present different aspects from the national, the state and the municipal viewpoints and their solution cannot be adequately and efficiently effected except by some plan of harmonious and co-operative action.

The State of Pennsylvania standing as it does between the federal government with multitudinous demands pressing upon it, and the counties and municipalities with their limited powers, should take the lead in the preparation of a comprehensive plan of development. It is this that the next legislature will be asked to do. With the state on record as favoring such projects it is expected that little difficulty will be met in inducing the federal government to provide its share of the cost.

To pave the way toward joint cooperation between the federal and state governments and local communities a bill has been presented to Congress by Congressman W. H. Coleman, and is now pending there. This is a bill "Providing for the control of the flood waters and the regulation of the stream flow of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and tributaries, and for other purposes."

TRADE UNIONS AND HEALTH INSURANCE

Samuel W. Gompers Tells Work- ers They Must Prepare Physically.

Every organization that assumes responsibility for sick and death benefits at once opens up even a larger problem. These benefits can be made less onerous financially by instituting preventive measures, the constructive side, or the preventive of disease. The chief agency for disease prevention is the dissemination of information.
All too many of our people are ignorant of the fundamental facts of hygiene and disease prevention. There are in every trade special dangers to life; some of these are inherently a part of the process of production, and others can be readily eliminated by a little planning and forethought or the use of improved devices by employers.

If the workers themselves have sufficient information to make demands upon their employers, they can do much to create conditions that are conducive to good health. If they are sufficiently alert to their own interests to make demands upon public health authorities that these authorities supply them with necessary information as to industrial and physical hygiene, there will be readily available a considerable amount of literature on the subject that will go a long way toward eliminating the present general ignorance.

There is another matter that ought to be seriously considered by local unions. Benevolent employers and many associations interested in general health and hygiene have urged that the various companies employ health experts or company doctors.
These men become the agents of the company, and while they are in a position to perform necessary and benignant work for workers, yet their function can be readily manipulated and made deleterious to the best interests of the wage earners. It is not necessary to tell wage-earners the relationship that may exist between compulsory physical examination and discrimination in the matter of employment or furnishing reasons for dismissal. But the matter of physical examination of employees is of fundamental importance in informing these employees of incipient disease or physical weakness that may later develop into something serious.
Physical examinations consisting at regular periods in addition to disclosing physical weakness, will develop valuable information throwing light upon industrial efficiency and its necessary relationship with good health and sound body and upon occupational diseases.

The workers should have some kind of medical advice and supervision from health experts. In order to make this institution really beneficial, the workers, through their trade unions, may employ their own doctors. Several plans are under consideration. Large trade unions may employ their own doctors and pay with additional fees in case of sickness of members. These additional fees might be paid by the union or him a fixed sum as retaining fee, by the individuals as experience would indicate the wiser method. In smaller localities, one physician might be sufficient to serve a local central body. Arrangements might be made with some institute which has the services of the best equipped experts of the country, and because of the great numbers it serves, its benefits secured by individuals at small expense. In some trades in which the dangers to the health of workers are most hazardous, the union has for some time employed its own physician, and has assisted its members in preventing the development of disease. In order to make available to members of trade unions the best information on physical and industrial hygiene, it is recommended that all unions, at regular fixed periods, have their health advisers make talks to the union, giving them specific information upon matters relating to either physical or industrial hygiene. Such advice as this would go a long way to enlighten wage-earners how to take care of themselves; how to conserve their own bodies and power to produce, and thus enable them to ward off disease.

Proposals to force upon the workers social insurance of a compulsory nature have now taken such shape that unless the wage-earners protect themselves and establish their own devices, they will find themselves overwhelmed by state regulation and administration. We urge that all trade organizations take up this matter for serious consideration and definite action in the near future.

Cigarmakers of Jackson, Michigan, per thousand.

Not as Advertised.

An English lord was visiting friends in Scotland. One evening while attending a dinner given in his honor he met the little daughter of his host, who, though too well-bred to stare, eyed him covertly as the occasion presented itself, finally venturing a remark:

"And you are really and truly an English Lord?"

"Yes," he answered pleasantly.

"Really and truly?"

"I have often thought I would like to see an English lord," she went on, "and—and—"

"And now you are satisfied," he interrupted, laughing.

"N-no," the little miss replied truthfully, "I'm not satisfied, I'm a good deal disappointed.—Country Gentleman."

Sound Advice.

"Now, looky yur, Coonrod!" said Mr. Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark., addressing one of his sons.

"There's a time to fight and a time not to fight, but the same as there's a time to sing and a time to dance, and I don't want you to get 'em mixed. Don't be too proud to fight when it is time to fight, but don't be too dad-burned anxious. Be sure you're right, then let 'er rip!" as the poet got off.

But not only be sure you're right, but be certain you're sure, and then hop to it like bagging wildcats. You can't unblack a feller's eyes or unburn his nose, after you've blacked 'em or busted it."—Kansas City Star.

Why Labor Is Scarce.

Here is one reason which you may have overlooked why labor is growing scarcer every day in the United States:

We have now in Pennsylvania alone 225,000 automobiles. One-third of them are pleasure cars driven by chauffeurs, an army of 75,000 able-bodied men removed entirely from productive work.

The army of pleasure car chauffeurs in the whole country must exceed half a million men—all nonproducers. Indeed, there is another great big army of men building pleasure cars to be operated by these other nonproducers of essentials.

They used to complain in Germany that every taxpayer had to carry a soldier on his back. We vary it in the United States by carrying a chauffeur on our backs, says "Giran" in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Outclassed His Owner.

Vice President Marshall says that for subtle humor he believes the funniest story he knows is the one about Mark Twain meeting the man who owned a dachshund.

"As a matter of fact, the man was extremely proud of the dog because it was a bit of an oddity in appearance, besides being intelligent and highborn. Twain, however, studiously avoided looking at it.

Somebody asked him why he acted as if he didn't see the dog.

"Because," replied Twain, "I was afraid the owner might be sensitive about having it."

Mother Wanted the Pleasure.

"Molly, love," said Molly's smart mother, "I do hope, when we're at Mrs. Jimson's this afternoon, that you won't think of letting out that terrible story about the poor dear's wife that we heard yesterday."

"Oh, of course not, mother! It would be so wicked, as well as ungenerous. I shouldn't dream of speaking evil of anyone."

"Quite right, my dear—quite right! You always have such nice feelings about everything! Besides, I want to tell Mrs. Jimson myself!"

Hard to Explain.

"Brother, how do they hang people?" asked Wallace.

"I don't know, dear, and I should not tell you if I did know. Don't let your thoughts run on such awful things."

"But, mother, the boys say that Sheriff Jackson does it, and he's a real nice man. I was going to ask him to let me see him do it some day."

"Oh, these terrible man-children," said mother, as she put her fingers in her ears.

Like Attracting Like.

"Your wife is looking at us with a great deal of fire in her eye."

"—I guess she saw us smoking."

Money talks, and usually it's in a hurry to say good-by!

BRITISH LABOR TO BENEFIT BY WAR

Government Recognizes Necessity of Looking After Welfare of the Workers.

IDLENESS TO BE CURTAILED

Prophecy Made by Union Representative, Now in This Country—Nine-Hour Day for Women and Children in Kansas—General Labor News.

"The war has impressed on the British government the necessity for keeping workmen fit. After the war there is going to be an entire readjustment of working conditions in England to the end that in the future there will be no likelihood of able-bodied workmen being forced to be idle three days out of the week, as often happened before the war." This prophecy of labor after the war was made by Harry Gosling, British labor leader, who is in this country with W. Whitefield of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, as representatives of British labor at the Baltimore conference.

Women and girls will not be allowed to work in stores longer than nine hours a day as the result of an order issued by the Kansas labor and industrial welfare commission. The shortage of labor is running up costs and increasing the difficulties of Canadian pulp and paper operations. E. G. Cowdery, president of the company, said that the increase would add another $350,000 to the annual pay rolls of the corporation. The raise is given to all employees drawing less than $200 a month, and is given owing to the increase in living expenses.

Bodily Housekeeping

(BY V. M. PIERCE, M. D.)

The subject of drinking water with meals has been misunderstood.

In recent years investigation by means of X-rays, the observations of scientists such as Cannon, Grutzner, Pavlov, Fowler, Hawk, prove that an abundance of water taken during digestion is necessary in good bodily housekeeping.

If your kidneys are sick, or you suffer with lumbago or rheumatism at times, pain in the back or back of the neck, take a little Anuric before meals. This can be found at any good drug store. Therefore my advice to young or old is, always drink plenty of pure water. And for long life, occasionally take tablets of Anuric three or four times a day.

Anuric acts—much more quickly than lithia. You will find it dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

Bumper Grain Crops

Good Markets—High Prices
Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle fed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

WELL KNOWN MAN ANSWERS SUMMONS

On Sunday evening, Nov. 5th, at the late residence, on the Hunter place, near the Hebron Presbyterian church, Stephen A. Hunter Kronk died after a lingering illness of four years, from tuberculosis. During the last month he had seemingly been better than for some time. About 8 p. m. he had a hemorrhage, and in less than 10 minutes was lifeless.

Mr. Kronk was born near the Mt. Olivet Presbyterian church, Beaver county, June 26, 1877, grew to manhood and for some time engaged in farming. A number of years ago he secured employment in the Monaca Steel mills, where he continued to labor until failing health forced him to seek rest and possible restoration of health in the sanitarium at Conneaut Lake, Pa. Partially restored, he returned to the farm near Murdocksville, Pa., where he engaged in light farming and poultry raising until April of the present year, when he moved to the home from which death called him.

Mr. Kronk was a kind neighbor, a loving husband and father. In early manhood he united with the Mt. Olivet Presbyterian church, and afterwards transferred his membership to the Hebron church. He was also a member of the Eagles' Lodge, of Monaca. He was united in marriage to Miss Florence Atkinson, who, with one son, James Everett, and the following sisters and brothers survive: Mr. James A. Kronk, Monaca; W. W. Kronk, of Tennessee; Mrs. Ida Lash, Wichita, Kan.; Mrs. Eva McCoy, of East Liverpool, O.; Mrs. Martha Livingston, Conneaut Lake; Mrs. Anna Todd, Hanover, and Mrs. Mary Schooler, Shippingport, Pa.

The funeral services were held at the Mt. Olivet Presbyterian church, where interment was made.

Card of Thanks.

The brothers and sisters, the widow and son of Mr. S. A. H. Kronk, wish to express their heartfelt thanks for the help received during the sickness and death of their loved one: to the Eagles' Lodge of Monaca, and the many friends of the Murdocksville, Hebron and Mt. Olivet neighborhoods, and all who assisted to lighten the burden of sorrow.

HELPS IN PREPARING BILL

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh has signified his intention of taking an active hand in working out a plan for the regulation of rivers in Pennsylvania in the next session of the legislature. The governor regards this problem of importance equal to that of good roads and will give considerable of his attention to the formulation and putting through of a comprehensive plan of development.

Following the last session of the legislature Gov. Brumbaugh showed his interest in and sympathy with the idea of getting the fullest use out of the state's rivers and streams by signing an appropriation bill designed to aid in carrying out the Pymatuning Swamp project in the western part of the state. Here the principle of river regulation will get a good demonstration. A reservoir is planned for the storage of excess water during freshets and thus to prevent floods, the stored supply to be released during times of drought for domestic and manufacturing purposes and to improve the sanitation of the Shenango and Beaver rivers.

It is this principle of river regulation that it is proposed shall be applied to other sections of the state where flood and low water conditions occur at different seasons of the year. The plan proposed for the financing of these other projects differs from that adopted for Pymatuning as most flood troubles occur on navigable rivers and the national government has an interest in the regulation of these streams and is expected to contribute funds accordingly.

The plan as proposed, and which has the tentative approval of Governor Brumbaugh, is the joint co-operation of the federal and state governments and the local communities affected; and the next legislature is to be asked to take definite steps toward bringing this about.

Governor Brumbaugh has been approached on this subject and while not committing himself to any definite plan of action he signified his interest in solving the problem and agreed to do everything in his power to induce the next legislature to make a thorough inquiry into the question.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION TRANSACTS BUSINESS

Protests Appointment of Greensburg Man to State Highway Position.

PASSES RESOLUTIONS IN REGARD TO LABOR NEWS

Considerable business was transacted at a regular meeting of the Central Labor Union, held on Monday evening in Eagles' Hall, New Brighton.

Pressley Powell, V. M. Martin and Charles Huff, appointed delegates from the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' Local Union No. 357, presented their credentials and were seated.

The matter of the Central Labor Union taking out memberships in the Beaver Falls and New Brighton Chambers of Commerce was taken up and discussed at length. Action was deferred until the next meeting.

The organization went on record as protesting against the recent action of Governor Brumbaugh in appointing A. D. Crissinger, of Greensburg, Superintendent of State Highways in this county, to succeed J. Henry Geer, of New Brighton, who was forced to resign. It was the sentiment of the meeting that a Beaver county man was entitled to the place and a motion to endorse J. D. McKenna for the place was carried.

The question of advertising patronage in the Beaver Valley Labor News which is owned by Union organizations located in the valley, was taken up and discussed at length. It was the unanimous sentiment of the meeting that, inasmuch as the paper is owned by Union men, living in the Beaver Valley and patronizing merchants doing business in the valley, that it was up to said merchants to show their appreciation of the patronage accorded them by Union men to reciprocate by using advertising space in the columns of their paper. The fact that the paper has a large and growing circulation that it goes into the homes of those who buy at home and that it is a credit in every way to organized labor, was brought out and the delegates present in view of the fact that they represented several thousand Union men, members of organizations holding stock in The Labor News, went on record in the following resolutions, which were unanimously carried:

"In view of the fact that quite a number of merchants in the Beaver Valley are using the advertising columns of our paper—The Beaver Valley Labor News—be it, therefore,

"Resolved, that all delegates to the Central Labor Union be, and hereby are, instructed to convey this fact to their respective locals; And be it further,

"Resolved, That all members of the various locals be urged to distribute their patronage among those merchants who are advertisers in The Labor News."

The following communication, relative to the proposition that the Central body take up the matter of endorsing a moving picture film, of especial interest to labor, to be shown in one of the valley theatres, and in the receipts of which the body is to share, was received from J. W. Slayton, of Pittsburgh, who will be invited by the organization to appear before it and set forth the details of the same:

Pittsburgh, Pa., 11-15-16.
Mr. R. F. Kross, Sec'y.

Dear Sir and Brother:—As you may know, there are a number of Moving Picture plays being shown these days, nearly all of which, while they have some good features, do not do credit to the labor movement. Most of them depict labor in fights on the streets, which furnishes an excuse to call the troops, etc., and finally, most of such plays end with a romance, leaving two people happy (?) and leaving all the rest of those involved substantially as they were before.

About a year ago I happened to hear of a screen play that was entirely different, I saw it and at once decided to get possession, and to take it out, make dates, and lecture with it, for the reason that it does the Labor Movement nearer justice than any I have ever seen. It shows labor being and finally becoming well-organized. Each one remaining true, there are no compromises, no sell outs, no fights, no troops, and in the end a complete victory is secured for all labor. From start to finish, labor is shown in that light which commands respect.

I am writing you for the purpose of saying, in addition to the above, that I am interesting Central bodies and local unions so that I can put in this film in as many places as possible, and assure full houses.

As a rule, when men approach a union, they ask the union to guarantee expenses, or even more, I do not want one cent of a guarantee, on the contrary, I guarantee to put money in.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL IN SESSION

Receives Delegation Representing East Liverpool Crafts Anxious to Affiliate.

The regular meeting of the Building Trades Council, held on Thursday evening, in Kramer Building, New Brighton, proved to be the best attended meeting in many months, practically every delegate being present, except the carpenters.

A communication received from the Beaver Valley District Council of Carpenters to the effect that their organizations desired to withdraw from the Trades Council for reasons known to the Council, was laid on the table, owing to the fact that reasons for the withdrawal were not specified and no further action will be taken in the matter for the present.

A most satisfactory feature of the meeting was the visit paid the Council by representatives of East Liverpool locals. Frank Scarry, B. F. Davidson and Malcolm Milne, from Plumbers' Local No. 140; Ray C. McDonald and R. C. Baxter, from Local 93, Electrical Workers, were the visitors, and the committee stated that they had visited the Council for the purpose of gaining membership with the organization. The visitors stated that practically all of the trades in their district had signed their intention of affiliation with the Council. Officers and members of the Building Trades Council extended the visitors a warm welcome, and it was the general opinion that within a short time the two districts will become a joint organization.

Bros. Chas. Jackson, sheet metal worker; John Stahlnecker, of the Bricklayers, and Elmer Shipman, of the Painters, were appointed as organization committee in the East Liverpool matter.

Brother Milne, one of the Plumbers' representatives, is a former member of Plumbers' Local No. 115, of this district, and at one time was president of the Beaver County Building Trades Council.

F. M. Hays, delegate from Painters and Decorators No. 530; J. W. Howe, delegate from Sheet Metal Workers' Local No. 357, and Hugh Houlette, from Bricklayers No. 7, presented their credentials and were seated.

Bro. Joseph C. Beamer, delegate from Electrical Workers No. 712, tendered his resignation as a delegate, owing to the fact that he has entered into the contracting business.

Work in all crafts was reported excellent, the demand for men exceeding the supply.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER GIVEN THE BRIDE-TO-BE

In honor of her approaching marriage to Harold Powell, of Rochester, members of the U. B. Club, of Colona, tendered a miscellaneous shower to their co-member, Miss Edith Caine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Caine, at her home in Colona Tuesday night. About twenty-five guests were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Many beautiful and useful presents were presented to the bride-to-be. The date for the wedding has been set for November 29th.

CARPENTERS, 1033, OFFICIATE AS HOSTS

Serve Delightful Supper at Close of Business Meeting Tuesday Night.

The last regular meeting of Carpenter's Local No. 1033, to be held in Bank Hall, Monaca, took place on Tuesday evening, the occasion being celebrated by the serving of an oyster supper, following the business meeting.

Routine business was transacted and Samuel Rank, an apprentice, and William E. Freed, journeymen, were initiated as members. The trustees were instructed to see that the furniture belonging to the organization was removed to the new home in the Odd Fellows' building, Rochester, in time for the next regular meeting in December. Fred Tallon was reported off the sick list.

J. A. Kronk received the nomination in his local for business agent of the District Council, and O. F. Gault the nomination as secretary.

At the conclusion of the meeting members and their wives, daughters, sweethearts and a few hungry newspaper men, adjourned to the Odd Fellows' lodge room, where a long table, seating in the neighborhood of fifty persons, was spread with good things to eat. And it was some supper—the oysters were of the best grade and were perfectly prepared with good, rich milk; there was potato salad which would delight the sold of an epicure; there were delicious sandwiches of various sorts, a great abundance of olives, celery, cold slaw and other "trimmings," excellent cake and mighty good coffee topping off the menu. To add to the pleasure of the supper, and to act as an appetizer, Col. Reed rendered a topical song, which was received with applause, and others present kept the music going throughout the supper.

The committee on arrangements, O. F. Gault, J. A. Kronk, J. W. Grim, J. L. Worstel, D. C. Morris and J. C. Figley, deserves great credit for the success of the supper. The Labor News representatives present hereby express their appreciation of the fact that they were invited to enjoy the elegant repast.

To Officers and Members of Local No. 1033, U. B. of C. & J. of A.:

Greeting:—I was instructed by Beaver Valley District Council to notify you that carpenters' organizations have withdrawn from Building Trades for the following reasons:

First: Taxation. Without representation; second, slates for officers made in private houses and lining up delegates before meetings to carry out schemes of two or three members; third, changing by-laws and constitution of Building Trades without sending them out to organizations for referendum vote, and carpenters not getting support of other trades that we should have.

Fraternally yours,
J. A. Kronk, Recording Secretary.

TEXTILE WORKERS

THANK THE A. F. OF L.

Secretary Frank Morrison, of the A. F. of L., has received the following letter from President Golden, of the United Textile Workers of America:

"At the convention of the United Textile Workers of America, held in New York City, October 16-21, a resolution was unanimously passed instructing the secretary-treasurer to extend to President Gompers, Secretary Morrison and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, a hearty vote of thanks for their splendid assistance, both moral and financial, which they have given the United Textile Workers of America during the current year in aid of the campaign of organizing which has been so successfully waged among the unorganized textile workers of the country.

"As a result of the success of this campaign I only need to refer to the fact that we are now paying per capita tax on practically double the membership of one year ago, and we are still growing.

"Had it not been for the splendid assistance rendered by the American Federation of Labor, this healthy increase in membership would not have been possible."

ENORMOUS PROFITS OF THE PAPER MAKERS

Washington, D. C.—As a result of an investigation of news print paper prices the federal trade commission presents facts and figures to show that the present high price of this commodity is unwarranted. It is stated that during the first half of the present year, when prices were soaring to unprecedented figures, the average cost of producing news print paper in domestic mills was less than $1.65 per 100 pounds, or below the average cost in the past three years.

"It should be noted," the statement continues, "that the most important materials which advanced in price, sulphite and ground wood, were produced by most of the paper manufacturers without an increase in cost and not bought at market prices, while some other manufacturers were protected against the increase in prices by contracts. Some other materials which were purchased at advanced prices were very small factors in the total cost. Certain economies were also practiced in the use of expensive materials."

At the Majestic

"The Price of Fame"

A scene in Vitagraph feature, "The Price of Fame," starring Marc MacDermott and Naomi Childers, which is the headliner at the Majestic on Monday, Nov. 27, shows a collision between a small open wagon and a large limousine.

The director placed everything in readiness for the taking of this thrilling scene. Mr. MacDermott nonchalantly entered the machine, the chauffeur took his place, the man driving the wagon climbed to his seat, the camera man started to grind and the action began.

Both chauffeur and the driver of the wagon were going too fast for safety sake, although there was supposed to be a collision, but the director was unable to tell them to slow down, and the vehicles met one another with a terrific crash. The wagon was demolished and Marc MacDermott was thrown to the ground and badly shaken up. Nevertheless both players were quick-witted enough to keep right on with their part as though nothing had happened, with the result that the thrill is most realistic.

"Civilization"

"Civilization," the great cinema spectacle for which the master producer Thomas H. Ince is responsible and which comes to the Majestic Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 28-29, has something more than its enormous cost to recommend it to the attention of those who take pleasure in this form of entertainment. It is the first movie of which it may truthfully be said that it cost about a million dollars. It is significant of the expansion of the producer's art, that even so recently as two years ago, $250,000 was considered a colossal sum to spend on making a great motion picture spectacle. This maximum has been quadrupled in a few hundred days, illustrating the keen competition among motion picture producers to impress the public with the magnitude of the movie drama.

LILLIAN READ

The reader is urged to see the picture for himself because it is impossible within the space of this reading notice to do it justice.

"Love and Hate"

The fight of one woman against a man who brings her unhappiness is told in the new Fox photoplay "Love and Hate," at the Majestic Theatre, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 30-Dec. 1, in which Madame Bertha Kalich once more appears upon the screen.

George Howard (Stuart Holmes) is a broker who thrives by cheating innocent investors, and is aided by Rita Lawson. Howard discloses his love for Helen, Rita sees it; she also sees Robert Sterling putting away some securities which she steals.

After this loss the tide turns again the Sterlings and in their extremity Howard sends her a check for $500, telling her to be sure her husband does not find it out, which he does and institutes divorce proceedings. One of their children then dies. In the trial that follows Howard testifies against her and the divorce is granted, the custody of the children going to the father. Then by a clever ruse, Howard forces Helen to visit him. Enraged at the deception she kills him. When she returns home she finds Robert waiting for her.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Scarlet Oath"

The most recent of the Brady-Made World Pictures is coming to the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, Nov. 27. It is called "The Scarlet Oath," and presents the clever Gail Kane in an unusual dual role which gives her a splendid opportunity to display her talents.

See how John Huntington, the American Consul at Warsaw is drawn into a conspiracy against the government and unknowingly assists a murderer to escape the arm of the law. You will be as puzzled as he is as to who really is his fiancée.

"Little Lady Eileen."

Following her thrilling romance in "Silks and Satins," little Marguerite Clark is starred by the Famous Players Film Company in an entirely new environment as "Little Lady Eileen." The scenes of this quaint little play are laid on the Emerald Isle, where Miss Clark has an opportunity to introduce on the screen a new character, that of a typical little Irish lassie who is an unperverted believer in fairies. Miss Clark has a notable cast in her support.

J. Searle Dawley, who has directed Marguerite Clark in the majority of her successes for the Famous Players, is the director of this delightful photoplay, which is to be released on the Paramount Program at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Tuesday November 28.

"The Pretenders."

Emmy Wehlen, one of the most beautiful and gifted actresses of the stage or screen, is the star of the big Metro feature, "The Pretenders," which will be presented at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Wednesday, Nov. 29. This five-part production is the latest in which this popular little star has been seen on the screen. Miss Wehlen, who is considered one of the best gowned women in pictures, is seen at her best in "The Pretenders." The story of the picture play was written especially for her by two of America's best younger playwrights.

"The Stronger Love"

The latest Metro-Paramount photoplay coming to the Colonial Theatre Thursday, Nov. 30, brings up the interesting question: Which life will be the stronger, bigger and accomplish the most? Will the boy who leaves his backwoods surroundings and is refined by the culture of the university be the one? Or will the greater man be the one, who born and raised a Kentucky "Mountain Johnny" prove by his life that he has attained the finer qualities of manhood in the rough school of experience?

A difficult decision for a professor of psychology to decide but seemingly Nell Service's heart leads her to the best decision in the charmingly sweet mountain story "The Stronger Love."

"The Girl of Lost Lake"

The wonderful scenery of the Sierra Nevada Mountains is brought to the embellishment of the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Saturday, December 2, under the title of "The Girl of Lost Lake." Rugged mountain peaks, the dense foliage of fir and balsam trees, the broad expanse of Lost Lake's shimmering and placid surface, are provided as a nature-setting to the dramatic and engaging portrayal of a delightful picture that embodies fascinating interest without the interjection of any "problems" or the violation of any codes. Written and produced especially for Bluebird presentation, every element that makes for the close approach to perfection in camera-action and moving picture production has been fulfilled with lavish expenditure of money and close attention to the most minute detail.

"The Reward of Patience."

There is nothing more charming nor inspiring than the higher love of a young girl for a man—the kind of devotion that makes her love for him silently and with never a thought of her affection being returned, while the foolish man pursues another woman not worthy of his thoughts. This is the role of Friend Patience in "The Reward of Patience," which will be shown at the Majestic, Saturday, Dec. 2, in which dainty Louise Huff has so delightfully caught the spirit of the Quaker girl. Patience has been fascinated by Robert Penfield, a New York engineer, who has been in charge of some construction work at Amity Center. Moved by pity for the girl, Penfield has his mother employ her as a social secretary. Her gratitude ripening into love, Patience is terribly shocked when she finds that Penfield is engaged to a society girl whom she instinctively distrusts. The justification of Patience's estimate of the other girl, the revelation of his great mistake to Penfield and the beautiful self-sacrifice of Patience makes this one of the most appealing of Famous Players productions on the Paramount Program.

Suppose you permit me to come before your Central body of Beaver county, and after I have given them details, they agree to work for a successful date, and appoint a committee, that committee and myself will visit the best picture houses in the city.

Will you kindly tell me when and where the Beaver County Central meets, and may I have the privilege of presenting the matter to your body at that time?

The following communication was also received from the Bureau of Tuberculosis, California State Board of Health, the same being self-explanatory:

November 1, 1916.

Gentlemen:—The Kent Bill H. R. 11864 has been reported out of both committees for passage, but in view of the fact that there are some 17,000 bills to be brought up at the next session, it is absolutely necessary that the members of Congress from your state realize the importance of this measure and vote for it when it comes up for final passage.

Every tuberculosis hospital in the country has a long waiting list, and unless some recognition is made this session, while we have the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Public Health Service, it means that all we have gained will be lost. Another bill will have to be introduced and another campaign carried out.

It is not necessary for me to go into the details on the merits of this bill, because you already know them. We have only had opposition from a few social workers in Denver, who have entirely lost sight of the fact that these sufferers are human beings and have a right to try another section of the country if they think it will benefit them. It is absolutely necessary that hospitals all over the country be open to non-residents if they have no other place to go. Once these hospitals feel they will be reimbursed for the care and treatment of these patients, the standard of treatment will be raised and the patients will be treated as if they were human beings instead of left to die as they do in many of the institutions that are not as good as first class stables.

If you want to assist with the greatest piece of public health legislation that has ever been enacted, bring this matter before your Congressmen and senators again and urge their support before they leave for Washington. The passage of this bill will make it possible for every working man and woman in this country to receive hospital care and treatment if they are suffering from tuberculosis.

Thanking you in advance for your co-operation, I am

Yours very sincerely,

E. L. M. TATE,

Director.

The following communication was read from Albert Sutton, corresponding secretary of Iron Molders' Union

299, of Marion, Ind., the same being in relation to the discharge of several employees of the Marion Stove Company on the date of August 9, 1916:

Marion, Ind., Sept. 29, 1916.
To Officers and Members of Several Central Bodies and Affiliated Organizations:

Greeting:—We desire to call your attention to the fact of The Marion Stove Company's disregard for organized labor since Aug. 9, 1916, when our members were given the privilege of choosing between the union and the firm. The men resolved to stay with the union and were immediately discharged.

The cause of discharging the men of both organizations, Moulders and Mounters, being that they (the employees) requested the firm to comply somewhere near with the conditions existing in the shops of the immediate district. For making this reasonable demand the men were informed that they should take their tools and leave the shop.

After repeated efforts on the part of the officers of both organizations and local committee, we have failed to effect a settlement and, as a result, the Marion Stove Company, of Marion, Indiana, has been placed on the "We Don't Patronize List" by Marion Central Trades Council.

Therefore, for the above named reasons, we are asking the moral support of all Central Bodies and Local Unions, requesting you to appoint committees to visit stove dealers in your respective district and locality, and urge them to refrain from purchasing or selling the Marion Stove Company's products until such time as the firm will deal fairly with their employees.

The following is a list of the stoves, ranges and heaters manufactured by The Marion Stove Company, and any information as to the sale of same will be highly appreciated by us: Retort Oak, Retort, Marion Special, Ventilator Special, Marion Oak, Marion Laundry, Marion Stock Cooker and Home Pride Malleable Range.

Trusting that these requests will be complied with, we remain

Fraternally yours,

ALBERT SUTTON, Cor. Sec.

2335 West Ninth Street.

W. O. FOGELSON, Pres.

G. W. SMITH, Secretary.

CREED

To live as gently as I can.

To be, no matter where, a man;
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honor still;
To do my best, and let that stand
The record of my brain and hand,
And then, shall failure come to me
To work and hope for victory.

To have no secret place wherein
I stoop unseen to shame or sin;
To be the same when I'm alone
As when my every deed is known;
To live undaunted, unafraid
Of any step that I have made,
To be without pretense or sham
Exactly what men think I am.

To leave some simple mark behind
That I have lived for men to find;
If unity to aught I show
To be an honest, generous foe;
To play my little part, nor whine
That greater honors are not mine.
Thus, I believe, is all I need
For my philosophy and creed.

WAS "SOME" FISH FRY

Freedom Eagles No. 1429 Hosts at Annual Fish Fry, Which Was Great Success.

The annual fish fry of the Freedom Fraternal Order of Eagles, held on Saturday evening last, in Eagle's Hall, was largely attended and proved to be one of the most enjoyable affairs in the history of the organization. Over 200 men were entertained with a fish supper, said fish being fried "to a queen's taste," and being served with varied and sundry "trimmings." To make the occasion more enjoyable, the diners were entertained with a concert by the Caputo Brass Band, which rendered a program peculiarly adapted to the occasion, and by "Doc" Craig, the eminent exponent of sleight-of-hand work, who delighted those present by a most mystifying exhibition of "now you see it, and now you don't," using cards, a live pigeon and various other objects to bewilder his watchers.

J. H. Lindsay, who brought back with him from the Philippines a native smoking set, donated the same to the order, and it was raffled off during the evening. George Billicks, of Leetsdale, possessing the lucky ticket.

Great credit is due the committee on arrangements for the success of the affair, David Whitehouse, William Seely and William Fehr constituting the "board of directors," and right well did they do their work.

I. M. U. NO. 219, ARE told the men present that it was up to them to either get their unions into politics or politics into their unions, for the reason that labor's interests need protection in the legislative halls; that undoubtedly at the coming session of the Pennsylvania state legislature, there would be determined efforts on the part of interests opposed to labor to repeal the enactment of legislature favorable to labor now on the statute books, and that labor would have to be on the job to protect its interests. The speaker added that in the past the laboring vote had been so scattered that it had practically no weight, but that in his opinion there was a change. A dent and that the men were beginning to see the light insofar as their political activity and the necessity of banding together when it came to voting were concerned. The Senator-elect noted for office who would recognize with playing politics two weeks before election, but to get busy at the primaries and see that men were nominated for office who would recognize labor's needs and would protect those needs.

District Attorney Graham followed Mr. Craig and after telling a few stories, launched into a talk on the duty of the laboring man in the political field which made those present sit up and take notice. The speaker was accorded three cheers upon the conclusion of his talk.

Music was furnished by Steiner's orchestra during the evening and the long table in the center of the big banquet room was laden with good things to eat. There were songs by different members of the Molders as well as clever dancing specialties. Altogether, the affair was most successful and should be productive of great good to every man present.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF TRADE UNIONISM

Baltimore, Nov. 22.—The philosophy of trade unionism, its effectiveness and its necessity are presented in the following concise manner by the A. F. of L. executive council in its report to the annual convention, now in session in this city:

"There is nothing more conspicuous in the developments of the past year than the importance and power of the economic organization of the workers. Since its inception the American Federation of Labor has stood for the principle that the fundamental power of the workers is their economic power and that whatever influence they exert in industrial or political matters is because they have been able to organize and to use their economic power to promote their own welfare and their ideals of better standards of life and work for all who toil. The wisdom of this policy has been demonstrated over and over again, but never more conspicuously than during the past year. The Wage-earners have secured a more fitting recognition for the part they take in national life and development.

"The economic organization of the workers is fundamental; it has its origin in the primary needs and wants of the workers and is close to life itself. Whenever this power is organized and wisely wielded it affects directly the fundamental affairs of national life. Economic power is the primary power and all other kinds of power are derived from economic power and are in proportion to its development.

"The tremendous success that the A. F. of L. has had in past years in securing remedial and protective legislation has been the result of organization and use of economic power. For political purposes, during the past year, the scope of labor's activity has been extended into the realm of international relations, but the fundamental principle has been unchanged. Even in international relations wage-earners have found that they can have an influence and an effect in molding and directing national relations through the use of their economic organization. They have in all things stood for recognition of human values, and have humanized all national issues, demanding for human agents consideration with all other elements."

Garment Workers Advance.

RAILROADS TO FIGHT ADAMSON 8-HOUR LAW

Numerous suits against the Adamson eight-hour law for railroad train service employees have been started by railroad companies throughout the country.

Since the act was passed some of the highest priced lawyers in the nation have been retained by the companies to study the law to discover an unconstitutional flaw. It is now stated that the fifth amendment to the federal constitution, which declares that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, will be the principal refuge of these attorneys.

This amendment is the regulation defense of every reactionary influence in its opposition to social legislation.

Observing trade unionists, however, believe that these suits are only a part of the general strategy of railroads to secure legislation from congress that will tie to their jobs all workers employed in interstate transportation service.

The railroads would especially welcome the passage of a law similar to the Canadian industrial disputes act, which prohibits a strike of the workers employed in a public utility until after a government investigation. This law was denounced by the last convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, after a nine years' trial, and the Dominion government was called upon to repeal same. The same theory, applicable to all industries, was made a law by the last Colorado legislature, and after a year's trial the organized workers of Colorado have demanded its repeal.

Other legislation desired by the railroads would empower the interstate commerce commission to fix wages of railroad employees.

These two proposals would result in fastening a worker to his job and take from him the right to sell his labor power.

To secure this legislation the finest strategy is necessary, in view of the declared hostility of the American Federation of Labor and the four railroad brotherhoods.

Because of this fact it is essential that an atmosphere of uncertainty be created in the mind of the public, through numerous court suits and agitation by big business for a commission. The railroads are hopeful that a public opinion will be developed that will justify their friends in congress demanding that the matter be "straightened out" by turning the whole question over to a commission and deny workers the right to strike pending an investigation.

Printers Raise Wages

Typographical Union No. 77, Erie, Pa., has signed a three-years' agreement with employing printers. Wages in newspapers are increased $1 a week to October 1, 1917, and 50 cents a week increase for the years 1918 and 1919.

Workers Win Strike.

Tannery workers of DuBois, Pa., have won their strike and secured a nine-hour day with 10 hours' pay and increased wages. A. F. of L. Organizer Flynn assisted these workers.

Her Dowry

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Jim Hathaway, an American, was in Paris studying art when the great European war broke out and volunteered in the American legion. He was severely wounded at the battle of the Marne and discharged from the service. Before enlisting he had been on the eve of settling out to what was formerly Bretagne, on the west coast of France, but now divided into several departments. After a partial recovery he concluded to carry out his previous intention, hoping to gain strength by breathing the salt air. He took with him sketching materials, but made little use of them, sitting most of the time in an invalid chair on a bench, fanned by the sea breeze.

One day when he was thus occupied, or, rather, unoccupied, he fell asleep. When he awoke, a short distance before him was a young girl sitting at an easel. Her back being to him, he could not see her face, but from her costume he judged that she was a peasant. This theory, however, did not correspond with her painting pictures, the one before her, visible to the ex-soldier, showing considerable skill. After watching her for some time he suddenly called out:

"Mademoiselle!"

The girl turned, showing a face indicating refinement, and looked at Hathaway.

"The coloring you are giving the water," continued the young man in French, "is not what it must be, considering that of the sky. There is too much blue in it."

The girl turned again to her picture looked from it out to the water and the sky and admitted that monsieur's criticism was correct. Then she proceeded to change the coloring.

Hathaway chatted with her while she painted and before they parted told her about the war, his wound and that he had come to the coast to regain his strength. This was the beginning of an acquaintance.

Meanwhile Hathaway regained his strength. The girl, who gave her name as Louise, proved herself far more companionable than might have been expected from a simple country girl. She appeared to be unsophisticated, but Hathaway came to suspect that she was less so than she appeared. Now and again there came a twinkle to her eye that confirmed this suspicion. The twinkle, accompanied as it was by a smile that produced a pair of pretty dimples, was very engaging. Before the young American realized where he was drifting he was madly in love.

Then came those efforts to escape from an entanglement with one of an inferior social grade which have from time immemorial been made by lovers. But Hathaway was not successful in his effort on the coast instead of escaping from temptation by taking his self elsewhere.

One day Louise told him that a day was approaching at which a dance would be held for marriageable girls who would be present with a view to being selected as wives. She explained to him that they would wear skirts composed of white and yellow bands indicating the dowry they would receive. Each white band represented a hundred, each yellow one a thousand francs. Hathaway expressed a desire to witness this curious scene, and Louise told him when and where it would take place.

On reaching the ballroom he saw Louise dancing, her skirt being composed of two white stripes and three yellow ones, indicating that her dowry would be 3,000 francs, or $600. The moment he entered the room she looked at him, then cast her eyes down to the stripes indicating the amount of her dowry, as much as to say, "You see what I will bring you if you marry me."

Louise was far more refined looking than any girl in the room and a knowledge to be the most beautiful. She smiled past Hathaway temptingly, and he was sorely tempted. When she had finished the dance he joined her, and as the atmosphere in the room was hot and close she expressed a desire to breathe the outer air. They walked out into a moonlight night.

Byron says, "The devil's in the moon for mischief." Hathaway proved this by telling Louise that he loved her. She gave him a chance to withdraw by saying that she was quite sure he was a gentleman and would regret a marriage with a mere peasant. But he swore that he would love her if she were in the lowest rank of human beings.

The next morning he woke up in the sunlight instead of the moonlight and was of a very different opinion. Indeed, he was conscious of having taken a very unfortunate step. What would he do to get out of his proposal? Then, like a shuttle, he rushed to the other extreme and did not wish to get out of it.

During the morning a lackey called and told Hathaway that he had been sent to conduct him to a manor house in the vicinity that had been rented for the summer by an American family, who wished to entertain him. He accompanied the man and was ushered into a drawing room. A lady rose to receive him, whom he recognized at once as Louise. He stood transfixed for a moment, while she stood smiling at him. Then they were folded in an embrace.

Louise was an American heiress, devoted to art. She had come to France to study and had preferred to go about sketching as a peasant. Each yellow stripe on the dress she had worn the night before had stood for $100,000.

FALL IN! FORWARD MARCH!

Organization. Organization. Everywhere.

The workers, men, women, girls and boys, are responding to the instinctive feeling of co-operation and solidarity.

Face to face with the problem of the high cost of living on the one hand, and the enormous profits of the large industries with their "speeding-up" system on the other, the wage-workers of America are rallying splendidly under the banner of organized labor.

The black plague of ignorance, slavery and tyranny is slowly but surely fading like a mist before the rising sun of freedom.

Every worker has become inoculated with the spirit of revolt. Girls and boys in their teens, cigar makers, telephone operators, messenger boys, and even the newsies have learned the lesson of mutual aid in the struggle for existence, and slowly here, and with a glad shout there, they march to the steady tread of the advancing working class.

This has been a wonderful year in America and has brought its reward to thousands upon thousands in better wages and a shorter workday; but, above all, it has created a demand for a larger life and given birth to organization that will make these conditions permanent.

Every member of organized labor should feel enthusiastic; should feel the tremendous impetus given to the workers' cause during the present wonderful period. Like an elixir this wave of organization should give life, enthusiasm, pride and determination to every union man and woman to do everything possible to sweep on with the movement until every obstacle is overcome.

THE VOICE OF LABOR

It is during the time of a strike, lockout, boycott or flagrant abuse of power by the courts by injunction that the organized worker realizes the need of the labor press.

In a struggle between capital and labor, be the cause what it may, you will always find the daily press upon the side of the employers. This can be seen more especially during a struggle wherein hundreds or thousands of workers are involved. The employers' side of the controversy is given and elaborated upon so as to influence public opinion on their side. The appeal of the workers, if it is published at all, is twisted in such a way as to place them in the position of outlaws, or as least upon the defensive. The employer is always the innocent, much-abused party, and the workers the tyrants and aggressors.

The labor paper's function is not that of a hand-bill, to be used during a struggle and then thrown away. The labor paper is useful only in proportion to the amount of steady influence it has upon the rank and file and the public generally, keeping them informed; urging, enthusing and keeping alive the struggle for freedom.

A paper like The Labor News is a necessity to the development of the union movement and the union cause; but only in proportion to the cooperation and support given to the paper by the organized workers can the mission be performed.

On this basis alone can The Labor News perform its mission and grow to a vital force for unionism in this community. Every added subscriber, every reader becomes part of a battering ram that will brush aside every obstacle and remove every prejudice that obstructs the progress of the movement.

BEAVER VALLEY HAS BIG BUILDING BOOM

Woodlawn and Midland Appear to Be Leading in Construction Work Of All Kinds.

With mechanics of all crafts working full time and in lots of cases working over time, and the demand for all classes of labor in excess of the supply, there is no cause for anyone who wants work to remain idle at this time, and in fact, very few can afford to remain idle considering prices the public is compelled to pay for the commodities of life.

Construction work throughout the county is good, but Woodlawn and Midland seem to be trying to outdo each other along this line. Buildings in Woodlawn can almost be counted by the hundreds, from the small frame dwelling to the most up-to-date modern four-story building, in all stages, from excavation to completion.

Midland seems to be the "Rose" city of the county, or will be on next Saturday, when the Salineville, O., Floral Co., which is opening an establishment there, will on that day give away 1,000 roses to the Midland ladies who call at the Guthrie Drug store. Work will be completed on the new mill of the Crucible Steel Co. about Jan. 1st. This addition to the plant has been greatly needed in the past. This company is at present planning to erect a $12,000 emergency hospital to be located in the rear of the Midland Savings & Trust Co. building, which will be a complete and up-to-date institution of its kind. While no major operations will be performed here, it is said that minor operations will be taken care of. A day and night nurse will be there at all times, and company physicians will be in close touch. It is believed that the hospital will greatly decrease the deaths from injuries to men of this plant. Contracts have been let and work started on a huge addition to the open hearth department to the steel works, work to be finished by the end of next spring.

The Kerr Lumber Company of East Liverpool, has started active work on the new picture house which, when completed, will be a treat to the theatregoers, as the house will have a stage which will accommodate any theatrical troupe on the road.

In addition to the large number of houses under way or contracted for at this time, it is said that another 100 houses are to be built which will be modern in every respect, and are expected to be ready to occupy early next summer.

The private property owner of Midland, not to be outdone, are erecting buildings from one to three stories, which are in all stages of erection, and from all appearances, Midland will soon be a town which will attract the attention of all the surrounding population.

GREAT FEATURE TO BE AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

"Civilization," Greatest of All Cinema Spectacles, to Be Presented On November 28-29

Over a year was spent in making the great cinema spectacle "Civilization," which will be seen at the Majestic, Rochester, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 28-29, and as the advertisements tell us, over a million dollars expended in its making. Even discounting both quantities by 30%, we still have the most remarkable thing yet done in the movies. These movies are nothing, if not marvelous—in fact a movie that is not a marvel would not have the least chance of getting over.

The picture "Civilization" made its bow at the Criterion Theatre, New York, and took that city by storm, although handicapped by competition of many other forms of entertainment.

Its phenomenal success is due to the fact that the producer succeeds in touching the hearts and minds of everybody who sees his beautiful screen sermon on the love of one's neighbor.

Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

PRESIDENT GOMPERS DEFIES BIG BUSINESS

CARTER AND LEE MAKE NOTABLE ADDRESSES

Head of A. F. of L. Makes Strong Address at Meeting With Brotherhoods.

The other happenings of the big American Federation of Labor convention were overshadowed by the dramatic occurrence of Tuesday. When President Carter of the Railroad Brotherhoods and President Lee of the Trainmen addressed the assemblage. They clearly outlined the results which were to be achieved by co-operation between the Brotherhoods and the American Federation of Labor, and expressed their regret that action for closer affiliation had not sooner been taken.

When Carter and Lee had finished President Gompers delivered one of the most stirring speeches in the annals of Organized Labor. Because the Grand Old Man of Labor has been extremely careful in his words and acts in the past his remarks carried all the more weight with the delegates.

When President Gompers finished the great strain he had been under caused him to collapse and Secretary Morrison rushed to his assistance, while the delegates cheered lustily in approval of the sentiment of the address.

Gompers Trembles With Emotion. Every eye turned to Gompers as he arose to respond to the chiefs of the brotherhoods. He was laboring under intense emotion. His voice and his body trembled.

"Men of the railroad brotherhoods," he began, turning to the four presidents, "we of the American Federation of Labor expect that on the first day of January every man in the railroad brotherhoods will inaugurate the eight hour workday. Whatever may arise, whatever betide, you will have behind you the unequalled support of every man and woman in organized labor as represented by the American Federation of Labor."

"When the money power of the United States had failed, as it failed in the last election, to corrupt and mislead the electorate, when its ends were frustrated by the American citizenship at the ballot box, the men of capital showed their true colors."

"They met—quite a number of them—and gave to the public the declaration that they would antagonize every effort put forth by organized labor, that they would fight us financially, industrially, legislatively and politically—they did not need to say that they already control us judicially."

Challenge Dramatically Accepted. They said that they represented $8,000,000,000, 15,000 employers and 7,000,000 working people, and that they would use all of this to balk defeat and undo the work of the American trade union movement.

"Well, they have the right to do it. They have the right to do it regardless of the fact that we stand for the manhood, the womanhood and the childhood of the country as against their billions of wealth."

Then shouting at the top of his voice, Gompers made the declaration that carried away the audience:

"All that I, as a man, can say in answer to you men of wealth is this: 'Be careful—you are going too far! for there is a limit to human endurance. You throw down the gauntlet and we of the working classes will accept the challenge and fight. We will say to you with the greatest power that we have: 'Lay on, Macduff, and damned be he who first cries, 'Hold! enough!'"

Promises All Labor's Help. "Men of the railroad brotherhoods, in what is before you you may count upon all men of labor in this land of ours."

Gompers' declaration came into the love feast, the peace meeting, as a thunderbolt. It was all the more sensational because nothing that the railroad brotherhood presidents said seemed in anywise to have prepared the way for it. It was all the more remarkable because within the American Federation of Labor, Gompers is regarded as the conservative who does all that he can to repress "fight talk," to hold back those radicals who are always for taking extreme measures. But today not a delegate, as far as could be seen, failed to rally to Gompers' call to battle and delegates from all parts of the country expressed the opinion that the fight is on to a finish.

Last week the convention went on record as being in favor of disregarding any injunctions granted against organized labor which are contrary to the provisions of the Clayton Law. If Organized Capital expected to overawe labor by its recent convention in New York City it has been disappointed. The labor movement of the United States is united as never before and ready for a long forward march.

Sara Sapiro, the tiny delegate from the Garment workers turned the tide in favor of barring military training from the public schools by an effective appeal in which she warned the delegates to remember Ludlow, and then consider whether labor could have anything in common with militarism.

UNIONISTS VISIT PRESIDENT WILSON

Over 500 delegates and visitors to the A. F. of L. convention at Baltimore journeyed to Washington, D. C., last Saturday, on a special train, to pay their respects to the Chief executive of the nation—President Wilson. After inspecting the new A. F. of L. building, the delegation, headed by a brass band, marched to the White House. President Gompers conveyed to the president the congratulations of that body upon his re-election and their wishes for a successful administration.

President Wilson, in a short speech, said, in part:

"Nothing alarms America so much as rift, divisions, the drifting apart of elements among her people, and the thing we ought all to strive for is to close up every rift, and the only way to do it, so far as I can see, is to establish justice with a pulse in it, justice with sympathy in it. Justice can be cold and forbidding, or it can be warm and welcome, and the latter is the only kind of justice that Americans ought to desire."

The occasion was the first of its kind in the history of the American Federation of Labor.

HIGH COST OF LIVING INVESTIGATION ASKED

Baltimore, Nov. 28.—The A. F. of L. convention has declared in favor of the appointment of a federal commission to investigate the high cost of living and recommend to congress measures designed to remedy this situation and to prevent its recurrence. The resolution was submitted by Secretary Green, of the United Mine workers of America. It is declared that "the prices of all necessities of life have increased and are continuing to increase so rapidly as to constitute a menace to the standard of living of the American wage earner," and that "the enormous profits amassed by grain speculators, meat packers, mine owners, many manufacturers, and by jobbers and dealers in food and other commodities, as well as by the railroads, express companies and other public service corporations, indicate that these prices are to a large extent artificial and unjustifiable."

CONTRACTOR TO COMPLY WITH UNION AGREEMENT

W. J. Jones, steam fitter, having the contract for heating the Osborne flat building in Woodlawn, on Tuesday deposited a certified check for $50.00 with Business Agent D. S. Leighty, for the purpose of guaranteeing that the work on the job, so far as the heating is concerned, will be completed in accordance with the rules of the Plumbers and Steam Fitters of Beaver County. The question of Mr. Jones signing the wage scale will be taken up later.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR" PRESS EXPOSED

Western Editor Says Special Interest Organs Failed to Arouse Readers.

Editor O'Neill, of the Trinidad, Col., Free Press, has this to say of that portion of the public press that never fails to oppose remedial legislation urged by the workers:

"Not only was the Adamson law branded as worthless, but the child labor law was repudiated by these journals as a fake, notwithstanding the fact that both bills were fought by all the power and influence of organized greed."

"What was the purpose of this 'bought and paid for' press? The organs pledged to special interests have failed to arouse the people against the passage of these measures, and they reached the conclusion that if only the working class of the nation could be made to believe that they had been imposed upon by the passage of measures that were worthless, the plutocracy of Wall Street could be forestalled in the White House at Washington."

"The people of this country are rapidly losing their confidence in those great daily journals, which are sometimes referred to as the 'molders of public opinion.'"

"The people are realizing as never before that the vast majority of our daily publications are chained to the giant combinations that are ceaselessly giving battle to every measure of reform."

AGAINST WORKING MEN SEVEN DAYS WEEKLY

Shall an industry which already employs its men 12 hours per day in jobs which require great physical endurance be permitted to work these men seven days per week throughout the entire year?

This in substance, is the question which the State Industrial Commission of New York has been called upon to determine. The Lackawanna Steel Company—just outside of Buffalo, and employing 7,000 men—has asked for exemption from the one-day's rest-in-seven days. It desires the Commission to legislate its present unlawful practice of employing its men continuously. The final disposition of this matter is of importance not only to the men employed in the steel plant, but to every workingman throughout the country.

No objection is made to continuous operations in such departments as are of necessity run continuously because of technical reasons—we protest against the men being worked continuously.

The Company insists that the machinery in its plant be repaired at stated intervals and that its furnaces must be relined once every seven days. This, the company declares, requires the continuous services of its men. Do not these men also require rehabilitation and recreation? Isn't a man worth more than a machine?

A man who works seven days per week continuously has a very poor chance to develop a man, a citizen, a father and a husband.

All the tendencies in industrial life are toward the shorter workday on account of the increased strain being placed upon all workers. The steel plant is run on a twelve hour basis—four hours longer than the generally accepted working period—and now asks permission to crown the evil of a twelve hour day by the elimination of any day of rest.

Seven-day labor has been condemned by practically all who have given the question serious thought—legislators, social workers, workingmen, churchmen, physicians and employers. A committee appointed by the English Government to consider the health of munition workers reported that a weekly day of rest must be accepted, is a nation at peace likely to serve its ends best by following an opposite course?

It is argued that the men prefer to work continuously. It has always been possible to secure petitions protesting against a reform measure even from those who would be most directly ben-

LABOR NEWS INSTALLS NEEDED EQUIPMENT

Is Now Prepared to Furnish the Merchant With Latest Advertising Service.

The Labor News has this week installed a new E. C. Damm Perfection saw trimmer and flat casting box costing approximately $300, which equipment, together with the complete Myer-Both advertising matrix service, just secured, will permit us to fill the wants of merchants who are using the latest cut service. The December Myer-Both service provides everything in the line of cuts, including various styles of holiday borders and gift cuts that the dealer may desire. This equipment enables The Labor News to provide exactly the high grade service which the daily papers have had a monopoly of in the past.

It broadens the liberty of laboring humanity.

"There was a time when the people had some faith in the logic and arguments presented by the daily press, but that time is passing away, for men and women identified with the rank and file of American citizenship have about reached the conclusion that they must do their own thinking and analyze with care and caution every question and problem that affects the rights and freedom of that great mass, upon whose ability to solve for themselves the economic problems of their time depend the safety and stability of government."

RAILROAD PAYS FOR DELAY

Washington, Nov. 25.—The United States Supreme court has affirmed a judgment for $16,500 in favor of Nathaniel Stringer, brakeman, against the Vandalia railroad for injuries in 1905, when he jumped from a speeding locomotive in fear of a boiler explosion. The court added an additional $590 on the verdict under a federal law permitting such an allowance when cases are appealed for apparently no other purpose than to delay final settlement.

Under the Second Empire

By JOHN TURNLEE

Henry Hitchcock after being graduated from a medical college in America went to Paris, which was then the center of medical science of the world, to complete his education. That was in the days of the second empire, and Paris was a gay city. An acquaintance with one of the American branch of the Bonaparte family who had been summoned by Napoleon III. to join him on his accession to the throne of France gained Hitchcock an introduction to the court circle.

One evening during a ball at the Tuilleries the American was snatching through the apartments, crowded with the new aristocracy of France. A couple, an elderly man, highly decorated, and a young girl, approached him.

The man was coarse looking; the girl was comely and refined. They seemed ill matched, and, while the man appeared from his expression to court the girl's favor, she was plainly ill at ease in his company. In advance of Hitchcock walked a young man, who on meeting the couple bowed ceremoniously. His salute was returned by a glance from the girl that clearly bespoke love. Her companion returned the salute with a malignant scowl, since the young man's back was toward Hitchcock, his face was not visible to him.

The doctor drew his inference, which was by no means doubtful. The older man had come between the young lovers.

This was the theme of the story; the story itself was not manifest.

The next day Hitchcock's Bonaparte friend called upon him and asked him to act as attendant surgeon at a duel. The principals were of high rank, one of them being an intimate friend of the emperor. The affair was to be kept secret, and Hitchcock was summoned because he was a foreigner and there was less danger of its leaking out through him than a Frenchman. He agreed to serve, promising to be present at a spot in the Bois de Boulogne the next morning at dawn.

On reaching the ground he found the principals masked. They fought with foils, and one was severely wounded. After binding up the wound the doctor got into a carriage with his patient and drove to his apartments.

Unmasked, the wounded man revealed the face of a person of twenty-one or twenty-two years of age. Hitchcock watched over him during the morning, when, believing him to be out of danger, he left him. Returning at nightfall, he surprised two women, one of whom was kneeling by his patient's bedside.

Her figure was very youthful, while her companion, who stood apart, appeared to be an elderly person. The latter wore a mask on her face, the former had taken one off, but hearing the doctor's footsteps hastily replaced it. Then, rising, she turned, hesitated, put out her hand to the patient as if for an adieu, when, noticing a sudden pallor come over his face, she started. Hitchcock saw it, too, and sprang to the bed, pulled down the covers and discovered a fresh hemorrhage.

"A cloth!" he cried. Whether through excitement at receiving his visitor or from other cause the wound had begun to bleed afresh. The doctor stopped the flow, then turned. A young girl whose mask lay on the floor stood before him.

She was the girl he had noticed at the Tuilleries ball.

She gave no sign of having seen him before, and he controlled an impulse of recognition.

"It's all right, doctor," said the patient. "Since you have come to know me and now have seen the face of this young lady I suppose we shall have to take you into our confidence. When one possesses half a secret it is unsafe to keep from him the other half."

"Not now," interrupted the doctor; "wait till you are entirely out of danger. Your secret is safe enough as this."

The young man was Count Victor Detolle, a scion of the old French nobility, and was the person who had saluted the couple at the Tuilleries ball. He was in love with Louise, the granddaughter of Napoleon I. The man with whom the count had fought was the Duke de —, a Bonaparte title. The emperor had arranged a marriage between the duke and Louise, his grace having been of great use to him in executing the coup d'etat by which he had seized the crown. Napoleon was not adverse to marriages between the members of his family and the old nobility of France, but the duke had set his heart on Louise and would not be gained. The count and the duke had naturally become antagonistic, and the antagonism had ended in the duel. Both principals feared the emperor's resentment that would result if he should hear of the encounter, and arrangements were made to keep it a secret in case there should be no fatal result. Louise heard that her lover was dangerously wounded and with a friend visited him secretly.

The count recovered, and about the same time the war between France and Prussia broke out. The lover went to the war, and on his return, the emperor having been dethroned, there was no one to oppose his marriage with the girl he loved. The Napoleonic dynasty has never since been restored to the sovereignty of France, nor have the royalists. The pair lived long in France, and their grandsons are now officers in the French army.

Death's Toll In Mines and Factories

Every two minutes a worker is injured in the industries of Pennsylvania. Every three and one-half hours a death is entered in the gruesome record of factory, mine and shop.

These startling figures, based on the average of killing and maiming so far this year, are found in reports of the State Department of Labor and Industry. The death and accident toll is far in excess of the number ever before reported.

More than 2,000 men have been killed and the number of injured has passed the 200,000 mark since January 1. On the basis of the lowest estimates, it is shown that these industrial accidents mean a loss of about $10,000,000 in wages alone, the loss of labor for 4,000,000 days, or the productive power of 6,000 men, each working a full year.

The tremendous increase in the number of industrial accidents has alarmed state officials, labor leaders and the insurance companies.

In 1915 there were 60,276 non-fatal accidents, and 1,203 fatal. The tremendous increase this year is in part explained by some on the basis of recording minor accidents that were not previously recorded. Against this is pointed out that the ratio of fatal accidents is about double last year.

Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, blames the increase on the employers who speed up machinery to meet the heavy demand for merchandise. He points out that plants have been barely erected before the work of production was rushed, without the protection to workmen that safety devices afford.

James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, points out that the number of men killed in industries of this state since January 1, is about double the number killed last year. He blames most of the accidents on the laxity of employers and urges real co-operation between labor and capital to reduce the number of accidents.

ORGANIZATION IS THE PARAMOUNT THING

Editor Sweeney of "The Tailor," official newspaper of the Journeymen Tailors' union, places more importance on the power of organization than on employers' signatures to contracts.

"Any trade, well organized," he writes, "could enforce union conditions in any shop without a signed agreement, and if it is not well organized union conditions will not prevail."

"Some time ago we received a letter from a secretary of a local union. He stated that the union accepted the word of an employer in lieu of his signature. He said: 'We will see to it that he keeps his word.' By that he meant that the union would continue in a position to enforce union conditions in the shop. We have had no complaint from that union up to the present time and don't expect any so long as the union is well organized. Organization is of more importance than a signature to an agreement."

THE DIFFERENCE

When the Creator had made all the good things, there was still some dirty work to do, so He made his beasts and reptiles and poisonous insects, and when He had finished He had some scraps that were even too spurious for these, so he put these together, covered them with suspicion, wrapped them with jealousy, marked them with a yellow streak and called it a KNOCKER.

This product was so fearful to contemplate that He had to make something to counteract it, so He took a sunbeam and put in it the heart of a child, the brain of a man, wrapped these in civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grip of steel, and called it a BOOSTER; make him a lover of fields and flowers and manly sports, a believer in equality and justice, and ever since these two were, mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his associates.—Agricultural Extension Department.

DOING OUR PART

As a labor paper The Labor News has endeavored at all times to be a real, live, up-to-the-minute representative organ of organized labor. We have tried to inspire the organized workers of Beaver Valley and vicinity with greater hopes, ambition and determination in the cause of the labor movement.

How well we have succeeded in our mission is shown by the number of new unions in the field and the increases in membership in the older locals. Not only that, but we have inspired the organized workers with a greater respect, a better understanding of the mission of the trade union movement, and this has tended to solidify the ranks and augment the influence and power of organized labor in this community.

This influence can be increased and multiplied many times. Our power for good is limited by our circulation, and the influence of the labor union in all its activities is limited in the same way.

We have carried the burden and survived the struggle for nearly two years. We have given the best there is in us to serve our cause—the cause of labor. We have done this frankly and without reserve.

Mistakes have been made; we are only human. But on the whole we have done a vast amount of good for the cause of labor in this locality, and no one can prove to the contrary.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE

The question of the hours seems to be whether or not men shall continue to have the right to stop work when they wish to. Many times they are forced to stop when they don't wish to. What would the employer think of a law which would compel him to operate his plant whether he wished to or not. In the case of the railroads they must operate or lose certain contracts, but they enter these contracts voluntarily.

By the passing of a law the stubborn employers hope to hold back the progress of the human race.

For years the employers have said "Labor will never stick together." They feared the day that Labor would unite solidly as Macbeth feared the coming of the day the witches had warned him would mean his downfall, when old Burnham Wood marched toward his castle. But the day came when McDuff and his followers cut boughs from the trees in Burnham Wood and carrying them on their shoulders gave the appearance of the advance of the woods and proceeded to kill Macbeth and take his castle.

Just as impossible as this feat seemed to Macbeth seemed to the employers the uniting of Labor. The Employers now realize that the impossible has been accomplished, because the impossible was right.

Let it be said in terms which will permit of no misunderstanding. Any man whether he be high or low, President of the United States or last naturalized citizen, who aids in passing any law which prevents men from quitting work when they wish, is pushing humanity back into slavery and bondage.

The subject is so simple as to need but little discussion. In closing we quote one of the most eminent authorities on the rights of man of whom we have ever learned. That is Abraham Lincoln. On March 6th, 1860, in a speech at New Haven, Lincoln said: "I am glad to see that a system of labor prevails in New England under which laborers can strike when they want to. I like a system which lets a man quit when he wants to and wish it might prevail everywhere."

You want the news of your union to appear in your paper. Get busy and see that somebody is especially appointed to take care of this matter.

See that it reaches the Labor News office as early in the week as possible.

News should be in this office by Thursday noon, of each week if it is to go in that week's issue.

Amazing Appetites.

If a baby had the appetite of a young potato beetle it would eat from 50 to 100 pounds of food every twenty-four hours. If a horse ate as much as a caterpillar in proportion to its size it would consume a ton of hay every twenty-four hours. A caterpillar eats twice its weight of leaves every day, but a potato beetle devours every day at least five times its weight of foliage, every bit of which represents just so much money to the farmer. The most destructive of all insects, however, is the grasshopper, which, when in good health, consumes in a day ten times its weight of vegetation. No wonder that whole districts are devastated by its multitudinous swarms.

SATURDAY, DEC. 9—Daniel Frohman presents "The Daughter of MacGregor," a tale of Scotland and of the American lumber camps, with Valentine Grant leading.

At the Majestic

"The Dollar and the Law"

"The Dollar and the Law," the five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature starring Lillian Walker, and which is the attraction at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, Dec. 4, has the commendation of the American Bankers' Association.

It is believed by this association that the story of the film, which abounds with disguised arguments for thrift, will be the means of carrying a great message to the public.

The story was written by the internationally famous story teller, Irvin Cobb, and takes its place with his other successes as his first scenario.

"The House of Lies"

The falsity of society, its inconsistencies and its shams are ironically shown with a delicate master-touch in "The House of Lies," the Morosco-Paramount photoplay coming to the Majestic Theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

The mockery in the sham gracious consideration—for appearance's sake—of the society women is an apt illustration of a wrong condition that all have seen.

Its remedy is yet to be brought forth but its treatment could not be better handled than in the artistic rendering of Edna Goodrich's new production.

Miss Goodrich's acting of the burdensome step-daughter of the mercenary and scheming society woman is impressive in its quiet strength. The atmosphere of this society drama is on a scale of elegance never surpassed in photoplays.

"The Prince of Graustark"

"The Prince of Graustark," which comes to the Majestic on Wednesday, December 6, with the activities of Prince Robin, one of the characters in the original "Graustark." The son of an American father, the burdens of his country rested lightly upon his shoulders and when his nation needs a huge loan he comes to America and floats it without difficulty. Incidentally he wins a bride, but only after a series of romantic events which will delight those who view the film.

This offers the first opportunity for followers of Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton to see the two of them in the same feature. Each has been with the Essanay for a term of nearly five years, but they had never been cast together until the past few months.

"Sins of Her Parent"

In her first starring vehicle for William Fox, Gladys Brockwell plays a double role. The photoplay is "Sins of Her Parent," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, December 7-8, and Miss Brockwell plays the sinning mother as well as the daughter who bears the punishment for her mother's wrong.

Adrian Courtney (Miss Blackwell) falls in love with Richard Carver (Carl Von Schiller), but cannot marry him because of the objections of Richard's father. Robert Carver (William Clifford) objects to an alliance with a woman of uncertain birth. The result is that Richard starts a quest for Adrian's mother, and he finds her.

She is Valerie Marchmont (Miss Blackwell), a frequenter of Alaskan dance halls. Just after he has learned who she is, Richard is injured in a brawl, with the result that a friend of his cables to Adrian and to Robert Carver to come at once.

When old Carver arrives he meets Valerie and recognizes her as the secret wife of Arthur Heatherway, a former Virginian (George Webb). He then agrees to his son's marriage.

Adrian, meanwhile, has been carried away by a saloon owner of the city (Herschel Mayall). The rescuers follow and arrive just in time to fight off the big man. Valerie is fatally wounded in the brawl but she reserves just enough strength to kill the saloon owner.

"The Daughter of MacGregor"

The fighting blood of the MacGregors was not excluded from the veins of the daughter of the house. So when old man MacGregor decided to take unto himself a second wife, and at the same time decree that young Winston must no longer come to the cottage to see Jean, there is small wonder that the girl rebelled, especially when Miss MacGrim, her new mother, began to show signs of becoming dic-

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Man Who Stood Still"

"Unsympathetic, thinking only of his personal pleasures and comfort, he speaks of her delicate condition as his 'rotten luck.' His craven mind immediately plans further deception—she becomes the victim of a mock marriage."

In this manner "The Man Who Stood Still" loses his daughter. This touching play is the attraction booked for Monday, Dec. 4, at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, and presents Lew Fields and Doris Kenyon in excellently suited roles.

"Public Opinion"

Blanche Sweet, the beautiful Lasky star, will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, on Tuesday, Dec. 5, in the Lasky production of Margaret Turnbull's gripping story "Public Opinion." This unusual drama is on the order of David Belasco's famous play, "The Return of Peter Grimm," with the difference that one of the principal characters is that of the spirit of a woman who has been poisoned by her husband. How this spirit attempts to guide the hand of justice and direct the public gaze from a falsely accused young woman to that of the guilty person, is shown in a manner entirely different from anything heretofore seen in the photographic world.

"The Upheaval"

Lionel Barrymore in "The Upheaval" will be the Metro attraction at the Colonial, on Wednesday, Dec. 6. Mr. Barrymore is supported by Marguerite Skirvin, a young woman of much talent and rare beauty, who was seen with him in "The Quittor," a recent production. Mr. Barrymore will be welcomed here by all who were fortunate in seeing his masterly performance in "A Yellow Streak," the Metro production declared by critics to be the best feature produced last year.

Miss Skirvin only recently went into motion pictures, and she is more than repeating her success upon the speaking stage.

"Rolling Stones"

"Rolling Stones," the Famous Players adaptation of Edgar Selwyn's great stage success, marks Marguerite Courtot's first appearance under the banner of that pioneer feature play producing organization. She is co-starring with another great popular favorite, Owen Moore, who recently appeared with Hazel Dawn in an adaptation of "Under Cover." "Rolling Stones," which will be the attraction at the Colonial, Thursday, Dec. 7, was adapted by Del Henderson.

"Saint, Devil and Woman"

In "Saint, Devil and Woman," released through Pathe as one of the company's famous Gold Rooster plays, starring Florence LaBadie, the lightning scene which consumes only six feet of film in the making, cost the Thunhouer Company nearly $500.

At the appointed time, a stream of water was turned into the tank, furnishing rain. The aeroplane propeller blew the shrubbery, the camera man turned the crank. The electricity flashed the lightning and the vase was struck in a terrific storm.

Then the camera man found that it had been done wrong. Fourteen men worked two days on the scenes before Director Sullivan was satisfied with the effect. Six statues, seven urns, and five pedestals were broken in the making of it, which will be shown at the Colonial, Friday, Dec. 8.

"The Unattainable"

Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson and Richard Morris will lead a clever company of Bluebird photoplayers through five engaging acts of "The Unattainable" at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, Dec. 9. Much of the plot is enacted in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains and in producing the play, Lloyd B. Carleton has selected some of the most beautiful of the scenic glories of those majestic ranges.

tatorial even before the marriage. This is the opening situation in "The Daughter of MacGregor," which is the attraction at the Majestic on Saturday, December 9.

Furious at the unexpected turn of affairs in her life, Jean packs her personal belongings into a parcel and slips out of her window into the black night. When old man MacGregor discovers that Jean has left his home he goes into a towering rage in the midst of which he impetuously tears her birth certificate from the wall as a sign that she is forever banished from his life.

Jean comes to America and goes to her uncle's lumber camp where most interesting and exciting experiences occur.

At the Majestic

"The Dollar and the Law" "The Dollar and the Law," the five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature starring Lillian Walker, and which is the attraction at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, Dec. 4, has the commendation of the American Bankers' Association.

It is believed by this association that the story of the film, which abounds with disguised arguments for thrift, will be the means of carrying a great message to the public.

The story was written by the internationally famous story teller, Irvin Cobb, and takes its place with his other successes as his first scenario.

"The House of Lies"

The falsity of society, its inconsistencies and its shams are ironically shown with a delicate master-touch in "The House of Lies," the Morosco-Paramount photoplay coming to the Majestic Theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

The mockery in the sham gracious consideration—for appearance's sake—of the society women is an apt illustration of a wrong condition that all have seen.

Its remedy is yet to be brought forth but its treatment could not be better handled than in the artistic rendering of Edna Goodrich's new production.

Miss Goodrich's acting of the burdensome step-daughter of the mercenary and scheming society woman is impressive in its quiet strength. The atmosphere of this society drama is on a scale of elegance never surpassed in photoplays.

"The Prince of Graustark"

"The Prince of Graustark," which comes to the Majestic on Wednesday, December 6, with the activities of Prince Robin, one of the characters in the original "Graustark." The son of an American father, the burdens of his country rested lightly upon his shoulders and when his nation needs a huge loan he comes to America and floats it without difficulty. Incidentally he wins a bride, but only after a series of romantic events which will delight those who view the film.

This offers the first opportunity for followers of Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton to see the two of them in the same feature. Each has been with the Essanay for a term of nearly five years, but they had never been cast together until the past few months.

"Sins of Her Parent"

In her first starring vehicle for William Fox, Gladys Brockwell plays a double role. The photoplay is "Sins of Her Parent," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, December 7-8, and Miss Brockwell plays the sinning mother as well as the daughter who bears the punishment for her mother's wrong.

Adrian Courtney (Miss Blackwell) falls in love with Richard Carver (Carl Von Schiller), but cannot marry him because of the objections of Richard's father. Robert Carver (William Clifford) objects to an alliance with a woman of uncertain birth. The result is that Richard starts a quest for Adrian's mother, and he finds her.

She is Valerie Marchmont (Miss Blackwell), a frequenter of Alaskan dance halls. Just after he has learned who she is, Richard is injured in a brawl, with the result that a friend of his cables to Adrian and to Robert Carver to come at once.

When old Carver arrives he meets Valerie and recognizes her as the secret wife of Arthur Heatherway, a former Virginian (George Webb). He then agrees to his son's marriage.

Adrian, meanwhile, has been carried away by a saloon owner of the city (Herschel Mayall). The rescuers follow and arrive just in time to fight off the big man. Valerie is fatally wounded in the brawl but she reserves just enough strength to kill the saloon owner.

"The Daughter of MacGregor"

The fighting blood of the MacGregors was not excluded from the veins of the daughter of the house. So when old man MacGregor decided to take unto himself a second wife, and at the same time decree that young Winston must no longer come to the cottage to see Jean, there is small wonder that the girl rebelled, especially when Miss MacGrim, her new mother, began to show signs of becoming dic-

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Man Who Stood Still"

"Unsympathetic, thinking only of his personal pleasures and comfort, he speaks of her delicate condition as his 'rotten luck.' His craven mind immediately plans further deception—she becomes the victim of a mock marriage."

In this manner "The Man Who Stood Still" loses his daughter. This touching play is the attraction booked for Monday, Dec. 4, at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, and presents Lew Fields and Doris Kenyon in excellently suited roles.

"Public Opinion"

Blanche Sweet, the beautiful Lasky star, will be seen at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, on Tuesday, Dec. 5, in the Lasky production of Margaret Turnbull's gripping story "Public Opinion." This unusual drama is on the order of David Belasco's famous play, "The Return of Peter Grimm," with the difference that one of the principal characters is that of the spirit of a woman who has been poisoned by her husband. How this spirit attempts to guide the hand of justice and direct the public gaze from a falsely accused young woman to that of the guilty person, is shown in a manner entirely different from anything heretofore seen in the photographic world.

"The Upheaval"

Lionel Barrymore in "The Upheaval" will be the Metro attraction at the Colonial, on Wednesday, Dec. 6. Mr. Barrymore is supported by Marguerite Skirvin, a young woman of much talent and rare beauty, who was seen with him in "The Quitter," a recent production. Mr. Barrymore will be welcomed here by all who were fortunate in seeing his masterly performance in "A Yellow Streak," the Metro production declared by critics to be the best feature produced last year.

Miss Skirvin only recently went into motion pictures, and she is more than repeating her success upon the speaking stage.

"Rolling Stones"

"Rolling Stones," the Famous Players adaptation of Edgar Selwyn's great stage success, marks Marguerite Skirvin's first appearance under the banner of that pioneer feature play producing organization. She is co-starring with another great popular favorite, Owen Moore, who recently appeared with Hazel Dawn in an adaptation of "Under Cover." "Rolling Stones," which will be the attraction at the Colonial, Thursday, Dec. 7, was directed by Del Henderson.

"Saint, Devil and Woman"

In "Saint, Devil and Woman," released through Pathe as one of the company's famous Gold Rooster plays, starring Florence LaBadie, the lightning scene which consumes only six feet of film in the making, cost the Thunhouser Company nearly $500.

At the appointed time, a stream of water was turned into the tank, furnishing rain. The aeroplane propeller blew the shrubbery, the camera man turned the crank. The electricity flashed the lightning and the vase was struck in a terrific storm.

Then the camera man found that it had been done wrong. Fourteen men worked two days on the scenes before Director Sullivan was satisfied with the effect. Six statues, seven urns, and five pedestals were broken in the making of it, which will be shown at the Colonial, Friday, Dec. 8.

"The Unattainable"

Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson and Richard Morris will lead a clever company of Bluebird photoplays through five engaging acts of "The Unattainable" at the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, Dec. 9. Much of the plot is enacted in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains and in producing the play, Lloyd B. Carleton has selected some of the most beautiful of the scenic glories of those majestic ranges.

tatorial even before the marriage. This is the opening situation in "The Daughter of MacGregor," which is the attraction at the Majestic on Saturday, December 9.

Furious at the unexpected turn of affairs in her life, Jean packs her personal belongings into a parcel and slips out of her window into the black night. When old man MacGregor discovers that Jean has left his home he goes into a towering rage in the midst of which he impetuously tears her birth certificate from the wall as a sign that she is forever banished from his life.

Jean comes to America and goes to her uncle's lumber camp where most interesting and exciting experiences occur.

How a Family Climbed the Social Ladder

By EUNICE BLAKE

In the town of L., in the Berkshire hills, where the country residences of fashionable people shone in the summer sun, dwelt Mrs. O'Brien and her daughter, Marguerite. The family name had been O'Brien, but when its founder left his widow and daughter a couple of million dollars, made in a western gold mine, and they departed for the Atlantic coast to begin to climb a social greased pole they Frenchified it into O'Brien, and the daughter, who had been named for her native state, Missouri, became Marguerite.

The O'Briens had built a palatial residence in L., and begun their climbing, but the pole had been so well greased that they had made very little headway. One morning at a tennis tournament Marguerite suddenly caught her breath, then said in a low tone to her mother:

"Oh, my goodness gracious, if there ain't Tom Oldershaw!"

Several years before, when the O'Briens had not become O'Briens and were living on a small ranch in the west, a young Englishman, a neighbor of theirs, had fallen in love with Missouri O'Brien. Missouri was a pretty girl and knew how to captivate a man. Oldershaw was a refined fellow, and nothing saved him from a marriage with Missouri but the fact that news came that Mr. O'Brien had "struck it rich." Visions of being wealthy had induced the girl to turn down Mr. Oldershaw, and she had never seen him since the evening when she had given him his quietus.

And now here he was at L., hobnobbing with the elite of the place, remembering them as the O'Briens, they having become the O'Briens, and Missouri had become Marguerite. And how had this Britisher, who when they had known him was riding about like a common cowboy in woolen shirt and trousers in boots, suddenly become a gentleman in fashionable attire? There were two shocks, the one a fear that he would give away their change of name, the other that he had an entree to the circle from which they were excluded. Besides, it at once occurred to Marguerite that she might have made the mistake of her life in throwing him over her shoulder.

The meeting with the O'Briens, as he still supposed them to be, was as much of a shock to Missouri's former lover as it was to them. Put a man in a strange country where he sees no women of his own station and there is no folly he may not commit with one of another class. Thus Oldershaw had begun to recover from his infatuation for Missouri as soon as separated from her and when restored to his proper social sphere had shuddered at his narrow escape. As soon as he caught sight of the mother and daughter dressed in the latest fashion the situation flashed upon him. They were in L. That meant that they were ambitious to become members of the social swim. He would be called upon to help them, and since his disillusion he knew very well that they had no place there.

But Oldershaw was true blue. They had been so far his friends that he had offered his hand to Missouri. Now that the scene had changed he would not go back on them. He marched straight up to them and greeted them, though with embarrassment. Marguerite gave him one of those looks that in the wild west had enslaved him, but saw that now it was without effect. During the interview she said dexterously from Missouri to Marguerite and from Miss O'Brien to Miss O'Brien.

Oldershaw's name had also changed in the meanwhile. His father, who was an English baronet, had died, and the son was now Sir Thomas Oldershaw. However, his family, which was a very old one of extremely blue blood, was poor, and the young man's income was barely enough to enable him to maintain his social position. As soon as Marguerite O'Brien learned of the change she was smitten with regret. Had she accepted him when he was a ranchman she would now have been Lady Oldershaw and her fortune would have enabled the two to climb to the very top of the social pole.

She would have hoped that it was not too late had she not been made to understand by the reception of the look by which she wished to test her power over Oldershaw that it had vanished.

The summer was passed by the O'Briens with the saddest of words of tongue or pen. "It might have been," constantly ringing in the ears of mother and daughter. Then came rumors of Sir Thomas' engagement to one of the most modest and retiring of the L. social circle, one whose fortune was a mere bagatelle compared with the millions of the O'Briens. Meanwhile the young baronet had gradually withdrawn from association with the latter, though he always greeted them pleasantly when he met them and granted them any introductions for which they asked. When he was married he invited them to his wedding, and, although it was a bitter pill for Marguerite to swallow, a place among so many distinguished persons was not to be refused, and she bore herself like a grander marched out to be shot.

That was years ago. Sir Thomas and Lady Oldershaw live a quiet life, partly in England and partly in America. Mrs. O'Brien has passed away. Marguerite is still unmarried. She climbed so high in the social circle that she could only be content with a duke or an earl, and she has not yet made a match. She has now passed the bloom of youth.

The Struggle.
The road to eminence and power from an obscure condition ought not to be made too easy nor a thing too much of course. Labor Paper as an Advertising Medium

"Printer's Ink," the recognized authority on advertising, after a thorough investigation on this subject, says:

"A labor paper is a far better advertising medium than an ordinary newspaper in comparison with circulation. A labor paper, for example, having 2,000 subscribers, is of more value to the business man who advertises in it, than an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers."

It behooves the merchant, therefore, to give careful consideration to The Labor News and estimate what value his advertising will bring with its circulation of better than one thousand copies weekly.

A Romance In Two Parts

By MARJORIE CLOUGH

Thomas Maitland, though he had been born and brought up on a farm, considered himself far better than his neighbors. He traced his lineage back to an English nobleman who came to America in 1690 and begot a numerous progeny. Maitland owned a large farm well stocked and had money in bank. Despite his having always lived in the country, there was something in his makeup that smacked of the blue blood in his veins.

Lillian Maitland, his daughter, was even nearer to the manner born than her father. She was the apple of his eye. He sent her to boarding school and when she returned provided her with a $500 piano. He even meditated sending her to the city in the hope that she might possibly marry there and thus start a process of climbing back to the position the family had once occupied.

One harvest season Maitland hired a farm hand, Elijah Jones was his name, and he was the homeliest man that ever trod upon the Maitland farm. He was a countryman from the soles of his feet to the topmost fiery red lock of his hair. Elijah saw Lillian Maitland, and one look was sufficient to fill his heart with the wildest emotions. He was one of those young men who do not scruple to step in where angels fear to tread. There was a tradition in his family that if a man wishes to win a girl for his wife he should ask permission to do so from her parents. Elijah marched up to Farmer Maitland, who was tossing hay with a pitchfork from a wagon into the hayloft of the barn, and said:

"Mr. Maitland, have you any objection to my asking your daughter Lillian to marry me?"

"What?" cried Maitland, fancying that he had not heard aright.

Elijah repeated:

"You get off this farm as fast as your legs will carry you or I'll make it hot for you."

Elijah slowly turned and obeyed the order. Maitland threw down his pitchfork and, stalking into the house, confronted Lillian.

"What have you been doing," he asked, "to encourage that red headed Jones to come to me to ask for you?"

Lillian convinced her father that she had done nothing, and so far as he was concerned the matter was dropped from his mind. Not so with the girl. The farm hand had paid her the highest compliment man can pay woman, and the reply to that compliment was an order to leave the farm. Her sense of justice was shocked. She hoped that Elijah would put himself in her way that she might tell him of her sympathy. But Elijah, true to the tradition on which he had acted, having been refused by the parent, disdained to apply over his head to the daughter and kept out of her way.

Ten years passed. Lillian Maitland had become an old maid. A number of young men of her own class had wanted her, but her father had looked over the heads of all of them for a husband for his daughter. Lillian did not fall in love with any of them; consequently she never rebelled. Down in her heart was a memory of the red headed, freckle faced man who had asked for her and his cruel treatment by her father. That father was now dead, and she might marry whom she pleased. But at thirty women are harder to please than at twenty and are not so attractive to men. At any rate Miss Maitland showed no signs of matrimony.

One day a man well dressed and prosperous looking unlatched her gate and walked up to the house. Lillian saw him coming and met him at the door. He had red hair, but it was cropped close. He wore a tall hat, and his overcoat was silk lined. His boots were blackened, and he carried a cane in his gloved hand.

"Is Mr. Maitland at home?" he inquired.

"Mr. Maitland is dead."

There was a pause, after which the man said: "Years ago I asked a favor of Mr. Maitland. I have been wondering ever since how I had the assurance to do so."

"Won't you come in?"

When the two were seated on opposite sides of the living room the visitor continued:

"I'm sorry Mr. Maitland is dead. An attorney has recently come from England hunting for an heir to a title and a large estate. Mr. Maitland was the person he was looking for, and, Mr. Maitland being dead, the estate falls to me. A hundred years ago there were two brothers named Maitland. Mr. Maitland descended from one of them. I from the other. If Mr. Maitland had left a son he would now be the heir. As it is I am the heir."

There was a long silence after this speech. Miss Maitland looked down at the floor.

"I asked Mr. Maitland," the visitor went on, "for permission to win his daughter."

"So that is where you learned such things!" interrupted Lillian. "It was handed down to you from our English ancestors?"

"I suppose so. I have thought that perhaps if Mr. Maitland were living and knew that we came of the same stock—"

The sentence was never finished. The man arose from his seat and went over to where Lillian was sitting. She looked up at him, their eyes met, and a romance of ten years found its denouement.

KIRK & CLARK STORE READY FOR HOLIDAYS

Kirk & Clark, pioneer merchants of Beaver Falls, have transformed their store into a veritable bower of beauty for the approaching Holiday season. The entire second floor has been given over to their Christmas Bazaar, the same allowing twice the space as was the case in the old store building. The second floor is handsomely decorated in holiday festoons of various sorts which, together with an elaborate display of toys of all descriptions, makes a picture that appeals not only to the youngster, but to the grown-ups as well. Owing to the fact that the European war has made it impossible to get as many classes of toys as in the past, Mr. Kirk makes the suggestion that it would be a wise thing to make selections early and have the same laid away until close to Christmas, at which time they will be delivered, free of cost, to any point in the valley.

Middlemen Figure In High Prices of Coal

Philadelphia, Nov. 25—President Wilson's recent statement before a convention of the organized farmers in Washington that middlemen are responsible for high prices was recalled at a public hearing in this city which revealed high profits in the coal business. Officials of the G. R. Markle

Coal Company, of Jeddo, told of 40 and 50 per cent dividends on small capital. Secretary-Treasurer Hindenbach, of the company, acknowledged that on a capitalization of $1,000,000 the Markle concern was enabled to pay 32, 50, 40 and 40 per cent. He said the output was sold through the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales company, the price being fixed by John Markle, president of the company, who lives in New York and who, the witness admitted, is seldom in Pennsylvania. The coal was sold on a commission basis through the Lehigh Coal Sales Company under a 30-years' contract, which has four more years to run. Profits varying from 10 to 25 per cent was the rule of this company.

An Important Witness

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Jimmie Conolly while fishing in a small lake by the railroad, hearing a train coming, looked up as it passed and saw the engineer, instead of having his hand on the throttle and his eyes on the track ahead, dancing a hornpipe on the floor of the cab. Jimmie was only thirteen years old. He was wise enough to understand that such conduct was irregular, but it did not freeze him with horror as it would an older person. At the moment there was a tug on his line, and he pulled out a fat pickerel. For the time being he forgot the dancing engineer.

Mrs. McCoy, the wife of the engineer of the train on which this scene occurred, lived near a station at which her husband was accustomed to stop for water. The train time at the station was 12:23, and she was accustomed to take her husband's dinner to him at that hour. On the day Jimmie Conolly saw him dancing a hornpipe Mrs. McCoy started earlier than usual from her house on a hill sloping down to the track with the dinner.

Before she had made half the distance she was astonished to hear the train coming. A few seconds later, going at a speed far greater than usual, it passed her, ignoring the station completely. As it went by she saw a sight that first caused her to drop the dinner pail, then topple over in a dead faint. Her husband was struggling with the stoker, who hit him on the top of the head with some iron instrument and dropped him on the cab floor.

Jack Rogers, the stoker, stopped the train at the next station, five miles distant from the water tank. McCoy was found in the cab dying with a fractured skull. Rogers reported that McCoy, in whom he had recently noticed signs of insanity, had suddenly gone crazy and had dashed onward at a terrific gait. Rogers, whose back was toward the engineer, turning suddenly, saw him dancing on the cab floor while the train was tearing along under no guiding hand. Rogers attempted to get by McCoy, who tackled him and, being the stronger man, was about to throw him from the cab. The fireman's life as well as the lives of hundreds of passengers was at stake. Rogers had a wrench in his hand and struck his adversary on the head with it, intending to stun him. Instead he fractured his skull, killing him.

Mrs. McCoy was sent for and as soon as she saw Rogers hysterically accused him of murdering her husband. The fireman was put under arrest and in time indicted for the murder of the engineer. There was no corroboration of his story further than certain passengers bore witness that they thought the train was traveling rather fast. But this counted for very little. Mrs. McCoy, who was very bitter against Rogers, found several sympathetic friends who were willing to testify that Rogers had been at enmity with her husband and had been heard to make threats. There was some foundation for this, for Rogers wished to be made an engineer, and McCoy for some reason unknown except to himself declined to help him secure the coveted promotion.

Rogers was tried, and the evidence was strong against him. Only one person was found to testify that he had noticed strange actions on the part of McCoy, while a dozen swore that he was as sane as any man. The story told the jury by the bereaved wife through tears had a telling effect. Rogers was an orphan and had no one to influence the jury in his behalf by weeping for him. The trial was nearing an end, and the consensus of opinion was that he would be convicted, though there was sympathy for him by some of the passengers who had been on the train when the tragedy occurred and who considered that in any event they had had a narrow escape.

The trial did not take place near where the murder had been committed, and Jimmie Conolly heard nothing about it. One evening his father came in to supper and remarked:

"Rogers has been convicted."
"Who's Rogers?" asked Jimmie.
"The stoker who killed the engineer last August."

"What engineer?"
Mr. Conolly told his son the story of the murder. It brought back the remembrance of the sight he had seen while fishing on the lake.

"I seen an engineer last summer," he said, "dancin' in his cab while the engine was runnin' wild."

That was all Jimmie had seen, but it impressed his father as of possible importance in the McCoy case. The next morning he called up by phone Rogers' legal defender, who interviewed Jimmie, and by comparing dates and clock time discovered that Jimmie had seen McCoy on the day of the murder.

Rogers had not been sentenced, and the case was reopened. Jimmie was called to the stand, and after counsel for the defense had established the essential facts the boy told how he had seen the engineer dancing on the cab floor and the train running wild. Since the train passed the lake on which the boy fished several minutes before it reached the tank station, Jimmie's testimony corroborated that of the stoker.

Rogers was acquitted, and his first act after being freed was to take the witness who had saved him in his arms and hug him.

Rogers was promoted to be engineer and received a handsome prize made up by the passengers whose lives he had saved. Jimmie in time became his fireman and is now a division superintendent on the road.

"CIVILIZATION" IS WONDERFUL FILM

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, a good-sized audience witnessed the great production of "Civilization" at the Majestic theatre, Rochester, on Tuesday evening, those present being highly impressed by the many wonderful scenes shown throughout the ten reels, and by the lesson which the picture teaches. It has been said that the purpose of the picture was to aid in the efforts being made to end the present continental war, as well as precluding wars in the future. That the picture teaches a lesson which should impress itself upon the minds of every person interested in the cause of peace, goes without saying. The photography is something to marvel at, while the scenes, particularly those in which battle engagements are shown, are wonderful beyond description.

Nirella's full orchestra interpreted the music incidental to the picture in a most satisfactory manner, while the effects, which were under the supervision of Edward Kenny, stage manager, were worked with consummate skill. Miss Ella Southwell, soloist, delighted the audience with her beautiful rendition of songs especially adapted to the scenes.

This great play will be seen again on Wednesday afternoon and evening, a large attendance being assured.

Now that December is advancing, the hustle and bustle of Christmas rush is on. Large stocks of holiday goods which we placed orders for many months ago are also beginning to arrive. ## At the Majestic

"The Big Sister"

There is a powerful story in "The Big Sister," starring the gifted stage and screen favorite, Mae Murray, that comes to the Majestic on Monday, Dec. 11, and which relates the struggle between two vastly different types of men for the same girl. This girl, Betty Norton, is the daughter of a worthless individual, who leaves her penniless and in sole charge of her little brother Jimmy. "Nifty" Menendez, an underworld power, attempts to get control of the girl through intimidation, and in her flight from this man she meets Rodney Channing, a young millionaire. These are the two men to whom this girl appeals. The conflict of the various differing elements of society and the tremendous heart appeal which is awakened by the object of their strife as she struggles to protect her little brother from harm are seen to advantage.

"Ashes of Embers"

The story of "Ashes of Embers" the attraction at the Majestic on Tuesday, Dec. 12, is, briefly, that of a very pitiless selfish girl, who is relentless in her demands for money despite the fact that her own sister, who is the family drudge, scarcely has enough to keep body and soul together. Laura finally steals money from the cash drawer over which her sister Agnes presides in the department store in order to get a dress with which to dazzle a millionaire. Agnes goes to jail, but Laura wins the millionaire, who soon wakes up to the fact that he is no more than a purse for his wife who has transferred her affections to a young architect. The rest of the story deals with the return of Agnes and the complexities which involve Laura.

"The Heart of the Hills"

"The Heart of the Hills," the new Edison feature film, is said to be a virile fascinating tale, abounding in situations of tense dramatic strength.

The story deals with an English girl who was stolen in infancy by Hindu missionaries and consecrated to the service of an Oriental god. Years later, she was commissioned to recover the missing sacred ruby, and Fate decreed that the search should lead her to her own father's house in the most aristocratic section of modern London. Mabel Trunnelle and Conway Tearle are featured. "The Heart of the Hills" will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, Dec. 13.

"The Mediator"

At last a Western drama that is different. That is what Wm. Fox presents to the public under the title of "The Mediator," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 14 and 15. George Walsh has the title role, a character who loves peace so much that he continually fights for it.

Walsh takes the part of Lish Henley, who starts his adventures by shooting and wounding Bill Higgins (Lee Willard), the village bully. Then he sends flowers to Bill in the hospital, and the sick man, grateful, tells Lish that he expects to start a new life when he is well. He is going to rejoin his wife, Martha, in Peaceful Hill, Cal. Lish likes the name of the place so he sells his mine in Arizona and leaves. He stops off at Kewick, and finds the town in turmoil as the result of a mining strike. In his effort to keep peace, Lish beats the leader of the strike. His deed has ended the labor trouble.

Many adventures follow. In the end Lish is victorious, and all the enemies of peace have been put to rout. There is only one left and that is Maggie. Lish captures her, by an attack on her heart.

"The Quest of Life"

Maurice and Florence Walton add another distinctive triumph to their great series of artistic accomplishments in their photoplay debut in "The Quest of Life." It was Maurice who introduced the Argentine Tango to Europe and America after he had studied it in South America. The celebrated Apache Dance, which is reproduced in "The Quest of Life," was also created by Maurice after he had seen its crude performance in the Apache Dance of Paris. "The Quest of Life," however, is more than merely a dancing picture. It contains big dramatic moments and tells a forceful story of the struggles of an ambitious girl of lowly parentage, whose life's path crosses that of the celebrated dancer, Maurice Bretton, from which is developed a little tragedy, a great deal of romance, and in the end, happiness.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Heart of a Hero"

"Hale is distinctively revolutionary in his sentiments and urges his pupils on to enthusiasm for the Colonies and love of Washington."

Were it not for just such noble patriots as Nathan Hale, the present-day United States would not be in existence. You will be given an opportunity to see just how great were the hardships our forefathers had to undergo in order that today we might be a free nation.

Robert Warwick as Nathan Hale, and Gail Kane as his sweetheart, are two characters you will long remember. They will be at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, December 11, in "The Heart of a Hero."

"The Honorable Friend"

Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor, will be seen at the Colonial on Tuesday, Dec. 12, in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Honorable Friend," a thrilling story written especially for him by Elizabeth McGaffey.

Recently the wealthy Japanese of Los Angeles presented Hayakawa with a theatre, where he appears from time to time at the head of his own Japanese company in modern drama.

In "The Honorable Friend," Hayakawa is seen as a young Japanese gardener working for a wealthy and unscrupulous Japanese curio dealer. The old man is desirous of a bride and sends Hayakawa's picture, as his own, to Japan, and Hayakawa is sent to the dock to marry the Japanese girl, having been told that he is to be his wife. When he brings her before the wealthy old curio dealer, his ideals are shattered as he is informed that she is to be taken away from him. How affairs are finally adjusted, and the dishonorable curio dealer receives his just deserts, and the two lovers are reunited, is presented in an unusual and most dramatic manner.

"The Light of Happiness"

Viola Dana will be seen on the screen at the Colonial, on Wednesday, in "The Light of Happiness," a five-part feature produced by the Columbia Pictures Corporation for the Metro program. Most of the scenes are laid in a small town where the action centers around a little girl left an orphan by the derelict father, and a young minister, who comes to her aid against the wishes and in the face of censure from his congregation.

"The Victory of Conscience"

Lou Tellegen, the famous romantic actor, will be seen at the Colonial on Thursday, Dec. 14, in the Lasky production "The Victory of Conscience."

The story has to do with the spiritual and mental awakening of Louis, Count de Tavaness. The Count and his handsome, harum scarum companion, Prince Dimitri Karitzin, steal a little dancing girl from a French tavern. The girl falls in love with Louis, but he casts her aside, and is nearly killed in a fight with her former sweetheart. Upon recovering, the former sinner enters the priesthood.

How he again meets the dancer, wins her admiration and induces her to enter a monastery, is brought about in a way that has never been seen before by the photographic audiences.

"The Pillory"

A graphic story of intolerance will be shown at the Colonial Theatre, on Friday, Dec. 15, when the Pathe Gold Rooster play under the title of "The Pillory" is shown.

In the picture a mother is fighting for fair play at the hands of society for her child. It is a powerful story of old New England. "The Pillory" is said to be an equally powerful photoplay of today. The star is Florence LaBadie, ably supported by a strong playing cast.

"Saving the Family Name"

The Smalleys, who have contributed so much to the success of Bluebird Photoplays, will present another of their productions at the Colonial Theatre on Saturday, Dec. 16, under the title of "Saving the Family Name." Mary Mac Laren will be the star and Phillips Smalley will be her leading man in an interesting story of theatrical life, in which the stage, as a topic, is pictorially discussed from an entirely new angle. It is easy to recall the Smalleys' Bluebird attractions and the announcement that they produced "Saving the Family Name" is advanced assurance of a worthy and purposeful screen entertainment.

THE LABOR PAPER AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

"Printer's Ink" is regarded by the press generally as one of the best authorities on the subject of newspaper advertising. In a recent issue it said that a labor paper having two thousand subscribers, is of more real value to the business man who advertises than is an ordinary paper with 12,000 subscribers.

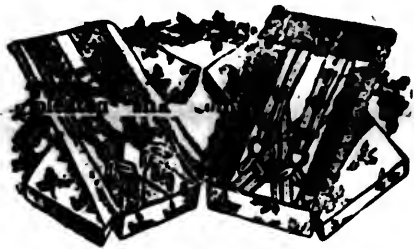

As to the reason of this it states that the subscribers of a labor paper read every line, both of news and of advertising, more closely than do those of any other form of publication, for it is here that they look for the names of merchants who conduct themselves fairly towards labor, and it is to the advertising columns of the paper which her husband subscribes for, that the housewife turns when she wishes to make a purchase.

The labor press supports the program as expressed in the platform of the American Federation of Labor. It numbers now nearly three hundred weekly newspapers. We do not include the Socialist papers, for these are political. In nearly all the large cities the labor press have the generous support of the merchants and manufacturing advertisers generally, for they know that an advertisement in their columns carries with it the endorsement of labor to all who read it.

Labor papers, therefore, should be heartily supported everywhere, with subscriptions by working men, and with advertising by merchants who wish to reach them.

UNIONISM PRAISED; OFFICIALS THANKED

Tribute Paid A. F. of L. Officers and Members at the Baltimore Convention.

In the closing days of the A. F. of L. convention the following tribute to the trade union movement, to the officers and to the individual members of the American Federation of Labor was submitted by the committee on report of executive council and unanimously adopted:

"Review and reflecting upon the history of the American trade union movement, its struggle, achievements and accomplishments as related in the report of the executive council, no impartial observer or unbiased student can doubt for one moment the efficacy of our movement and the high and lofty character of its aims and purposes, hopes and aspirations.

"The history of the organized labor struggle reveals that in its inception the trade union movement was looked upon as too insignificant for attention and omitted entirely from serious consideration. As the movement gained in strength, power and influence, when the workers' movement of our country compelled public recognition, it was treated with contempt and uncompromising hostility, regarded as a social enemy and an obstacle to our economic and industrial progress. All this has changed. Trade unions are today acknowledged essential to the interests of the men and women of labor and justified as an invaluable institution to human progress and for the advancement of a higher and a greater civilization.

"The efficacy of trade unionism is conclusively proven by the rapidity with which its principles are spreading among the workers and the eagerness with which its good will and support is sought by those inspired by the high motives of improving the lot of mankind and advancing the doctrine of true brotherhood. New adherents and additional supporters are being attracted to the trade union movement each succeeding day and with each recurring year. Today the American Federation of Labor embraces within its membership approximately two and a quarter million members.

"What greater inspiration could be asked for? What greater source of hope and encouragement can we find for continued and persistent efforts in the cause of labor? The prospects of the future of the workers of America are higher than ever. Few realize that no previous time was more eventful in the life of our economic and industrial society than the age in which we are living. Great economic and social forces are sweeping over our country and of which we are but half-conscious. Such is the era in which we are living. Such is the influence and power of our great American labor movement.

"Underlying all the activities is evidenced, silently, yet with certainty, the ever thoughtful observer, the careful and clear thinking student and the sympathetic but courageous heart and mind of our president, Samuel Gompers. We unhesitatingly commend him for his unquestioned devotion to our cause and for his unqualified and unreserved contribution of his great ability to our movement.

"We, too, commend Secretary Morrison for his unquestioned loyalty and for unlimited devotion to our cause. Painsstaking in the particular work delegated to his care, accurate in the manifold duties of his office, and imbued with a spirit of loyalty, unblemished and untarnished, we congratulate him upon the efficient response to our cause and movement. And so we also heartily commend for your thanks, approval and appreciation the work of your treasurer and that of your vice presidents, constituting the executive council, in all matters having been considered and acted upon by them during the past year and as reported to this convention. Indeed, the organized workers themselves are deserving of congratulations for the prudence and foresight so splendidly portrayed by their fealty and loyalty to the human and civilizing principles of our cause and of our movement."

MARY PICKFORD IN "LESS THAN THE DUST"

Manager Goldberg announces with pleasure the booking on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 19 and 20, of the first presentation in the Beaver valley of Mary Pickford in her new photoplay, "Less Than the Dust." No star of screenland is so admired and so affectionately regarded as Miss Pickford whose past creations are all remembered for their real art and charm. Her screen appearance at the Majestic during this engagement will have an additional interest in that it will mark her first presentation here of a production made under her own guidance and directed by her own company, the Mary Pickford Film Corporation. Its scenes are laid in India and England, Miss Pickford playing the part of a castaway, a girl of English birth who, having been adopted by a Hindu sword-maker, is reared among the natives of the lower caste. Its story is full of realism and dramatic strength, with an appealing love story in which the girl and a young English army officer are the central figures.

"MOLDING" OF PUBLIC OPINION EXPLODED

President Carter of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen exposed the fiction that newspapers mold public opinion because of patriotic motives.

In an address before the annual meeting of the academy of political science, the brotherhood executive said:

"In their efforts to convince the American people that railroad employees should not secure an eight-hour day, we have reasons to believe that many millions of dollars were expended in an attempt to suborn the public press of the nation. We have evidence that in this publicity campaign these railroad financial directors employed the advertising pages of more than 3,000 daily and more than 14,000 weekly papers. Before these millions were poured into the advertising profits of these newspapers, many were friendly to our cause and a majority were at least neutral. Almost immediately the editorial opinions of these same newspapers voiced similar sentiments to those expressed in their advertising pages."

CHARTER NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the Court of Common Pleas of Beaver County, on Tuesday, January 2, 1917, at 10 a. m., by James Heaton, J. D. McKenna, C. A. Robinson, under the provisions of the Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, entitled "An Act to provide for the Incorporation and Regulation of Certain Corporations," approved the 29th day of April, A. D. 1874, and the supplements thereto, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called the "Morado Glee Club."

The character and object of said corporation is for the purpose of maintaining an organization for encouragement of athletic sports, and for beneficial or protective purposes for its members, from funds collected therein; said funds to be used in assisting the members in time of sickness or disability, and aiding their families in case of death, and for these purposes to have, possess and enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of said Act of Assembly and the supplements thereto.

JOSEPH A. TRITSCHLER, Solicitor.

Said charter is now on file in the office of the Prothonotary at No. 407 December Term, 1916.
Nov. 29-Dec. 7-14-21.

RAILROAD MEN NOW STAND ON SIDELINE

Attorneys representing the government are combatting the railroads' attempt to set aside the Adamson eight-hour law.

"We are not going to employ attorneys," said Grand Chief Stone, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in his address to the American Federation of Labor convention at Baltimore.

"We are going to be an interested spectator on the side lines. We are going to see the railroad corporations of this country fight the government they live under."

"I think the railroads had the idea that we were going to employ attorneys and use up all the funds we had in these organizations to fight injunction suits, because in the neighborhood of 3,000 of them will be filed, which would mean employing about 3,000 attorneys."

"Had the railroads wanted to be fair in testing the constitutionality of the law they should have selected some one suit and made a test case of it."

WILL INVESTIGATE SERIOUS CHARGES

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce Committee Writes Secretary Steiner, of Monaca.

Secretary E. B. Steiner, of the Monaca Borough Council, is in receipt of the following communication from the investigating committee of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, appointed to investigate the charges which are in circulation in Pittsburgh to the effect that fruit and produce are allowed to decay and are dumped by interested parties for the purpose of holding up prices. Beaver valley farmers or others who have knowledge which might prove valuable to the committee in question are requested to advise the Labor News or to inform the investigating committee. The communication follows:

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27, 1916.
E. B. Steiner, Monaca, Pa.
Dear Mr. Secretary:—This organization is, by special request, investigating charges which have been circulated in Pittsburgh to the effect that fruit and produce are allowed to decay and are dumped by interested parties for the purpose of holding up prices.

Attached hereto is a circular which is being issued to every one deemed likely to have any information to impart. If you can bring this to the notice of any growers or shippers of fruit or produce in your vicinity and obtain its publication in your local papers, you will render a service which will be much appreciated and which we shall take pleasure in reciprocating at any time it may be in our power to do so.

Investigating Committee.
F. MARSHALL,

The following is a copy of the circular enclosed with the letter to Mr. Steiner:

Statements have been made that food supplies are allowed to decay and are dumped by merchants in Pittsburgh with the object of holding up prices to consumers. The Chamber of Commerce has been requested to make a full and sweeping investigation.

Owing to the widespread interest in the subject, the Chamber has agreed to make such investigation and hereby invites shippers of farm products, in all producing territories, and consumers and dealers in Pittsburgh to forward to the above address any information which would be of assistance in either refuting or establishing the charges. When so desired, communications will be regarded as strictly confidential, but no anonymous statements will receive attention.

LABOR ORGANIZATION OBJECTS TO CANDIDATE

Appoints Committee to Help Effect Defeat of Baldwin for Speaker of House.

VOTED AGAINST VITAL LABOR LEGISLATION

That at least one union organization in the valley proposes to look out for labor's interests in the state legislature, was evidenced Monday evening at the regular meeting of the District Council, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, held in the Kramer block, New Brighton. In response to the following letter received by the Council, relative to the fact that Richard J. Baldwin, candidate for Speaker of the House, is backed by the Manufacturers' Association and is known to have voted against bills of vital importance to labor, a committee, consisting of J. A. Kronk, C. J. Anderson and S. S. Bower was appointed to take the matter up with the Representatives from this legislative district for the purpose of urging them to vote against the election of Mr. Baldwin. The letter follows:

Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor
Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 11, 1916.
To Organized Labor of Pennsylvania,
Greeting:

Dear Bro. Secretary:—The Legislature will go into session here, on January 2, 1917.

We have many bills prepared to be introduced, which we wish to have passed, if possible. Information has reached us that Mr. Richard J. Baldwin, of Delaware County, is a candidate for Speaker of the House and, with the backing of the Manufacturers' Association, may be elected. If he is chosen, we are pretty well assured that there will be no labor legislation this session and that an effort will be made to pass drastic measures to which organized labor is strongly opposed.

To give you an idea of Mr. Baldwin as a legislator, we need only quote his position on a few important bills. He was one of the THREE who voted against the final passage of the Compensation Act. Last session, he introduced and voted for the bill to increase the State Constabulary. He voted against the Child Labor Bill and for a bill to increase the hours of labor for women. He voted for the Repeal of the Full Crew bill.

Without giving you any more instances of Mr. Baldwin's hostility to labor, you may rely on it that to elect this gentleman Speaker means that the Manufacturers' Association and employers, generally, will have extra authority in the House of Representatives.

We ask you, then, in order to prevent the election of this man, to have the Legislative Committee of your union, immediately, visit the Representatives of your district and urge them to use their influence and vote against the election of Mr. Baldwin for Speaker.

With good wishes, we are,
Very fraternally yours,
JAMES H. MAURER, Pres.
C. F. QUINN, Sec.-Treas.

A complaint was received by the Council from Sheet Metal Workers Local No. 357, protesting against the practice of several members of the Council in infringing on the work of the metal workers. A number of the carpenters are in the habit of laying metal shingles and the sheet metal men object most strenuously. A motion that all members of the Council be instructed to stop infringing on the rights of the metal workers was passed.

The following communication was received by the Council from Cement Mill Workers' Union No. 15,121, of LaSalle, Ill.:

LaSalle, Ill., Dec. 8, 1916.

To All Organized Labor:
This communication is sent to inform all Trade Unionists and friends of the struggle that has been in progress in La Salle, Illinois, for the past six months in the Cement Making industry, and to tell you why:

For the past 12 years the cement mill workers have been forced to work from 13 to 18 hours night shifts, and from 10 to 12 hours day shifts, for the low wage of 16c to 19c per hour, and it was impossible for the workers to meet living expenses, so on Sunday, May 31st last, the Cement Mill Workers

AN APPRECIATION.

The manager of the Kay Tailoring Co., of Beaver Falls, takes this opportunity of wishing his patrons a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, and to assure the Union men of the valley, who have been patrons of the company, that their patronage is much appreciated. He also desires to express the hope that the pleasant relations with his patrons will continue through 1917 and the years to come, the same as in the past.

CHARLES D. FISCHER,

ers of La Salle, Illinois, feeling that something had to be done to better their condition, met and organized and applied to the American Federation of Labor for a charter. The German American Cement Co., hearing of the action of their employees, began to circulate among the workers to try and prevail upon them to abandon the idea of becoming a part of the labor movement, and suggested that the men organize a Company Union, taking in all employees, from the bosses down. This the men refused. Then the company began to discharge the active ones, who dared to insist upon their rights to become a part of the labor movement.

And this action on the part of the Cement Mill Company only made the men more determined to organize, which they did, and all were discharged and the mill closed down. After a short time the Cement Company began to hire strike-breakers from the larger cities to try and operate their mill, but have not been successful in getting out much cement. Every effort has been put forth to bring about a settlement but they would not meet the representatives of the labor movement, nor would they recognize the union, but on the contrary, have done everything possible to disrupt the union and break the strike.

With the aid of some of the merchants, the Mill Company prevailed upon the Governor and the State Militia was sent to La Salle, on July 14th, but organized labor protested to the Governor, and in a short time he took the militia away from here. The next move the Company made was that the assistant superintendent with a gun man he had hired from Chicago, left the mill about 10 p. m. and returned at mid-night in an automobile and shot into the pickets, killing a young man instantly, running over him with their automobile. Both assistant superintendent and gunman are now out on bail, as both have been indicted by the grand jury for manslaughter.

Not content with the above conditions they further sought to brow-beat the strikers in every way possible and compel us to give up our struggle and return to work at their terms.

This course had no effect upon us, so as a last resort they appealed to the Court for an INJUNCTION which was granted to them, and is one of the most sweeping writs that has been granted by any court in the United States.

GEO. A. HOWE BUYS CLEANING BUSINESS

Popular Member of O. R. T. Purchases Rochester Branch of Iron City Dry Cleaning Co.

George A. Howe, of Rochester, on Tuesday, purchased the Iron City Dry Cleaning branch at 105 Brighton avenue, and is now in full possession. Mr. Howe, who has long been a resident of Rochester, and who worked for the Pennsylvania Railway Company for over 12 years, being an officer in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, has a wide acquaintance in the valley, and is universally popular among his scores of friends. The good wishes of friends, both inside and without the ranks of organized labor will follow Mr. Howe in his new venture, and that he will make a notable success goes without saying.

Arrangements were made to meet Mr. Post upon receipt of word from him.

MUSICIANS' LOCAL IN REGULAR SESSION

Elects Officers to Serve for Ensuing Year—Change in Price Scale is Expected to Be Made.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of Local No. 82, A. F. of M., was held on Monday evening at Boyle hall, New Brighton, and the following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year:

President, A. M. Latahaw; vice president, Charles R. Shanor; secretary-treasurer, Thomas H. Barber; treasurer, John G. Cable; delegates to the Central Labor Union, R. F. Kross, L. A. McDanel, H. B. Thum; executive committee, Richard Elstner, W. H. E. Spratley, R. F. Kross, L. A. McDanel, H. B. Thum.

A committee of seven is working on a revision of the by-laws and will offer a report at the next meeting. It is anticipated that some changes will be made in the price scale, and it is probable that the yearly dues of members will be raised.

WIRE MEN ADVANCE

New York, Dec. 13—Electrical Workers' Union No. 534 has raised wages 50 cents a day for all members.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 13—An eight-hour day, improved working conditions and wage increases from $4 to $5 a day have been secured by Electrical Workers' Union No. 570.

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 13—A strike that had members of Electrical Workers' Union No. 67 has been settled. Wages are recognized and wages increased 2 1/2 cents an hour until May 1, when another 2 1/2 cents increase will be paid.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 13—The international Brotherhood of Electrical Workers celebrated its silver anniversary last month—November 28. The official journal of this organization says:

"The electrical workers are not the only ones who have benefited by our organization, as we have, by our efforts, obtained added protection to the life, limb and property of the general public."

"No one who understands will question but that the electrical workers have reduced to the minimum the loss by fire through defective electrical installation."

TRAINMEN TO AID ADAMSON LAW PROBERS

New York, Dec. 13—The four railroad brotherhood executives have agreed to assist in every way possible the commission appointed by President Wilson to observe the operation of the Adamson law. The railroad managers have made a similar agreement. The commission is preparing to conduct its investigation regardless of the fact that the law is now before the United States Supreme court. The commission, it is stated, "will give the brotherhoods every opportunity to check up the railroad reports."

Former Grand Chief Clark of the Order of Railway Conductors, now a member of the interstate commerce commission, is a member of the investigating commission. Its chairman is Major General Goethals, ex-governor of the Panama canal zone.

CONGRESS TO ADOPT WILSON LABOR VIEWS

Washington, Dec. 12—Despite vigorous opposition to organized labor, administration leaders in congress declare that President Wilson's plan for suspended railroad strikes and lock-outs pending investigation of their causes would be included in the railroad legislative bill, and would be enacted into law.

Senator Newlands of Nevada, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, asserted that while labor opponents of the plan would be heard and their objections noted, he was confident the plan outlined by the president would succeed in congress.

WHY DO UNIONS NEED TO PENALIZE MEMBERS?

The management of The Labor News extends to the advertisers in this issue its sincere thanks and appreciation for their support in helping to put out this first special Christmas number.

TO OUR READERS

You can always show your cooperation by giving your Christmas patronage to those merchants who have advertised in The Labor News. Tell the merchants why you buy from them—that's results.

FALLS MERCHANTS SET GOOD EXAMPLE

Close Their Stores Evenings of This Week With Exception of Monday and Saturday.

The action taken by a majority of the Beaver Falls merchants in closing their stores evenings the present week, with the exception of Monday and Saturday, in order that their employees may not be compelled to work evenings two weeks preceding Christmas, will surely meet with the approval of organized labor throughout the valley. The fact that the last week before Christmas is the busiest shopping time of the year, and that employees work long hours at top speed, led the merchants in question to do away with keeping open the present week. It is a move in the right direction, and the merchants who have kept their stores closed this week, with the exception of Monday and Saturday evenings, are entitled to the consideration of every fair minded person in the valley.

MARY PICKFORD IN WONDERFUL FILM

Movie's Most Popular Star Coming to the Majestic Theatre in Her Own Production

The old saying—"The Best is None Too Good," certainly applies to the policy inaugurated by Manager Goldberg of the Majestic Theatre, Rochester. That he believes in the saying is evidenced by the fact that he will show, on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 19-20, the first Mary Pickford picture produced by this charming star and called "Less Than the Dust."

The scenes are laid in India and England and all are of great beauty, while several will have startling effects without stepping beyond the possibilities of the plot Mary Pickford will be seen as a little orphan girl who deserted in India by her father, an English officer who has become a social derelict, is adopted as a sword maker and reared as a native of the lower caste—less than the dust. During an uprising of the natives and an attack upon the troops she saves the life of a dashing young British officer and here begins a tender love story that runs through all of the scenes like a golden thread.

WANTED, 1,000 MEN

To know that C. W. Rardin, agent for Richman Bros.' famous $10.00 Suits and Overcoats, will be at the Iron City Dry Cleaning store, 105 Brighton avenue, Rochester, on Saturday, Dec. 16th, both afternoon and evening, and that all orders taken on this date will be delivered before Christmas.—Adv.

What Are Unions Doing to Give Their Members Training in Craft Problems?

SELFISH INDIVIDUALISM IS GREAT DRAWBACK

Why are our unions compelled to penalize their members?

Brother unionists, why not give this matter your attention for a few minutes. We wonder what the Unions would say if the bosses would penalize members for spoiling a piece of work that they were employed to do? If the union knew that the workman did it intentionally, we would say he deserved the penalty. But no good union man would be guilty of intentionally destroying any piece of work that he was set to do; therefore, the workman doing so could not be efficient in his trade.

Why is it that some of our workmen are not efficient? What are the unions doing to give their members the proper training in the problems of their craft? Are they devoting any part of their meeting to instruction of members along trade lines that they are inexperienced in? or are they spending their time in trying to interest the organizations in some selfish matter that would be of benefit only to a few individual members.

Would it not be more honest to all to devote at least one hour of each meeting to instructing the less experienced member along the lines of his occupation and organization.

Some of our so-called union men will spend hours on the street corner or some public place and enlarge upon the shortcomings of some brother member; while he is probably in need of advice and would gladly receive it, and be greatly benefited by the brotherly spirit.

What our organizations need above all else is to drop the selfish individualism and cooperate in the teaching of craft problems, and in ways and means to make our meetings a pleasure to attend; give more publicity to our collective workings and less publicity to our individual likes and dislikes. Use our best judgment in the selection of our officers and committees, whom we desire to conduct our meetings and carry out our intent. Great care should be used in this particular, and personal feelings should not be allowed to influence any member in the selection of a representative.

There are many among us who have the idea that after they have joined the union and paid their dues, they have fulfilled their mission. This is one of the greatest mistakes that a man can make. He certainly should be willing to devote a couple of hours' time each week or two to assist in the betterment of his organization, and give the other members the benefit of his ideas.

One of the strictest rules is to demand that all men who work for employers and with our members at large is, that they shall be union men, carrying union cards, and for disobedience in this our members and employers are penalized. In direct contract with this, the workers draw their pay, earned under union conditions, and immediately spend same in the purchase of non-union made goods, thereby encouraging non-union labor.

Don't you think it is about time we should stop and think a few moments, and try to organize ourselves, thereby making our organizations what they are intended to be—a larger and better organization. An organization that will command the respect of every worker who comes in contact with it. An organization that it will be a pleasure for our members to attend and one that they will take an interest in; one that we can point to with pride and say that we are active members of it. Let us give our cooperative work more publicity and suppress our personal feelings against this or that brother member whom we dislike, because he does not see or do the things that please you. Examine yourself carefully and see if you are in position to criticize your fellow worker. Don't you think that it would pay to give this matter a fair trial?

A. F. of Labor Fulfilling Aims

(By John O'Neill)

The annual convention of the American Federation of Labor is the great national congress in which the representatives of the workers meet to deal with every problem that affects the weal and woe of laboring humanity. It is looked upon as the most democratic body in America and recognized as a congress whose deliberations are based upon the earnest desire to lift humanity closer to the sunlight of civilization, that will dispel the darkness of the mailed fist upon the throne of authority.

There are many, even among the ranks of the working class, who have severely criticised and censured the so-called snail-like pace of the American Federation of Labor and impetuously demanded that its officials adopt a policy that would quicken the onward march of the labor movement towards the ultimate goal—labor's emancipation.

It is true that the American Federation of Labor, like all other large bodies, has moved slowly, but its slow but sure tread has been secure in that intelligence which has cautiously investigated every grave and serious problem and surveyed with a clear vision every situation that confronted the workers of the continent.

Men of ripe experience have reached the conclusion that it is dangerous to "speed up," for the history of the past with its countless wrecks, has demonstrated that wisdom is seldom found in aggressive policies that are pushed by the passionate impulses of the over-zealous, who have not learned that "the brave, impetuous heart yields everywhere to the subtle, contriving head."

During 36 years of the life of the American Federation of Labor, many so-called aggressive labor organizations have been launched, and the founders of such organizations have made rosy predictions as to the glories and battles that would be fought and the victories that would be achieved to the lessening of the burdens of labor, but these impatient promoters of dual unions, who flaunted the flag of rebellion against the slow but sure policies of the American Federation of Labor, were forced to write the obituaries over the dissolution of organizations that were built on impulse instead of intelligence.

Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, has been shelled by the grape and canister of the advocates of aggressiveness, but has bravely stood his ground, bearing the brunt of the severest censure, rather than to precipitate the labor movement into a gallop, that might overwhelm it with disaster.

The great majority that once reprimanded the slow but sure methods of Gompers, no longer dip their pens in vitriolic verbiage in criticism of his lack of haste to reach the coveted summit of labor's ambition, but this minority which once differed from him, relative to politics and tactics, is now impressed with the conviction that it is far better to be slow and sure than to endanger the life and power of a movement, that has wrapped within it the hopes and aspirations of the laboring million of a nation.

The American Federation of Labor, in its great mission, is spreading the gospel of unionism throughout the land, is breaking the fetters of economic slavery, and Gompers, whose wisdom, energy and devotion have been consecrated to the great cause that pleads for social justice, merits the tribute of his fellow workers: "Grand Old Man of the Labor Movement."

PREVENT FLOODS AT HEADWATERS

Building of Walls and Levees Has Not Been Successful

In this country there are two principle methods in vogue for the prevention of floods. Until comparatively recently the popular idea was that overflow should be kept out by protecting the banks of streams, by the building of walls, dykes, levees or revetment work. The levee method has been applied to the Mississippi river for many years and millions of dollars have been thus spent. It is an indisputed fact that this method has not been entirely successful.

Another plan which is gradually gaining in favor in this country is the treatment of streams at their source, in addition to providing local protection works. The advocates of this method claim that this is the logical method to regulate a river. They contend that the sensible way to control floods is to build reservoirs at the headwaters to be used for storage purposes when floods are at their height and to release the stored supply when the river is low and needs the water, all other overflow being cared for by walls, dykes or levees.

LIFE OF BABE DEPENDS ON WAGES OF FATHER

Washington, Dec. 13.—That children's welfare, from babyhood to adolescence, is bound up with industrial conditions is emphasized in the fourth annual report of Miss Julia C. Lathrop of the Children's Bureau, federal department of labor.

A study of infant mortality in Manchester, N. H., completed this year, adds new evidence that when the father's earnings are low, or the mother's work out of the home, the infant mortality rate is exceptionally high. In Manchester it varies from one death among every four babies, where fathers earn less than $450, to one death among every 16 babies, where fathers earn $1,050 or more.

The bureau has prepared a study of material mortality and finds that 15,000 mothers die year by year in this country from largely preventable causes incident to maternity and that the death rate from maternal cases has not decreased since 1900.

"The means of prevention," it is stated, "are the instruction of the mother, skilled supervision before the birth of her child and suitable care during confinement. But she must have nourishing food and sufficient rest and freedom from anxiety—other words, decent living conditions.

"Merely keeping the breath of life in children is valueless to the nation unless they are brought on to adult life, trained masters of their full powers of body and mind.

"It is a matter of speculation as to what proportion of children at work are dependent upon their own earnings or support families in whole or in part. Also the number of dependent children now supported by public and private funds is unknown."

Congress is urged to authorize the bureau to make a special inquiry into the condition of the children to be affected by the new federal child labor law.

The action taken at a meeting of the Carpenters' District Council, held on Monday, Dec. 11, upon which occasion a committee was appointed to call upon the legislative representatives in Beaver county for the purpose of urging said representatives to use their influence and votes to defeat Richard Baldwin, candidate for the Speakership of the House, is more significant than it appears to the casual reader.

It means nothing more or less than the indisputable fact that one of the big branches of organized labor in the Beaver valley has gone on record as opposing a candidate who consistently voted, when a member of the Legislature, against practically every measure of importance to labor which was introduced. The Child Labor law; the repeal of the Full Crew Bill, and the increasing of the number and wages of the State Constabulary, were some of the measures which Mr. Baldwin voted upon, and on each occasion voted absolutely against labor's interests.

It means, further, that after years of inaction and suffering on the part of organized workers, that the lion is at last awake and that Union organizations are certain to become big factors in the political life of the nation. From now on, politicians and vested interests will have to deal with the man who toils, at least when it comes to a matter of political measures.

At the Colonial, Beaver Falls, Saturday, Dec. 23.

States, as it carries with it every act of a human being. This, however, does not weaken us, even though they had several of us arrested for violating the above injunction. Now, brother unionists, we have been out on strike for the past six months, and winter is upon us, and we are in need of assistance and are now compelled to appeal to you trade unionists to help us financially, so we may be able to buy food, fuel and clothing for our families, that we may continue this struggle, and in the spring we will, no doubt, win a complete victory.

Fellow unionists, do your best to help us win, and if you can't do more, then send us one dollar, and if your funds will not permit this, then take up a collection, as every little helps.

This appeal has been indorsed by the Illinois State Federation of Labor, the District Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of Illinois and the Tri-City Trades and Labor Councils, comprising the cities of La Salle, Peru and Oglesby, Illinois.

Send all contributions by Post Office or Express Money Orders to John P. Murtaugh, P. O. Box No. 212, La Salle, Illinois, who has been selected by the La Salle Trades and Labor Councils to receive all donations for relief of strikers and send receipt for same.

Program for Next Week

MONDAY, DEC. 18—J. Stuart Blackton and Albert E. Smith present the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "Rose of the South," a romantic drama of the Civil War.

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, DEC. 19-20—Arctcraft Pictures Corporation presents charming Mary Pickford in "Less Than the Dust," a picturesque story of modern India, in which Miss Pickford, as a little English castaway, develops a brand new characterization of intense power.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY, DEC. 21-22—William Fox presents temperamental Valeska Suratt in "Jealousy," the story of a woman without a heart or emotions, who wrecks the lives of two men and brings unhappiness into her own home.

SATURDAY, DEC. 23—Jesse L. Lasky presents dainty Marie Doro in "The Lash," a vital society drama by Paul West.

At the Majestic

"Rose of the South"

The understrain of enmity which existed between the North and the South just prior to the Civil War is clearly depicted in the quaint, romantic story of "Rose of the South," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature starring Peggy Hyland and Antonio Moreno, which is the attraction at the Majestic theatre on Monday, Dec. 18. Scenes of the Northern college are shown with the students lounging about on the grass of the campus. Then "Big Rudolph" with his dusky slave and faithful dog comes to the school from his Southern home and slowly the strained relations make themselves manifest and result in no end of quarrels.

"Less Than the Dust."

In "Less Than the Dust," the new picture in which Mary Pickford appears at the Majestic on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 19-20, she will be introduced to her host of admirers in the guise of a deserted orphan of English birth, who has been adopted by a sword maker in an East Indian City and reared among the natives. Later it is discovered who she is but not until she has gone through all of the anguish following the treatment by those who know her only as one of lower caste and less than the dust. The supporting cast is one of distinction and in all more than 250 people appear in the scenes which are laid in India and England. In one of the incidents of the battle scene the little girl rescues a British soldier who has been wounded and in the end wins her heart.

"Jealousy"

The vicious schemes and plots of a woman without a heart are portrayed in Wm. Fox's newest photoplay, "Jealousy," in which Valeska Suratt plays the leading role, and which is to be the attraction at the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 21-22. It is the story of a discontented woman, who tries to find happiness by forcing men to love her; but she is crushed and helpless in the end. When her husband goes to her and tells her that he has known of her tactics from the beginning and leaves the house, Anne falls senseless to the floor.

"The Lash"

Among the brilliant artists of the stage who have turned to the screen, Marie Doro stands out prominently. Her third Lasky photoplay, entitled "The Lash," which comes to the Majestic on Saturday, Dec. 23, reveals Miss Doro in the character of an ap- (Continued on Tenth Page)

The best basis of comparison is to go see the rugs for yourself. And we invite laymen and expert alike to examine our collection with the closest scrutiny, comparing quality for quality, size for size, design for design and coloring for coloring.

The facts are that our contracts for these rugs were placed many months ago, before the recent advances. We own today scores of rugs of the most desirable sizes, at prices that mean certain and sure savings to the purchaser. Not a single advance is recorded above the prices made when the rugs were purchased.

And now that the Christmas demand has come, it is highly important that those who contemplate the gift of such a rug, arrange for an early inspection. You can buy a room size as low as $16.50 up to $60.00 for the better grades.

Finest Gift of All—FURS

Those who know, know that there are no more carefully selected Fur Stocks in America than our own. Furs of questionable quality, such as would bring discredit upon the establishment, cannot be met with here. This same protection extends to the gift purchaser, who must consider with unusual care the source of his purchase. Still excellent choosing in the lines being sold at HALF PRICE.

Don't Forget the Sale of Suifs at Half-Price

They are all the season's newest models, mind you, and include every woman's suit in the house. We have too many suits and insist on a quick removal, that is the reason for this drastic mark-down. Prices have not been juggled and you are paying half the original price.

Toyland in the Basement

It is "Look here" and "Oh, look there" and a run here and there, a constant excitement for the little ones in their wonderment at the playthings. Quantities are necessarily limited this year, owing to uncontrollable circumstances. Hence we advise early choosing. The Toy Store in the basement is filled with many things that Santa will bring them Christmas morning. Come and see and bring the children with you.

Injunctions To Be Disregarded

American Federation of Labor Takes Stand in This Matter.

Baltimore—"Disregard strike injunctions, let the consequences be what they may," was the unanimous declaration of the convention of the American Federation of Labor, last convention.

This position was taken mainly because of a recent decision by the Massachusetts Supreme Court which has been considered by the A. F. of L. executive council and which was reported to the convention. The court reversed a State law prohibiting strike injunctions. The law declared that the right of labor is a personal right and not a property right.

The convention sustained the report of its committee that the executive council "further pursue the investigation of the case, and if there be any opportunity for a rehearing on appeal, that that procedure be authorized by the convention."

"Your committee would further recommend that it be the sense of this convention that it seems to be the settled purpose of interests antagonistic to the freedom of men and women who labor to persuade and then use the judiciary to misconstrue constitutional guarantees, and thereby nullify legislative enactments so as to leave but one remedy, and we, therefore, recommend that any injunctions dealing with the relationship of employer and employee, and based upon the dictum, 'Labor Is Property,' be wholly and absolutely treated as usurpation and disregarded, let the consequences be what they may."

"Such a decision as that rendered by the Supreme Court of the State of Massachusetts has its roots in class interests; it is usurpation and tyranny."

"Freedom came to man because he believed that resistance to tyranny is obedience to God; as it came so it must be maintained."

"Kings could be and were disobeyed, and sometimes deposed. In cases of this kind judges must be disobeyed, and should be impeached."

It is our aim to have every union man in the county a regular subscriber—are you with us?

Building Trades Hold Convention

The tenth annual convention of the Building Trades Department was held in Baltimore, Md., November 27-30.

The credential committee reported favorably on 61 delegates representing these International Unions:

Asbestos Workers, 1; Bricklayers & Masons, 6; Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, 3; Carpenters & Joiners, 7; Electrical Workers, 5; Elevator Constructors, 1; Hoisting Engineers, 4; Granite Cutters, 3; Hodcarriers, 5; Lathers, 2; Marble Workers, 1; Sheet Metal Workers, 4; Painters & Decorators, 6; Plasterers, 4; Plumbers & Steamfitters, 4; Composition Roofers, 1; Slate & Tile Roofers, 1; Stone Cutters, 2; Tile Layers & Helpers, 1.

Several protests were registered against local unions in different localities failing or refusing to become affiliated with local Building Trades Councils were read under the head of the President and Secretary's report. Resolutions Nos. 1, 8, 11 and 12, which are far-reaching along this line, were read and referred to the Resolution Committee. The committee substituted the following to cover this matter: "Whereas, Many local unions of international organizations affiliated with this department, do not belong to their respective Local Building Trades Councils; and

"Whereas, The efficiency and success of the local Departments in wholly dependent upon the complete cooperation of the trades eligible to affiliation; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention request each organization to urge its local unions not now affiliated to affiliate with the local councils of their respective cities; and be it further

Resolved, That the officers and executive council be directed to take this matter up with the international organizations and have them bring about such affiliation at the earliest possible date. The committee's report on this matter was adopted unanimously.

A resolution was submitted to the committee asking that local councils be prohibited from charging more than 15c for building trades cards. When this matter was brought on the floor for debate, the delegates stated that inasmuch as this was the per capita of the local council, it should be left to the delegates of the council, and that in larger cities where the membership was large the cards could be sold at a smaller rate than in smaller places, where the building trades council maintained a Business Agent and were compelled to charge more for the cards, and also levy an assessment in addition, to run the council; and as each organization was represented by their delegates it was thought that the delegates were better able to decide this matter than this convention.

The following officers were elected for the incoming year: President, John Donlin, Plasterers; first vice president, George F. Hedrick, Painters; second vice president, James G. Hannahan, Engineers; third vice president, William J. McSorley, Lathers; fourth vice president, Dominick D'Alessandro, Hodcarriers; fifth vice president, William L. Hutcheson, Carpenters; Secretary-Treasurer, William J. Spencer, Plumbers & Steamfitters.

MILLIONS OF WORKERS RECEIVE BIG INCREASES

Widespread Prosperity of U. S.
Reflected in Great Number of Increased Payrolls.

WORKERS ALL OVER COUNTRY BENEFITTED

Not less than 5,750,000 salaried employees and wage earners will have occasion to rejoice during the holidays over the widespread prosperity prevailing in the United States.

This estimate of the number of persons affected by the increases in salaries and wages, bonuses, profit-sharing plans and insurance benefits is made by Secretary of Labor Wilson, based upon reports received by his department.

While no estimate of the aggregate amount of money distributed under these various plans for helping employees to celebrate the coming Christmas and to enable them to meet the high cost of living is made by the Government, facts collected indicate that it will exceed $200,000,000.

The employees who have or will share benefit from these generous plans by individuals, firms and corporations include almost every variety of labor—skilled, unskilled, clerical, factory, office, and domestic.

IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

O. D. Buffington, of Beaver, carpenter, employed by the Cook-Anderson Co., had the misfortune to be struck in the left eye by a flying nail, Thursday, while engaged in working on the P. & L. E. railroad storage warehouse in McKees Rocks, sustaining a serious injury which may result in the loss of the eye. He is under the care of a specialist.

Copper Workers Are Striking Appeal for Financial Assistance.

To International, Central State Federations, Local Unions, and All Members of Organized Labor: Greeting:

On November 24th, all men employed by the Cornelia Copper Company operating at Ajo, Arizona, on strike, and the company has declared unfair to organized labor the following reasons:

The company has promised workers that the wages will be increased with the increased price of copper, but while copper has advanced to a record-breaking point, no increase has been granted. In addition to the low wages paid, the working conditions are of the worst. The houses no longer change rooms are crowded, and they are like so many cattle in the pens.

At the time of the strike, the company's Union was the only one in the camp, although the men were all union men. Other unions, including the miners and mill workers, were refused the wage scale, and in going on strike, all other crafts in the camp were refused the wage scale.

B. V. T. CO.'S CHRISTMAS TREE A GREAT SUCCESS

The sixth annual Christmas tree celebration given by the Beaver Valley Traction Company for its employees, was held in the dancing pavilion on Wednesday night, starting at 6 o'clock and lasting until 2 a. m. It proved to be the most successful affair of the kind ever given by the company, being attended by several hundred employees, members of their families, and invited guests. The big tree, which was the center of attraction, was beautifully decorated and lighted with hundreds of tiny colored electric lights. Each employee was given a present in the form of a package which contained articles for himself and each member of his family; the invited guests received large boxes of fine candy—at least the ladies did—while the gentlemen were presented with beautiful scarfs. Manager Charles C. Shetterly, of Junction Park, had several boxes of cigars on tap for the boys, while Superintendent Boyce officiated in the role of Santa Claus, minus the costume, and when not engaged in passing out presents, was busy seeing that everybody had a good time. Elstner's orchestra furnished music throughout the evening, dancing being indulged in. A delightful luncheon was served and altogether the affair was a most pleasant one, reflecting great credit upon the genial Superintendent as well as Mrs. Boyce, who ably seconded his efforts to make the celebration a success.

COMMISSION TO FIX RAIL WAGES URGED

Chairman Lee of Railways Conference Suggests Body Like Commerce Board.

New York, Dec. 20.—Regulation of wages by the same commission that regulates rates, may be the ultimate solution of the railroad wage problem, according to Elisha Lee, chairman of the national conference committee of the railways, who addressed the Economic Club here on the question of "Should the Right of Public Service Employees to Strike Be Regulated by Law?"

"I am not prepared to say that all wage problems on the railroads should be placed unreservedly in control of a public commission," said Mr. Lee, "but I do believe that when a controversy reaches a stage where the interests of the public are imperiled there should be a compulsory peaceful settlement, a judicial settlement that will conserve the public interests, as well as the interests of the parties to the controversy. If any body or men are required in the public interest to subordinate their private rights to their public duties, it should be with the full understanding that their rights must be in every way safeguarded by the public."

"We are at the parting of the ways. One road before us in a continuation of the system that eventually leads to settlement by force. The other road is a restriction and regulation of private bargaining for the protection of the rights of the public—trial by jury instead of trial by brute force."

Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, who in 1912 was chairman of the board of arbitration in the controversy between the Eastern roads and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said:

"A commission should be granted power to fix wages for public utilities. The railroads should be allowed to charge rates which give a fair dividend."

BEAVER VALLEY LABOR NEWS

Published Each Thursday by the

BEAVER VALLEY LABOR NEWS COMPANY

Near Third St. and College Ave. Beaver, Penn'a.

REX L. CHAMBERS.....GEN. MGR.-EDITOR
F. L. ANDERSON.....TREASURER
C. L. GILBERT.....ADVERTISING & CIRCULATION MGR.

The Labor News has now been serving the organized workers of the Beaver Valley for nearly two years. During that time it has given you the local and national news that you could not get through any other medium. This has cost money and meant many sacrifices upon the part of those active workers who knew the necessity for a real labor paper in this locality.

This paper has at all times looked upon the bright side and given encouragement, enthusiasm and determination to the organized workers in their struggles. No labor paper has been more fearless in doing its part in any controversy than The Labor News.

For many months The Labor News has been asking help of the organized workers to keep up this work and enlarge our field. A number of locals, evidently appreciating the fact that their cause is well served by The Labor News, are helping to the best of their ability by sending in subscriptions, items of news and by telling merchants of the value of the paper as an advertising medium. Other locals that have been similarly benefitted by the agitation carried on, up to the present time have given neither assistance or encouragement.

Organized workers have the greatest contempt for the non-union man who reaps the benefits of the labor unions without contributing one penny toward the support of the organization. What, then, can be said of the member of a local union that reaps the benefit of a local labor paper without raising a finger towards its support?

The Labor News needs the moral and financial support of all union organizations in the valley, if it is to continue to fight for better conditions in this locality. Would it not be a good idea for each local union organization to appoint a committee to solicit subscriptions for The Labor News and also a press correspondent who would be instructed to send in the news of what was transpiring at the many meetings? If this were done, the year 1918 would find The Labor News in excellent condition to champion the cause for which it was started.

Colonial, Beaver Falls

"The Madness of Helen."

Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell are coming to the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, on Monday, December 25th, in the latest Brady-Made World Picture "The Madness of Helen." This is one of the most beautiful and surprising stories ever written and has been re-booked several places where it has been shown.

"The Big Sister."

Mac Murray, who is being starred by the Famous Players in "The Big Sister," had a narrow escape during the filming of the scene in which her small brother Jimmy is injured by a motor car. Director John B. O'Brien had worked out the scene so that there would be no real danger for either the star or the boy who played Jimmy, though the illusion of the incident was perfect. But when she saw the car bearing down upon her, Miss Murray became confused and jumped the wrong way. It was only by swinging his car into a hedge that the chauffeur avoided striking Miss Murray. "The Big Sister" is the Paramount Picture at the Colonial on Tuesday, Dec. 26.

"The Reward of Patience"

During the taking of several scenes in the Famous Players production "The Reward of Patience," in which Louise Huff is being featured, a beautiful waterfall was used as a background. Here the director had Miss Huff and John Bowers doing some delightful love scenes. The camera man clipped a piece from the film and had it enlarged for Miss Huff, who was delighted with the result. Though we cannot have a piece of the film enlarged for us, we can see the waterfall on the screen at the Colonial, where it is the feature on Thursday, December 28.

"A Woman's Fight."

This famous Pathe Gold Rooster play, which Manager Goodman, of the Colonial Theatre, will present on Friday, is characterized by a powerful story written by Aaron Hoffman, splendid production under the personal direction of Herbert Blanche, and the acting of the star, Geraldine O'Brien, the Broadway favorite, and Thurlow Bergen, the well known star of the "legitimate" stage. It is according to the announcement of the Pathe offices, one of the best Gold Rooster plays yet shown.

"The Evil Women Do."

Rupert Julian, Elsie Jane Wilson and Francella Billington will be leaders of the Bluebird photoplayers presenting "The Evil Women Do," at the Colonial Theatre, Beaver Falls, Saturday, Dec. 30. In this instance good old fashioned melodrama is pictured to diversify the appeal of Bluebirds and in the oppression of the virtuous, the triumph of righteousness and the punishment of villainy local devotees of the screen are sure to have their emotions stirred to intense degrees. Emil Gaborian's widely-read novel, "The Clique of Gold" forms the basis of this stirring offering.

TUESDAY, DEC. 26—Jesse L. Lasky presents captivating Blanche Sweet in "The Storm," a drama of exceptional intensity.

SATURDAY, DEC. 30—Pallas Pictures presents beautiful Lenore Ulrich in "The Intrigue," an astounding story of a young American inventor.

At the Majestic

"The Chatter"
Even the quiet of the woods is disturbed when the movies arrive at a particular beautiful spot as a location for a feature picture particularly when Vitaphone is looking for a background for their new star, E. H. Sothern, the world's most famous actor. The last scene to be taken was in a log cabin, and was a fire scene where Mr. Sothern as the repentant husband, rescues his girl wife, played by charming Peggy Hyland, from the blazing timbers.
This scene is shown in "The Chatter," at the Majestic on Christmas day.

"The Storm."
A care-free child of the forest, a young woman unused to the ways of the world, living in the surroundings of nature, who is suddenly plunged into the midst of a gripping drama, is the role of Blanche Sweet in "The Storm," which comes to the Majestic on Tuesday, Dec. 26.

When they are about to be married the girl's secret and her betrayal are uncovered and in the straightening out of these difficulties the young woman's father, a philosopher of the woods, plays an important part.

"Anton, the Terrible."
With the production of "Anton, The Terrible," the Lasky Feature Play Co. presents Theodore Roberts and Anita King.
In addition to Mr. Roberts and Miss King the cast includes Edythe Chapman, Harrison Ford, Hugh B. Koch and Horace B. Carpenter.

"The Mischief Maker."
Right will triumph! June Caprice proves it in her new photoplay for William Fox, "The Mischief Maker," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 28-29.

June portrays a mischievous girl, Effie Marchand, who gets all her boarding-school companions into no end of scrapes. She gets herself in trouble by falling in love with a friend (Harry Benham) of her art teacher, and she marries him.

Of course, this disappoints her aunt with whom she lives. But when the old lady discovers that the man Effie married was the very one she had selected long ago, everything ends happily and everybody is satisfied.

"The Intrigue"
The United States War Office has declined to purchase a marvelously powerful wireless X-ray gun, the invention of Guy Longstreet, a young American scientist. A foreign country is interested and Baron Rognat is directed to come to America to receive the finished work.

At the Majestic Theatre, Saturday, December 30th.

EIGHT HOUR CASE TO BE HEARD JAN. 8TH

Railway Brotherhoods Declare Their Intention to Force the Law Into Effect.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The supreme court of the United States has refused to be driven to early action on the test case under the Adamson eight-hour law. The court, despite the apparent crisis in railroad affairs and the urging of counsel that the case should be decided at once, set January 8 for hearing arguments on the case.

The law will go into effect January 1st, and the railroad employees have announced their determination of taking drastic action unless they secure the benefits of the law at that time. The department of justice, however, will not attempt to prosecute railroads refusing to comply with the law, until the present case has been decided.

The attitude of the railroad workers now becomes the important feature of the situation, and unless they are satisfied to await the decision of the court another strike crisis may result.

The interests of railroad employees and also the railroads are deemed amply protected under the stipulation signed by railroad and Government attorneys.

This stipulation, a part of the official record, requires the railroads to keep special accounts of wages due employees under the Adamson act, for prompt payment if the court sustains the law. The stipulation also suspends all litigation, both by the railroads and the Government, over the law, pending the court's decision. Chief Justice White announced the court's action on the motion, presented last Monday by Solicitor General Davis, to advance the Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf railroad test for early hearing.

The best basis of comparison is to go see the rugs for yourself. And we invite laymen and expert alike to examine our collection with the closest scrutiny, comparing quality for quality, size for size, design for design and coloring for coloring.

The facts are that our contracts for these rugs were placed many months ago, before the recent advances. We own today scores of rugs of the most desirable sizes, at prices that mean certain and sure savings to the purchaser. Not a single advance is recorded above the prices made when the rugs were purchased.

And now that the Christmas demand has come, it is highly important that those who contemplate the gift of such a rug, arrange for an early inspection. You can buy a room size as low as $16.50 up to $60.00 for the better grades.

METAL MEN CONTACT BUSINESS

Members Received and Taken Relative to The Labor News.

NEWS ARE APPROVED

Metal Workers' Local No. 357, Tuesday evening at the organization headquarters in the Kramer block, New Brighton. There was a large attendance and much routine business was transacted. The By-laws were read and passed first reading. W. Bine, of Beaver, employed by Fry, was admitted to membership. The application of T. R. Ambridge, was received and to be acted upon at the next meeting. C. C. Collier, of New Brighton, was readmitted as a member and a withdrawal card.

Ambridge went on record as being interested in the success of the Beaver Valley Labor News, and in helping out to the best of his ability. Charles Jackson was elected president. Mr. Jackson will see that a regular meeting is forwarded to the members, an action which will be greatly appreciated by the members but will prove equally beneficial to those who may not be present at any particular meeting. In addition, the organization are all

RECORDS OF MEN PROMPTED VOTES

Assemblymen Dr. James R. Gormley and Charles H. Kennedy Tell Why They Voted as They Did in the Recent Fight for the Speakership of the House of Representatives.

SUMMARY COX'S LABOR RECORD

More than ordinary interest was taken on the part of organized workers in the Beaver valley in the recent Speakership fight at Harrisburg, which resulted in the election of Richard J. Baldwin as Speaker. Prior to the election, many representatives of organized labor called upon the two Assemblymen from Beaver county—Dr. J. R. Gormley, of Monaca, and Charles H. Kennedy, New Brighton attorney, and requested that they use their votes and influence to defeat Mr. Baldwin, stating that he had consistently opposed progressive labor legislation during his service as Assemblyman.

When it came to voting for the office of Speaker, it is now a matter of record, Mr. Gormley voted for Williams of Tioga county, and Mr. Kennedy voted for Cox.

In order that the organized workers of the valley may have a clear conception of the reasons which prompted the two Assemblymen to vote as they did, The Labor News like to have me, and as both the labor records of Baldwin and Cox were equally bad, I voted for Williams, feeling that if I voted for either of the two first mentioned, that I could not go home and face my friends. Mr. Williams' record was and is above reproach.

Mr. Kennedy said: "There are two reasons, outside of those of a personal nature, which caused me to vote for Mr. Cox. First, prior to and during the primaries, the Beaver Valley Temperance Association endorsed me and worked for my nomination and voted for me in the election. I could not, in view of Baldwin's record on temperance, it being well known that he has always been unalterably opposed to temperance legislation, unless it happened to be such legislation as he cared to sponsor, have voted for him. As for Mr. Cox's record on temperance legislation, I might mention the fact that for the past two sessions that gentleman has been one of the leaders in favor of the local

LABOR NEWS CO. NOW INCORPORATED

Stockholders Meet on Tuesday Night and Re-elect Old Board of Directors.

C. GILBERT IS MANAGER

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Beaver Valley Labor News Company, held on Tuesday evening, the company was formally incorporated and the old directors re-elected. A set of by-laws and other matters of importance were passed upon. Following the meeting of the stockholders the board went into session and organized. Following are the officers elected: President, J. C. Baines; vice president, J. D. McKenna; secretary, E. L. Chambers; treasurer, F. L. Anderson. D. M. Ward, of Beaver, now representative of Division No. 2, Street and Railway Employees, was elected secretary to the board. J. C. Baines, for the past seven years, has been the general manager of the company. This change was made upon the fact that the chairman of the company has already been elected and that Mr. Chambers felt he was better fully occupied with other duties connected with the national committee of the plant.

PAINTERS MEET.

Painters', Decorators' and Paperhangers' Local No. 530, met Wednesday evening at the headquarters in the Kramer block, New Brighton. A good attendance was present and considerable routine business was disposed of.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE TO BE DISCUSSED HERE

Mrs. John O. Miller, of Pittsburgh, to Be Main Speaker at Meeting on Tuesday, January 16.

By far the most important equal suffrage meeting in this county since the 1915 campaign, will take place at Beaver in Tuesday, January 16, at 8:30 o'clock, in the College Auditorium. Beaver has been a suffrage center for a number of years, and public meetings held there attract people from all over the county.

Mrs. John O. Miller, of Pittsburgh, will be the main speaker. Mrs. Miller sprang into the limelight during the 1915 campaign, when she swung Allegheny county for suffrage. She has made several visits to this county and her coming is eagerly anticipated by many old friends.

Mrs. Forest G. Woodhead, chairman of Beaver branch, will preside. Besides Mrs. Woodhead who is also vice chairman of the county organization, the following members of the county board will report in county work: Miss Edna B. The "Darling of Paris" will be shown during the week of January 29th. Please remember that William Fox will make one two reel comedy each week during the early 1917, and it is predicted, or to use Mr. Fox's words, they will outclass any ever produced, not excepting the Keystone Brand. This theatre will show the first one on January 25-26, it is called "Social Frights." The next week will be a burlesque on "A Fool There Was." It was Mr. Fox's intention to spend more money in the producing of these two reel comedies than ordinary producers do on five reel features. Watch our programs and you will observe other big things that will gain your approval of our efforts to make the comfortable Majestic Theatre your amusement home.

TYPEWRITER STRIKE BRINGING RESULTS

Woodstock Company Having a Hard Time to Dispose of Their Product.

The Woodstock Typewriter polishers' strike is nearing the end of the third month and the polishers report that this unfair firm has been forced to place agents on the road to stall off disaster to their rapidly declining trade, owing to the strike, which has been and is yet being advertised broadcast throughout the country.

Over 1,500 typewriters are piled in the storeroom of this company, owing to the deadly grip the strike has on the sales of this machine.

Look out for this agent, Mr. Merchant and Professional Man; he will call upon you soon; he is sent out as a feeder; he will tell you there is no strike on, to hold his job, to sell you a scab-polished typewriter, and when he does, ask him this question: "Why is the Woodstock Typewriter Company hostile to union labor?" Answer: "Because the boss hates unionism and has operated scab shops before this war." Why does the Woodstock refuse its polishers the nine-hour day when all other typewriter companies have granted it? What's the answer? Demand it.

F. J. JERKE,

Secretary Strikers Committee.

Records of Men Prompted Votes

and me that they were not particularly interested in the affair, and told me to do as my conscience dictated and to use my best judgment. On the one hand stood the first named manufacturers, while opposed to them were the temperance organization of the county and the labor organizations, representing some six or eight thousand voters, both of which urged me to vote against Baldwin. I want at all times to serve the wishes of my constituents as nearly as I can and at the same time to be true to my own convictions."

Organized labor in Beaver county is thoroughly familiar with Baldwin's record and know well where he stands. Whether or not organized workers are as well acquainted with Mr. Cox's record is a matter of doubt. For this reason, The Labor News publishes herewith a letter received by Dr. J. R. Gormley from John J. McDevitt, First Vice President of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, received several weeks before the election of Speaker. This letter sets forth Mr. Cox's record insofar as his stand on progressive labor legislation is concerned. The letter follows:

Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23, '16.

My Dear Sir:—In pursuance of instructions from my organization I am writing you to not only vote against but to exert your most energetic influence to defeat the election of Edwin R. Cox as Speaker of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg.

The election of Edwin R. Cox would be a public calamity and a direct menace to the interests of the working people of this State.

Our indictment against Edwin R. Cox is that by education, occupation and legislative record he is inimical to the workers, especially trades unionists.

The indictment is substantiated by the public records and the recent history of industrial happenings in Harrisburg and Philadelphia—namely, the legislative record of Edwin R. Cox in the sessions of 1909, 1911, 1913, 1915, and his actions during the strike at the Atlantic Refining Company, in Philadelphia, called August 23, 1916. Legislative Record of Edwin R. Cox and Philadelphia, too, stand out in recognition of the brutish power of the Standard Oil exploiters.

When the strike of 2800 employees at the Atlantic Refining Company, called August 23, 1916, was at the height of its development, and men were starving, women suffering and little children crying; while the police acting under orders from the Atlantic Refining Company were clubbing the strikers in a most outrageous manner, the Hon. Edwin R. Cox, an executive of the Company, had the power to stop the fearful ravages of the strike, but the contrary intensified the situation by tacitly assisting in the importation of 2,000 negro strike breakers from the south to break the strike of the white freemen—a strike for alleviation from the awful working conditions at Point Breeze, and an increase in their pitiable wages.

The strike was of unprecedented suffering on the part of the workers and brutal police action guided by the hand of Standard Oil—and the friend of Labor—the Hon. Edwin R. Cox, didn't raise his voice then to assist the workers.

And, therefore, because we do not want duplicated in Philadelphia the pernicious powers of Ludlow, Bayonne and other Standard Oil centers, we urge upon your conscience to defeat the Hon. Edwin R. Cox for the Speakership of the House of Representatives.

For more than forty years Standard Oil has left a trail of blood across the country.

It is not wise nor safe nor just that any person in collective affiliation with Standard Oil should be placed in power over the rights and liberties of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

A conscientious politician should not be so slow to give power to a man who is so slow to give it to the people.

institution of the Hon. Edwin R. Cox, as a perusal of his legislative record will demonstrate.

Very truly yours,
